"I want you, mamma, dearest—and I ask the favor in presence of Lady Fielden—to let me go back to England with her"—Harry would have cried out, but prudence restrained him—"and begin the work to which I intend devoting my life. She will help me; and something tells me that I shall succeed. Do not say I am too young, Mamma, dearest, youth has wisdom sometimes. Lord Fielden"—and here Gertrude's eyes rested upon the young nobleman with a softened light that stirred every pulse in his strong frame—"will help me. He is the son of our best friend; my dear father must have known him when he was a boy. He is strong and patient; and no man could do a more noble work than clear away the shadow that rests on the fair name of a gentleman. I am sure Lord Fielden will give me a few months of his life."

There was a faint murmur heard as of some one saying that he would give his life and all it held. It did not seem extravagant to the young enthusiast; to her mind the whole world must give way to the object she had in view; it was the one topic of interest to her. She was deaf to all others.

"Mamma," she continued even more earnestly, "will you come to Scarsdale and help me?"

Dolores shook her head.

"Do not ask me, my dear; I could not bear it," she replied, hastily.

"Will you let me go?" she pleaded.

"Yes, if you really wish it, Gertrude."

"I do, indeed; and, mamma, you shall remain here, if you will, until you receive a message from me saying 'The mystery is solved.' You will come then?"

"If ever you can send me that message, Gertrude, and it means that—that he is cleared from guilt, I will come; but, if it means simply that you have found him, do not ask me—let me stay here until I die."

It was a touching sight to see the fair young daughter kneel at the feet of her mother as she said, in clear, firm tones—

"It shall be so, mamma. When—mind, I do not say 'if'—when I can prove my father's innocence, I shall write to you and ask you to come."

So it was arranged that Gertrude should go back to England with Lady Fielden.

CHAPTER XXVII.

English life and scenery were quite a new experience for Gertrude. The sea-washed shores, the tall white cliffs, the clover meadows and green lanes, the woods, streams, and valleys had a nameless charm for her. She even went so far as to declare that she loved the gray mists and fogs, the cold winds and keen frost. The fair scenery and coloring of fertile Italy were nothing to her beside these beauties of her own home. Her poetical emotional nature was awakened, and there were times when Lady Fielden was afraid that the girl's intense feeling would endanger her health. But it did not. The brave, young heart was roused to its work.

Gertrude took one day to rest, and on the next Lord and Lady Fielden drove her to Scarsdale. It was touching to see the girl's face as she roamed over the old house. Now and again faint gleams of memory came over her, and she would stand quite still, struggling with her tears. It was then that Harry had some difficulty to restrain himself from taking her in his arms and comforting her.

Mrs. Pickering, the old housekeeper, wept for joy.

"You are welcome, indeed, Miss Allanmore!" she cried. "I had never even hoped to see any of the family here again."

Gertrude's eyes opened widely at the sound of her name; but Lady Fielden made a gesture for silence. One or two of the old servants who had been there at the time of Sir Karl's disappearance were equally delighted to see their master's daughter. Gertrude would have taken up her residence at Scarsdale, for she longed to be alone; but Lady Fielden would not hear of such a thing.

A faint rumor had spread through the county that Sir Karl's daughter, young as she was, had returned to the old home, because she was not satisfied with regard to her father's fate; that she had refused to believe that he had voluntarily left his home and his wife, and that she was now staying under Lady Fielden's roof for the express purpose of making inquiries.

Every one pitied her. People had long believed Sir Karl's fate sealed and settled; he had left the country with Miss de Ferras sixteen years before, and his name was almost forgotten. They had lamented his downfall, they had sympathized with his wife, and sorrowed for her children; then they had consigned the matter to oblivion.

Gertrude spent day after day in the old house at Scarsdale, questioning the housekeeper until she knew every detail connected with Sir Karl's disappearance far better even than her mother; she spent hours in the rooms that had been her father's, trying to imagine from his surroundings what he had been like. She made friends with the old groom James, who never wearied of repeating all that he knew in connection with his master's disappearance.

Of Lord Rhysworth, who was still unmarried, Gertrude had made a complete conquest. He teased her by calling her "Donna Quixote;" but he owned to himself that, if it were possible for any one to succeed in throwing light on Sir Karl's fate, it would be his devoted daughter who would accomplish that end.

One day Gertrude sat down with her three friends to hold their first deliberation together. She had made herself mistress of the case; she knew every detail. She had steeped her mind, thoughts, and senses, in this story of the past, in this knotted mystery, which she had set herself to unravel. Her face always wore the preoccupied expression of one whose thoughts are seldom with the present. If she could, she would have given her life to have proved her father's innocence. People spoke of her with tears in their eyes, and said she had a golden heart.

"It seems a puzzle to me," said Lord Rhysworth. "To put our task into plain English, we want to know the best plan for finding a lost man—one man lost in this great wide world. It seems a difficult mission, but we have much to encourage us. We can send to Scotland Yard for one or two of its cleverest detectives; we have steam and electricity; we have, above all other things, the love of a brave and devoted daughter to help us. Now, as a matter of course, the first question is, How shall we proceed?"

"Send for one or two detectives to help us; those men always think of things that never occur to any one else," said Lord Fielden.

"I agree with you; it would be a very wise thing to do," said Gertrude.

Then Lady Fielden objected—

"A detective was employed at the time, but he could make nothing out of the case."

"Perhaps we may obtain the services of one with more brains," said Lord Rhysworth, "in any case, we can but try. Detectives have every facility for communicating with each other, and of obtaining information. Even should the man we employ do no more than make suggestions, they may lead to something."

So it was agreed that the first thing to be done was to send to Scotland Yard for one of the ablest men in the police force. Gertrude gave a sigh of relief. To her sanguine mind it was a great deal to have made a start.

"After all," she said to her friends, "the world is but a small place. When I think how soon we can go round it, to look for one man lost in it cannot be so hopeless. I have been told that, no matter where a person goes, he is sure to meet some one he knows. If that be true, surely to find the being one loves cannot be so very difficult a task."

"We shall have difficulties enough, but we must not let them discourage us," said Lord Fielden; "indeed, my idea is that nothing in life is worth doing, unless there are plenty of obstacles to be overcome. I like meeting them as if they were so many enemies, and conquering them one after another."

He was rewarded by a grateful look from Gertrude's blue eyes. After a few more words, the council for that day ended.

Messrs. McMillan & McGuire this morning received the following despatch,—

Labour troubles, which have been unduly magnified, will likely all blow away in due course. Gold shipments will soon be offset yb gold productions. Speculations in cotton may subside without evil results. There may be a break in the market this afternoon and on Saturday, but I do not think the situation so bad as it looks and persons who hold stocks bought high up would be unwise to let them go.

RIDGLEY.

New York, May 22nd, 2.00 p. m. — Most of standard stocks opened up from 1-4 to 3-4 higher than last night's close, with London strong at 2.00 p. m. Market seemed to turn a little weak after opening, during the first half hour but rallied sharply again and continued steady with figures not far from first prices. There seem to be no special features so far. Soo common touched 61, five points from lowest yesterday. Twin City 107 and Pennsylvania 129, three and one-half points from yesterday's lowest. Dominion coal and steel although a trifle higher than yesterday, still continue weak; coal selling around 9 and steel around 15 1-2.

New York, May 22nd, 11.20 a.m.—Two features to the situation look bad. The drastic action of the P.A. cutting down W.U. poles can invite nothing but friction between the two parties. Then there is settlement of S.P. strike, which has been going on for a year. Railroad has practically given in to men. On another rally we are inclined to believe stocks a sale.

M. & M.

New York, May 22nd, 10.30 a. m. — Chief interest to-day will centre in preliminary estimates of bank statement. It is hard to see how a good statement can be expected with banks losing over $3,500,000 in gold and $500,000 for Canada and same amount for Argentine on Monday.

M. & M.

New York, May 22nd, 9.45 a. m. — Norfolk still doing very heavy coal business. Steel corporation officials say plans of certain railroads to postpone improvements will not effect demand for steel very much this season. Erie earnings very large and practically certain, year will show 4 per cent on common. There has been foreign buying of stocks last few days.

DOW, JONES & CO.

New York, May 22nd, 9.45 a. m. — A much better feeling prevails this morning, practically heavy foreign buying and new investment purchases. It is not to be supposed, however, that we are going to run into anything like an active bull market and there are still too many uncertainties. We believe we will have a good trading market. Liquidation has been very extensive, but there will probably be more development on the advances which will prove sufficient to hold in check anything like an attempt at a bull movement.

M. & M.

New York, May 22nd, 12.15 a. m.—We can state new Penna. issue has been underwritten by a powerful goup of bankers and there is no longer any possibility of the issue failing. This incident probably marks the end of what must be regarded as in part, at least a determined bear campaign in the market.

DOW, JONES & CO.

New York, May 22nd, 12.15 a. m.—Grain,—The decline of yesterday closed out a large line of long wheat, corn and oats. There has been heavy general rains in Central States. This will put ground in better condition to finish corn planting. We feel that July and Sept. wheat and oats are now low enough but sentiment among traders is bearish, and they may sell it off a little further. September oats positively looks cheap to us around present prices. A scalping market is probable for the near future, but we see nothing to cause much decline.

CANDY.

STEEL CONVERSION.

It is said that the syndicate formed to finance the U. S. Steel conversion plan will waive its option on the uncovered portion of the issue, amounting to upward of $100,000,000, and if this proves to be the case the transaction will be closed with about $130,000,000 preferred stock retired and 150,000,000 in bonds issued. This would reduce the company's dividend charges $9,500,000 a year and increase the bond interest charges approximately $7,500,000 a year.

The young men who frequent the Otonabee in their crafts, have been making matters interesting of late, for nearly every day some young navigator gets a ducking. A night or two ago, a young lady experienced the "softness" of the water when she stepped one "foot" from the shore.—Com.

The lake is fairly alive with young people on these beautiful evenings, enjoying themselves in canoes, skiffs and yachts. Now is the most pleasand time for boating. The water is practically free from mosquitoes and other flies, that are so much in evidence in the warmer months. This coupled with the splendid scenery—and nature is now at her prettiest — makes this healthful recreation very enjoyable.

LACROSSE.

The Lindsay Post says:—"The all-absorbing topic on the streets at present is, "which team is going to land the cup on Monday? Well, if the locals are not compelled to face a Port Hope-Campbellford-Peterborough and Hastings bunch, perhaps their chances for winning are good." The Scugog boys may rest assured that they will not run up against such a combination. The T.A.S. players are all residents of the town with the exception of Joe Muldoon, who resides at Havelock and who offered his services to the locals for the season. The T.A.S. Club has not imported any players for the summer, although rumours to the contrary are in circulation.

• • • •

The T.A.S. senior and II teams will line up this evening, after which the new knickers will be given out to the men.

• • • •

Port Hope Times:—"The Victorias open the season in Peterborough with the second T.A.S. team. Their team is much the same as last year with a couple of new defence men and Dann the home man of last year's Shamrocks, also figures on their team. They are looking forward to a swift game in Peterborough and as the T.A.S. II defeated Campbellford right in their own burg, they must be fast indeed. However, Sandy's bunch will be prepared to meet all comers and all that is needed to do the trick now is for the boys to follow trainer Reynold's directions and not apply too much of his world famous liniment."

• • • •

The Campbellford Despatch in referring to the game in that place last week says:—Gilman, the T.A.S. goal keeper, is a star, and had it not been for his brilliant stops the score would have been large.

REVIEWING GAMEY EVIDENCE.

Mr. Johnston's Masterly Presentation of the Facts.

HE SCORES BLAKE'S ADDRESS

Characterizes it as a Political Extremists Speech.

NOT A COUNSEL'S REVIEW OF EVIDENCE.

No Corruption, No Patronage No Support—Without Money the Correspondence, Interviews, Etc., are all Innocent—The Review Not Concluded.

Mr. Johnston's address to the Gamey Commissioners began promptly at ten o'clock a.m., Friday:

Mr. Johnston — Assassins, corruptors of morals, unblushing liars, bribers, perjurers, suborners, perjury, forgers, and teacher of forgeries; such were the remarks addressed to your Lordships yesterday by my learned friend as a reason for finding a high official of the State guilty of a grave crime. On behalf of those whom I represent, the Hon. J. R. Stratton and the Government of the province of Ontario, I ask your Lordships' indulgence for a moment, and for a moment only, to say one word with regard to the personal character of the address, and then I shall very gladly deal with the facts in evidence before this court.

THE PEOPLE'S PROTECTOR.

For five long hours my learned friend, for whom I entertain the greatest respect, and who assumes in this investigation the role of the people's protector, made a strong partisan speech, not to the court, but a speech which manifestly was intended to form the text for a great political party; a speech more akin to the utterances of a political extremist than in accordance with the performance of the high duty which my learned friend has assumed; a speech, and I say it with all reverence and all deference, beginning with implications, continued through a torrent of abuse and ending in prayer. With such an address I have no concern. But I have the right and I am sure that your Lordships will grant me that right, to shortly repudiate and resent such language being applied to men in high places, unless such remarks are fully and sufficiently warranted by good evidence.

THIRTY YEARS OF CONFIDENCE.

For thirty long years the Government of this province, whom I represented on this investigation, has had and retained the confidence of the people, rightly or wrongly. For thirty long years it has been a matter of history that charges exactly in the line of my learned friend's address have been made again and again against that Government and against the individual members thereof. For thirty years these charges have not been proved, and it now comes to us to say whether or not there is sufficient proof to warrant the conviction of these men. My desire is, if possible, to aid in getting at the truth upon the evidence. As far as the respective political parties are concerned I have no desire to interfere. When this case was removed from the political arena, when it was taken from the zeal and the prejudices and the partisanship necessarily incidental to a great political parliament of legislative body and placed in the hands of your Lordships it was so done with a view not of making it political, not of allowing any political feelings to interven, but for the purpose of showing what shall our judges say upon the evidence that is submitted, what shall a calm, judicial tribunal pronounce as the proper verdict when the evidence is heard from the witness box.

THE OBJECT OF THE COMMISSION.

That, I understand, is the object for which we have been sitting during the past five or six weeks. That, I understand, is the desire of every good and faithful subject of his Majesty in this province. That is the object of the resolution of the House, and that is the purpose for which your Lordships have been appointed, and for that alone. If the truth is against me, if the truth is against the clients whom I have the honour to represent before this tribunal, then I shall be content to accept the finding of your Lordships without the slightest uncharitable feeling or ungenerous remark towards my opponents. This is not a matter in which I enter at all with any question of political feelings, it is not a case which ought to have the slightest political bias brought to bear upon it one way or the other, and if I can aid your Lordships in arriving at the real truth of this investigation I shall feel that I have performed my duty and performed it to the very best of my ability. I have made these few remarks because I felt it due to the men whom I represent and to have them made. I could say a great deal more but respect, personal respect, for my learned friend, regard for his position at the bar, regard for his great ability, prevent me from enlarging upon that particular question. I could not reasonably have said less.

GRAVITY OF THE SITUATION.

Now, I desire to state equally with my learned friend that the issue before this tribunal is great and important. Perhaps more so than would at first sight appear. Infinitely more grave and more important than the mere political aspect or standing of the respective parties concerned. Grave because a crime has been charged against a Minister of the State. Grave because a crime has been charged against the State itself as administered by the Government. Grave because it is subversive of all good government if such things as these can happen. Important because if these facts are true, then the freedom of members and the choice of the people are at once completely and wholly interfered with. Important because not only in this country, but in all countries governed by responsible form of government, it is absolutely necessary so far as practicable in this life of imperfection that Ministers of the Crown shall be absolutely clean. Important because this issue affects the whole province. Either a gross libel has been cast upon the fair fame of Ontario by the member for Manitoulin or the men whom we have entrusted with the government of this country should be in the penitentiary. We desire as much as my learned friends to wipe out that stain, and even if Mr. Gamey has to suffer, even if Mr. Stratton has to suffer, it ought to be the aim and object of every good citizen to see that the suffering comes to the proper quarter.

LIKE CAESAR'S WIFE.

The ideal Minister should bear a character unsullied; he should be beyond suspicion, because in his hands is placed a trust, perhaps the highest in the land to execute. A member should not be influenced by promises, by inducements of an improper character; they should be in the position that their personal interests are completely lost sight of, their party interest only a secondary matter, and their country's interests first and foremost of all. That would be the ideal Minister and the ideal member. We cannot expect that. We have never yet seen it illustrated in the history of any country. We do not expect that but we do expect, and have the right to expect, that a Minister of the Crown and a member of Parliament shall, so nearly as may be, approach to that high standard of ideal perfection which I have briefly outlined.

That position, as your Lordships will admit—and it is just perhaps for the moment desirable to draw attention to what is the actual fact—is more or less modified by the practice of both political parties. It would be right, for instance, that the man who is best qualified in the riding should be entitled to the position in the gift of the Government, no matter what his political leanings may be.

PRACTICE AND RIGHTS.

Parliamentary practice and the recognized rights of both parties have so determined the question that only supporters of the Government obtain the official positions as a rule, the bench alone excepted. The member himself elected to support a Government in power, or who does support a Government in power, received a patronage. There we have an inducement from the very inception of an election. The hope that his party will be elected; the hope that he will himself be in turn as a supporter, with the ultimate result that he will receive the benefits of that Government and the benefits of that support by receiving the patronage of his riding.

BRITISH PRECEDENT.

And we see that illustrated very often in the House of Commons in England as well as in Canada. No matter what the measure may be, no matter how well it may fit in with the wants of the country, no matter how high and moral the policy may be, if the vote is a want of confidence vote in the Government, the politician elected for the Opposition or the politician elected for the Government will vote, not according to the measure, but according to the party needs and the party exigencies. These are only a few of many things which go to show that we have to bring to bear upon the question of political matters in this country a knowledge of what really is done and recognized as fair and proper; and in order to dispose of that question once and for all, and in order that I may not take up unnecessary time in dealing in my own language with a matter of that kind, I refer your Lordships to Todd's Parliamentary Government in England, volume 1, second division, at the bottom of pages 616 and 617, as laying down the true principle which governs the question of a member's relation to the Government which he supports. Mr. Todd quotes from May; but I will give Mr. Todd's own language first:

WHAT TODD HAS TO SAY.

"In selecting individuals to fill subordinate places of honour and emolument, a great responsibility devolves upon the existing administration. Public opinion will no longer tolerate the prostitution of offices for political services that so ofter disgraced our history in former times. It is now an admitted necessity that any one appointed to an office of trust, however small, should be qualified for his post; otherwise the choice will bring discredit upon the Government and will lead to the withdrawal of public confidence and Parliamentary support for those who are accountable for the same.

ADMINISTRATION'S PRIVILEGE.

"But so long as this principle is not lost sight of, it is acknowledged to be the privilege of an Administration to give the preference in appointments to office to their political friends and supporters; for amongst the powers that are required to enable a Government to perform its functions with efficiency there are few more essential than that of reward."

Then May says: "The patronage of the Crown has ever been used to promote the interest and consolidate the strength of the party in which its distribution happens to be vested." That being so, your Lordship will at once agree with me that in the offer of patronage to the men who support the Government, and in the exercise of that patronage through the Government supporters in each individual riding, there is in itself not a corrupt act, and it is no evidence of a corrupt act that that should be done. Therein lies the force and the application of the quotation which I have made to your Lordships.

ELIMINATES MONEY.

Now, just for one moment let me eliminate the question of money; and I may say that I quite agree with my learned friend that in order to get at the effect of the protest and the effect of the patronage it is most satisfactory that we should eliminate all questions of bribery in the shape of money bribes. And by a singular coincidence, in preparing the notes of evidence which I have done, I followed independently of my learned friend the same course, as it occurred to my mind that perhaps we would be able to get at the facts and conclusions more correctly by following that method.

THE THREE WAYS.

There are three conditions, and three conditions only, in which a member can be placed in regard to the Government on the subject of patronage. The first is where nothing whatever is said between him and the Minister of the Government—no promise made, no assertion that he will get patronage if he supports the Government. The second case is where he is told: "If you support the Government, or when you become a supporter of the Government, you shall of course have the patronage, the same as other members who are supporting us in power." The third case is where there is a corrupt bargain made, an actual bargain, based upon an act of corruption.

THE SAME RESULT.

Now, your Lordships will observe that in these three cases the net result is the same, namely, that he gets the patronage. But the getting of the patronage proves nothing in the first and second cases, and I am endeavouring to ascertain the probative value of a member getting the patronage. It proves nothing, because he gets it as a matter of right, he gets it as a matter of precedent.

Chancellor Boyd—Or usage.

Mr Johnston — Or usage; and he knows that if he supports the Government he gets the patronage. These two cases, therefore, whether anything has been said or not said, whether any discussion has taken place or not, in these two cases the act of giving him patronage proves nothing. It is only in the third case, where the actual corruption or corrupt act is in some way proved that the fact of his getting patronage has any probative value whatever.

THE MEMBER'S POSITION.

Just look at the member's position. If Mr. Gamey was honest on the seventh day of August in his intention to support the Ross Government he could not be corrupted even by the promise of patronage, because he knew if he supported the Government he would get the patronage; if he was dishonest, intending to support the Government for his own personal reasons, he was taking advantage of Parliamentary usage, as your Lordships put it, taking advantage of his knowledge of that; and perhaps that, operating upon his own mind, would have induced him to do certain things which he would not otherwise have done; but that is no fault of the Government; and it is, therefore, only where we have a corrupt act, proved to be corrupt in its operating upon the mind of the member, that the exercise of patronage becomes in the slightest degree tainted.

COMMISSION'S SCOPE.

Now, having endeavoured to make myself clear upon the question of patronage, and how the evidence should strike one in weighing it, let me call attention now to the Commission and its scope. The Commission is specific. It contains in the body of it three distinct charges:—First, that J. R. Stratton by the payment of two several sums of money—$800 on the 10th or 11th of September, and $100 on the 29th of January—corrupted the member for Manitoulin; secondly, that by the exercise and promise of patronage a gift in the hands of the Crown, he corrupted the member for Manitoulin, thirdly, by the withdrawing or arrangement in regard to a protest then pending against the member for Manitoulin he exercised a corrupt influence; and corruptly induced by these three various means the member for Manitoulin to support a Government not in accord with his political convictions and not in accord with the convictions of his constituents. Then there is a fourth charge, namely, the charge of conspiracy, which is introduced into this investigation by reason of a certain statement in the nature of a count in an indictment read by Mr. Gamey in the House, and which, with my friend's permission, I might say reads very like some portions of yesterday's speech.

COMES UP SMILING.

Mr. Blake—Thank you.

Mr Johnston—That charge is a charge of conspiracy; so that we have the four specific charges covered by this Commission and by what is known as the amendment to the Evidence Act. Now, the nature of this commission is in the form of a criminal indictment. That the crime is charged by the member for Manitoulin in specific language, is equally unmistakable. And when he undertook to make his charges in the House, out of which the proceedings has arisen, he then knew, and he knows to-day, that he was not charging a political offence, that he was not charging a breach of parliamentary practice, precedent or usage, but he was charging against a Minister of the Crown and his colleagues a specific crime under the criminal code.

And the importance of that is with regard to the nature, the character and the weight of the evidence to support such a charge. In other words, if the commission under which your Lordships are sitting was shorn of its parliamentary verbiage the remainder of it would be a bill or an indictment upon which a grand jury could find a true bill under the code. That being so, the onus of proving that crime rests upon the prosecution. That being so, guilt is not presumed, as my learned friend yesterday presumed it, but must be proved.

CHARGED AS CRIMINALS.

I need not for a moment mince words in regard to our own position We are charged here as criminals. We are here to meet that charge and all that we ask, and what we have got, and what no doubt we will get, is a trial upon that issue. Now, my learned friend says that under the act, cap. 19, of the Revised Statutes of Ontario, 1897, there is no power to find by the Commissioners. Surely, my learned friend has not been reading the commission that have sat again and again under the same act in which specific findings were made by the commissioners, and surely my learned friend is not conversant at all with what took place on this very commission; and I read from the official report of the House.

THE EVIDENCE ACT.

The question arose respecting the Evidence Act, which was passed, as your Lordships know as an ancillary measure to this proceeding. "It was moved by the Attorney-General that the bill be now read a third time. Mr. Garscallen of Hamilton, moved in amendment, seconded by Mr. Beatty, that all the words of the motion after the word 'that' be omitted and the following substituted:—'The bill be not now read the third time, but be forthwith re-committed to a committee of the whole house with instructions to amend the same by adding the following clause thereto; Notwithstanding anything in the said commission contained or expressed, the same commissioners therein named shall not make or report any finding or decision of fact, but shall report all proceedings had or taken in connection with the enquiry and investigation directed by the said commission, together with all the evidence given or heard before them.'" That is my learned friend's argument of yesterday to your Lordships. That was the motion moved by the hon. member for Hamilton when this question came up in the House as to the limit of the functions of your Lordships. That amendment was put to the whole House, and lost on a division, and the bill was read a third time and passed. So that it is manifest——

MAY, NOT MUST.

The Chancellor—We may find, but are not obliged to find.

Mr. Johnston—Certainly, my Lords,

The New Baby

Many women are denied the happiness of children simply because of some curable derangement of the generative organs.

Among the many triumphs of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is overcoming cases of supposed barrenness. Thousands of children owe their existence to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. This great medicine is so well calculated to regulate every function of the generative organs that its efficiency in this respect is vouched for by multitudes of women.

Nine Years Without a Child.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—We had been married nine years and never had children, and now we have a little baby girl nineteen months old, the joy of our life. She owes her existence to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was a constant sufferer. I had pains in my back and sides, especially before menstruation. I had doctored but received no benefit. Hearing so much about the Vegetable Compound I decided to try it, and after taking six bottles was cured."—MRS. T. H. GOULBEY, 1223 Nevada St., East Toledo, Ohio.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wrote to you some time ago asking why I could not have a child. I explained that I had displacement of the womb and ovarian trouble, and suffered with backache and headache. You sent me a nice letter in reply giving me full instructions how to treat myself, and in accordance with your directions I took your Vegetable Compound, and followed your kind advice faithfully in every respect, and now I have a little girl, the joy of our home. I never would have had my baby if it had not been for your advice and medicine.

"I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound enough for what it has done for me. I hope other childless women will see this letter."—MRS. JOHN UEBERLACKER, 1111 Broadway, Cleveland, Ohio.

Another Happy Case in Brooklyn.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wrote to you a year ago telling you of my troubles. I had pains in the ovaries, menses were painful, and I had never borne children.

"You answered my letter and I followed your advice. I was completely cured. Have just given birth to a fine, healthy babe, and during chi'dbirth had a very easy time.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines are a God send to women who want to be mothers."—Mrs. SCHULTZ, 12 Luzner St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Many women whose letters we print were utterly discouraged, and life lacked all joy to them when they wrote Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., without charge of any kind. They received advice which made them strong, useful women again.

THE COUNTY COUNCILS ACT.

One of the most interesting bills for rural municipalities now before the Legislative Assembly is one introduced by Mr. Taylor of North Middlesex to amend the County Councils Act. This Act was one of the favourite measures of the late Hon. A. S. Hardy, and there has been a disposition thus far to hold it inviolate so that it might have a fair trial. Of late, however, there has been a growing agitation in favour of some change being made in its workings, more particularly as to the method of electing the members. It is admitted to have worked admirably in most respects, and the reduction in size of councils is greatly appreciated, but it is claimed that the severing of the connecting link between the township and county councils has caused a lack of interest.

Mr Taylor proposes in his bill that the county council shall be composed of reeves of townships and villages and the mayors of towns. The seeming objection to this is that the municipalities are of unequal size, and that it would be unfair to give the representatives from the smaller municipalities an equal voice with the representatives from the larger ones. To get over this objection the following clause is provided:

"In every question arising in a county council constituted under this section, which involves the expenditure of money to an excess of $2,000 for any purpose other than the current annual expenses of the municipality, the result shall be determined by adding together the equalized assessments of the municipalities whose representatives vote for such expenditure and against such expenditure respectively, instead of by a majority vote of the members as in other cases."

This cumulative voting scheme is a somewhat new one in our municipal affairs but it seems to have much to command it. Perhaps the most objectionable feature of the Bill is the suggestion that the councils should be given power to make the change in the method of electing members without an appeal being made to the ratepayers, but this is a matter of detail which is susceptible of correction.—Brantford Expositor.

THE REDISTRIBUTION.

Draft of Proposed Re-arrangement of Constituencies.

The redistribution committee of the House of Commons have submitted a schedule which forms the basis for the work of recasting the constituencies. The schedule specifies the number of ridings into which each county in Ontario shall be divided.

Toronto will be given five members instead of four, and those portions of the city now in East and West York for Dominion purposes will be incorporated in the Toronto ridings.

The united counties of Leeds and Grenville, including Brockville, will have three members, one less than at present, the riding of Brockville being wiped out.

Algoma and Nipissing together, with a population of 60,761, will have four members, but they are entitled to exceptional treatment because of their vast area and because it is expected that before the next census their population will have greatly increased.

The following table, prepared by the London Advertiser, shows the populations of the counties which will have three members, and the average population for each member:

	Total population.	Average for each member.
Simcoe	82,815	27,438
York (excluding Toronto)	59,185	19,728
Grey	69,590	23,196
Wentworth (including Hamilton)	79,453	26,484
Huron	61,820	20,593
Carleton (including Ottawa)	96,904	32,301
Leeds and Grenville	58,996	19,665
Durham and Northumberland	62,049	20,683

The following counties will have two members each:—

	Total population.	Average for each member.
Essex	58,516	29,258
Kent	57,422	28,711
Elgin	43,586	21,793
Lambton	56,642	28,321
Bruce	59,020	29,510
Wellington	55,646	27,823
Perth	49,871	24,930

As some counties are so much more populous than others, variations from the unit of representation must be expected, under any plan which respects county boundaries; but even in this particular the present redistribution will be much closer to the principle of representation by population than the gerrymander of 1892.

Appended is a list of existing Dominion electoral districts, in which the population varies greatly from the unit of representation, which was 23,000 under the census of 1891:—

	Population.
Brockville	15,901
Cardwell	13,060
Cornwall and Stormont	27,042
East Durham	14,464
West Durham	13,106
East Elgin	27,248
North Essex	33,418

North Grey	37,051
Leeds and Grenville North	13,647
Lennox	13,471
West Middlesex	15,843
Muskoka	36,674
Nipissing	36,551
West Northumberland	13,056
Peel	13,637
Russell	35,166
East Simcoe	39,277
East York	40,405
West York	53,741

Here are gerrymandered ridings ranging in population all the way from 12,000 to 53,000. The gerrymander ignored county boundaries under the specious pretense of adhering to representation by population. We see how the scheme worked out in practice. The only aim was to "hive the Grits," and in the process counties were mangled, municipalities were torn from their life-long associations and the unit representation was entirely disregarded when a party advantage could be gained. The present Government has shown a spirit of fair play in consulting the Opposition and the committee intrusted with the redistribution should be able to work it out with a minimum of friction.

All Druggists Warrant Every Bottle

If troubled with rheumatism give Chamberlain's Pain Balm a trial. It will not cost you a cent if it does you no good. One application will relieve the pain. It also cures sprains and bruises in one third the time required by any other treatment. Cuts, Burns, frostbites, quinsy and pains in the side and chest, grandular and other swellings are quickly cured by applying it. Every bottle warranted. Price 25 and 50 cts. For sale by all druggists.

DUMMER.

The Stony Lake Dairy Company have decided to make extensive improvements in their factory. They propose putting on a ply of dressed lumber on the outside of the curing room with a covering of felt paper between the old and the new lumber. They also intend to put a double floor in the curing room.

Mr. J. R. Miles is making great improvements on his farm. He has cleared up about 20 acres of new land.

Mr. J. A. Robb is putting up quite an addition to his barn in the way of shed and hay loft.—Norwood Register.

Took the Advice of a Lady Friend When Death Seemed So Near.

A MARVELLOUS VICTORY FOR

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND.

Women who dearly love husband, children and home life, are those who desire to be vigorous, active and full of health. When the wife and mother is suffering, and unable to attend to the wants and comforts of those dear to her, the home is sad and despondent; there is family discomfort and aching hearts long for the safety of the home guardian angel.

Thank Heaven, thousands of our women are now fully prepared for any of the ills prevalent in spring time. They have made Paine's Celery Compound their family medicine and by it they are enabled to ward off serious illness and physical breakdown. The happy experience of Mrs. Fred L. Lamson, of Halifax, N. S., should cheer all women who suffer from nervousness, sleeplessness, troubles arising from impure and stagnant blood, liver and kidney complaints, neuralgia and rheumatism. Mrs. Lamson says:—

"For five years I was a sufferer from nervousness, sleeplessness, headache and female troubles, and got but little relief from doctors and their medicines. Six months ago I was so weak and broken down that my husband became alarmed; indeed I thought that I was fast nearing the grave. A lady friend in this city who visited me, strongly advised me to give Paine's Celery Compound a trial, as it had done wonders for her. My husband procured a bottle without delay and I began its use. In a week I found that I was getting stronger, and I continued with the medicine until I had used seven bottles and was completely cured. I am now able to walk with comfort, sleep well, appetite is good, and I am increasing in weight. Paine's Celery Compound is, I think, a wonderful woman's medicine; it saved my life and I shall always praise it."

THE LITTLE TOWN ON WHICH A MOUNTAIN FELL.

The Japs are the Best Workers out There—Frank not all Destroyed.

Frank, contrary to eastern ideas, was not destroyed by the toppling of Turtle Mountain peak. Only a small portion, a comparatively small portion of the village was actually obliterated by the torrent of broken rocks and gravel. The village proper lost only nine cottages belonging to the Canadian and American Coal and Coke Company—neat little one-storey buildings occupied by employees of the mine. Seven of these cottages were ground to matchwood by the rolling boulders. The roof of another alone remains, while the ninth is comparatively uninjured, though carried many feet from its site, like a chip borne on the crest of a roaring torrent and finally flung aside to the bank. The ninth cottage rests right on the edge of the rock freed.

The shacks destroyed did not belong to the village. They were well outside of its limits. These were rough little buildings of the familiar New Ontario type, some log, some undressed lumber. Two ranch houses and a railroad camp which lay right in the centre of the path of the slide, were of course buried a hundred feet, or loosed and ground to atoms in that mercelless turmoil. Of the mine's mouth, not a sign can be seen. It will take some careful calculating to relocate the opening. The tunnels and drifts inside, the management expect, will be found comparatively intact. The Canadian Pacific branch line from Macleod and Nelson was not the only line covered up in the slide. There are three branch lines leading to mines over the mountains, all of which will have to be reconstructed at this end. One of them, though built a quarter way up Grassy Mountain, was obliterated. On the western side the rocks turned the Canadian Pacific track over and over, and buried the branch lines many feet deep. There are now about three hundred men at work, and the difficultym of keeping them here is becoming less. Boulders are still rolling down the mountain side, and the flying lime dust still envelops the mountain at intervals.

The Jap coolies are the best workers in this cosmopolitan collection of pick-axe artists. The Galicians and northern European men are cast in a far larger mold, but given his choice the railway contractor prefers a Jap.

THE WORKERS THERE.

The Jap labourer averages about 135 pounds in weight, but most of them are short, with heavy set shoulders and well braced legs. They are steady workers. It does not matter whether the "boss" is standing over them or is a mile away. They never "soldier" in his absence or hustle when he is "on the job." They have their own steady gait and keep it up all day. They cannot be hurried. If a foreman persists in hustling them they throw down their pick and spades and quit in a body. These Japs, too, are quiet fellows in camp. Rows among Japs are as rare as hen's teeth. The Galicians are a little quarrelsome, and handle knives when they mean business.

The majority of the navvies here live in bunk-cars, and take their meals in boarding cars. The cooks and servants on these cars are Chinamen, and they put up rather tasty meals out of rough materials; when it comes to handling rice, they are artists.

The labourers are paid $2 a day. The Canadian Pacific is making a great effort to open up the line. Every day car loads of new recruits to the labouring gangs arrive and are put to work.

A Familiar Name.

In the homes of Canada and the United States there are few names more familiar and none more reverently spoken than that of Dr. A.W. Chase, the great physician and receipt book author. He is blessed for the suffering he has relieved and the diseases he has cured; his remedies are used and endorsed by the best people in the land; they are popular because they cure when others fail.

ON THE MARCH AGAIN.

Twenty-Six Stark Naked Doukhobors Locked Up in Yorkton.

Winnipeg, May 22.—Yorkton has another Doukhobor invasion on its hands. Word reached town yesterday afternoon that a number of lunatics were marching again.

Corp. Junget of the Northwest Mounted Police, accompanied by his assistants here and a crowd of curious town people, went north to meet them. The corporal met the pilgrims, twenty-six in number, about half a mile from town and arrayed in nature's garb only. They had called a halt and discarded every vestige of clothing.

Corporal Junget at once ordered the Doukhobors to put on their clothing and submit to immediate arrest. After these orders were complied with, they marched into town in silence, winding up finally at the immigration hall. The pilgrims were hustled into a room and locked up.

The police have not arrested the band yet, but will await further instructions from headquarters. There are no women with this crowd, which comes mainly from Stoney Creek, where the trouble originated last fall.

GREATLY ALARMED.

By a Persistent Cough, but Permanently Cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

Mr. H. P. Burbage, a student at law in Greenville, S. C., has been troubled for four or five years with a continuous cough, which he says "greatly alarmed me, causing me to fear that I was in the first stages of consumption." Mr. Burbage, having seen Chamberlain's Cough Remedy advertised, concluded to try it. "I soon felt a remarkable change and after using two bottles of the 25 cent kind was permanently cured. Sold by all druggists.

REVIEWING THE GAMEY EVIDENCE.

but the intention of the House is that your Lordships shall find, as pronounced through that resolution.

Chief Justice Falconbridge—I have read in some newspaper that the Attorney General said that if we made any finding it would be gratuitous.

Mr. Johnston—No, my Lord, and the Attorney General, I may say, has given me instructions again and again to so conduct the case that we shall get a finding one way or the other that will forever end this troublesome question. The very reason why it comes before your Lordships is that there may be a finding by an impartial, competent, independent tribunal in whom the people has confidence, not by the Committee of Privileges and Elections in a partisan House. Owe the one side a majority, the result is whitewash——

THE SCOPE OF THE ACT.

The Chancellor—The difficulty, if there is difficulty, arises from the scope of the act. The act is not in terms explicit as to that; it says, "They shall report," I think or some equivalent words, and this commission says, that we shall make our report—leaving it at large as to what a report shall be. In the English act shall make findings.

Mr. Johnston—Yes, my Lords, and it was with a view of giving your Lordships instructions as far as possible from the House with a view of getting it away from the prejudiced atmosphere of the House on either one side or the other—and I am not using it politically—

The Chancellor—Still this report will go to the House.

Mr. Johnston—Quite so.

THE ULTIMATE TRIBUNAL.

The Chancellor—The ultimate tribunal in this case is the Legislature, not in any report we make.

Mr. Johnston—Quite so, but the object is that there should be a finding of fact, for this reason—your Lordships will see why; the House has not seen a single witness; the House has not heard the method or manner of witnesses in giving their evidence.

The Chancellor—I cannot see that we can report that.

Mr. Johnston—It has the disadvantage of not hearing from day to day the evidence as given and the manner of giving it, quite apart from the credibility of the witnesses; and whilst the act is open in that respect, we have the reports of commissions in past times all of whom have found upon the facts.

NO OBLIGATION.

The Chancellor—I suppose it is not a matter of obligation. If we made no report at all, I suppose it was not competent for the House under that statute to send it back to us on the ground that we are not functi officio or something of that kind. Any report we might make may be received by the House or might be quashed by the House if they thought we had gone beyond our powers. Suppose that is very much the position now, that it is optional with us to do what we think best, subject to the House overruling or amending.

WHAT "REPORT" MEANS.

Mr. Johnston—Quite so, but the word "report" surely means more than being the mere hand which passes on the evidence prepared by the stenographer to the House?

The Chancellor—I do not think the word "report" is in the statute; the word "report" is in this Commission. I have not the text of the statute here.

Mr. Richie—The word "report" is not in the statute.

Mr. Blake—Here is a copy of it (handing to the Chancellor.)

Mr. Johnston—The word "report" is not, but I think the word "enquiry" and "investigation" is.

The Chancellor—The word "report" is in our Commission, which is the act of the Executive, and of course we shall respect that, although the statute may not go so far. We have to regard what the Executive stated in issuing this Commission, but I think the statute does not say "report."

Mr. Johnston—No, my Lords, but your Lordship, perhaps, does not go far enough in regard to that report being merely the act of the Executive. The report in this case is the act of the House.

The Chancellor—The House may have adopted it by that statute.

Mr. Johnston—Yes, my Lords, that is the reason why I put in the statement made in the Votes and Proceedings, and put in the motion moved by Mr. Carscallen, because the Evidence Act was being passed as part of these proceedings exceptionally, and being so, an attempt was made to limit the powers of the Commissioners in regard to the question of finding, and the House voted that down and passed the act in that way.

WANTS AN AGREEMENT.

The Chancellor—I would like to mention before I forget, that I wish the solicitors on both sides would agree on the precise figures of the relative strength of the parties at the time of the protests and any changes made after the sittings of the House. That can be handed in to the registrar at any time.

Mr. Johnston — Then, my Lords, dealing with the question which comes up for determination in one way or the other, I desire to call attention to the fact that generally speaking, indeed absolutely speaking, if the question of money is eliminated, and there is a failure to prove that, the whole correspondence between the member for Manitoulin and the Government is precisely along the same lines as the other departmental correspondence that has been put in here and is in itself a perfectly innocent correspondence, and it can only receive colour on proof of a corrupt act of bribery; and in a short time I shall take up that question more at length. But I begin with the proposition, that the Government must be assumed to have been actuated by proper motives until the contrary is shown in some affirmative manner; and looking at the correspondence apart from all monetary considerations, there is not a single line or a single suggestion in the whole of that correspondence that may not have taken place between the Government and the leader of the Opposition.

ON PARTY LINES.

Now, assume that Mr. Gamey was elected as a strict party man, that he was elected to support the Opposition and to oppose the Government under all and every circumstance, I still submit that the correspondence is clear of any imputation that could fairly be fastened upon him until the payment of money is introduced; but Mr. Gamey did not occupy that position towards the Government or towards the party which my learned friend assumes he did. Manitoulin occupies a very exceptional position geographically and politically. It is a district composed of islands and that portion of the main land lying between the railway track and the northern shore of the Georgian Bay. It is a territory entirely cut off from outside communication except by ice in the winter and by boat in the summer. It stands alone and unique amongst Ontario constituencies and I may also add it stands alone and unique as to its representation. Now, the rule has been well recognized that these new constituencies not having county organization have received that same liberal support from the Province at large as constituencies would receive from their own county organizations where such exist; and the result is that whatever Government may be in power Manitoulin has to look to the Government for support in regard to its colonization roads, its bridges and its general municipal requirements.

REASON FOR SUPPORT.

There was therefore a reason for supporting any Government in power. We do not find in this case the same condition of things as would apply to the county of York or the county of Peel, because in these counties there is no reason in the world why a Government supporter should be returned and these counties are free so far as their financial and personal interests are concerned to elect a supporter of the Opposition for all time to come, as the city of Toronto has done in some of its divisions for thirty years. There is no reason why the city of Toronto should have a supporter of the Government returned to power. But there is grave reason why Manitoulin should be more or less in accord with whatever Government may be in power. That being so, we find Mr. Gamey not without good and sufficient reasons for supporting the Government, unless he desired to take this anomalous position, party first, country second, and Manitoulin last and lost. In considering the requirements of his constituents, the other way would be the position Mr. Gamey would take, naturally, properly and honestly — Manitoulin first, my own home, then my country generally, then my party. So that we provide from the very circumstances of the case a good valid reason why Mr. Gamey might fairly give the Government independent support, which I may state to your Lordships, is all that he ever promised to give.

MAY HAVE JARRED HIM.

Then it did not require any particular change of politics on the part of Mr. Gamey to give that support. Perhaps it may have been a little jarring to the conscience of a man like Mr. Gamey to vote for the Ross Government; with that I have nothing to do. He was elected only for a term of four years; he was elected, according to his own showing and the showing of his witnesses, to support the government in power, though of course upon the basis that it would be a Conservative Government. That condition was changed, and much to Mr. Gamey's surprise perhaps, because he says they were all confident of the defeat of the Government, the Ross Government was returned to power in the elections of May, 1902. Therefore the changed conditions might reasonably bring about a change in his attitude, and he did not require to change his politics to carry out the principles that he laid down in the letter of the 10th of September, and in the Globe interview. He did not require to change his politics; what he did require to do in the interests of Manitoulin was to give the Government independent support in matters he was satisfied with. All this cry about the man being bought as a man would buy a hog is utter nonsense. The man never proposed to support the Government through thick and thin; he proposed to give every matter careful consideration, and to act as his constituents would say was his duty to do, his duty to himself, to his constituency, and to his island.

MR. GAMEY'S ELECTION.

Then there was another reason why Mr. Gamey would give the Government fair, independent support, without allying himself too closely with the Liberal party. He owed his election to a very considerable extent to the Liberal vote that he got, because he admits that he got many Liberal votes, and the Liberal votes and the weight of them are to be estimated by the extent of his majority, about four hundred, I think.

The Chancellor—Four hundred and thirty, wasn't it?

Mr. Blake—No, my Lord,—340.

Mr. Johnston—So that if he got 180 Liberal votes in that riding he was an elected man, but if these 180 voted the other way he was a defeated candidate and not the member for Manitoulin; so that if he got a fair sprinkling of Liberal votes then he owed his election not to his Conservative friends but to that Liberal support supposing that to have been sufficient to have turned the scale in his favour. Now, that is Mr. Gamey's position on the 29th of May, 1902.

MR. SCOTT'S EVIDENCE.

In volume 5, of the evidence, page 1816, Mr. John Scott puts it as fairly and as clearly as it can be put. Your Lordships will bear in mind that there was no independent candidate running in that election. Mr. MacMillan was running as an avowed Socialist, whatever that may mean in politics. One would say that it involved the attributes of an iconoclast, a man who wanted some special kind of government and to change the established order of things for some special fad of his own. That was the man who was named here by my learned friend as an independent candidate, appealing only to a small section of the community. Mr. Gamey was running as the Conservative nominee, and Mr. Fraser was running as the Liberal nominee, and when we thus get at the component parts of Mr. Gamey's victory, we find that he must, if he got any Liberal vote at all, have owed his election to the Liberal party. Now John Scott said, "I might state that in a new country it is very essential to be on the side of the Government, and Mr. Gamey made it clear that he was going to be on the Government side. Of course he also made it very clear that the Ross Government was going to be defeated as well, but he was not going down to Toronto in order to sit on the cold benches of the Opposition, that he was going to be in a position to get something and that his politics was Manitoulin. He said that he would be on the Government side, so that he could get what he wanted for Manitoulin Island and appealed to the people as an Independent Conservative."

HIS ELECTION POSITION.

Now, there is Mr. Gamey's position, in view of all the circumstances attached to his election Mr. Scott was not a Liberal supporter; he was there appearing for Mr. McMillan, the Socialist candidate, and Mr. Scott was therefore taking no partisan view, but occupied a middle position as between the respective candidates.

Then at page 1,818 of the same volume, Mr. Scott, who seemed to be a very intelligent man, said that when he saw that Globe interview he saw that the phrases in the Globe interview were familiar to him and similar to the phrases he had heard from Mr. Gamey's own lips during the campaign. Then he says at page 1,822 that he could not explain it better and that when the interview came out in the Globe he thought that it was in perfect accord with the statements which Mr. Gamey had previously made. This has reference to Mr. Gamey's own statement that he would support any good measures that were brought forward, and that he was going to be on the Government side of the House.

That is not the position of a supporter of the Conservative party running in Manitoulin and bound to oust the Government at all hazards, and bound to support his party at all hazards, no matter what the result might be.

Then, if, of course, he could defeat the Government, he was prepared to defeat the Government, because his object would be to support whatever Government that might be in power and if he got his own political sympathizers in power it would suit his purpose better, and be, perhaps, more congenial to him; but the test was not Conservative or Reform, but the Government in power; Manitoulin is my politics.

MR. GAMEY'S STANDING.

Now, I do not desire for a moment to weary your Lordships with a number of quotations from these different men, but I think it is of the greatest importance that we should ascertain just exactly where Mr. Gamey stood prior to his election, because we have abundant testimony as to where his position was after the election and before the 10th of September. Jesse Lehman is called; he was at a meeting in which he said Gamey said on the platform, toward the end of his speech, that Manitoulin was his politics; then he said that is the substance, that he would give them a support so far as they would be obliged to, or be under obligation to give him road grants or anything of this kind he might ask for, and be referred to A. F. Campbell as an illustration.

OPPOSITE WITNESSES.

Now, witnesses were called upon the other side to show that certain remarks were not made, but they do not for a moment contradict the position taken by these witnesses, who have given specifically what they heard. The most that the witnesses called by the prosecution could swear to was "I didn't hear these remarks at the meeting."

Now, we have a private conversation which is important, and that is the three McDougalls. That was before the election. The only part I will read to your Lordships is at page 1,749: "Well, he said he was coming out; he said he came out as a Conservative, but he was more of an independent than a party man; he had paid his own way, he had paid his own expenses." That perhaps my Lords, is one of the best tests of a man. A man looks to no party in politics; the result is no obligation. He pays his own election expenses and he says, no thanks to you, Mr. or Mr. Whitney, or Mr. Leader of any kind; I am independent, I have paid my way, and I am not bound to do anything, except what I think is in the best interests of my constituency.

THE TALE OF THREE.

Now, that evidence is not denied by any single witness and therefore that evidence stands uncontradicted, not even by Mr. Gamey himself, and it is worthy of note that these three men were present at the time that conversation took place, and it took place prior to the election of the 29th of May, 1902.

Then, if your Lordships will note without my reading extracts from the evidence of Duncan Orr, Sylvester Herry and Dr. Arthurs. Now, the significance of Dr. Arthurs' evidence at that point is this, Mr. Gamey had not apparently always been so ardent a supporter of the Conservative party as he endeavours to claim here, because we find that Dr. Arthurs states this of Mr. Gamey: "What has his politics been? Well, Conservative. Always? Well, I can't say that. When I first knew Mr. Gamey the first couple of years of my acquaintance with him, he was a Federal Conservative, but posed, or claimed to be a supporter of the late R. A. Lyon, in provincial politics, a Reformer; he lived in Manitoulin, he was a Manitoulin man." That was over twelve years ago. But I am pointing out to your Lordships the evidence we have got to show Mr. Gamey was not the class of politician that one of the young gentlemen from Crossin's piano factory claimed to be, that there was no good in anything excepting in his own side, and denouncing the other side as being wholly and absolutely wrong and corrupt.

HIS MENTAL ATTITUDE.

Now then before the 7th August, after the elections, what was his mental attitude towards politics? I refer to James Conmee's evidence; it may be useful to see just exactly what Mr. Conmee says. This, as your Lordships will remember, was early in June. Mr. Conmee had taken the precaution to look up the date he arrived at the hotel. He arrived in June, on the 4th, and it would be between the 4th and 11th, in other words, within ten days after the election.

Now, it is idle for my learned friend, and surely my learned friend had not looked at the evidence when he said that all this gentleman from Manitoulin was doing was supporting the Government to build a smelter. That was a private matter between him and Mr. Conmee. No pretence that the smelter was the subject matter of discussion beyond the question whether it would be a financially prosperous one. But what was important is to be found at the bottom of page 2,646: "Well, the general policy of the two parties came up; I reminded or mentioned to Mr. Gamey about the speech that had been made at Sudbury by Mr. Whitney. He remarked that speech showed Mr. Whitney had very slight knowledge of mining matters in fact he characterized as ridiculous. I told him what the policy of the Government was, that I thought it was better in the interests of that section of the country, and he agreed with me in that, and if it could be carried out he stated he would give the Government a support. We kept on discussing the question for a considerable time. Mr. Gamey had repeatedly said that if the Ross Government could carry out its policy he could give them an independent support."

KIND TO MR. BLAKE.

That is before the introduction at all of those men who are so obnoxious to my learned friend in this case, and I shall not mention their names more Threatened With Bright's Disease--Pe-ru-na Restored Him to Health.

O. FRED LINDSTROM, PAST GRAND MASTER I. O. O. F.

O. Fred Lindstrom, Past Grand Master Independent Order of Odd Fellows, Past Chancellor Twin City Lodge, No. 63, Knights of Pythias, also Past Chief Patriarch, Ridgely Encampment, No. 22, writes from 1923 University Ave, St. Paul, Minn. "Peruna has my hearty endorsement. There is no medicine I know of which can compare with it. I contracted a severe cold several years ago, which from neglect developed into urinary trouble, and threatened Bright's disease. As one of my friends was cured of Bright's disease through the use of Peruna I thought I would try it also, and used it faithfully for three and one-half months, when my health was perfect once more. I have never had any trouble since, and therefore think it is but just to give it unlimited praise."—O. Fred Lindstrom.

Catarrhal inflammation of the mucous lining of the kidneys, also called "Bright's disease," may be either acute or chronic. The acute form produces symptoms of such prominence that the serious nature of the disease is at once suspected, but the chronic variety may come on so gradually and insidiously that its presence is not suspected until after it has fastened itself thoroughly upon its victim.

Ozone--Not Medicine

Will Cure a Germ Disease—A 50c. Bottle Free.

Powley's Liquified Ozone is the only way known to kill germs in the body without killing the tissues, too. Any drug that kills germs is a poison to you, and it cannot be taken internally. All that medicine can do for a germ trouble is to aid nature to destroy the germs, and those results are indirect and uncertain. The results always depend on the patient's condition; and there are some germ diseases which medicine never cures.

Kills Inside Germs

Ozone is simply liquid oxygen—no drugs, no alcohol in it. Oxygen is the vital part of air—the source of all vitality. Ozone gets oxygen in staple form into the blood, and the effects are exhilarating and purifying. It stimulates to the utmost every function of nature.

But germs are vegetables; and an excess of oxygen—the very life of an animal—is deadly to vegetable matter. Ozone is a tonic to you, yet it is a germicide so certain that we advertise an offer of $1,000 for a germ that it cannot kill.

Powley's Liquified Ozone is the discovery of a man who spent 20 years in learning how to liquify oxygen. The result is a product of such enormous value to humanity that we sold for $100,000 the rights to the United States.

The reason is that Ozone is certain destruction to germs—no matter what germs—no matter where they are. It goes wherever the blood goes. And as no germ can escape it, and none can resist it, Ozone destroys always and forever the cause of a germ disease. There is no other way to do it.

Germ Diseases

These are the known germ diseases. No disease in this list can be cured until the germs are destroyed, either by nature or by Ozone.

Ozone is the direct and certain treatment for all these diseases, and the results are inevitable. A germ disease must end—and forever—when the cause is destroyed. The best physicians, and all important hospitals, use Ozone—not medicine—for the diseases in this list.

MRS. C. W. EVERETT HAS PASSED AWAY.

Death Occurred Yesterday at her Sister's Residence, Manhattan, Kansas.

Peterborough residents will be very grieved to hear the sad news of Mrs. C. W. Everett's death, which occurred last evening at 7.45 o'clock, at the residence of her sister, Mrs. R. G. Gillett, of Manhattan, Kansas, at the age of 45 years. The deceased who is well known in town was born in New York State, and has been married twice, on the first occasion to Mr. B. Jackson, and on the second to Mr. C. W. Everett, of New York State. The former of these predeceased her by six years and the latter by two years. The late Mrs. Everett has resided at the Nicholls homestead, and was a legatee of that noble woman, the late Mrs. Jane Nicholls. Mrs. Burritt, of Brock street is distantly connected with the deceased lady, who has been ailing for the duration of a year, the cause being throat trouble.

The late Mrs. Everett has no children. It is expected that the interment will take place in New York State.

DR. C. S. HAULTAIN'S REGRETTED DEATH

Occurred at Battleford on Wednesday Last.

It is with deep regret that the Examiner announces the death of Dr. Charles S. Haultain, son of the late Major General Haultain, who received his early education and spent many years of his boyhood in the town of Peterborough. Dr. Haultain was educated at the Collegiate Institute, and afterwards graduated in medicine from Trinity University. He practiced for a short time in the City of Winnipeg, when he received a position as surgeon in the Northwest Mounted Police, being stationed successively at Maple Creek, Regina, MacLeod, and finally at Battleford, where he died on Wednesday last. The deceased was married in the year 1890 to Henrietta, eldest daughter of Mrs. James F. Denniatoun, who survives him with four children. The late Dr. Haultain had been an invalid for some months, having sustained injuries by being thrown from his buggy by a runaway horse. These culminated during the past week in nervous collapse from which he did not rally. Telegrams from Battleford state that the funeral will take place on Wednesday next at MacLeod.

FOR STONY LAKE.

Great Many Townspeople Went North at Noon.

The summer traffic to Stony Lake is commencing and to-day the noon train to Lakefield was crowded with townspeople, who are taking advantage of the holiday on Monday to spend Sunday and Monday at their cottages. HANDSOME OFFICES ON HUNTER STREET.

The Palatial Apartments of Messrs. McMillan & Maguire.

The new offices of McMillan & Maguire, at No. 134 1-2 Hunter street, are now open for business, and are certainly a credit to the firm. They are handsomely fitted up with the latest style of furniture, the prevailing colour being light green. The chairs, which were especially imported from New York, are made from woven prairie grass and are both handsome and unique. Messrs. McMillan & Maguire will represent in Peterborough Joseph Cowan & Co., Jacob Berry & Co., Members of the New York Consolidated Stock Exchange, as well as Hunter & Schumacher, members of the New York Stock and Produce Exchange. All the above firms are amongst the best known and most reliable in New York so that local investors can feel perfectly safe in entrusting their stocks and bond transactions to Messrs. McMillan & Maguire. The local offices will be in charge of Messrs. Maguire & Clarry. Mr. Clarry was the commercial editor of the Examiner, and is thoroughly posted in all matters pertaining to the stock market. The firm has direct private wires to New York, Chicago, Boston and Philadelphia, and the latest market advices from these centres will be always on fyle at the Hunter street offices.

The executors of the will of the late John Bailey are offering for sale by Public Auction on Saturday evening, 13th of June, at six p.m., on the grounds Two Quarter Acre Lots, on Bonacord street. The lots adjoin the residence property of Mayor Roger, and are very suitable for pleasant homes. See posters. 3d119

HOW PETERBOROUGH WILL CELEBRATE VICTORIA DAY

Varied Programme Arranged for Monday Next.

The Canoe Club Regatta—T.A.S. at Lacrosse—Concert in Opera House —Lakefield Picnic.

Perhaps all the year round there is no day looked forward to more eagerly than Victoria Day, so named, of course, in memory of our late beloved Queen, whose name and fame spread to all the thirty-six points of the compass. Monday, May 25th, which this year will be celebrated as Victoria Day, judging from the weather of the past tweek will be an excellent one for a public holiday. In Peterborough, this day will be a gala day in every sense of the word, that is to say, there will be all kinds of amusements, including excursions, picnics, sports, football, baseball and lacrosse matches.

What should attract a large number of persons is the grand regatta which the Trent Valley Canoe Club intend to hold on the afternoon of that day, commencing at 2.30 o'clock. A programme of the races has been drawn up and is indeed an excellent one. It is pleasing to note that a large number of entries have already been made.

Then for lovers of lacrosse, a good game will be played off on the Murray Street grounds, between Port Hope and the local T.A.S. The game, which is expected to be very keenly contested will commence at 2.30 o'clock.

For persons who want to go out of town for the day an excellent programme has been provided at Lakefield, where the Lindsay Lacrosse Club will play the Peterborough T.A.S. for a silver cup.

There will also be a baseball match between the Shamrocks and Lakefield for a prize which Mr. C. W. Hellewill of the Metropole has kindly offered. Besides these two attractions there will be many other sports and games of different names and natures. A special train will leave Peterborough at 10.30 o'clock. For persons who want to take a pleasant trip down the river there will be an excursion run to Jubilee Point for which the steamboats "The City of Peterborough," "The Water Lily" and the "North Star" have been obtained. This will be under the auspices of the 57th Band, who intend to give an excellent musical programme. The first boat will leave the Wolfe street wharf at 8.30 o'clock and last at 9.30 a. m.

Then for Stony Lake—the steamer Majestic will leave Lakefield on the arrival of the morning train and will return in time to connect with a special in the evening for Peterborough. It is expected that a large number of persons will take this trip which is perhaps one of the most inviting items on the day's large and interesting programme.

For persons who wish to make the day a complete holiday an excellent concert is being given in the evening in the local opera house. Great pains are being taken with providing a really excellent programme. The concert will be given under the auspices of the Men's Guild of Saint Luke's Church.

HOSPITAL SUNDAY IN PETERBOROUGH.

On Sunday, May 31st, special services will be held in the George Street Methodist Church at 7 p.m., and St. Paul's Presbyterian Church at 11 a. m., in the interests of the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst. Sermons will be preached by the Rev. J. T. Morris, pastor of McCaul St. Methodist Church, Toronto, and a special collection by hospital envelopes, to be distributed in the pews, will be taken up on behalf of this worthy institution. The Free Hospital for Consumptives was established by the National Sanitarium Association in April of 1902, and within the first year 168 patients were cared for. There has not been a single patient refused admission to this institution because of his or her poverty and patients are accepted from all parts of the province. Mr. Morris will be accompanied by Mr. J. S. Robertson, Secretary of the association, Toronto.

THE CHURCHES.

MURRAY STREET BAPTIST.

Rev. J. Bastow and Rev. J. P. Wilson will exchange pulpits in the morning, the pastor will preach in the evening. The public are cordially invited.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH.

At St. Andrew's Church to-morrow morning special missionary service will be held. The anthem "Seek ye the Lord" (Roberts) obligato solo by Miss Florence Millar. In the evening the pastor will deliver the annual sermon to the Sons of England. The anthem "Jubilate Deo" (Bassford) will be sung by the choir and Miss Millar will sing "The Way of Peace".

GEORGE STREET METHODIST.

Rev. Mr. Bastow, of Murray Street Baptiste Church will preach in the morning, and the pastor in the evening, his subject being "This Country we Live in."

ST. LUKE'S CHURCH.

The rector will officiate at all services to-morrow. In the afternoon a children's service will be held in the church at 3 p.m. The Sunday School children are requested to assemble in the school at 2.45 p.m. The entertainment of the Mission Band has been postponed. A special offering for the Diocease Mission Fund will be taken up to-morrow.

ALL SAINT'S CHURCH.

Rev. W. L. Armitage will deliver the third of the series of sermons on "The Place of Prayer in the Christian's Life" at the evening service to-morrow.

BOY WANTED,

A good reliable boy for the Examiner Office to carry parcels and work in front office.

THE CONCERT IN THE BROCK STREET RINK

Under Auspices of the Athletic Lacrosse Club.

57th Band in Attendance—Y. M. C. A. Gymnasium Class' Excellent Work.

The concert given yesterday evening in the Brock Street rink under the auspices of the Athletic Lacrosse Club was attended by a large number of persons, who gave the usual evidence of being well pleased with the programme and the manner in which it was carried out. The rink had been specially prepared for the event and besides the floor being suitably prepared a bandstand had been erected at the south end of the building. The 57th Band (who, it must be confessed, under the most exlent leadership of Mr. Gliddon, acquitted themselves very creditably, opened the concert with Godfrey's "Reminiscences of Ireland" and, throughout the evening very successfully played "Mazurka "Amarosa," "In the Mill", "Vicompic Nelsons," a march, "The Cake Walk," "Over the Waves," "Mississippi Bubble" and other excellent selections, for all of which the audience showed their appreciation.

The work done by the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium class, led by their instructor, Mr. Hoarce E. Ayres, was excellent in every sense of the word, all the exercises being done with alacrity and gracefullness.

Perhaps on the whole the audience was a critical one, but did not forget to show its appreciation of difficult work. Mr. Sanford Hall, whose work reflected great credit on the physical instructor, was heartily applauded after each distinct movement. It might be mentioned that besides Mr. Hoarce Ayres and Mr. S. Hall, this class was composed of Messrs. Ed. Trolloppe, P. Sawyers, E. Payne, A. Frowde and Chas. Black. Some excellent work was done on both the horizontal and parallel bars besides the rings and some more than difficult tumbling. In "diving" (over a string) Mr. Sanford Hall figured conspicuously, defeating all his opponents. The balcony floor had been waxed and dancing was indulged in at the close of the concert.

Mr. J. Halpany's song and recitation evoked considerable applause but owing to the size of the building, it is regretted that he was not heard very distinctly in some remote corners. As the band played the National Anthem the audience dispersed fully gratified with the evening's pleasure.

The Athletic Lacrosse Club is to be heartily congratulated on the success of the concert the burden of which, it is felt, fell evenly on the shoulders of the entire aggregation and not individuals.

PETERBOROUGH CENTRAL EXHIBITION ASSOCIATION.

Laudable Assistance From the Turf Club.

The grounds of the Turf Club and the Peterborough Central Exhibition have been united and are the scene of considerable activity. It is understood that the stock pens are being prepared to accommodate the stock which will be on exhibition this fall, and that the Turf Club has 20 men at work getting the grounds into shape for the summer meet on August 5th and 6th. The grandstand also is being considerably improved and enlarged and will be divided into two sections, reserved and unreserved. The executive of the local Turf Club deserve the highest praise for the assistance they are giving the Exhibition Association this year.

STEAM DREDGE "TRENT" PREPARING FOR WORK.

Will Dredge River Above the Hunter Street Bridge.

It is understood that the river above the Otonabee bridge is shortly to be dredged, for which purpose the government dredge "Trent" is undergoing alterations and improvements, among the latter of which will be a new steel dipper. It is reported that this part of the river will require dredging for some months after which it is understood that a channel will be made between the Otonabee and C.P.R. bridge.

THE ENTERPRISE OF LOCAL MUSICIANS.

Mr. F. W. Wodell Reported Coming to Peterborough.

It is understood that several local musicians have invited Mr. F. W. Wodell of Boston, to spend his summer holidays, that is to say the months of July and August in Peterborough. Mr. Wodell will conduct a summer school of music here similar to that which he carried on so successfully last year at Sarnia, Ont. This musician is no ordinary teacher of music, he is said to be a teacher of teachers. Mr. Wodell was chosen to deliver three lectures on vocal teaching before the Music Teachers' National Association, in convention at Put-in-Bay. This year he has been invited to go to Troy, New York, to lecture before the N. Y. State Music Teachers' Association, on vocal topics. It is possible that Mr. Wodell, who has written several excellent anthems, three of which were submitted to the Examiner, will carry on with the assistance of local musicians some large choral enterprises. In Sarnia last summer he gave very successfully, with his local pupils, the operata, with orchestra. In Picton two years ago he got up and gave the Orattorio "The Creation" with with a local chorus and soloists from Toronto, London and Chicago.

Mr. Wodell's advent should be looked forward to with great interest by lovers of music and also by those who wish to take lessons in local training.

When Life is not Life.

"Without health life is not life; it is only a state of langour and suffering—an image of death." The use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food gives the weak, languid and discouraged a new hold on life. It makes the blood pure and rich, creates new nerve force and instills new energy and vitality into the whole being. It makes weak and sickly people strong and well by building up the system.

MR. LONG'S DELIVERY CART WAS DAMAGED.

Horse Frightened by an Automobile Last Evening.

An amusing if not very serious runaway accident occurred about 7.15 o'clock last evening. Mr. Harry Long's delivery cart was standing outside his shop on George street, when an automobile was approaching from behind. It transpired that the latter horseless vehicle had occasion to "whistle", much to the consternation of Mr. Long's equine animal, which immediately bolted. The wheel of the cart caught a neighbouring lamp post as a result of which the vehicle upset. It took four men to hold this horse's head so that one can well imagine that its efforts to gain the freedom of its legs could only be surpassed by a six month's old baby. The cart was somewhat damaged while the front left wheel was smashed. The small buns were distributed amongst the crowd of boys, and reminded one of the feeding of the five thousand.

The Millbrook Reporter says:—

Upon invitation of Mr. Henry Mulligan, the subscribers to the Millbrook Bowling Club met on his tennis court on Friday evening last for purposes of a preliminary practice and organization. The beautiful grounds of Mr. Mulligan are sufficiently attractive to draw lovers of nature without the excitement of such sport as bowling, and the club is fortunate indeed to have had attached to them this lovely spot for the pastime. Messrs. R. Ruddy and H. W. Johnston, who were the prime movers in the matter, had procured a full set of bowling requisites for one rink, and an enjoyable practice was indulged in until dark, after which an adjournment was made to Mr. Mulligan's house, where the following officers were elected, and with such guiding hands, and considering the personnel of the membership, there is little doubt of success:

President—Rev. Mr. Spencer.
1st Vice-President—Mr. H. W. Johnston.
Treasurer—Mr. A. A. Smith.
Secretary—R. J. Doak.
Executive Committee—R. Ruddy, W. T. Wood, J. R. Eakins, A. St. A. Smith, H. Mulligan.

THE TRIGGER.

The Gun Club held a practice shoot on their grounds, Riverside Park, at 25 blue rocks on Thursday afternoon. There were several members present and the following are the scores:—

James	10
Tivey	14
Gutterson	14
Jarvis	14
Collins	14
Wood	13
Watson	12
Hall	6
Brown	4

The next shoot will be held on June 4th at 6.30 p.m.

LACROSSE.

The Ladies' Reading Circle, of St. Peter's T.A.S. met a committee from the lacrosse club last evening and it was decided to hold an ice cream social and concert on Wednesday, June 3rd, in the Society's rooms. An excellent committee was selected to manage the affair which it is intended to make a grand success.

MONTREAL TIED UP.

Street Car Employes Go Out Because the Company Would Not Arbitrate Differences—No Strike in Toronto.

Montreal, May 23.—At 3.30 o'clock this morning the Montreal street railway employes and electrical workers decided to go out on strike to-day. The vote to go out on strike was 1,294 for and only 6 against. The rock on which the negotiations between the employes and the company split was the recognition of the principle of arbitration. The company refused to listen to this proposition. Now Montreal is tied up.

It is settled that no strike will occur among Toronto street railway employes. The principal thing the men gain is the right of their grievance committee, which practically means union domination, and the right of arbitration is also conceded by the company.

Montreal, Que., May 23.—About a dozen of the old motormen and conductors reported for duty at the different car stations this morning, and are now running cars guarded by the police. The strike of electrical workers has not so far caused much inconvenience, as a sufficient number of men remained at work to enable the company to continue operations.

A Business Whirl.

Our Shoe Sale Success.

The voice of the people has spoken, and in unmistakable tones, that the Big Store is pre-eminently the people's great shopping centre for Shoes, as it is for every want of man, youth and boy. Wednesday the Great Men's Store was crowded continuously from the moment the doors opened at 7 until closing time. Men, wives and their families answered to the attractions of our Dollar Shoe Bargains, and they did it splendidly. Thanks.

Just as surprising will be our Great Sale of Summer Suits for the balance of the week in preparation for VICTORIA DAY.

Prices of SUMMER SUITS ought to make business fairly hum until the close of the store Saturday night.

The astonishing feature of this sale will be—

Men's Blue and Black Serge Suits for $4.95
Instead of $8.00, as elsewhere,

Light Fancy Worsted Suits for $5.90
Instead of $11.00 as elsewhere.

There certainly seems to be no limit to the aggressive policy of this Big Store. It would seem utterly impossible that Suits of such splendid make could be sold at such prices, no matter what the object or cause.

In addition to these phenomenal offerings in Summer Suits, we will also hold a great Holiday Sale of—

HATS AND CAPS

The Most Trying Time For Teachers and Pupils

After the Winter's Confinement They Are Pale, Weak and Exhausted and Quite Unfit for the Excessive Mental Exertion of Examination Time.

Early and late teachers and pupils have been bending over their books, contracting their lungs and exhausting nervous energy at an enormous rate, and spring finds them weak, languid and run down. The air of the crowded school room is bad enough at any time, but where the dry air system of heating is used the atmosphere is still further vitiated and seems to entirely lack life and all invigorating qualities.

If your boy or girl is weak, puny or nervous, do not suppose for one moment that the trouble will wear away of itself. It will not. External assistance is necessary if you would prevent St. Vitus' dance, epilepsy, paralysis, brain congestion or some dreadful form of brain or nerve disease. What is the use of education if the health of the body is to be ruined in getting it? If the health of the children is neglected they can never develop into healthy, hopeful, robust men and women.

MASTER BRISBIN.

Mrs. George F. Brisbin, Lake Street, Peterboro', Ont., states: —"One of my children, a boy of about fifteen years, did not have good health for a year or more. He seemed to have no energy, was weak and languid and suffered from nervousness. The doctors said that he was growing too fast, but we became alarmed about him, and began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. It was not long until we noticed a great change in his condition. His appetite improved, he had a better color and soon became stronger and healthier. He is still using the Nerve Food, and we are perfectly confident that he is improving right along under this treatment."

Mrs. T. Daizell, 21 Charles Street, Kingston, Ont., states: —"One of my children suffered very much with headache, caused no doubt from over-study and a run-down condition of the nervous system. These attacks of headache were very trying on her, and I noticed that she was gradually growing weaker and more nervous. About two months ago I got her a box of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and since she has been using this preparation we are more than pleased with the improvement which has been made in her health. She looks one hundred per cent. better, her nerves are steadier, she is not bothered with headaches and is gradually increasing in flesh and weight."

contains in concentrated form the very essence of the most effective blood and nerve restorative to be found in nature. Not only is it the most satisfactory spring medicine obtainable, but it is especially suited to the use of children because of its gentle and natural action on the system. Note your increase in weight while using it.

50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50; at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.
To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box of his remedies.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

New Lieutenant-Governor Gives His First Assent to Many Bills.

Toronto, May 23.—Very few of the members of the Legislature remained in the city yesterday, being attracted to their homes for the Victoria Day celebration. Not much business was transacted. Shortly after 3 o'clock Lieutenant-Governor Clark, attended by Commander Law, reached the House and was escorted to the Speaker's chair by the Premier. The ceremony of assenting to the bills already passed was brief and divested of pomp. "Gentlemen will you please be seated," was the only official remark of the new Executive, and as soon as the injunction was carried out the assistant clerk read the bills, which required only the signature of the Lieutenant-Governor to become law. Then the Clerk of the House announced that "In His Majesty's name, His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor doth assent to these bills," Mr. Speaker immediately proceeded with the ordinary routine as soon as the Lieutenant-Governor had left the chamber.

Most of the afternoon was taken up with a discussion of Mr. Downey's bill to repeal the Conmee sections of the Municipal Act. The bill was read a second time and sent to the Municipal Committee.

In reply to Mr. Preston of Brant, the Minister of Public Works said the services of the secretary of the Labor Bureau had been invoked as conciliator in 22 industrial disputes since April 1, 1902, and in 17 he was successful in promoting a settlement.

The House adjourned till Tuesday.

ALMOST A DYING WOMAN.

Mrs. Jassie L. Sellars Shouts Aloud her Praises of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets—Brought Her Almost Frym Death to Life.

I believe Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets have made a sound cure of me after being for seven years almost a dying woman. Now, thank God, I am able to do my daily work as usual.

This is what Mrs. Jessie Louisa Sellars, of Western Bay, Newfoundland, writes, and she wants all the world to know it. She feelsa s all others do who have cast off the pains and despondency of Dyspepsia—who feel again that life is worth living.

"I cannot praise Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets too much," continues Mrs. Sellars. "They have brought me almost from death to life. You may use my name to recommend them. I am only too glad that I can do so."

It is cures like this that give Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets their popularity. They not only relieve but cure permanently Indigestion and Dyspepsia of all stages.

SPOILING A CHILD.

The Process is Easy, and the Result is Certain.

"You had to live with her to love her," they said fondly. Most people did not feel that they wished to love her.

She was a naughty little girl, but her parents were blind to the fact. There was a terrifying impishness in the wide, intent look, the occasional sparkle in her big blue eyes. You never knew what she was going to do next, but it was pretty sure to be something unwelcome.

If not at once served with water at the table, she would lean over and snatch up any glass within reach. "Maisie!" the shocked chorus would exclaim, extricating it from her clutch. "How can you be so naughty? We don't know what to think of you!" And they would look at her conventionally "more in sorrow than in anger," as some one once unfortunately said, compelling us all to say it after him. Meanwhile they would slyly smile at the victim as expressing admiration of the child's resourcefulness.

And one time the dear little thing, in the exuberance of her playfulness, stole a silver trinket. They took it from her with expressions of the deepest horror, and then, in stage whispers, narrated other amusing pranks of the kind, while she listened and giggled. Outsiders thought it was just ordinary wickedness that ailed her, but in the family they said it was all because she was so nervous and possessed such a high strung temperament.

This is not a tirade against ill bred children. It is intended to demonstrate one fact—that you cannot be foolishly indulgent in private if you mean to have your children behave well in public. You cannot train them to be little nuisances and then expect them to command love. Be at least as consistent in your dealings with them as you would be with an adult.—Philadelphia Ledger.

To Make a Ribbon Pillow.

Two shades or two contrasting colors of two inch satin ribbon may be used for the weaving. It will require, if the pillow is eighteen inches square (a very good size), eighteen strips of ribbon, each three-quarters of a yard long. A narrower ribbon would necessitate more work and stripe. The pillow should be nicely covered with silk

A RIBBON SOFA PILLOW.

(mercerized cotton goods will do just as well) to match one of the shades of ribbon, then the woven part neatly sewed to this. Outside the woven portion should be nine inch ends of ribbon which are folded to form loops and the raw end turned under and securely tacked to the sides of the cushion. This method of finishing a pillow is entirely new. If desired, stars of embroidery silk may be worked in outline stitch in alternate blocks of the ribbon.—St. Louis Republic.

The Couch.

A divan or couch piled with cushions seems to be accepted as the correct thing for every den, snuggery or living room, but in no part of the house furnishing is correct taste more offended than in this particular arrangement. We copy recklessly the oriental effects, juggling them together in such a literal "riot" of colors that jar and discord follow. If many cushions are wanted and eastern stuffs are liked as coverings, they should be carefully selected in relation to each other and to the cover. If the wood of the couch or sofa is in evidence, that, too, should be considered. Rich Persian effects are out of harmony on a white enamel settee or couch, as are the dainty cushions of white silk or fine embroidered linen against a massive mahogany antique covered in some heavy dark stuff.

A GUARANTEED CURE
For all Forms of Kidney Disease.

Very Mild Tea.

The late Augustus Hare was fond of relating an amusing incident which illustrated the absentmindedness of his cousin, Dean Stanley, and Dr. Jowett. Both were quite devoid of either taste or smell, and for some reason both were inordinately fond of tea. One morning they had each drunk eight cups, when suddenly, as Jowett rose from his table, he exclaimed: "Good gracious! I forgot to put the tea in!" Neither had noticed the omission as he sipped his favorite beverage.

A TRICK WITH CARDS.

Of the many curious things which may be done with a pack of fifty-two cards perhaps the most interesting is the "spelling out" of an entire suit. To do this take the thirteen cards of any suit, place them face up and arrange them in this manner: Nine, 6, 8, jack, 10, 5, 7, 2, king, 8, 1, 4, queen. When they are thus placed, they are face up, with the 9 on top and the queen at the bottom.

Now turn them over so that they are face down with the queen on top. Take the top card and place it underneath the pack and say "O." Place the next card underneath the pack in the same way and say "N," and the next card turn face up on the table, saying "E"—one. Leaving "E" face up, place the next top card underneath the pack, saying "T;" the next the same way, saying "W," and the next lay face up on the table, saying "O"—two—and so on through the suit.

Remember, when you come to the last letter of a card to lay that card face up on the table, leaving it there. When you have laid out the 10 spot, you continue by spelling out j-a-c-k and q-u-e-e-n.

Of course, after you have laid the jack out you have only two cards left, but continue as before and the queen will come out, leaving only the king in your hand, which, of course, you lay on the others, compelling the suit.

Could Not Wait.

Some years back there was an old justice of the peace in Lancaster county whose thirsty temperament caused him to have little patience with the lengthy trials at which he occasionally presided. One day there was a suit brought before him in which two young lawyers but lately admitted to the bar were pitted against each other. The latter, mindful of the prestige which a victory for either side would mean, were examining the witnesses at great length and consuming, it is true, a great deal of unnecessary time. Finally the testimony of the last witness was concluded, and the one attorney began to argue his side of the case. Just as he was warming up the squire finished the calculation he had been making on a small piece of paper and, getting up from the bench, said coolly:

"Young men, you can go right on with your arguments. I'll be back pretty soon. The judgment is $50."

COULDN'T PUT HIS COAT ON.

Remarkable Cure of Dropsy by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

George Robertson, of Montreal, a Physical Wreck, Restored to Splendid Health by the Great Kidney Remedy.

Montreal, May 17. — (Special). — The case of George Robertson, of 392 James street, this city, is looked upon by those interested in medical matters as one of the most interesting on record. Mr. Robertson was a sufferer from Dropsy and was so bad that tapping was resorted to. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him.

Interviewed regarding his cure, Mr. Robertson said: "I was troubled with Dropsy and Rheumatism for five years. I was a total wreck before I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. Before I got out of bed in the morning I could hardly put my feet on the floor, they were swollen so much from Dropsy.

"My arm used to swell at times so that I could not put my coat on. Before I had taken two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills I felt greatly relieved. Seven boxes cured me completely. I also had Lumbago, but since I used Dodd's Kidney Pills I don't know what it is to be sick."

Slater Shoe Advertising
Shoes of Beauty

A shoe which looms large in the public eye must combine in it positive elements of price value, of durability, comfort and beauty.

The "Slater Shoe" because it makes strenuous claims on public attention must not only feel easy when worn, it must not only wear well, but it must look well,—all advertised claims are unconsciously and critically weighed by the first impression conveyed to the mind through the eye in its initial inspection of the shoe.

So the "Slater Shoe" with its high prestige obtained by years of advertising must not only fulfil the wearer's expectations of fit, shape retention and wear, but its beauty must meet with the instantaneous approval of the wearer's eye in its most critical moment, viz: the first glance, and the succeeding closer scrutiny.

And the makers of the "Slater Shoe" realizing this fact have made "Slater Shoes" not only foot houses of ease internally, but foot palaces of beauty externally.

A Golden Heart

BY BERTHA M. CLAY

It met in more solemn conclave four days afterward, and Mr. Shaw, the detective, was at the head of it—a keen, thoughtful man, with brilliant eyes—eyes that, Harry declared, appeared as though they could see through a stone wall. He was quiet and calm, but with the keen instinct of his profession so completely developed, that it was wonderful with what sagacity he followed the slightest clew, how he studied minute details, how he gave importance to events that had been considered trivial. He had successfully conducted some most intricate criminal cases. In short, he was a wonderful man, and it augured ill for some one when he said that he was "not satisfied."

"I should say myself," Mr. Shaw remarked then, "that the reason my confrere failed was because he did not know the whole of the details. Details, in a case like this, are everything. I think, if he had known more, he would have done better. It should be with a detective officer as with a doctor—nothing should be kept from him."

"Nothing shall be kept from you," said Gertrude, promptly. "The Squire, my dear mother's father, who would have been an important witness, is dead. James Ashford, the groom, and Lord Rhysworth, who were the last to see my father, will tell you all that they know. I will show you the letters and my father's portrait," added Gertrude, whose hopes were strengthened as she saw the detective's interest increase. "Are you a good physiognomist?" she asked, as she placed the portrait before him.

Mr. Shaw looked at it long and thoughtfully.

"It is the face of a good man," he answered, gravely.

"Now read these letters," said Gertrude, "and see what you gather from them."

The letters that her mother had held so long were placed in his hands, and he seemed to weigh every word, as he read them. Then he was silent for some few minutes, after which the oracle spoke.

"My opinion is that it all rests with the lady, he said, slowly.

"With the lady!" was re-echoed in different accents of wonder and incredulity.

"Yes, with the lady," he repeated. "Indeed I should not be surprised to find that the gentleman did not accompany the lady at all."

The interest of the listeners increased.

"Take this first letter," continued the detective, "written by the lady to Sir Karl. She does not write as though he cared for her—not in the least. She wants him to do her a favor, and does not wish his wife to know about it. He evidently—from all you tell me, Miss Allanmore—dislikes it, yet he goes, and is never seen again. The supposition of every one is that the lady persuaded him to elope with her. There can have been no previous arrangement—that is quite clear from the tone of the writer's letters. Now consider this second letter, which every one seems to have taken as proof conclusive. I do not believe that Sir Karl was with the person who wrote it. It reads to me as though it were intended to suggest that idea, but that is all. She does not write, 'Sir Karl is with me'—perhaps she dared not—she writes: 'You will never see Sir Karl again. I have had my revenge.' Who knows what her revenge was? She may have murdered him. She may have induced others to murder him, and have hidden his body. She may have had him kidnapped and locked up in a lunatic asylum. She may have done anything and everything except the one thing which I am quite sure she did not do—persuade him to run away with her. Who can tell what shape or form her vengeance took?"

Gertrude listened with wide open eyes.

"Those are my ideas exactly," she said, "and those are the thoughts that came to me when I read the letter."

"I should say myself," continued Mr. Shaw, "that the quickest and best way of learning the gentleman's fate is to search for the lady."

"To search for the lady!" they repeated.

"Yes. I am sure the key of the mystery lies with her. If any one has thought that all these years Sir Karl has been wandering about with her a happy man, they have made a mistake. Taking all things into consideration, together with the fact that the gentleman has never drawn one farthing of his income, I should rather say that he was dead than living, and I should rather say that the lady had in some mysterious fashion made away with him than that he had run away with her."

They listened to him breathlessly.

"If the case is left in my hands," he said, "that is the clew I shall follow. I shall look first for the lady, and find out all about her."

"That is just what I have always thought should be done," said Gertrude. "How strange that we should think alike!"

"It would be easier to find twenty men than to trace one cunning woman," observed Lord Rhysworth.

"We shall do it, my lord, I feel sure. She is the party who should have been traced from the very beginning. If Sir Karl had been alive, he would have drawn his money. No man would have allowed an income like that to accumulate. I must say that my great wonder is that no one saw the matter in that light before, for it is the true light, I am sure."

They all agreed with the officer; and Mr. Shaw entered in his notebook every detail with which they could supply him. There was no limit as to expense.

It was certainly a puzzle now in what quarter to commence conducting the search. There was no portrait of Lola de Ferras; but Lady Fielden remembered her so well and described her so accurately that Mr. Shaw felt hopeful of recognizing her.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

From that day mysterious advertisements began to appear in the journals—advertisements that puzzled the readers. They were all addressed to Lola, and were variously subscribed; but no answer to them ever came.

The bankers with whom Madame de Ferras had invested her money were discovered; and, when urged as a matter of life and death, to tell what they knew of the whereabouts of Miss de Ferras, they had but one fact to reveal. It was this—that the account had been closed soon after madame's death, and that they had not the least notion as to her daughter's place of residence or the state of her affairs—in fact, they knew nothing at all about her. There was therefore no intelligence to be gained from that quarter; nor was there indeed from any other. Yet Gertrude's brave young heart never quailed. Dolores wrote, imploring her to come back, and give up what was after all but a chimera, a fancy, a will-o'-the-wisp, a delusion that would wear away her heart and life. But never did one thought of yielding, one thought of giving up the hope of her life, come to Gertrude.

When every inquiry had been made, every means exhausted, the council met again.

"Our task does not seem so easy now as it did when we first met to consult together," Gertrude said, "but we shall accomplish it as surely as the sun shines in heaven. Many things have failed us, but our courage and perseverance are not among the number."

Her listeners assented warmly; it would have broken her heart had they not done so.

"My dear mother has written, and wants me to return to her; but I cannot—I must not. I will finish my task or die over it."

No one had any further suggestion to make. Mr. Shaw owned that he was baffled, but that he did not despair, and was by no means inclined to give up the case, though more fully convinced than ever of the difficulties with which they would have to contend.

"If we had any clew, however small," he said, "if we only knew whether Miss de Ferras was living or dead, it would be some satisfaction."

"It would be much easier to discover if she were dead than to find any trace of her living," declared Lord Fielden. "If she is dead, and has been buried, some one must know something of it. We can take action so far. Let us advertise in the French and English papers that any one who can give proof of the death of Mademoiselle Lola de Ferras, shall receive one hundred pounds reward."

"One hundred pounds," cried Mr. Shaw.

"Yes," answered Lord Fielden—"double that amount if it be needful, if the news be worth it. Why, I would give almost the last farthing I had for the purpose."

And the beautiful eyes thanked Harry with one of those glances he loved so well.

It was agreed that the advertisement should be sent to all the leading Continental journals and English newspapers. It could hardly fail to bring about a good result. If Lola de Ferras were living, and any one knowing her wrote to say so, they would be able to find out her whereabouts; if she were dead, they would know that further efforts in that direction were useless.

"If she be dead," said Gertrude, slowly, "what has become of my father?"

"We must be patient," said Lord Fielden.

The next thing was to send off the new advertisement. In due course there came many answers; but they all bore but little upon the matter in hand.

Lord Fielden's own idea was that Lola had taken refuge in France; it was most probable for many reasons, and he spent some weeks in Paris. The Paris officials began to grow interested in the search; even the Russian detective service had been drawn into the business; and no news that the telegraphic wires could have flashed from one end of the world to the other would have given greater satisfaction than the intelligence that, living or dead, something was known of Lola de Ferras.

Then Lord Fielden had another idea; he believed that it was very probable she would be found in some religious house, in one of those institutions where wearied hearts find rest. So in England and France the strong arm of the law was brought into force; but the search in this direction was equally futile. The dark, beautiful face which had brought ruin and desolation to Scarsdale remained undiscovered.

It was almost pitiful to see how Gertrude and Lord Fielden watched the post—the sickness of hope deferred indeed made the young girl's heart sink. One morning a whole bundle of letters came; none of them contained any news of particular interest, but they occupied considerable time in the reading and answering.

"I wonder, Lord Fielden," said Gertrude, when the last envelope was directed, "if ever there will be an end to this quest of mine?"

"There is an end to everything, Gertrude," he replied, thinking to himself that the one exception was his own great love for her. There could never be any end to that—it was impossible.

"I wonder," she continued, "what I shall have to fill my life and to interest me when this is over. I shall be quite lost. Now every day brings its own work, and that work occupies my whole time. I do not think I could ever live without some real employment again."

"You need not do so," said Lord Fielden, with a quick throb at his heart. "I know work that will just suit you."

"What is it?" she asked, her eyes fixed on the spreading beeches. "Women's rights?"

"Women's rights in one sense of the word, Gertrude," he replied, "decidedly not in the other. You ought to have a husband who loves you, not with a commonplace affection, but with an unfathomable love."

"He has to be found," interrupted Gertrude, with a shy, sweet smile.

"No, indeed, he has not; he is found."

But Gertrude would not listen.

"I can think of nothing yet but finding my father," she said gently.

"Gertrude," he cried, "suppose that some man—we will presume that he would be in every way eligible—should, through his own exertions and skill, bring to you certain proofs of your father's innocence, the sure solving of the mystery that surrounds his name and that of Lola de Ferras, would you, as a reward, marry him?"

His heart beat so violently as he asked the question that he was afraid she would hear it; his suspense was so great that he could hardly draw his breath. But she did not look at him. She seemed to forgot all about him in the thought of answering his question.

"Yes," she replied, "I think I would."

He turned away with a deep sigh, and without seeing the furtive glance from Gertrude's blue eyes,

"I wonder," said Harry, with an impatient stride across the room, "if it would have been better for me if I had never been born?"

"I should say that it is many years too late to answer the question," observed Gertrude.

And so their conversation ended, but he did not forget it. Lord Fielden felt convinced that the only way to win the prize of Gertrude's love was by clearing up the mystery of her father's disappearance and that was the task he set himself to perform.

HURRIED THE WORK.

Peculiar Experience of a Turkish Literary Man.

Once upon a time a certain Turkish literary man living in Constantinople arranged to translate for a daily newspaper a novel, then popular in England. Each day he rendered a sufficient part of it into the Turkish language to fill the space reserved for it. One day his peaceful home was entered by the police, who peremptorily arrested the man of letters and dragged him off to prison. No explanation was given for his arrest, the novel reflected in no way against the politics of the state, and he had broken no laws. He was not even given time to bid farewell to his family, but he was commanded to bring the work under translation with him. Arrived at the prison, he was given pleasant quarters, good food and drink and sternly commanded to complete his task. So for several days the frightened translator worked arduously, says Town and Country.

When the work was done, he was, to his astonishment, instantly liberated and presented with a large sum of money. Upon further inquiry, as to his treatment it was explained that the sultan had become interested in the story as it appeared from day to day and was too impatient to wait for the end. He wanted to read all the rest of it at once! Truly, there are certain advantages in being a sultan.

Malt Breakfast Food has brought more health and comfort to the homes of Canada than any other food preparation. Mothers find it an invaluable food during the period of nursing, as it provides the most ample nutrition for keeping up health and strength; it promotes to a marvellous degree the secretion of milk. Malt Breakfast Food is recommended every day by physicians to nursing mothers, because of its many advantages as a concentrated nourishment. No other food is so easily and so rapidly digested and assimilated, and no other contributes so much to general health building. If the mother's stomach is weak and capricious, let her try Malt Breakfast Food for a week; it will soon establish perfect digestion, healthful circulation and a well regulated nervous system. Ask your grocer for Malt Breakfast Food.

QUOTATIONS ON THE WALL STREET MARKET

Prices Took Another Slump This Morning.

The Quotations of the Leading Stocks —Market Letters.

The Wall Street market opened slightly lower than last night's close and felt off considerably. St. Pauls touched 151 and closed only 1-8 higher than that quotation. Copper dropped 21-2 points and closed at 62. C.P.R. showed some weakness and went down to 128 3-4, a point and a quarter below last night's closing quotations. Notwithstanding the favourable bank statement the market continued weak until the close.

Messrs. McMillan & Maguire this afternoon received the following dispatches:

New York, May 23rd, noon.—The market was weak from start to finish today without any new developments of a sensational nature. The condition of affairs in the building trades of New York was regarded as having assumed a more serious phase and rumors were revived of possible strike of freight handlers at Chicago. In consequence it was argued that building and other operations would be contracted and would react unfavourable upon Iron and steel situation. So far as Monday's situation is concerned the features remain adverse to the shipment of Gold exports to Europe next week, although the shipments to Argentina Monday amount to over 27 million. The selling pressure gradually increased and the last half hour liquidation appeared to become urgent in numerous directions. The market closed active and weak at aout the lowest.

than is necessary, because I do not want to give unnecessary pain. But, it is before a single man had seen Mr. Gamey, before the Government knew or had an opportunity of discussing a single matter with Mr. Gamey, and Mr. Conmee is then naturally anxious to know just what position Mr. Gamey is taking. Why? Because Conmee is a representative of the western section. Because Conmee had suggested the re-distribution of that whole territory. Because his lines had evidently been followed more or less in the carrying out of the constituencies and the adding of two or three new ones, and because Mr. Conmee was then a disappointed man in the result of those elections.

JAMES WAS INTERESTED.

Mr. Conmee was interested personally, politically, and in every other way to know just what position the Government would be in having lost three constituencies out of those five, when Mr. Conmee expected to have won the whole five. Therefore Mr. Conmee's attention was specially directed to the attitude of Mr. Gamey in regard to his relation to the politics of the day, and Mr. Gamey says, "he mentioned that a protest had been entered against him; he was talking about that and he told me that since seeing me." (Your Lordships will observe that this is in the latter part of June or the early part of July.) "Between the fourth and eleventh of June he had seen some of his friends and discussed the matter of his policy with them, the course he should take, and stated to them that it was his intention to give the Government a support and that they had agreed with them that he had fully made up his mind to support the Government." He says that he did not make any secret about that. He says he thought at that time he was honest in his intentions and to-day he says, I believe he was on the train and at the Rossin House, honest in his convictions, but Conmee, the wise politician as he is, apparently sized up his man and he said, "whilst I believe you to-day if you fall into the hands of some of your ultra-Conservative friends to-morrow I have more doubt about your actions than I would have about your sincerity.

GAMEY TO CONMEE.

Now, if we look for evidence to show the attitude that was being assumed by Mr. Gamey, long prior to the 7th day of August, long prior to the operations of the corrupters of morals, long prior to any motive of an ulterior character or of a sinister nature, Mr. Gamey of his own free will, before he had seen a member of the Government, before he had an opportunity of discussing a single question of policy with any man in the department, Mr. Gamey tells Mr. Conmee he had not only made up his mind to support the Government, but he had consulted his friends and they agreed with him that under all the circumstances it was a very proper and very righteous thing to do.

DR. ARTHUR'S TESTIMONY.

Then we are not alone in relying upon Mr. Gamey's testimony. We have the testimony of Dr. Arthur, still before the 7th of August, in which he gives a detailed account of a conversation which he had with him in the beginning of July. Mr. Gamey had been at the Conservative caucus in June, according to his story.

Chancellor Boyd—Did he deny that? I forget whether he did or not.

Mr. Johnston—No, my Lord. It was alleged that he was not there. His counsel denied it, but Mr. Gamey did not deny it. His counsel denied it, as counsel sometimes do.

Mr. Johnston proceeds to read from the evidence of Dr. Arthur, commencing with a statement made by Mr. Gamey to the doctor that Gamey had been at the Conservative caucus in Toronto; and continuing:

THE QUOTATION.

"I think when he came in I said to him, 'Well, Gamey, you have been down counting noses, and saw how the party stands. I suppose you know all about the political situation now?' He said, 'Yes.' Then we went on to discuss the political situation. I think at that time most of the recounts were over,' "etc. "I remember his saying to me, 'Well, Arthur, I think Ross is going to rule for the next four years.' I said, 'Yes, it looks so. That is my idea too. I don't just remember what order it came in, or the consecutiveness of this. Anyway, he purported to have told me some things that took place at the caucus here in Toronto. He told me that a good many of the members of that caucus were very much discouraged; this was the second time they had come so near winning and yet fallen through that it was very discouraging, and he took a very gloomy outlook at the prospects of the party. He said he did not believe the party would hold together another four years if they did not get in. He thought they were not going to get in. He said he had made up his mind that if he had not felt certain that Whitney was going to win he never would have been a candidate; he had no desire to sit there four years in Opposition; did not wish to be a second A. F. Campbell. He had made up his mind what he was going to do; he would give, when the House met, the first vote to Whitney, to demonstrate to him that he had not a majority. If he did have a majority, of course the Government would be out; but as it was he had made up his mind that he would vote the first vote, a test vote, for Whitney, and after that he was going to support the Government."

FOUR YEARS FOR ROSS.

In other words, his whole object was to make sure that the Ross Government would be in power for the next four years, and when that was fixed Mr. Gamey was its supporter.

At another page there is this significant piece of evidence; another reason he advanced that would support him in that, that he had got a great many Liberal votes in the constituency. He said scores of Liberals had voted for him and he instanced his own polling sub-division where he said there had never been a Conservative majority before this time.

Now, after August 7th Mr. Gamey is met by some very significant statements; and your Lordships will bear in mind that these statements are made by witnesses to whom Mr. Gamey was under no obligation whatever to disclose his political position. We have heard repeated and repeated in the witness box, "Part of my scheme; part of my arrangement; "tell them something to keep my friends quiet;" "had to invent some kind of story;" "I was going on with a deep conspiracy and a deep plot, and I had to keep my friends in line." Something perhaps in that contention. Perhaps one would say that was not an unreasonable position to take.

WHY TALK?

But why tell the supporters of the Government? Under what obligation was he to tell Robert Thornburn? What was his obligation to tell John F. Boyd, a Government supporter, an official of the Government? These were not friends that he had to keep quiet. These were not people that he had to satisfy until it was time for the explosion to take place in the House on the 11th day of March. The reason that he is giving in the witness box is on its face an utterly false reason, and he gives no other; I do not desire for one moment to adopt the language of my learned friend and say that he was swearing false in fact but I do say, and say it emphatically that the reason he gives is absolutely false; because that is followed up immediately with further and more remarkable evidence.

AT THE WALKER HOUSE.

He meets two men at the Walker House, men he had never seen, men who were as utterly removed from this member for Manitoulin as day light is from dark, S. J. Martin and Mr. Bowen; men from the eastern section of the province, four or five hundred miles away from Mr. Gamey, and man he had never seen in his life before that evening. Yet this man comes here and tells us that he has been a Conservative from the moment he accepted the nomination until to-day, and in addition to his many other good qualities he adds that of patriotism—at the price of four thousand dollars. Now, what earthly reason would there be for Mr. Gamey to have such a conversation with Mr. Martin and Mr. Bowen in the Walker House during the Exhibition, before the poison had commenced its operation, before the sensitive culture-bed had responded to the approaches of corruption made by the Government and its emissaries? Why should he have had such a conversation with these men, not knowing whether they were Conservatives or Reformers, as to induce these two men on the first or second day of January to say, when they read the report in the Globe newspaper, "Why that is exactly what he told us at the Walker House on the 7th of September?"

The continuation of Mr. Johnston's address will appear in our next issue. When the Court adjourned yesterday afternoon, Mr. Johnston had not finished, and he expected to occupy another hour this morning.

2 WOMEN DROWNED.

Fatalities in Toronto Bay on Friday Night.

ONE BODY IS RECOVERED.

Despite Heroic Attempts at Rescue Miss Libby McKenzie and Mrs. Mary A. Beckett Go Down to Death by the Capsizing of a Boat When It Was Being Turned to the Wind.

Toronto, May 23.—Two women drowned, the body of one still missing, is the latest tragedy enacted on the Bay. Eighteen-year-old Libby McKenzie of 39 Wood street, and Mrs. Mary A. Beckett of 149 Seaton street, were, with four others, thrown into the Bay by the capsizing of a mackinaw and drowned. The body of Miss McKenzie has not yet been recovered. Cries for help attracted another sailing party to the scene of the distressed, and a struggle to rescue eoe women from a watery grave ensued.

At 9.45 last night, L. E. Marsh, sailing the mackinaw "Toinui," accompanied by Charles Miller and H. M. Lamont, heard screams for help. Righting about in the direction of the cries for assistance, they bore down on the spot, but it went past the mark.

Charles Miller jumped into the passing mackinaws' dinghy and returned. The three men were still afloat, two holding a woman each, but the third woman had gone down. In the inky darkness a struggle for life went on for a quarter of an hour. Then the boat manned by L. Marsh returned picking up three men and one woman who were still afloat.

The cause of the sad accident was the neglect of the two men, who had hold of the jib and fore sail, not letting them go when the boat was being turned to the wind.

REVIEWING THE GAMEY EVIDENCE.

Continuation of Mr. Johnston's Masterly Argument.

HE SEVERELY SCORES BLAKE'S ADDRESS.

"GOES BY THE BOARD."

Well that is one of the propositions which my learned friend puts to one side without any very strenuous abuse or reference—simply says, "That goes by the board; it may mean this or it may mean anything." It means the whole case as far as his client's position is concerned. Then I refer to the other side. William H. Hurst is called to prove that which was not denied, namely, that Mr. Gamey was a Conservative in learning and elected by the Conservative party and a certain number of Liberals in the District of Manitoulin. At page 2,780, Vol. 7, Mr. Hurst, a barrister is called and he says, "Manitoulin as a factor in politics has a good deal to do with it quite apart from the partisan. The interest of Manitoulin? Oh, yes, the same as any other part of the riding." Then at page 2,785 Mr. Hurst says that where there were measures coming from the Ross Government in the best interests of Manitoulin he would expect Mr. Gamey to support the Government upon such measures, irrespective of party. How much further has Mr. Gamey gone in any written document?

"AN INDEPENDENT SUPPORT."

What more can be said of an independent supporter of the Government than that he would hold himself aloof to support measures coming from that Government that he is satisfied are in the best interests of his constituency? At page 2,787, "Was that impression conveyed by the tenor of his speeches, that it would be an advantage to have a supporter of the Government because Whitney was going to be the governing power for the next four years? A.—I think that may have been put in that way. It was a stock argument of the Government's supporters to say it would be no use to send an Opposition member. I think in meeting that Mr. Gamey argued that if there was any force in that argument you should support me, because the Ross administration will not be continued in power and it will be the man that will be on the Government side, and whatever advantage waste be gained for the island would be gained in that way. That was the argument of the people exactly." The test was therefore not a question of Conservative or Reformer as far as Manitoulin was concerned, but the test was who was going to succeed in sending a supporter of the Government no matter what Government might be in power.

DR. FELL'S EVIDENCE.

Dr. Fell is called and he states that at the convention there was no pledge taken that he would support Whitney or anybody, but Dr. Fell puts it exactly as one would expect a candidate in Manitoulin, Algoma, Parry Sound and those other places was put—"He was left free to act, if he saw fit, according to the dictates of his conscience and his own political views as matters came up in the future. Q.—So that he could not have been in any better position if he had said, 'I am an independent member, I am as independent candidate?' A.—He might have been in a good deal cooler position." One more reference on this point. Mr. Konny, who was at the convention—not the reporter, but apparently his brother—"He was not bound; he was at liberty to support the Government in the event of the Ross Government being returned to power." That is from their own friends and supporters. Then I refer your Lordships to Dr. Struthers.

HAS SOMETHING MORE.

Now, my Lords, I have given as far as I can the position of the witness fairly with regard to his relation to politics, before the election, between the election and the 7th August, and subsequent to the 7th August up to the 10th September, but we have a more cogent piece of evidence than that. We have the report of the meeting held at Gore Bay on the 16th February, 1903, written by Mr. Gamey by his own hand.

The Chancellor—In the Globe?

THE REAL MR. ROBINSON.

Mr. Johnston—Yes, my Lord, and in report there stands this uncontradicted statement: "T. Robinson, a delegate from the country, took the ground that Mr. Gamey had promised to take an independent stand during the campaign last spring if the Government were sustained, and that he received a great many Liberal votes on that account." Now, all those things are beyond contradiction. We have the consensus of opinion as to the position of this man. We have it more or less known—

The Chancellor—I suppose Mr. Robinson is a real person?

Mr. Johnston—Oh, quite so, my Lords. Mr. Robinson was in attendance here, and we had him here and kept him here in order that it might not be said that he was unavailable, and it was open to the other side to have put him in the box. Now, just in this connection for a moment, look at the letter of the 10th September and see whether that letter is in any sense opposed to the position which I have given your Lordships and which is abundantly proved by the evidence. He has been recently thinking over the political situation and he has come—

NOT IN EVIDENCE.

The Chancellor—Did Mr. Aylesworth read that letter?

Mr. Johnston—Mr. Gamey read it twice at Mr. Aylesworth's office. The chances are that he would read it.

The Chancellor—Still it is not in evidence that he actually did.

Mr. Johnston — No, my Lords. "I have been thinking over the political situation of the province of Ontario. I have seriously come to a conclusion."

MOTIVE FOUND FOR HIM.

Now, what was the conclusion? To support the Ross Government? To change my politics and enroll myself as a member of the Liberal ranks? Clearly not. "That I would be best acting in the interests of my constituency and New Ontario by giving support to your administration." There is the motive. There is the reason that existed prior to the election; after the election with Conmee and the other witnesses; with his bedfellows at the Walker House in the second week of the exhibition; with his position throughout, down to the very time of the meeting on the 16th February, 1903. Never changed; never varied, and strange to say, the position that he took prior to the 10th day of September was a stronger position in support of the Government than he took after it is said he got the money.

The Chancellor—Would you call him an independent Conservative?

Mr. Johnston—Quite so, my Lord; not bound to support the Opposition. Then he makes it a condition, "In carrying out your development policy there will be an impetus given to trade and settlement in New Ontario that will absolutely justify the course that I have decided to pursue." Then he does not say "I have left the Conservative party, and you can count upon me as a Government supporter," but he qualifies that in this way, "The course that I have determined to take makes me practically a supporter of your Government."

Now, his friendship was no stronger than it had been in the early part of June, the latter part of June, the beginning of July, and in August. Now, he gets the money, according to my learned friend; the man from Manitoulin holds out the willing hand and takes the bribe, and, having got the bribe, one would have expected strong, vigorous, active support of the Government until the time came for the explosion in the House. Quite the reverse. The first thing the man does is to attend the Conservative caucus on the 10th of September, when the money was in his pocket or within reach.

The Chancellor—That was before he got the money.

WHAT HE THINKS HE CAN SHOW.

Mr. Johnston—We shall deal with that later, and I think we can show that the money was in his pocket at the time he was applauding his leader at the Conservative caucus, if he ever had the money at all. If he had the money, where did it come from? I do not know that we can be expected to say that; Mr. Gamey knows where it came from; it may have come from the 10th September—(laughter) —or it may have come from the Conservative funds.

The Chancellor—Both parties had an opportunity of going into that.

Mr. Johnston—Yes, my Lord. But it is just as reasonable to say that it came from the Conservative campaign funds to say that it came from Liberal campaign funds.

The Chancellor—They said the Liberal campaign fund was exhausted. There was much talk about it, but there was no evidence about it.

"WHERE DID," ETC.

Mr. Johnston—As far as the campaign funds are concerned it is just as much open for me to say that it came from the Conservative caucus fund as for my learned friend to say that it came from the Liberal campaign fund.

Now, on the 10th of September, here is the marvellous condition of things. This man says I got a bribe to support the Government, and the moment he gets the bribe, according to his own story and his own action, instead of leading the Government to believe that he is going to support them, he weakens in his so-called allegiance, and how does he do it? After, according to his own story, getting $3,000 on the 10th or 11th of September, he goes up to North Perth in the beginning of January,, and helps the Conservative party, and makes speeches in favour of Mr. Whitney. That had nothing to do with his pledge or his scheme or his bribes. When he gives the Globe interview and he says he got $1,000 for giving that interview, he changes that interview in his own hand-writing, and so emasculates it that it might be signed by a Conservative member of the Opposition. He is being paid, according to his own story, to bind himself to the Government, but every dollar he gets is driving him further and further away.

THE GLOBE INTERVIEW.

Here are some of the changes he makes in the interview in the Globe. Where it was written "the Ontario Government should carry on the work," he changes that to "the Government in power." Where he says "I was practically a supporter of the Government," in the Globe interview he says that he could only help the Government with independent support. The expression "good active support" he changes that to "independent support." Where he says, "and help to carry out a development policy," he changes that to "any good developing policy." Why that might have been signed by the leader of the Opposition. If there was any money pretended to have been paid to him for the sake of strengthening him in his allegiance to the party in power, then certainly he was ready to stretch out his hand for the willing bribe according to his own story.

My learned friend says let us give this the taint of corruption, let us smear it all over with the slime of dishonesty and bribery. Let us put this forward before two of the judges of our land and ask them to pronounce J. R. Stratton a criminal. No wonder my learned friend had to resort to invocation as well as to imprecation in this undertaking.

Now, take the Belwood's letter.

The Chancellor—What is the date of that?

Mr. Johnston—October 24th, 1902, I think.

Mr. Blake — I think that letter is dated February 10th, 1903. No. 165.

Mr. Johnston—Now, see what the position is there; writing to a man that he was under no obligation to write to, not a man who had been a supporter, but a man who was an opponent—what does he say there? "I have not gone over to the other side fully by any means and only went as far as I thought any man should go who represents this riding. I believe and have for years that we have too much party politics and I shall try to serve my riding better than my party."

A TOUCH OF HUMANITY.

Was there some touch of humanity, some inward promptings of conscience that perhaps had been long lying dead—was there some sentiment of manhood about the man when he wrote that? "This question of my getting timber limits or any other concession is all pure nonsense and time will prove it to you. There should be a shaking up of the dry bones that will surprise the old parties, both of them. If I were to tell you what I think of some of the men on both sides it would surprise you." Both parties—is that an honest letter, is that letter the thoughts of an honest man, is that the letter of a patriot or is that part of the scheme, part of the arrangement, and if so, in what way could that letter assist in the development of the scheme.

Mr. Justice Falconbridge—He gives an explanation of that; he says it was to stave off the stress of the convention that was going to be held up there to consider the matter.

Mr. Johnston—But that letter is this that at that time he was not taking the position that we should expect he would take. He was receding from that position when his whole object was to strengthen the position of the Government and lead them to believe that he was an ardent supporter, and that letter, so far from doing this, condemned the Ross Government as well as the Whitney Opposition.

THE TRUE METAL.

Throughout the whole of his correspondence every word wherever we have been able to touch the true metal, if anywhere it rings in that letter written in the early part of February exactly defining his position.

Now, your Lordships will see that from the very beginning, not to the last effusion that we have from him on the 10th of February, when the Bellwood's letter was written, we have the same consistent theory — "Manitoulin my politics — Ross Government unfortunately returned to power—I thought Whitney was going to be elected—he has lost his chance—my interests and the interests of my constituency, call upon me to give a fair, independent Liberal support to the Government in power.

A continuation of Mr. Johnston's address will appear to-morrow.

MRS. H. WADDELL TO LAY CORNER STONE

New Sunday School Hall of South Monaghan Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. J. A. McIntosh, M. A. the pastor of the Presbyterian church of South Monaghan, was in town on Wednesday, making arrangements for the programme in connection with laying the corner stone of the new Sunday school hall, on Monday, June 1st, 1903. The stone is to be laid by Mrs. H. Waddell, of town, who was the unanimous choice of the building committee at their meeting held in the Presbyterian church at Centreville on the 2nd day of May.

The congregation is one of the most successful in the Peterborough Presbytery, and is drawn from the united counties of Northumberland, Durham and Peterborough. The church is situated in East Durham, but the new hall will be in Northumberland county, in that part of it included in the West Riding of Peterborough. The congregation, while loyal to the church, do not forget their representatives in State, and are anticipating the presence on that day of the Hon. J. R. Stratton, M. P., and J. J. Preston, M.P.P., members for these constituencies. Among others going from town to take part in the ceremony, are Mayor Roger, Rev. W. Bennett, Rev. Dr. Torrance, Rev. J. G. Potter, Miss C. Belleghem, Miss Winnie Dobbin and Mr. Archie Froude. Any person wishing to attend the ceremony on that occasion may notify Rev. J. G. Potter before Saturday, the 30th of May. The ceremony will take place at 2.30 p.m., and tea at 5 p.m. The bus will need to leave town at 12 o'clock sharp.

DYSPEPSIA OF WOMEN.

Mrs. E. B. Bradshaw, of Guthrie, Okla., cured of a severe case by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

A great many women suffer with a form of indigestion or dyspepsia which does not seem to yield to ordinary medical treatment. While the symptoms seem to be similar to those of ordinary indigestion, yet the medicines universally prescribed do not seem to restore the patient's normal condition.

Mrs. Pinkham claims that there is a kind of dyspepsia that is caused by derangement of the female organism, and which, while it causes disturbance similar to ordinary indigestion, cannot be relieved without a medicine which not only acts as a stomach tonic, but has peculiar uterine-tonic effects as well.

Thousands of testimonial letters prove beyond question that nothing will relieve this distressing condition so surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It always works in harmony with the female system.

Mrs. Pinkham advises sick women free. Address Lynn, Mass.

TO THE BRAVE DEAD

Unveiling of Monuments Over Canadian Empire Fighters.

THE MINISTER OF MILITIA.

Unveils Monument at Brantford in Memory of Lieut. Osborne, Lieut. Builder and Corp. Sherritt—The Minister's Remarks—Capt. Milligan and Pte. Stobo Also Remembered—Celebrating King's Birthday.

Brantford, May 26.—Amid the cheers of throngs of people, the playing of three massed bands, and in the presence of 1,500 militia and 5,000 people, Sir Frederick Borden yesterday afternoon unveiled the Soldiers' Monument at Jubilee Park in this city. In doing so, he delivered an eloquent oration, touching on the deeds of valor and bravery of the young Brantfordites, who had laid down their lives while fighting for the Empire in one of the most distant parts, and, in referring to militarism within the Dominion, declared that it was the object of the Government to maintain a force sufficient only to guard the country's interests and preserve law and order throughout its length and breadth.

Sir Frederick recounted the manner of death of the three in whose memory the monument was erected. Lieut. Osborne fell in the disastrous engagement at Spion Kop. Lieut. Builder fell while defending the guns at Belfast, and Corp. Alfred Sherritt after passing through two campaigns fell at the Harts River engagement, fighting to the last. Great deeds made a nation great, and the greatest of all deeds were those that had taken place on the field of battle. He was glad Brantford recognized its heroes, and hoped other cities would follow in its footsteps.

Sir Frederick then released the ropes which held the covering of the monument in place, and amid the cheers of citizens the drapery fell disclosing the statue surmounted by a soldier with fixed bayonet. Mayor Halloran, on behalf of the city, accepted the gift, at the conclusion of which the massed bands played "God Save the King."

Later in the afternoon, the regiments marched to Agricultural Park, where the celebration was continued by the militia, who participated in numerous manoeuvres of a pleasing character.

Monument to Capt. Milligan.

Newtonville, May 26.—The unveiling of a monument to the late Capt. W. P. K. Milligan of the 46th Durham Regiment took place yesterday afternoon before many citizens from Durham, Northumberland, Peterboro and Victoria Counties who assembled here to participate in the ceremony of unveiling a magnificent obelisk to the memory of the late Cpt. Milligan, who fell at Kleinhart's River in South Africa.

A Monument Unveiled.

Toronto, May 26.—The people of Scarboro have erected a monument to one of the young men of that township, who died in South Africa. The monument which is in memory of Trooper Robert James Stobo of Scarboro, stands in the Presbyterian Churchyard, at Bendale, the centre and beginning of the township, and was unveiled yesterday afternoon with appropriate ceremonies.

APPALLING AUTO RECORD.

Six Killed and Twelve Hurt, Some Go Badly That They May Die—Terrible. Results of Paris-Madrid Race.

Paris, May 26.—It is now possible to assemble from the many reports along the route of the first stage of the Paris-Madrid auto race a complete list of casualties. This shows six persons killed, two so dangerously injured that they may die, and ten seriously injured. During the day it was asserted here that 17 persons had been killed, and that 17 were injured; but this was not warranted.

Bordeaux reports that many of the competitors, including William Charron, Theilier, and Fossy desired to abandon the race, but others insisted that their honor required them to resume it ar the Spanish frontier, if possible, but the Spanish Government later forbade the races, thus compelling its complete abandonment. The manufacturers have agreed that, as a road race is impossible, the meeting will be resumed within a closed course.

A late despatch from Bordeaux adds another shocking accident to the long list of casualties. Mme. Chaysdeas, accompanied by her husband, both riding bicycles, were watching the passing automobiles 12 miles from Bordeaux, when a horse, frightened by the noise, bolted and overturned the lady, who fell under a racing auto. Both her legs were cut off and the hopes of saving her life are slight.

TORNADO IN BRYAN'S STATE.

From Latest Reports the Deaths Numbered Twenty-Four.

Lincoln, Neb., May 26.—A tornado that passed near Norman, and later struck Pauline and the intervening county early yesterday, caused heavy damage, and many lives are reported lost. From Norman the storm went east to Pauline and then to Fairfield, which had about thirty-five houses, is reported wrecked, and it is said that three persons were killed there and others injured.

Total Dead Twenty-Four.

Lincoln, Neb., May 26.—A correspondent, who returned from the storm district yesterday afternoon, reports three persons were killed at Cowles, and one person killed and three injured at Hartwell, which points, it appears, were also in the line of the tornado. This makes the total dead twenty-four.

Another at Rolfe.

Des Moines, May 26.—A tornado struck Rolfe, seventy miles west of here, late Sunday, killing one person, fatally injuring a child and wrecking the State Bank and several other buildings.

A BIG BRIBERY PLOT.

This Time Members of Massachusetts Legislature Are Involved.

oston, May 26.—John B. Moran, a lawyer, announces that he has in his possession a written confession of a wholesale bribery scheme, mapped out by Massachussetts men, which involves seven prominent legislators who are in the combine. The confession was made by a Boston merchant, a member of the Legislature, in 1901, who disappeared from Boston after placing the confession in Mr. Moran's hands. Mr. Moran will at once lay his evidence before the grand jury.

HOW TO REPAIR Out-of-Gear Digestive Machinery.

Malt Breakfast Food

Banishes All Stomach Troubles.

Malt Breakfast Food is the only cereal food in the world that can truly promise full digestive vigour, normal appetite and good health. Malt Breakfast Food is of such delicate flavour that it soothes the weary and inflamed stomach, and is retained as nourishment when all other forms of food are rejected. After the stomach is toned, Malt Breakfast Food proceeds to build up flesh, bone and muscle. All dyspeptics should make Malt Breakfast Food their diet for morning and night for the next month or two in order to repair and fortify the broken-down digestive machinery. All grocers sell Malt Breakfast Food.

Suicided in Church.

London, Ont., May 26.—William Uglow, for years township collector of North Dorchester, well-known throughout the county and in the city, was found dead yesterday in the Methodist Church at Putnam. A revolver that lay by his side showed that he had committed suicide.

Government Does Not Approve.

Yokohama, May 26.—A despatch received here from Zoul Scoul, says the Government of Corea has ordered the officials at Wiju to arrest the Coreans who were concerned in the sale of land and buildings to Russians or Chinese.

Killed by a Trolley.

Quebec, May 26.—Sunday a little girl, six years old, daughter of Ferdinand Poitras, joiner, was crushed to death by an electric car on St. John street.

A 30-HOURS BATTLE

Turks Killed 130 Macedonian Insurgents.

WHOLE VILLAGE WAS BURNED

Desperate Struggle at Smerdesh, South of the Lake of Presba—Insurgents, Who Had Quantities of Dynamite Sought Refuge in the Village But Turks Attacked Them—The Struggle Slackening.

Vienna, May 26.—About 150 Macedonian insurgents were killed at the village of Smerdesh, south of the Lake of Presba, May 21. The insurgents, who had possession of quantities of dynamite, sought refuge in the village and were attacked by Turkish troops. The fighting lasted for thirty hours, and ultimately all the houses were burned or blown up by dynamite by the Turks. One hundred and fifty bodies were found in the ruins.

Bulgaria and Turkey.

London, May 26.—The Sofia correspondent of The Times says negotiations between Bulgaria and Turkey have opened favorably in that city. It is evident, he adds, that there is a slackening in the struggle in Macedonia, but fighting is reported from the districts of Kitchevo and Nevrekop, where several villages are blockaded.

EXPLOSION OF AN ARSENAL.

Gen. Frias Killed and Twenty-One Mortally Wounded.

Santo Domingo, May 26.—The arsenal at Santiago was blown up yesterday by enemies of the present Government. Gen. Frias was killed and twenty-one persons mortally wounded. The troops are pursuing Gen. Jose Alvarez, who is said to be the author of the explosion.

The gunboat Colon, which conveyed Gen. Deschamps to Senchez, has been lost off Cape Espada. Deschamps and four others saved themselves in a boat, but the remainder of the crew was lost.

A RACING SURPRISE.

The King's Plate at the O. J. C. Spring Meeting Won by the Dyment Stable. Which Also Ran Second.

Toronto, May 26.—The Ontario Jockey Club's spring race meeting began on Saturday. The greatest interest centred in the King's Plate race. Of the fifty horses whose names were on the 1st day of March inscribed on the entry list for the King's Plate of 1903, fifteen survived the trials of training with such a showing as justified their owners in sending them to the post. As is generally the case, Mr. Seagram had the largest representation, three out of his nine entries, and in the judgment of the average visitor he had the strongest as well as the largest hand. Mr. Dyment sent two, and Mr. Hendrie two out of an original entry of five. These were the only owners to have more than a single starter. The other owners and their horses were: H. C. Osborne's Golden Crest, Adam Beck's Hawkins, E. B. Clancey's Picktime, D. Higgins' Cardigan, C. B. Simpson's Jack Canuck, Robt. Davies' Farmers' Foe, G. W. Cook's Marston Moor, and Mrs. J. A. McCulloch's Whiteward.

Mr. Dyment had for many years entered his candidates for the Guineas, but up to this year the fickle goddess had vouchsafed her smile elsewhere. She doubly atoned on Saturday for her neglect, for not first place alone, but second also, fell to Mr. Dyment. One of the first to congratulate him was the Governor-General, while his rivals for the coveted purse were not backward in conveying to him their felicitations.

There was other racing on Saturday, good racing and plenty of it, but for the average man and woman the other events do not count for much on Plate Day. The weather was cool, but bright and pleasant, and everything that could be done to provide a fine day's sport was arranged. Only one cloud passed over the brightness of it all—the tragic end of the King's Plate favorite, Mr. Seagram's Fly-in-Amber. She broke her leg when racing the first furlong of the distance, and the fracture was so serious that she had to be destroyed.

Second Day's Races.

British Troops to Insist.

London, May 26.—A despatch to The Times from Pekin, says The Gazette, publishes a memorial from a Chinese resident in Thibet, announcing the approach of the British with troops, to insist on the arrangement of some disputed boundary and commercial questions.

A Waitress' Suicide.

Sault Ste. Marie, May 26.—Mrs. Urquhart, a waitress on the steamer India, committed suicide at Garden River by swallowing carbolic acid. She was 23, and was born in Oakville.

GREATLY ALARMED.

By a Persistent Cough, but Permanently Cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

Mr. H. P. Burbeige, a student at law in Greenville, S. C., has been troubled for four or five years with a continuous cough, which he says "greatly alarmed me, causing me to fear that I was in the first stages of consumption." Mr. Burbage, having seen Chamberlain's Cough Remedy advertised, concluded to try it. "I soon felt a remarkable change and after using two bottles of the 25 cent kind was permanently cured. Sold by all druggists.

A Family Necessity.

Owing to artificial modern life, almost everybody suffers more or less from constipation, torpid liver, and sluggish kidneys, and as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are the most prompt and thorough cure for this derangement, they have come to be considered a family necessity. Hosts of families would not think of being without them. One pill a dose; 25c a box.

Heaven-Directed

A WELL KNOWN CITIZEN OF EVERTON, ONT., USES

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND.

Thousand of estimable and prominent people uninfluenced by newspaper notices or even the advice of friends, in some Heaven-directed way used Paine's Celery Compound and saved themselves from sufferings and death.

Would to Heaven that the thousands burdened and oppressed with physical agonies, wearied, despondent, sleepless and weak in this month of May, could hear that mysterious whisper, "Man! Woman! Paine's Celery Compound will banish thy disease and give unto thee that perfect health and life which lead to happiness and contentanent."

Take courage afflicted one; though physicians have pronounced you incurable, let us assure you of positive aid and cure. The virtues of Paine's Celery Compound will give you, in as large a measure, the same blessed results that were experienced by Mr. T. Simons, of Everton, Ont., who gratefully writes as follows:—

"I have suffered from nervousness, run-down system and heart weakness for a long time. Very often, spells of unconsciousness would come over me, and last for an hour or more each time. When consciousness returned, I would find myself exhausted and quite sick at my stomach. I doctored long without any good results. I then happily commenced with Paine's Celery Compound, and soon became a new man. I am feeling splendid just now and as strong as ever before in my life, thanks to your great medicine. I advise all sick people to use the great compound that did such a grand work for me."

If you are in need of free medical advice, write to Consulting Physician's Department, The Wells & Richardson Co., Limited, Montreal, Que. All correspondence is sacredly confidential.

PERILS OF A DIVER

DIVER F. S. HENRION TELLS OF SOME INTERESTING EXPERIENCES.

Repairing the Steamer Minto—Working Hundreds of Feet Below the Surface of the Water—The Diver's Uniform—Six Hours Under Water—A Sad Duty—A Narrow Escape.

During last winter for sixty-four days the steamer Stanley was imprisoned in the ice fields and for thirty-nine days the Minto was in similar jeopardy. It was a demonstration of the dangers and difficulties of keeping up communication between Prince Edward Island and the mainland.

When the steamship was first approached, and relieved by coal and provisions from the Minto, she had only eighteen tons of coal left and very few provisions.

Many strange stories and adventures are recorded of such experiences, but few are as interesting as the interview given by Diver F. S. Henrion, who placed the new blades on the Minto propeller shaft.

The Diver's Uniform.

"The suit I wore weighs 200 pounds," he said. "Eighty pounds of lead are carried on the shoulders to keep me down in the buoyant salt water. My boots weigh thirty pounds. A large hose tube conveys the air to my helmet, and is pumped down by two men above the surface, through means of a special air pump.

"It is extremely hard to pump the air down farther than a hundred feet, but I have frequently worked at a much greater depth. The safety rope acts both as a signal and life preserver. The men on the surface frequently pull the rope once. If no answer comes after repeating the signal three times, they draw me to the surface, knowing well that something has gone wrong at the bottom.

Six Hours Under Water.

"I have on one occasion worked six hours below the surface without once coming up to take a rest.

"In repairing and placing in position the new propelling blades on the steamship Minto I was not more than two hours submerged at any one time, and I completed my task in about a week. The task of placing the Minto's blades in position was a fairly hard one. I broke several chisels, and I found the nuts and cement very difficult to get off.

"As a result of the steamship's hard work in the ice, I found only the stumps of the blades left on the shaft. Sometimes I find it necessary after examining the bottom of a ship, to come to the surface and make a sketch of the work which must be done. This must be accomplished, of course, from memory.

A Sad Duty.

"One of the saddest duties which I have ever had to perform was in bringing to the surface the Davidson family, of Halifax. As a result of a yachting accident in that harbor eight of the family were drowned.

"Last year there was a very interesting wreck near Canso, N. S. It was a large German steamship which went ashore at that point, and I worked there for three or four weeks, salving $100,000 worth of cargo, which was afterwards sold in New York. While the steamer proved a total wreck, a considerable part of the cargo, consisting of crockeryware, tinware, etc., was safely brought to the surface.

A Narrow Escape.

"I had a very narrow escape for my life some three years ago, when working off the coast of Yarmouth, N. S. It was in connection with the beautiful new Allan liner Castilian, which went ashore on the ledges at that point. I was in the hold of the ship, under water, when a number of the barrels of apples, forming part of the cargo, suddenly shifted, rolling me to the top of the under deck ceiling, and pinning me there for upwards of an hour, until rescued by another diver.

"The air during all that time was pumped faithfully to me from the surface, and it was a lucky thing for me that the rubber hose tube was not severed in the accident."

Just Arrived From the Island.

A native of Prince Edward Island had gone forth to see the world. When he reached Boston he engaged a room at a modest hotel, intending to remain there while he hunted for work.

"Will you register?" asked the clerk, handing him a pen.

"Register?" said the traveler, "what's that?"

"Write your name."

"What for?"

"We are required to keep a record of all our guests."

The man wrote his name, and was about to lay down the pen when the clerk added:

"Now the place, if you please."

"What place?"

"The place you come from. Where do you live?"

"I live on the island."

"Well, but what island?"

The other man looked at him in amazement. Then he said, with an emphasis that left no doubt of his feelings, "Prince Edward Island, man. What other island is there?"—Youth's Companion.

Humors of a Sham Fight.

It was during a sham fight between two volunteer corps, at a point in Ontario which shall be nameless for obvious reasons. One of the opposing forces was retreating before the other.

Sergeant Major (to captain)— We are going too far away from the railway station, sir. If we retreat any more, we'll never get back in time to catch the train.

Captain—How absurd of the colonel to drive us so far! Orderly, run over to the officer in charge of the enemy and ask him, with my compliments, if he will please retreat toward the railway station.

Table Linen.

Fringed table linen is not a good choice for daily use. Napkins and tablecloths intended for common service should be hemmed by preference. For everyday use hemmed towels are best also. The fringe "snaps off" with wear. A new comb with coarse teeth is useful to keep in order the fringes of doilies, napkins, towels and counterpanes.

THE IRISH HARP.

A'like the Reflex and Interpreter of Popular Feeling—It Makes a High Bid for Antiquity.

Long before history had trodden a pathway across the insecure ground of legend and tradition the Irish harp was alike the reflex and interpreter of popular feeling. Perhaps it may be said to have come prominently into the general view when James I. placed it in the third quarter of the Royal Arms of Great Britain. But a century before this Henry VIII. had impressed a harp on the Irish coinage, a seemingly prosaic fact which yet cannot be divorced from the strong element of romance which permeates every phase of the subject. For it seems that a son of King Briun Boru presented his father's harp to Pope John XVIII. in 1003; and that it was treasured in Rome until Leo X. sent it to Henry VIII. five hundred years afterward. He in turn gave it to the first Earl of Clanricarde; and after passing into the possession of several Irish families, Brian's storied harp eventually found a home in the College Museum in Dublin. But supposing this venerable instrument to be at least a thousand years old, that is a mere trifle in the history of the harp—and especially of the Irish harp. We may accept the Theban harp as a pretty ancient representative of its great family; but then the older Irish historians go back to the Deluge, and it is only in the very mist-land of antiquity that we lose touch with their national symbol. And even there we seem to catch the echo of its strains.

But though boasting of such a remote past, the Irish harp is simply an adaptation of an instrument common to Central and Northern Europe. We find it in the hands of the German and Celtic bards, and of the Scandinavian skalds; and every race has been able to impress upon it something of its own peculiar genius. The violin is Italian in its birth, and is said to be animated by an Italian soul. And, in like manner, such of the old Irish music as has come down to us essentially consists of strains of the harp. This, however, is not surprising, for we are told that "long before the lyre was known in Rome or Greece the Gael of Ireland had attained a high degree of perfection in the form and management of the harp." This is indeed a high bid for antiquity, and it would be interesting to know if it could be really sustained. There can be no doubt that in Irish hands the harp was a supreme exponent of popular feeling and enthusiasm, the very excess of which has largely obscured the history and traditions of the country.

The study of music was originally confined to the bardic order; but so strong was the national instinct in this direction that every hero, every virgin, could touch the harp long ere the useful arts got foot in Erin." But neither the accomplishment nor the respect in which it was held was confined to Ireland. By the old Welsh laws no person could claim to be a freeman who could not play upon the harp, and it was expressly forbidden to a slave to touch it.

THE TORTURE OF BACKACHE.

It ages the young—cripples and enfeebles the old—incapacitates a man for work—unfits him for pleasure.

There is no need to endure the agony of an aching back—to be crippled with a sore, stiff, lame back.

DR. PITCHER'S BACKACHE-KIDNEY TABLETS

Take away every bit of pain, stiffness and soreness — quickly and completely. Here is some convincing evidence:

FREE FROM PAIN.

Mr. Wm. Smith, Pinnacle St., Belleville, says:—"Before using Pitcher's Kidney Tablets, I was very much afflicted with lumbago. Since I used a bottle, I am not only free from that but I am sleeping better. The nervous restlessness has ceased. The dull aching in the small of my back has disappeared. I can vouch for Pitcher's Tablets being a reliable remedy for pain and lameness in the back."

IT HURT TO WALK.

John Histed, 71 Barton St., Hamilton, says:—"Just after a hard lift some three years ago, a severe pain started in the small of my back and over the right hip. It bothered me badly to walk. I was induced to try Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets. I got a bottle and they were just the thing; they cured the pain and soreness completely."

There is no remedy in the world to equal Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets for curing, not only backache, but also Bright's disease, diabetes, dropsy, scalding or irritation of the urine, frequent calls during the day or night, blood impurities, skin eruptions, rheumatism, neuralgia, dragging pain in the loins and all kidney, bladder and urinary troubles of young or old.

Sir William Anson.

Sir William Anson, who introduced the London education bill, which is the cause of bitter debates in the House of Commons, is Unionist member for Oxford University, and has been Parliamentary Secretary to the Board of Education since last year. The eldest son of Sir John Anson, second Baronet, of Birch Hall, Lancashire, and great-grandson on his mother's side of the first Marquess of Waterford, he was born in 1843, and was educated at Eton and Balliol. In 1867, says The London Star, he was elected a fellow of All Souls', and two years later was called to the Bar, facts which recall the following lines in that "Masque of Balliol," which delighted Oxford men in the seventies:

"I'm the great Sir William Anson,
Versed alike in Cope and Hanson,
All Souls claret is a boon,
I belong to All Souls; soon
If the Fates and I agree,
All souls will belong to me."

He succeeded to the baronetcy in 1873, when his father was killed in a terrible railway accident at Wigan. In 1881 he was elected Warden of All Souls, and in the Autumn of 1898 became Vice-Chancellor of the university on Lord Salisbury's nomination.

General Who Occupied Sokoto.

Brigadier-General Geo. Vere Kemball, who occupied Sokoto on March 15, took command of the Kano expedition at the end of January last. Born in October, 1859, the son of Major-General J. S. Kemball, and educated at Harrow, General Kemball was gazetted to the Royal Artillery in 1878, was promoted Captain in 1886, Major in 1896, and Lieutenant-Colonel in 1901. He is now Brigadier-General of the West African Frontier Force. He was for some years on the Headquarters Staff in India, and has seen considerable service. In 1879 and 1880 he took part in the fighting in Afghanistan, and was awarded the medal. In 1895 he was with the Chitral Relief Force, and earned the medal with clasp and a mention in despatches; in 1897 and 1898 he was again mentioned, and received the clasp for the operations on the northwest frontier of India; and in 1901, as Commander of the expedition against Kontagora and Bida, he was mentioned, and given the medal and clasp and the D.S.O. He married Hattie, daughter of Mr. Gilbert Elliot, I.C.S., in 1889.

Why They Laughed.

Some time ago at a Council meeting in the North of England one of the members rose solemnly and said: "Gentlemen, we have been sending our lunatics to S—— asylum for a long time now, and it has cost us a great sum of money; but I am glad to make the statement that we have now built an asylum for ourselves."

Origin of "Budget."

It is difficult to realize that the term "budget," now so often in every one's mouth, is a term less than 200 years old, the earliest mention of the word dating no further back than 1733. We borrowed it from the old French language—bougette, meaning a small bag, in which in former times it was the custom to put the estimates of receipts and expenditures when presented to parliament; hence the chancellor of the exchequer, in making his annual statement, was formerly said to open his budget. In time the term passed from the receptacle to the contents, and, curiously, this new signification was returned from this country to France, where it was first used in an official manner in the early part of the nineteenth century.—London Chronicle.

Seeds and Skins of Small Fruits.

There are many people who cannot eat small fruits on account of the seeds and skins, because they prove so irritating to the stomach. In all such cases the fruit should be thoroughly ripe; then press it through a small wire sieve or strain through a thin cloth; then you get all there is of use—the liquid. Blue and other berries with tough skins may be cooked a little to start the juice, then strain and get rid of seeds and skins. Never put waste into a delicate stomach when possible to avoid it. Cherry stones and grape seeds are a menace to health, and children should be taught how to neatly reject them.

Throwing the Dart.

Throwing the dart is a picturesque custom which is observed in Cork, Ireland. Every third year the chief magistrate proceeds to the mouth of Cork harbor in full state. Following immemorial custom, he throws a dart into the sea—a dart with a head of gold and a shaft of mahogany—saying, "I cast this javelin into the sea and declare that as far around as it falls extend the right and dominion of the corporation of Cork to and over the harbor as well as the rivers, creeks and bays within the same."

The "City's" New Engineer.

Mr. Joe Louden, of Toronto, is the new engineer on the steamer "City of Peterborough." Complimentary remarks have already been passed on his mechanical skill and the care he takes of his engines. Everything that can be polished is "shining like a nigger's heel." Joe was induced to come to Peterborough because his "better half" was a former resident, and he has taken hold of a good craft for the season.

The Fairweather Homestead.

Attention is directed to the advertisement in another column offering for sale that very valuable homestead ,well known as the Fairweather homestead, on Gilmour street. The fine situation of this property, its convenience to town, as well as its particularly attractive home-like character, makes it a very desirable residence. The house possesses some of the best modern improvements and conveniences, while the outbuildings, garden and lawn, enhance the value of the property as a home. 2ds

American Raid on Stony Lake.

Captain Scollard, of the steamer "Majestic," has received a letter from a former enthusiastic Pittsburg visitor to Stony Lake, advising him that a party of twenty-five Americans from that city was coming to camp on Stony Lake on the 25th of June. The writer requested the captain to use his good offices in selecting a suitable site for their camp and to prepare for hauling a car load of baggage. Another party of fifteen Americans from Cincinnati are booked for the Burleigh Falls Hotel as early as the 15th of June. This is just for a starter.

Parties having baskets, hanging pots and vases to fill will confer a favour by sending their orders in early for filling. Telephone 21b., to A. Blade, Manager.

W. A. SANDERSON REPORTED DROWNED.

Has not been Seen or Heard of Since—Search Party Discovered an Empty Boat this Morning.

News came in from Stony Lake this morning of what, it is feared, will prove to be a lamentable canoeing fatality.

Mr. W. A. Sanderson, the well-known local jeweller of George street, left town with his wife and family on Saturday afternoon by the 1.30 o'clock train, with the intention of spending Sunday and Monday at their summer cottage at Stony Lake. Early this morning the town was startled by the news that Mr. Sanderson had been drowned, and during the day the Examiner office was besieged by enquirers anxious to hear that the rumour was incorrect.

The latest news, received by telephone from Burleigh Falls, is to the effect that Mr. Sanderson had gone out alone in his canoe about four o'clock on Monday afternoon, and not returning at his usual time, Mrs Sanderson became alarmed, and notified the occupants of several of the neighbouring cottages. A search party was at once organized and worked faithfully from the evening twilight all through the night up till 4 o'clock in the morning, when an upturned canoe was found on the water near Breese's bay. That is all there is at present to throw any light on the occurrence.

Hopes are still entertained for Mr. Sanderson's safety, as he was both an excellent canoeist and expert swimmer.

At the hour of going to press no additional particulars could be ascertained. A party from town consisting of Messrs. Adam Hall, B. Shortly and W. G. Ferguson, secured a carriage early this morning and started for Stony Lake about 8 o'clock to assist in the search.

MR. MELVILLE GREEN'S REGRETED DEMISE.

Died at Nicholls Hospital this Morning.

The announcement of the death of Mr. Melville E. Green will come as a great shock to his many friends. His demise occurred last night at Nicholls Hospital after a brief illness of typhoid fever. The deceased young man, not feeling well, left for Preston Springs in the hope of regaining his health. He was taken down with typhoid fever however and was removed to Nicholls Hospital Peterborough. Yesterday his condition showed some improvement but at night he suddenly passed away.

The late Melville Elwood Green was 25 years of age and was a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Green, Hunter street, and was a member of the firm of Green and Son, photographers. He was a young man of exemplary character and was highly esteemed amongst a wide circle of friends. He was an enthusiastic curler and bowler and was popular amongst the members of those organizations. He was a member of the George Street Methodist Church. Much sympathy is expressed for Mr. and Mrs. Green in the loss of so promising a son. The funeral will take place at 2.30 o'clock to-morrow afternoon.

MR. GEORGE HATTON'S VILLA WAS DESTROYED.

Two Fires in Town Yesterday Afternoon.

Mr. John Goodfellow's Stable and Bakeshop Burned Down—Particulars.

Twice within an hour and three-quarters the fire alarm rang out yesterday afternoon. The first was rung at 12.40 o'clock and summoned the brigade to 583 Park street to the house of Mr. John Goodfellow, whose stable and bakeshop were totally destroyed. Mr. Goodfellow says that had it not been for the good work of the neighbours his house would also have been destroyed. He estimates his loss at over $300. While the brigade was fighting the flames here the bell again rang and part of the brigade at once left for the scene of the fire, Mr. George Hatton's beautiful villa, situated in the west portion of the town, only the charred walls of which now stand to tell the tale. The fire broke out in the shed at the back of the house and spread rapidly. Within 15 minutes of the alarm there must have been 200 persons standing on the lawn, a majority of whom lent a willing hand in rescuing the furniture and crockery. Lawyer Hatton's valuable library was also saved.

On the arrival of the brigade a line of hose between 2,500 and 3,000 feet was laid, but owing to the distance, the pressure was insufficient to throw a stream of much service.

The fire having nothing to impede its progress, gradually crept on until the roof was one mass of roaring flame. By the time the flames had made attacks on the house itself, almost all the contents had been deposited on the lawns. It is reported, however, that Mrs. Hatton lost her valuable furs. It was indeed a distressing sight to see the beautiful house burned to the ground without water enough being found to quench the flames. Mr. Hatton estimates his damage at $10,000 at the least and asked the Examiner representative to express his own sincere thanks to all who assisted in saving his belongings, and especially those who are caring for his children It is understood that the house is insrued, but it is feared that even this may not cover the loss.

In the evening the scene of the fire was visited by numbers of curious persons, and expressions of sympathy were frequently made.

POLICE COURT.

At the Police Court yesterday morning, before Jas. Stevenson, Esq., J. P., Hester Boyd, a girl about 17 years of age was charged with stealing clothing and money, the property of Miss Annie Brown, who is at present staying with Dr. Pigeon, No. 270 Charlotte street. Accused pleaded guilty and was remanded until Thursday. It transpires that Miss Brown arrived in town on Saturday night. On Sunday morning she was unable to go out as her clothes had all disappeared. The accused girl, who was a domestic servant in the employ of Dr. Pigeon, had also disappeared. She was traced by the police to the house of some friends, and was arrested there by Constable Stewart.

ATTEMPTED MURDER WAS THE CHARGE.

An Otonabee Boy's Exceedingly Rash Act.

Victim Shot in Both Legs—Blood Poisoning may set in—Accused Remanded Until 30th inst.

Yesterday morning a boy, Joseph Fram, aged 17 years, in the employ of an Otonabee farmer, was charged before County Police Magistrate Edmison, with attempted murder. He was remanded until May 30th, in order that the victim of his malicious assault might have time to recuperate, and give her evidence in the court.

It transpires that on Saturday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Matchett, for whom the boy was working, drove to town, leaving young Fram and Miss Lizzie Stewart, a young woman of 23 years of age, sole occupants of the house. During the afternoon Miss Stewart washed her hair, and was drying it in front of the fire, when Fram entered from behind and assaulted her. His intended action, however, was frustrated by the frantic struggles of the young woman, who finally broke loose from his grasp, and fled from the house. While she was in the act of running away, and when only a few yards distant, Fram picked up a gun, and fired point blank at her, hitting her on both legs. In her fright, however, Miss Stewart did not feel her wounds until she had reached a neighbouring farm house.

Medical aid was at once secured, and the unfortunate young woman made as comfortable as possible. When Dr. Greer arrived he found Miss Stewart in an hysterical condition. He succeeded in removing six grains of shot, and others, he thinks, may be embedded in the bone.

Fram left the house, and was seen rowing down the river in his master's boat, about five o'clock. Early on Sunday morning Mr. Matchett found Fram milking the cows, soon after which he was arrested by High County Constable Cochrane, and lodged in gaol.

Fram is a fair complexioned boy, scarcely five feet in height, and has always been looked upon as an exemplary lad.

The gun was a double-barrelled one and was loaded with fine shot. Dr. Greer, who dressed Miss Stewart's wounds, states that should blood poisoning set in it might be fatal.

PLEA FOR EARLIER CLEANING

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I don't think it is any wonder that we need an isolation hospital in our town. If those responsible would wake up a little earlier in the spring and see that all night cleaning is done earlier. There ought to be a law that all such work should be done by the end of April or the first week of May. It is a shame the way the health is endangered all through the beautiful month of May, when we ought to breathe the pure air of heaven. Instead we get the foulest of the earth.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space, I am

Yours truly,
A. CITIZEN.

FATHER PHELAN'S PICNIC A SUCCESS.

It Attracted an Immense Gathering Yesterday.

CABINET MINISTERS PRESENT

Hon. J. R. Stratton and Hon. F.R. Latchford Deliver Addresses- T. A. S. Captures the Cup.

That Rev. Father Phelan has a warm place in the hearts of the people of the surrounding country was amply demonstrated on Victoria Day by the immense gathering that attended his annual picnic at Lakefield. It was undoubtedly the most successful yet held by the parishes of Lakefield and Young's Point. At an early hour the roads leading to Lakefield were alive with vehicles conveying crowds of visitors to the village. Shortly after ten o'clock an excursion train of eight coaches passed through town from Lindsay bound for Lakefield and by noon there must have been fully fifteen hundred picnickers in the village. Then the special train in the afternoon from town with ten coaches added considerably to the gathering. It is estimated that fully two thousand people attended the picnic. Conspicuous amongst the gathering was a large delegation of the visiting Knights of Columbia, who were loud in their praises of the programme provided as well as the excellent manner in which the picnic was conducted. Rev. Father Phelan was everywhere during the day looking after the welfare of everyone and he is certainly to be congratulated on the successful outcome. Praise must be given the parishioners—more especially the ladies who provided excellent meals during the day in the rink adjoining the park, and which were partaken of by a large number. A refreshment booth in charge of a number of young ladies, did a thriving business in the beverage line, and the dancing platform was kept busy during the day by the lovers of the light fantastic, and it is needless to state that the orchestra was kept busy.

The following clergymen were noticed on the grounds:—Rev. Father McColl, Dr. O'Brien and Rev. Father J. O'Brien, Peterborough; Rev. Father McGuire, Hastings; Rev. Father F. J. O'Sullivan, Lindsay; Rev. Father Scanlon, Grafton; Rev. Father Foley, Ottawa; Rev. Father French, Renfrew; Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, Enismore, and Rev. Father O'Leary, Bobcaygeon.

THE LACROSSE MATCH.

Of course the drawing card of the day was the lacrosse match between St. Peter's T.A.S. and the Lindsay team, and this event no doubt attracted many people from Lindsay and Peterborough. This event had aroused considerable stir in sporting circles and the backers of the red and back and green and white were as thick as flies. A few minutes before three o'clock the teams made their appearance on the field and after a preliminary work-out, Mr. Jos. Bagley, the referee blew the blast for the contest to begin.

The following was the line-up:—

T. A. S.		Lindsay.
	Goal.
O'Brien		McGinnis
	Point.
Corbett		Ressor
	Cover Point.
Crowley		West
	1st defence.
Meagher		Buck
	2nd defence.
Derocher		Staunton
	3rd defence.
Muldoon		White
	centre.
F. McCoy		G. Holworth
	3rd home.
McCabe		J Holworth
	2nd home.
Parnell		Cameron
	1st home.
Lapierre		A Holworth
	outside home.
Rappel		Lennon
	inside home.
L. McCoy		Gillespie
	field captain.
F McGrath		Craig

A word about the game. It was not what might be called a good, scientific game of lacrosse, although very often during the contest some very brilliant work was done by both teams. The grounds were in poor condition for fast lacrosse and it was the opinion of many that on a good field both teams could put up a quality of lacrosse of the gilt-edged variety. The condition of the grounds was also responsible to a considerable degree for the rough-house tactics indulged in. It was impossible at times to pick up the ball, and when three or more players got into a mix-up in their endeavours to ferret the ball in the long grass, patience ceased to be a virtue and the shrill whistle of the referee would announce that one or more players had done a wrong. The game was further characterized by some hard checking—in fact too hard, and it can truthfully be stated that both teams were adepts in this respect. Of course the game was fast when the condition of the field is taken into consideration and both teams were out for the cup.

Lindsay has a splendid aggregation of good runners and stick handlers, and very little was known of the team until they lined up for battle. They have some very clever players, including Cameron, Holworth brothers, Reesor, Buck and others who understand the game and play it well. Their supporters were confident of victory, but they were no match for the line-up the T.A.S. placed on the field. Of course the Lindsay contingent were disappointed, but they have no reason to feel ashamed of their showing. This is Lindsay's first year in the C.L.A., and they have the nucleus of a very strong team which, it is a pleasure to learn, is being loyally supported by the citizens of that burg.

Of course the referee came in for his share of compliments and he was handled rather roughly by the rooters.

The game ended in favour of the T.A.S. by a score of 6—1. The management of the T.A.S. are delighted with the aggregation they placed in the field yesterday. Corbett, Crowley and Meagher on the defence, proved a veritable stonewall, and the work of Derocher and F. McCoy was all that could be desired. Joe Muldoon, the "solid man," is an artist at the game, and Jack McCabe was in every scrimmage, and played gilt-edged lacrosse, as did also Parnell Lapierre and Rappel had their working clothes on, and in these two players the T.A.S. have speedy men. Lou McCoy played inside home, and played excellent lacrosse. "Deacon" O'Brien in goal, made his last appearance with the boys, and his work in the nets was all that could be wished for. Several of the boys bear some ugly reminders of the struggle. Frank McCoy received an ugly gash an inch and a half long. It was purely an accident, and Frank kept on playing until the finish when a doctor attended to the wound.

THE SPORTS.

Boys' 50 yards race — Bravender, Dennard.

Hop, step and jump — Jackson, Perdue.

Men's race—J. Howard, W. Jackson.

Irish jig — M. O'Connor.

Storey cake won by Rolly Johnston.

Quilt won by Jas. Houlihan.

Rev. Father Phelan desires to return his sincere thanks to the ladies and gentlemen of his parish who worked so assiduously to make the picnic a success; to the orchestra for the excellent music provided, and to all those who attended from the surrounding district.

THE SPEAKERS OF THE DAY.

About five o'clock the people began to gather around the platform to listen to addresses from the different speakers. Mr. R. C. Strickland, of Lakefield, performed the duties of chairman, and introduced who was very cordially received. He expressed the great pleasure it was to him to be present at the annual picnic held by Rev. Father Phelan. It was not his pleasure last year to be present, but he had sent in his place an illustrious son of Nova Scotia, and a man of great eloquence, who was known as the giant of Nova Scotia—both intellectually and physically.

The speaker alluded to the glorious weather with which the picnic was blessed, and felt sure that the fact of it being held on Victoria Day, contributed in no small degree to its success. He paid a tribute to the glorious reign of the late Queen, Victoria, as it was during her regime so much had been done towards solidifying the British people, and he knew that His Majesty, King Edward, would carry on the work started by his good mother. One effort of His Majesty the King, he referred to with pleasure, and that was his efforts to bring peace and contentment to a portion of the Empire that had been disturbed, and unjustly so, for many years. He hoped that the legislation now being enacted in the British House of Commons would bring peace and prosperity to the Green Isle, and to her sons throughout the world. (Applause.)

Mr. Stratton proceeded with a reference to the many blessings enjoyed in Canada, where people of all creeds and nationalities are united as one in the work of building up of a grand country. An illustration of this fact he declared was before them that day, when people of different creeds had turned out to assist in the good work. The picnic, he continued, was not only attended by people from the surrounding country, but also by distinguished gentlemen from other parts of the province. He felt that they did not expect him to monopolize all the time, because they had all heard him frequently, and they also had an opportunity of reading a great deal about him nowadays. (Laughter.) He understood that his name appeared in one or two papers, and he had had the pleasure of reading several references to himself. While it was to be deplored, he said, that such things arise occasionally, still he would face them manfully. He had no fear whatever of the report of the eminent judges in whose hands the matter rested. He was especially pleased to know that not only in his own county, but throughout the province, the people had already made up their minds from the evidence adduced, and had not lost confidence in him. (Applause.)

Mr. Stratton next referred to the fact that he had with him an able colleague, Hon Mr. Latchford, Minister of Public Works, a man of integrity and great ability, and who is destined to make a great name for himself in the province. He would be glad to see the people of this county—the most stalwart men and the best-looking women in the province. He was proud of his riding, and the utmost good feeling and contentment existed from Monaghan to Cavendish. Mr. Stratton concluded by congratulating Rev. Father Phelan on the day's success, and for the invitation to be present.

on rising to briefly address the gathering was heartily applauded. He thanked Rev. Father Phelan for an opportunity to be present and look into the faces of the stalwart men and good looking women of the district. Stalwart as the men were, however, the most stalwart present was one of his own constituents, and he felt confident that should Mr. Stratton visit South Renfrew he did not think he would say the ladies there were less beautiful than those he had been taffying. (Laughter.) He was pleased to see such a large gathering present to assist Rev. Father Phelan in his good work, and hoped that he would have an opportunity of visiting them again on a future occasion.

MR. DANIEL O'CONNELL,

was the next speaker, and he assured his hearers he felt somewhat embarrassed at being called on after they had listened to the eloquent efforts of the preceding speakers. His address was of a patriotic nature, and dealt with the history and growth of our great Dominion, and of the blessings we enjoy. As regards the references made to stalwart men, he felt that he himself was not in the race. He congratulated Rev. Father Phelan on the success of the day.

in a short address, referred in a humorous strain to the allusions made by the preceding speakers to the good-looking people present, and stated that people who were blessed with good looks generally knew it themselves. He was delighted to be at the picnic, as it gave him an opportunity to meet old acquaintances and to spend an enjoyable day.

REV. FATHER McGUIRE, of Hastings, was the next speaker, and delivered one of his characteristically witty addresses, which caught the crowd immensely. His humorous references to the preceding speakers were loudly applauded, and in closing he made an eloquent reference to the freedom we enjoyed as Canadians, and to the noble King Edward, who was instrumental in no small degree in introducing the Irish Land Bill, which, he felt sure, would bring peace and prosperity to Ireland.

REV. FATHER PHELAN

closed the speech-making by saying that he owed a debt of gratitude to all for their attendance and co-operation, and especially the Cabinet Ministers. Hon. Mr. Stratton had always shown himself a warm friend of Lakefield, and was willing at all times to assist in any good work.

The proceedings were closed with hearty cheers for the King and Rev. Father Phelan.

NOTES.

Letters of regret were received from Messrs. J. J. Foy, K.C., M.P.P, and James McKindry, M.P., who were unable to be present at the picnic.

Lakefield did not play the Shamrocks of Peterborough baseball in the morning, and that event was called off.

THE T. V. CANOE CLUB'S SUCCESSFUL REGATTA

Held on the Little Lake Yesterday Afternoon.

The Regatta which was held on the Little Lake Monday afternoon was a distinct success and was patronized by a large number of persons. The programme was a long and interesting one and was run off without a hitch. The following were the officials, to whom Mr. R. M. Roy kindly lent his steam yacht, "The Rob Roy": — Starter, Mr. Geo. Cochrane; Judges, Messrs. E. B. Clegg, F. Clark and R.M. Roy; Time Keeper, Mr. R. F. McWilliams.

The first race was a sailing canoe race and was won by Mr. F. Roy's "Adele". Mr. Wm. Ackerman and Mr. Taylor also entered their canoes.

This race was followed by a ladies' double in which the following young ladies took part:—The Misses Mamie Hamilton, Mary Fitzgerald, Helen Hall, Florence and Allson Hamilton and Gwen Hall. It was won by Miss Allson Hamilton and Miss Gwen Hall.

The next race was a gentleman's double and was won by Stock and Bell and Roy and Weeks.

This was followed by a men's three which was won by Stock, Bell and Watt, and Weeks, Collins and Roy.

Perhaps the tub and tilting races do not count, but it might be mentioned that Commodore Stock greatly distinguished himself.

Bell came first and Losie second in the men's single, which concluded the afternoon's programme. In the evening an illuminated parade of canoes was held on the Lake. The canoes were towed by the Rob Roy and were fully 1-2 mile in length. At a given signal from Mr. Roy's launch the canoes commenced sending up fireworks of all colours. This beautiful spectacle was brought to a close at 9.30 o'clock by the singing of "God Save the King."

It is the intention of the T. V. Canoe Club to hold similar regattas throughout the season.

DELIGHTFUL EXCURSION UP TO STONY LAKE.

An Ideal Day on the Lakes and Among the Islands.

Quite a number of excursionists who boarded the morning G. T. R. train for Lakefield took in the excursion to Stony Lake on the fast going steamer "Majestic." A number of the party also accompanied the church excursion from Lakefield on the steamer "Alert." The trip up the lakes was a very delightful one, the weather being cool and pleasant, and the sail was much enjoyed by all. The captain and crew of the "Majestic" were at their posts as usual showing the same care, courtesy and attention to their party which has made their steamer so popular with excursionists. Quite a number on board were left off at the islands in different parts of the lake to be called for on the return trip. The boat ran up to Burleigh at noon, where dinner was enjoyed at the hotel. In the afternoon the steamer sailed round to Mount Julian and different parts of the lake, going as far towards the head as Lundy's cottage. On the home trip a call was made at McCracken's landing, then, after a good sail through beautiful Clear Lake, Young's Point was reached. At 6.30 the trim steamer landed at her Lakefield wharf, in good time to connect with the special train for Peterborough at 7 o'clock.

KITCHEN HELPS.

Soda is an excellent article for cleaning tinware. Apply with a damp cloth and rub dry.

If the oatmeal sticks to the saucepan, but is not burned, just set it off the fire for a minute or two, and it will all scrape off easily.

Don't scrub a refrigerator with warm water. When necessary, sponge it out quickly with two ounces of formaldehyde in two quarts of cold water.

When washing greasy pots and kettles, take a handful of meal or bran and rub all around. It absorbs all the grease and leaves them perfectly clean.

To clean enamel ware which has been stained by cooking rub well with coarse salt on a piece of flannel. This will restore it to its original whiteness and luster.

Dry the set tubs carefully after using them, taking care that they are perfectly clean. The condition of the tubs is responsible for the sour, musty odor of many kitchens.

Try kerosene on a gas range and see how fast it will eat away the dirt and grease. It is also good to clean the coal range, but in both cases one must be very careful that there is no heat in the stove.

ALMOST A DYING WOMAN.

Mrs. Jessie L. Sellars Shouts Aloud her Praises of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets—Brought Her Almost From Death to Life.

I believe Dodd's Dyspepsi Tablets have made a sound cure of me after being for seven years almost a dying woman. Now, thank God, I am able to do my daily work as usual.

This is what Mrs. Jessie Louisa Sellars, of Western Bay, Newfoundland, writes, and she wants all the world to know it. She feels as all others do who have cast off the pains and despondency of Dyspepsia—who feel again that life is worth living.

"I cannot praise Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets too much," continues Mrs. Sellars. "They have brought me almost from death to life. You may use my name to recommend them. I am only too glad that I can do so."

Pincushion of Chestnut Burs.

A chestnut bur pincushion is an odd one, and, hanging from a bracket gas fixture in a small reception room, it is attractive enough to be harmonious among its handsome surroundings. The burs are of stuffed mirror velvet of a rich shade of green, and into them are stuck small pins in bristling array. Three of these burs are used, and one simulated open bur. This is made by first cutting out a form of buckram like an orange quarter, wiring it and covering it afterward with cream satin for the inside and green mirror velvet for the outside. By aid of the wire these quarters are bent into a curved shape, like the originals. The open bur, from which the chestnuts are supposed to have dropped, looks very natural, grouped with the closed burs, and the three reproductions, fastened to a stout twig, constitute a specially fetching ornament in a room done in green.

Treatment of Rugs.

The manager of a carpet department whose knowledge brings him an annual income of $10,000 advised the following treatment for valuable rugs: Lay them wrong side up on the grass, beat with a furniture beater, reverse and sweep carefully, a soft brush being the preference or a good carpet sweeper. A little airing outside of the sun's rays is good occasionally, when they may be carried in the house. The average American housewife wears out her rugs by continued sweeping and beating. The plan of putting them upon a line every two or three weeks or even once a month and then having them whipped is not to be commended if the rugs are of any value. When a rug is to be thoroughly cleaned, it should be sent where the work is properly done or else washed at home.

The Effective Pepper Bag.

If you have not a pepper bag safely packed in your medicine chest, it is time you had. By the application of a pepper bag the ineffable suffering that sometimes comes from a diseased tooth is often avoided. You can purchase these little pain killers from your dentist, or one can easily make them. They are made of muslin (three-fourths of an inch in diameter) lined with rubber, to protect the lips and mouth from the pepper and ginger. Apply this directly to the tooth, and it will usually check the pain, for the time at least.

Advance of Women.

It is not so very long ago since Harriet Martineau had to hide her writing when visitors came because writing was unfeminine, when Mary Somerville was ashamed of being discovered at the masculine study of mathematics, when the only profession open to a woman was that of a governess or companion to an elderly and irritable lady. Today women are battering at the doors, and the foundations of man's last strongholds are quaking.—London Ladies' Field.

AT HOLYROOD AGAIN

VISIT OF KING AND QUEEN WILL REVIVE ITS PAST GLORIES.

Rooms Peopled With Ghosts of Princes and Nobles to Be Once More the Scenes of Gaiety and Festivity—Comparable Only With the Return of One of the Bourbon Dynasty to Versailles.

A Royal Court at Holyrood! After all these years the ancient palace is again to be gay with all the pomp and splendid circumstance of courtly function. Its antique towers, broad quadrangles and mighty walls will once more echo with bright laughter and the sounds of dancing feet. Its rooms, now peopled with the ghosts of princes and nobles who have held high revelry there, engaged in dark conspiracy, or taken part in still darker tragedy, will again be thronged with living men and maidens, the wit, wisdom and beauty of Scotland. Edinburgh will enjoy a brief glimpse of its former splendor. The historic Canongate, once Edinburgh's noblest thoroughfare, now a squalid thief resort, will again clatter with the carriages of the great, while in the early morning, when the sun, rising from the mouth of the Forth, lights up its dark corners, ladies and gentlemen in dark dresses and brilliant uniforms will tread its silent flagstones, returning from a royal masque or ball.

The visit of the King and Queen to Holyrood can only be compared with the return of one of the Bourbon dynasty to Versailles. It is a powerful appeal to the historical sense of the Scottish people. Holyrood is to Scotland what the magnificent palaces of Versailles are to the people of France. The whole history of the country and of the race centres around it. There is no royal palace in England that occupies exactly the same place in the hearts of the English people, and the grey old pile, nestling at the foot of Arthur's Seat, carries much the same significance to the Scot as the Temple of Jerusalem bore to the ancient Jews. Indeed, at one time Holyrood was a place of sanctuary, to which anyone in peril could flee and be safe. Later it became a place of refuge for debtors, a use to which the trusty Scot, in whom sentiment and business are so evenly balanced, did not hesitate to put it when the occasion demanded. The King, who passed a few months at the High School, which indeed overlooks Holyrood Palace, will be but re-visiting one of the haunts of his boyhood. At that time Holyrood enjoyed a brief renaissance, as the Prince Consort spent some time there superintending the education of his son, which was in the hands of the late Sir Lyon Playfair.

The two great periods in the history of Holyrood belong to the beautiful Queen Mary and that hero of romance, the Young Chevalier. Mary brought with her all the wit and elegance and extravagance of the French court. She surrounded herself with wits, musicians, and all the useless idlers that ornament a court. She had no adviser to tell her that such appurtenances were out of keeping with a poverty stricken country like Scotland, where the nobles and the clergy were as stern as the basaltic rocks that frowned upon her giddy pleasures. It was only the solitary but powerful voice of John Knox, whose house still stands only a few yards from the palace, that was raised against her practices, and poor Mary shed many a bitter tear under the violent castigations of the rigid old Calvinist.

The Young Chevalier was equally unfortunate. For six weeks Holyrood blazed with rank and fashion. Night after night it was crowded with gay revellers, and the Prince, by his charming manners and fine person, and the romance of his position and possible fate, captured the hearts of the Edinburgh belles, then, as now, renowned for their beauty, and made the heart of many a rich bailie sink within him at the thought of his wife's frivolity. Holyrood had its next access of gaiety when the Duke of Cumberland returned from Culloden. He slept in the bed that had been occupied by the Prince, who, now a fugitive, was skulking in the fastnesses of the remote Highlands.

The last State visit of a British sovereign to Holyrood was that of George the Fourth. Edinburgh has probably never witnessed anything so gorgeous as the ceremonials that marked the visit of that monarch. Many of the Scottish nobles wore the splendid garments donned by them for the coronation. A grand levee was held in the palace, and King George filled his Scottish subjects with exultation by suddenly appearing in the Highland costume, in which he cut "a braw figure," to quote contemporary testimony.

A great ball was given, at which, according to a historian of the scene, "the fair daughters of Scotia appeared in a constellation of unwonted numbers and brilliance, their feet already beating and bounding for the dance, and their eyes ever and anon turned round in a wistful expectation for the King." One of the funniest incidents in connection with this visit, knowing the Royal George as we do now, was that the Edinburgh clergy expressed from their pulpits their high satisfaction at the reform which the King's presence had brought about in the general morals. The reason given was equally quaint. It was that the talk of the ladies had been diverted from scandalous subjects, which would seem to have been their staple conversation, to the more solemn delights of dresses, hats, and feathers for the various royal functions. Some eight years after the palace was lent to the exiled King Charles X. Queen Victoria's first visit was in 1842, when, as a young bride, she made a progress through Scotland. It is easy to imagine the interest that the historic old pile had for a young and romantic Princess who throughout all her long life, cherished a deep veneration and affection for the memory of her unhappy and unfortunate predecessor, Queen Mary.

New Dean of Canterbury.

The London Express of April 4 says: The King has appointed the Rev. Henry Wace, D.D., rector of St. Michael's, Cornhill, and a prebendary of St. Paul's, to be Dean of Canterbury, in succession to the late Dr. Farrar. Dr. Wace was born in London in 1836, and educated at Marlborough, King's College, London, and Oxford. He took his D.D. degree at Oxford in 1888, a year after a similar dignity had been conferred upon him by Edinburgh University. For some years Dr. Wace was select preacher at Cambridge and Oxford Universities, and Principal of King's College. From 1884 to 1889 he acted as honorary chaplain to Queen Victoria and afterwards as chaplain-in-ordinary. He also held the post of preacher of Lincoln's Inn. In 1896 he was presented by the Drapers' Company to the rectory of St. Michael's, Cornhill. Ecclesiastical literature has been enriched by notable contributions from Dr. Wace, who will be remembered for his spirited controversy with the late Professor Huxley on agnosticism. "I have been stirred up to the boiling pitch by Wace. . in re. agnosticism, and I really can't keep the lid down any longer," Huxley wrote to the editor of The Nineteenth Century. "Are you minded to admit a goring article into the February Nineteenth?"

Set the Bed Away From the Wall.

Where shall we set the bed? Away from the wall and so arranged that we may go all around it without moving for health's sake and convenience in making. Physicians tell us that it is very unhealthy to sleep near the wall, on account of dampness for one thing, and another thing more serious is that one's breath is thrown back to be inhaled again. An instance is related where a severe morning headache was cured permanently by simply moving the bed from near the wall into the middle of the room.

Crystal Mats For Plants.

An experienced flower grower who has her plants not only on the several window sills of her apartment, but scattered through the room on tables and stands, says she has found that a square of glass makes the most effective support for a flowerpot or jardiniere. If placed on the woodwork itself or on a centerpiece, the pot is sure to make a bad spot. The glass saves the polished wood or bit of embroidery, at the same time not concealing them.

Cultivate a Hobby.

Marion Harland says that the worst thing a woman can do is to settle down into a life of "nothing in particularism." She advises women who have no profession to cultivate a hobby, citing the instances of a man who for years fought disease with a strawberry patch and of a woman who added a dozen years to her life by keeping humming birds.

Papering a Room.

If you want to paper a room yourself, always remember that a self color paper is far easier to manage than one in which there is a pattern to be matched. These can be had in almost any shade and with a fancy border round the top, even if there is no molding, look extremely nice.

BODY STRONG BRAIN CLEAR.
This Makes the Perfect Man—the Happy Woman.
South American Nervine.

The seat of the majority of chronic diseases is the nerve centers. Cure them—build up nerve force there—and you cure the disease. This is the secret of the amazing results attending the use of the South American Nervine—a veritable life-builder and eradicator of disease. Cures Stomach and Liver Complaints, General Debility, Impure Blood, Female Complaints, and every disease which indicates impaired nervous force. Read what it did for the family of A. W. Stephens, Strathaven, Ont. He writes: "A bottle of South American Nervine Tonic did more for my sister Ida than a whole summer's doctoring and drugging for after effects of La Grippe. It cured my father after months of torture from boils. Only used two bottles and has not been troubled now for seven years. It's the greatest of remedies."

Magical Relief

In Rheumatic and Neuralgic pains is afforded by the South American Rheumatic Cure. Cures in one to three days and does it thoroughly. An indisputable specific. No. 40

Business vs. Biliousness.

The man who is subject to biliousness cannot attend to business—biliousness demands all his attention. Biliousness arises from the retention of waste and foreign matter in the system, natures drainage being clogged.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt

goes to the root of the trouble and eradicates the cause—persuades the stomach and bowels, in a gentle but insistent manner, into healthy action, Abbey's clears the bile from the system in nature's own way, bringing health, a clear head, a clean stomach and energy for work.

TOILET TIPS.

Sweet almond oil rubbed into the hands will keep them soft.

An invigorating tonic bath is prepared by soaking several slices of lemon or limes in the bath water for an hour, then adding a handful of bran.

Varnish stains on the hands should be rubbed with a little methylated spirit, then wiped dry and finally washed thoroughly with soap and water.

A little cold cream put on with a face rag or soft cloth is a good substitute for soap and water. It keeps the skin smooth and soft, at the same time cleansing it effectively.

For a mouth wash take a teaspoonful of powered borax and a tablespoonful of pure glycerin and add cold water. Keep covered, and it will last for several days, when it may be renewed. Use every morning before brushing the teeth.

Rinsing the face and hands thoroughly after washing is quite as important as the washing itself, if the people who make beauty a study are to be believed. The soap must be got out of the pores or it will roughen and dry the skin and often aggravate the tendency to blackheads.

A Clean Sink.

When I first set up housekeeping, I resolved to have a sink that was "clean enough to eat out of," says a writer in Good Housekeeping. At first this seemed almost impossible, because of the soot from the kettles and the scraps from the dishwater. But I bought two wire meat racks, a funnel which fitted exactly into the drain and a strainer which fitted exactly into the funnel. The strainer should be of tin, as the wire gauze is too fine and does not wear well. The meat racks should have little legs at the corners which keep them well above the surface of the sink. All the pots, kettles, etc., even to the dishpan, are set on these gratings, and all the dishwater is poured into the strainer when the dishes are done. I empty the scraps from the strainer, and with a fresh pan of hot water I rinse off the grates and the funnel, wipe them, tip my water in the sink, and with a few strokes of a small brush the sink is immaculate.

NOTHING GOES RIGHT.

Nothing goes right while the stomach and bowels are wrong. Angier's Petroleum Emulsion is the ideal remedy for all forms of stomach and bowel disorders. It aids digestion, improves nutrition, creates rich, red blood, firm flesh, and makes life worth living. Pleasant to take. al

A Laundry Convenience.

A rather stiff brush about four and a half inches long, without counting the length of the handle, and two or three inches wide is a convenient article in the laundry outfit. Corsets and flannels are much more easily scrubbed clean with a brush than rubbed clean on a board. Flannels of pure wool which are not rubbed, but scrubbed with a brush, using water softened with ammonia or borax and a white nonresinous soap, will not shrink and grow hard if they are dried on a firm wooden frame. Rubbing all wool flannel on a board causes the ultimate spiral fibers of the wool to become entangled and shrink. This cannot happen when a flannel is scrubbed with a brush. The dirt is also more easily removed from the interstices of the cloth by using the brush. Hard water and resinous brown soaps cause flannel to be hard.

Do Not Wear What Is Unbecoming.

It is quite absurd to wear what is fashionable, but unbecoming. The first duty of a woman in dress is to look well, and it does not come within her obligation to be a mere block for the display of her dressmaker's inventions. The modistes, the manufacturers and the tradesmen are responsible for a constant change of fashions in order to keep their business successful, but it is no part of a lady's duty to devote herself to their encouragement. Indeed, the best born of her sex, as a rule (for there are exceptions to every rule), keep to one style of clothes and modes which suit them and change them only a little as the time goes on.

Emaciated by Kidney Disease

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

One feature of kidney disease is the gradual loss of flesh and wasting away of the tissues of the body. Slowly and surely the victim feels strength and vigour ebbing away and realizes his awful condition. The following letter suggests a remedy which has brought back health and happiness to thousands of sufferers from kidney disease.

Mr. William E. Halditch, Port Robinson, Ont., states: "I was for several years a great sufferer from kidney trouble from which dread disease I am now happily free. I had all the usual symptoms in an aggravated degree and at times was completely incapacitated with pains in the back, biliousness and headache. I had little or no appetite, insomnia resulted and my condition was really wretched. I became emaciated and grew dispondent and hopeless of relief as I had taken treatment from doctors to no avail.

"Finally on the advice of a friend, I began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and, after using a few boxes I was again enjoying health and vigour as the worst symptoms had entirely passed away. When I think of my present good health in comparison with my miserable condition of three years ago I would not go back to my former state for any amount of money. I may be considered enthusiastic over Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, but, considering the benefit derived from them, I have every reason to be."

Conforming.

Foot soles are curved and soft.
Shoe soles are flat and hard!
Breaking in new shoes invariably means shaping the foot soles to the shoe soles, till wear moulds the insoles to the curves of the feet.
The RESILIA is the only shoe which conforms to the shape of the foot sole immediately, from the first moment it is borne upon, and without any "breaking in."
It does this through the compressible nature of the resilient, elastic, cushion centre-sole, which is placed between the leather insole and outsole, instead of the usual scrap filling.
Observe foot sole in picture of lower shoe beneath.

CHAPTER XXIX.

Near the pretty town of St. Remy, in a remote corner of France, stands a chateau, quite shut in from the world by the forest that surrounds it. It is supposed to have been built by a king of France who, passionately fond of hunting, enjoyed the chase best when he had only a few select friends about him. He would spend a week at a time at the chateau, and while he was there the merry sound of the hunting-horn was frequently heard. The next king sold it to one of the bourgeoisie, who purchased it simply because it had been built for the pleasure of royalty. He gave it his own name of Fleuris, which it retained. Then—for it has quite a history, this chateau—it was purchased by a French nobleman who had married a very wealthy heiress. She was mad; but as all his income was derived from her, he kept the matter as secret as possible, and sent her with nurses and attendants to the Chateau Fleuris, where she lingered all the years of her life, a victim to the terrible malady. How often those walls had re-echoed to shrieks and cries, frightening even the birds from their nests!

Once every week a cart was driven from the chateau to St. Remy by a surly-looking man—a Belgian evidently, from his accent. He made his purchases without more comments than the occasion demanded; and if any one presumed to question him as to the number of the household—if it were madame or monsieur whom they had the honor of serving—his reply was a gloomy suggestion that the inquirer should mind his own affairs.

Persons drew their own conclusions. Articles of every kind were purchased—books, papers, cigars, wines, old cognac. There must certainly be a gentleman living at the chateau, and a lady too; there was no mistake about that. Gradually, however, all curiosity ceased, for the simple reason that it never was gratified, and the Chateau Fleuris remained as great a mystery as ever. But, after a time, one of the inhabitants of the old house issued from her seclusion.

She was a tall, dark, stately woman, with a strange beauty of her own. A story of passion was written on her face. The dark eyes burned with almost lurid light, a grand but distorted, darkened soul, looked out of them, with proud, pained defiance.

She was frequently at St. Remy; no one knew whether she was wife or widow. She never spoke of husband or children; but she wore a wedding-ring, and called herself Madame St. Ange. People watched her with something like awe. It was so strange that she never spoke to any one. The children, when they met her, ran away frightened and crying; no little one ever went to her with outstretched arms; even the very dogs refused to make friends with her.

She always wore black, loose, gracefully-hanging garments that fell in statuesque folds about her; she walked with a proud, stately grace that was peculiar to herself. In passing through the streets of St. Remy she never looked either to the right or to the left; she swept on as though there were nothing to interest her on earth. Those who noticed her were startled at the tragic sorrow expressed on every feature of her face. Once, as she was passing down the Rue d'Espange, a pretty little girl fell down a few yards in advance of her, and hurt herself badly. The child's cries were piteous, yet Mme. St. Ange did not go up to her, as any kind-hearted woman would have done, and raise her from the ground; she had no words of sweet womanly compassion for her, but stepped aside so that even her dress should not touch the little one. With a cry on her lips, the mother came rushing out of her house, and saw madame passing by with raised head, as though she neither saw nor heard the child.

"Who are you?" she cried, "that you treat my pretty child as though she were the dust under your feet?"

She had placed herself so completely before the haughty lady that she could not take another step forward.

"Your child is nothing to me; let me pass," madame said haughtily; and the mother almost forgot the injured little one in her anger.

"Who are you?" she repeated, in a shrill, angry voice, "who have a woman's shape and not a woman's heart?"

The dark face lowered slightly now, flashed defiance at her.

"A woman's heart!" she replied, with bitterest scorn. "A woman's heart should always be made of stone! Mine is, thank Heaven!"

The fierce words and fierce look so completely startled the woman that she stepped aside and picked up her injured child without saying another word; but all day long she could not forget what madame had said—"A woman's heart should always be made of stone! Mine is, thank Heaven!"

"Pain!" laughed Mme. St. Ange to herself. "She calls that pain — a broken limb, a wounded arm, a few bruises! Ah, Heaven, what do they know of pain! I would endure the most terrible physical suffering if it would but raise me from my living death."

After that people hated her; they had heard the story of how she had passed the injured child without even deigning to look at it.

One morning some books of poetry lay upon the reading-tables, and she took me one. As a rule, she never read poetry or romance; but the page opened at words so beautiful that she read them again and again—

"Nothing is better, I well think,
Than love; the hidden well-water
Is not so delicate to drink."

She closed the volume quickly, as though the arrow had suddenly pierced her heart.

"The hidden well-water is not so delicate to drink."

"Am I mad," she cried to herself, "that I should seek to pain myself?"

"Why can I not be like other women," she thought — "love for a year, a month, a day, love and grow cold, as they do? Of all fates, a life-long love is surely the hardest."

Alas for the love that lives always!

She wished with all heart that she had never opened the book. Of what avail to read anything of the sweetness of life or love?

"No hidden well-water for me," she said, "no amber in cold seas, no gathered berries in snow. Ah, Heaven, if I could but live my life over again!" She walked up and down the long empty room. "How foolish I am!" she muttered. "Why should I do this? I will never look into a book of poems again while I live — never again."

On the table she saw the English newspapers, but this morning she was not so anxious or so eager to read them.

"I have suffered enough for one day," she thought. "Who knows what may be in those papers?"

Yet she took up the "Times;" it was lying there in piles, every number for some weeks past. The first thing she saw was the advertisement alluding to herself. One hundred pounds reward was offered to any one who would give certain information as to Lola de Ferras' death; or, if it could be proved that she was still living, the amount would be doubled. The color of her face changed as she read.

"Living or dead—what can they want with me in either case?" she said to herself. "It is, it must be Dolores!" she cried.

Then she looked eagerly at the address—Lord Fielden, or Mr. Shaw, Waterloo Road, London."

"What can it mean? What can Lord Fielden have to do with me. And who is Mr. Shaw?"

She looked through the files of the "Times" and saw that every copy contained the same advertisement; then she examined the other English newspapers, and found to her surprise that there was a similar announcement in each. She put her hand to her head with a bewildered air. "It is a ruse of Dolores'," she thought. And yet she knew that Lady Allanmore had left England long years before.

The first idea that occurred to her was that some one who had known her in the olden days had died and left her some money.

"I do not want it," she murmured; "all the money in the world will not be of the least use to me."

Yet, she reflected, it could hardly be that. "Living or dead." What could it mean? If Dolores had had anything to say to her she would have sought her long since. Perhaps she was dead. Dolores dead! Her face flushed hotly, and her eyes gleamed fiercely.

"But the dead," she said to herself, "suffer no longer."

She looked carefully through the list of "Deaths," but she did not find Dolores' name there.

"I must have learned it in some way had she died," she thought.

She took out her note-book and copied the advertisement. The tumult in her mind was so great that she determined to go home at once and think over the matter at her leisure. Curiosity had never been a failing of hers; but now the very fever of wonder seemed to have taken hold of her. Why was search being made for her after more than sixteen years had elapsed."

CHAPTER XXX.

Mme. St. Ange decided rapidly, and she lost no time in carrying out her plans. It was many years since she had left England, and one would have imagined there would be but little danger of her being recognized. Yet, when she stood before a glass that more than sixteen years before had reflected her superb beauty, it seemed to her that she was but little changed. It was true that the bloom of her youth was dimmed, and that sorrow had left its traces on her face and somewhat marred its loveliness. The light, too, of the dark eyes had grown fierce, and the lines round the lips were cold and cruel; indeed the whole expression was one of bitterness, defiance, pride, and sullen gloom. But nothing could rob her of her distinguished bearing, of the proud, graceful carriage of the head, the beautiful curves of the neck, shoulders and figure; and her magnificent hair had lost none of its dusky beauty. Those who had known her in her youth would know her now.

There was nothing for it but disguise. She could see that, although her proud heart revolted against it; she hated the very thought of going back to her old home, the place over which she had reigned as queen, in an assumed character.

"I shall have to sacrifice my beauty," she thought; "but that need not alarm me. It has not done much for me."

Having come to this decision, Mme. St. Ange made the necessary purchases to effect a disguise; and when, after two hours' seclusion, she emerged from her room, the transformation was complete. In her place stood a white-haired old woman, whose face was lined and pale. It had been no small sacrifice to madame to cut off some of her luxuriant, shining locks, but in no other way could she conceal her dark tresses beneath the white wig that she now wore.

She had been somewhat scared and bewildered at her own reflection in the glass. Of what use was beauty after all? There was no trace of it left with her white hair and eyebrows. The shape of the forehead was hidden by the low, white front, the expression of her face totally altered by the pallid, gray coloring with skillful lines upon it.

"Shall I ever look like that really, I wonder?" she said. "Shall I grow ugly, white and withered as I appear to be now? What will it matter? I have lived but for one object, and that object I have gained."

She dressed herself quite plainly in black, and drew a deep, black veil over her face; then she called the surly Belgian to her. Be what he might to others, he was a devoted slave to her.

"I am going on a visit," she said, "I cannot tell how long I may be away. You will remain here and keep the house exactly as it is until I return. I may be absent weeks or months. I do not know the precise limit."

The man was aware that there was some mystery connected with her. He saw plainly that she was disguised. Even through the thick veil he detected that face, but he said never a word.

"The most beautiful woman in the wide world," he muttered to himself—"the most mysterious and the most stubborn, too. Still I will remain here as she has told me, and think no more harm than I can help."

Meanwhile Mme. St. Ange leaned back in the comfortable apartment of a first-class carriage and closed her eyes. She would not look at the beautiful country through which she was passing—the vine-yards, the hills crowned with myrtles, the laughing streams, the quaint old towns with gray church-towers. No beauty of land or sky should touch her heart. She hardened herself against it. What if the birds sung, the flowers bloomed, and the golden sunlight flashed upon green meadows and silver streams? It was all less than nothing to her—a woman whose heart was hardened.

Presently a sound roused her and sent the color in a hot flush to her face. It was the noise of the waves on the shore. She opened her eyes then, and in their depth there was a look of keen pain.

A few minutes later she was on board the "Queen of the Seas." An elderly lady, plainly dressed, she passed unnoticed. How vividly she remembered the time when, from the moment she had stepped on board until she had left the steamer, she had been the one great attraction. All that was ended now. She had, as it were, been dead and buried all these long years.

The waves beat against the vessel, and the winds wafted her onward; whilst Mme. St. Ange's heart each moment grew harder and colder.

The white cliffs rose before her at last. She alone knew why it was that she trembled and faltered when her feet touched English ground.

On landing she took a ticket to London, intending, after resting one night there, to go to Deeping on the morrow. It was so strange to hear English spoken all around her, to see English faces again. She felt bewildered.

"I have been buried so long," she said to herself. "I feel like one risen from the dead."

Arrived in the metropolis, she went to a hotel that long years before Mme. de Ferras had made her home. It had changed since those days, and the proprietor had little time to spare for the plainly-dressed, elderly woman who asked for a bedroom and wanted nothing more.

By the earliest train in the morning Mme. St. Ange went on to Deeping. There was no closing of the eyes now. She sat quite upright, watching the familiar scenes. She knew every field, every clump of trees; she saw in the distance the Fielden woods, the gray towers of Scarsdale, and the forest near Deeping Hurst. Ah, Heaven, the pain that rent her heart was like the stinging of a poisoned arrow! Bitter anguish filled the dark eyes; the expression on the changed countenance was one of mute misery. Once, with some of her old impetuosity, she threw herself back in the carriage.

"I cannot bear it!" she said. "I was mad to come!"

But she had more to suffer yet. She stopped at the station, every brick of which was familiar to her, and on the platform of which, with her kindly, loving mother, she had been hundreds of times, always happy, triumphant, blithe, and gay. Now she came to it alone, unloved, with the seeds of death and a life-long hate in her heart.

There was an omnibus waiting to take passengers to Deeping. The conductor looked at her as she entered.

She remembered the name of only one place.

"The Rhysworth Arms Hotel," she answered; and her blood grew cold as she uttered the words.

At the Rhysworth Arms there were new faces—no one recognized her. She wanted a sitting-room and a bedroom—she could not tell for how long. She was on her way to the North of England, but wanted a rest. She might remain two or three days, or a week,—it was uncertain.

Those who attended upon Mme. St. Ange noticed her curious manner, her bewildered looks, her strange face and wild, burning eyes. Still she seemed to have plenty of money, and that was the chief consideration.

After partaking of some slight refreshment, she went out, saying that the hour of her return was uncertain.

"What does she call herself?" asked the landlady of the chambermaid.

"I do not know. She is a married lady; and I think she said her name was Onge. I did not quite catch it."

Boils were so painful could not sleep at night.

APPEARED ON NECK, LEGS AND ARMS.

Burdock Blood Bitters

CURED THEM.

It is well-known to all that bad blood is the direct cause of all skin diseases and it is necessary for the blood to be cleansed before the eruptions will disappear. For this purpose there is nothing to equal Burdock Blood Bitters as the thousands of testimonials we have on hand will testify.

Mr. Willard Thompson, McNeill's Mills, P.E.I., writes us as follows: "I wish to state to you what Burdock Blood Bitters has done for me. Some time ago my blood got out of order and many boils appeared on my neck, legs and arms. They were so painful that I could not sleep at night. After having tried many different remedies without any success, I finally decided, on the advice of a friend, to use Burdock Blood Bitters. Before I had quite used two bottles the boils had completely disappeared, and I wish to emphasize the fact that I think Burdock Blood Bitters the best blood purifier on the market to-day."

When the young mother is allowed to get up for her first meal, even though she takes it alone, it seems good to her to take this one step nearer the family circle, and she counts the days until her strength will be fully restored. But very often strength does not come as expected, and she lingers in languor and weakness. At such a time there is need of an invigorating tonic, and the very best tonic which a nursing mother can use is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It contains no alcohol nor narcotics. It gives real strength.

"Favorite Prescription" is a reliable woman's medicine. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

"I cannot praise Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription too highly as a tonic for tired, worn-out women especially those who are afflicted with female weakness," writes Mrs. Ira W. Holmes, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa. "It has helped me very much and a skilful physician said to me in answer to my question as to its efficacy, 'I know of cases where it has really worked wonders.'"

DRS. KENNEDY & KERGAN

The Leading Specialists of America. 25 Years in Detroit. Bank Security.

Nine out of every ten men have been guilty of transgression against nature in their youth. Nature never excuses, no matter how young, thoughtless or ignorant he may be. The punishment and suffering corresponds with the crime. The only escape from its ruinous results is proper scientific treatment to counteract its effects. The DRAINS, either by nightly losses, or secretly through the urine, must be stopped—the NERVES must be built up and invigorated, the blood must be purified, the SEXUAL ORGANS must be vitalized and developed, the BRAIN must be nourished. Our New Method Treatment provides all these requirements. Under its influence the brain becomes active, the blood purified so that all pimples, blotches and ulcers disappear; the nerves become strong as steel, so that nervousness, bashfulness and despondency disappear; the eyes become bright, the face full and clear, energy returns to the body, and the moral, physical and sexual systems are invigorated; all drains cease—no more vital waste from the system. The various organs become natural and manly. We invite all the afflicted to call and consult us confidentially and free of charge. Cures Guaranteed or no Pay. We treat and cure: Varicocele, Blood Diseases, Stricture, Gleet, Emissions, Urinary Drains, Spermatorrhoea, Unnatural Discharges, Kidney and Bladder Diseases.

New York, May 26th, 9.45 a. m. — Late London cables report market firm at 1-4 to 1-2 above our close for almost entire list. The banking syndicate which guaranteed the successful flotation of new P.A. stock issues announces that subscription to the underwriting is closed and subscriptions twice amount to issue. They announce no further subscriptions will be taken. This explains the comparative strength of P.A. stock yesterday while nearly everything else was selling off. This savors of good possibilities for that particular stock. Liquidation is heavy and we are inclined to look for steadier market with possibly some rally but trading will undoubtedly be mostly professional, until some new developments arise.

STABBING AFFRAY IN ASHBURNHAM.

Both Men Reported to Have Received Wounds.

A stabbing affray which might have ended seriously was probably the result of intoxication. It is reported that in Ashburnham about 8.30 o'clock last night, Sid Crouter and "Gid" Brough had some words, and it is alleged that the latter attacked Crouter with a butcher's knife. In return, it is said, Crouter seized a heavy stick and engaged with Brough in a fight which ended disastrously for both.

The affair took place at the house of Crouter's brother, Driscoll Terrace, Ashburnham. It is understood that Crouter's wife with screams of "murder" ran to Mr. Jos. Wyatt's house, only a short distance away, where she related what was going on within the house. The men were finally parted not, however, before each had sustained wounds of a more or less serious nature.

THE LATEST NEWS OF LOCAL SPORT.

The T. A. S. II Were Defeated Yesterday.

Saturday Afternoon's Baseball Matches —Other Sports.

BASEBALL.

One of the most agonizing and blood curdling exhibitions of baseball that local baseball enthusiasts were ever tortured into witnessing took place on the Murray street grounds Saturday in the city league series when the Pullmans and Excelsiors met. The score was 35-1 and it is hinted that it was purely a spirit of charity that prompted the Excelsiors to give their opponents that run. Flaherty the twirler for the Excelsiors has speed and curves to rent and the Pullmans were unable to locate him during the game. The Excelsiors look like winners.

In the Intermediate baseball league on Saturday, the Shamrocks won from the Parkdales; Victorias from the Orioles; and the Y.M.C.A. from the Quakers.

* * * *

The first game of the Intermediate baseball league was played on Saturday afternoon between the Shamrocks and the Parkdales, and resulted in favour of the former by 19 to 12. The following are the teams:—

LACROSSE.

Lack of good judgment and the failure to cover their checks at times contributed in no small degree to the defeat of the T.A.S. II. team on the Murray steet grounds yesterday by the Victorias of Port Hope by a score of 4-3. The visitors are a clever lot of stick handlers and were re-enforced by Corrouth of the Senior Port Hopes who discarded his moustache on Saturday in order to renew his youth and make him eligible for a place on the Vics line-up. Mr. Frank McCoy acted in the capacity of referee. The game was a very good exhibition of lacrosse and the visiting team, which has of late been practising with the Ontarios have a very fine combination and succeeded in outwitting the T.A.S. defence several times which gave them the victory.

SERIOUS BUSH FIRES AROUND STONY LAKE.

Two Summer Cottages Burned—Dangerous Fires Raging.

The summer cottage on Sheldrake's Island, and the cottage said to have been owned by Mr. Cox, Sr., of Lakefield, were destroyed by fire on Saturday last. It is not known how these fires originated, but it is suspected that they are the result of gross carelessness on the part of campers who had made use of the island.

Dangerous bush fires are now raging in three or four different points on Stony Lake. The largest is on the main land near the American Camp, another is on the shore east of "Viamede" and a third in the vicinity of Fairy Lake. It is not at all unlikely that more will break out, as everything was very dry and inflamable for the want of rain up to Monday night.

PETERBOROUGH COUNCIL KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS.

Institution of a Local Council Yesterday.

Prominent Knights Present — Knights and Candidates Attend Mass.

Peterborough was honoured on Monday by having within its borders some two hundred or more of the prominent Catholic laymen, with a sprinkling of clergymen, principally from the eastern portion of the province and of Quebec, together with representatives from other points in the province.

The visitors began to arrive on Saturday evening but on Sunday evening a special train from the Ottawa district brought the bulk of the visitors to town.

The object of this distinguished gathering was for the purpose of forming a Council of the Knights of Columbus, an organization connected with the Roman Catholic Church, and which is growing at an enormous rate in membership, more especially across the line. A very successful Council has been installed in Ottawa for some time, and has amongst its members the most influential Catholics of the Capital and district. It was only last week that the Ottawa Council was addressed by the Papal Delegate, who commended the organization for the good work it was doing. The Knights of Columbus Society is recognised by the hierarchy of the church as a power for good in furthering the interests of the church, and its adherents, and of promoting their spiritual and social welfare.

On Monday morning the visiting Knights and candidates assembled in the Oddfellows' Hall, and afterwards marched in a body to St. Peter's Cathedral, where solemn Pontifical High Mass was celebrated by His Lordship Bishop O'Connor, at nine o'clock. The local Court, (St. Peter's) C.O.F., C.M.B.A. Branch, and St Peter's T.A.S. also attended in a body. The Cathedral was crowded to the doors by a large congregation. Rev. Father Whalen of St. Patrick's church, Ottawa, preached the sermon, which was an eloquent and forcible one. The music furnished by the choir is especially worthy of mention, the choir on this occasion being strengthened by the assistance of several of the visitors, who are vocalists of some note. At the conclusion of the mass His Lordship Bishop O'Connor extended a welcome to the Knights, and incidentally referred to the good work being done by not only the Knights of Columbus, but the other Catholic societies as well. He urged them to be steadfast in their principles, to live exemplary lives, and be a credit to their church and organization. The Knights and candidates marched back to their hall where they went into session until the noon hour.

In the evening at 7.30 the Knights met again in session, when the local Council was instituted and a large number of members initiated, including several of the local as well as district clergy. At the conclusion of the initiation ceremonies refreshments were served by Caterer Harry Long, which was followed by speech-making by many of the visiting Knights. The officers of the local Council will be elected at a subsequent meeting.

Amongst the visiting Knights present might be mentioned Rev. Father Shea, Montreal; Rev. Father Foley, Ottawa; Rev. Father Davis, Kingston Diocese; Rev. Father Whalen and Rev. Father French, Ottawa; Hon. F. R. Latchford, Chancellor, Ottawa Council; Mr. J. P. Dunne, Ottawa, State Deputy; Mr. J. J. Heney, Ottawa, District Deputy.

The visitors one and all expressed themselves as delighted with the hospitality of the citizens of the town, and of the manner in which they were received by the local gentlemen identified with the organization of a Council in Peterborough. A large number of the visitors took in the sights of the town and visited the different industrial establishments and public works, and expressed themselves as surprised and delighted at the industrial activity in and around Peterborough.

For a Certainty I am Cured.

Mr. Jas. Trenaman, 536 Adelaide street, London, writes that for two years he was laid up with kidney disease and urinary troubles. He became dropsical and his legs would swell so that he could hardly walk around. He never used any medicine that did him so much good as Dr. Chase's Kidney Live Pills, and knows for a certainty that this treatment cured him. One pill a dose; 25c. a box.

BAND EXCURSION TO JUBILEE POINT.

The Three Steamers Were More Than Crowded.

The band excursion to Jubilee Point yesterday was a great success and the steamers "City of Peterborough," "Water Lily" and "North Star" were all crowded with persons.

The band rendered a very fine programme of music and their playing was delightful and were well applauded. There were a great many present from Port Hope, Cobourg and the surrounding country.

The last steamer on leaving the wharf at Jubilee, left on the grounds some 400 persons, they having visited the Point from various points.

Mr. Foley having prepared dinner for about 300, and fell short of provisions.

The band excursion was thoroughly enjoyed by all who attended.

On return home each boat had an orchestra of from five to ten pieces.

THE SONS OF ENGLAND AT ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH.

Attended Divine Service on Sunday Evening.

A very impressive service was held on Sunday evening at St. Andrew's Church when the Sons of England attended in a large body and occupied the first three pews of the church. Rev. J. S. Potter, the pastor, preached and took his text from Isaiah 14 verse 32: "What shall one then answer the messengers of the nation? That the Lord hath founded Zion, and the poor of his people shall trust in it."

The preacher prefaced his remarks by saying that it was always a pleasure for the minister of the gospel to speak to persons especially when they were his own countrymen on such a day as the anniversary of the birthday of Queen Victoria. Rev. Mr. Potter spoke of the British Empire's world wide power and resembled it to the power of the Israelites. He said that when messengers came to inquire about the empire we must say as the Israelites had been commanded—that it had been founded by the Lord our God. He complimented those present on the excellence of their organization, which he regarded as one that uplifted the morals of all with whom it came in contact. He spoke of the honour of Englishmen. He said that Sons of England had from Alfred the great to Florence Nightingale displayed a spirit of bravery, true manliness, frankness, honour and endurance and it was the duty of sons of England in the future to keep up this reputation.

In conclusion he addressed the organization present and told them that in whatever circumstances they were placed they were to remember that they were representatives of a people of God.

The service was brought to a close by the benediction after which the Sons of England marched to their Hall on Hunter street.

THE CHURCHES.

GEORGE STREET METHODIST.

The evening service of George Street Church on Sunday was of a patriotic nature. An excellent address was given by the pastor, Rev. J. P. Wilson, from the words "The lines have fallen to me in pleasant places; yea, I have a goodly heritage." After paying tribute to the life and character of the late Queen and the present King, the speaker turned his attention to the great British Empire, of which we formed a part, or as the London Times put it recently "that mysterious unit called the British Empire". Dealing with the principles that go to make a nation great the speaker gave it as his opinion that the great principal that fostered this great spirit of expansion was liberty. But higher than even membership of the great British Empire was the citizenship which all should seek, that of the "city which hath foundations, whose maker and builder is God."

The hymns and music at both services were appropriate to the day. In the morning the choir sang the anthem "Fatherland" and the offertory selection was a duet "My Jesus I Love Thee" by Messrs. Miller and Mulligan. The evening anthem was "The Resurrection and the Life" with solos by Miss Chasty, Mr. Miller and Mr. Mulligan. During collection Messrs. Miller, Maguire, Mulligan and Turner sang the quartette "Steal Away" in a pleasing manner.

A Farmer Cured of Rheumatism.

"A man living on a farm near here came in a short time ago completely doubled up with rheumatism. I handed him a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and told him to use it freely, and if not satisfied after using it he need not pay a cent for it," says C. P. Rayder, of Pattens Mills, N.Y. "A few days later he walked into the store as straight as a string, and handed me a dollar saying 'Give me another bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm; I want it in the house all the time for it cured me.'" FARMERS' PLEASANT DREAMS.

One Inch of Rain Fell to Gladden Their Hearts.

Toronto, May 27.—According to Mr. Stupart, of the Observatory, about one inch of rain fell over this part of the province. General rains extending as far east as Montreal are expected to follow this opening up of the rain clouds.

In the Niagara fruit gardens the rain has done inestimable good.

The weather officials state that there is every probability of general rains and unsettled weather for the next ten days. It will affect the greater part of Ontario, and will gradually extend westward.

Will Expel the Jews.

St. Petersburg, May 27.—The chief of police of Kieff has ordered the police commissaries within his jurisdiction to institute a fresh inquiry into the legal status of the Jews and to forcefully expel those who have no legal right of residence, and who refuse to leave.

HOMELESS THROUGH FLAMES

Three Hundred and Fifty Persons Are Without Homes in Laconia, N.H.—Twelve Men Lost Off the Peerless of Lunenburg, N.S.—Other Fatalities From Various Causes Makes Gruesome Day.

Lincoln, Neb., May 27. — A despatch from Hastings, Neb., says: A tornado struck Hastings early yesterday, wrecking many residences and damaging several business blocks. No deaths are reported.

Nine persons were killed at Davey and heavy damage is said to have been done at Valparaiso and Saymond. No one was killed at the two last-named towns.

Glenwood, Iowa.—The State Hospital for Feeble-Minded was struck by lightning and two children and eleven persons injured, none fatally. In Munro County two lives were lost, seven were fatally hurt, and many others injured.

Sioux City, Ia.—The St. Paul flyer on the Chicago and Northwestern was wrecked at Whiting, Ia., last night. A tornado had hurled a box car on to the main track and the passenger train crashed into it. The engineer was killed, and four other members of the crew seriously injured.

Pittsburg.—An explosion of gas at the Federal Mine of the Chartier's Coal and Coke Company instantly killed four men. Many others were injured.

Arras, France.—A wedding party at the Citadel Barracks here last night ended tragically with the burning to death of three women and the injuring of twenty-seven persons, eight seriously. A lamp was overturned and set fire to the curtains and decorative hangings.

Buffalo.—Thomas Tannehill, 43, after receiving a letter from his sister, upbraiding him for drinking, took a fatal dose of strychnine. His parents are said to be well-to-do and live at Kamloops, B.C.

100 BUILDINGS BURNED.

Laconia, N.H., May 27.—A city in darkness last night, nearly 100 buildings burned, 350 persons made homeless, and a loss of between $350,000 and $400,000, is the story in short of the greatest fire this city ever experienced, if not the state of New Hampshire. The burned district in the Lakeport section covers about 150 acres. The fire caught from an insignificant blaze in the boiler room of the H. H. Wood hosiery mill. In 15 minutes the flames were beyond control.

Three Policemen Are Heroes.

New York, May 27.—When police and firemen reached a burning tenement on Fulton street, Brooklyn, early yesterday morning, women and children were at the windows calling for help. Policeman James Haven entered the building, and on the top floor found a woman unconscious. He carried her to a window and then collapsed, having been badly burned about the face and hands. The pain from his injuries crazed him and he had to be placed in a straight jacket at the hospital. He cannot recover. Policemen McAuley and Cook were also seriously burned and will probably be disfigured for life.

Two Will Die.

Columbus, O., May 27.—A Big Four work train, with a gang of Italian laborers on board, collided with several box cars in the local yards yesterday. Two Italians will die and sixteen others were less seriously injured as a result.

Killed by Lightning.

Toronto, May 27.—W. R. Smyth, M.P.P. for Algoma, has received particulars of a sad fatality which occurred in his branch store, at Rock Lake, one day last week. A son of Frank Clark of Ophir Mine was standing in the store during an electrical storm, when a bolt entered the building and killed him instantly, and knocked insensible Mrs. John S. McKay. The boy was standing in a group or seven or eight persons, none of whom was injured, except Mrs. McKay. No damage was done to the store.

Disfigured For Life.

Kingston, May 27.—The little girl of Sergt. Fowler, "B" Battery, received burns which will probably disfigure her for life. Her dress caught fire from a match, and her face, shoulder and neck were terribly burned. The doctor in attendance hopes to save her life.

Struck by a Trolley.

Toronto, May 27. — It is feared that the trolley claimed another victim last night, when Mrs. Sullivan living at 262 Chestnut street, was struck by a Bathurst street car, and received serious injuries. At midnight, she had not recovered consciousness, and the authorities at Grace Hospital considered her condition as very grave.

Fell Dead on Street.

Sarnia, May 27.—William Mitchell, an old resident of this town, dropped dead on the street Monday afternoon, on his way back from the park, where the holiday attractions had been in progress.

13 Lost in Driving Storm.

St. John's, Nfld., May 27.—A severe gale, which swept the coast last Sunday, did much damage to the fishing vessels on the Grand Banks. Peerless of Lunenburg, N.S., has run into this port, and reports having lost 12 men during the storm. Other fishing boats report smaller losses. It is feared that the fatalities will reach a large total.

KEEP AN OPEN MIND.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Speech on Transportation.

SEVERAL RAILWAY PROJECTS

But Government Is Not Committed to Any of Them—Sir Wilfrid Announced That in the Event of Aid Being Given Any There Would Be No Land Grant—The Justice Estimates.

Ottawa, May 27.—On motion to go into supply, in the House yesterday, Mr. Borden brought to the attention of the Government a matter, on which he thought there should be an announcement of policy, viz., the reference in the speech from the throne to the Transportation Commission. The speech was delivered 11 weeks ago, and yet no commission had been appointed, although, about six weeks ago, Mr. Prefontaine announced a set of names in Montreal. Since then he had been told the draft of the commission was before the Justice Department. The settlement of the Northwest and the output of grain was increasing, and more than one scheme was before Parliament for supplying the facilities desired. One of the companies, the Grand Trunk Pacific, was before the Railway Committee of the House. It had been announced by the press and by Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson that the Government intended to give aid to one of the companies. In fact, this was the most important subject since the C.P.R. bill was introduced. Sir William Mulock had announced his policy to be to extend the Intercolonial to Winnipeg, while Mr. Blair had declared for a through transcontinental Government railway. Throughout Canada, the feeling was strong in favor of a road built through Canada and using Canadian ports. He would like to know when the Government would be ready to bring down its policy on this question.

Sir Wilfrid's Reply.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier expressed regret that Mr. Borden had not given notice of his enquiry. He would, in that event, have been able to give more information. However, on the spur of the moment, he would say there were three principal points to be considered. First, there was communication by water, which the Government had in mind when the commission was first promised. To-morrow the terms of the commission would be laid on the table, but he could inform the House that the commissioners chosen were Sir William Van Horne, John Bertram, Toronto, and Harold Kennedy of Montreal. Mr. Kennedy, not being able to act, E. C. Fry, Lloyd's agent at Quebec had been chosen in his place. Another feature of the problem was that of providing railway facilities for the growing settlements of the Saskatchewan Valley. Probably this week it would be the Government's duty to lay on the table certain information in regard to that railway. Still another feature was that there must be another trunk line, to connect the prairie settlements with the seaboard. The Government was not connected with any scheme that had been put forward in that direction. The Government was prepared to lay down the salient ideas that should be kept in view in carrying out that scheme.

In the first place, the road must be built through Canadian territory exclusively, from the Pacific to the Atlantic. (Hear, hear.)

Secondly, the tide water terminals must be in Canada, Quebec in summer and St. John and Halifax in winter.

There were now three companies in the field, the Trans-Canada, the Canadian Northern, and the Grand Trunk Pacific. But the Government had not made up its mind to any one of these three schemes. The question was now under consideration. This, however, was settled, that if the Government decided to give assistance it would certainly not be in the nature of a land subsidy. (Cheers.)

"But no conclusion will be come to," added Sir Wilfrid, "until we have had an opportunity of discussing the subject with those who do the Government the honor of giving it their support."

The debate was continued by Dr. Sproule, Hon. John Haggart, Hon. Israel Tarte, Lt.-Col. Hughes, Messrs. Charlton, Osler, Talbot, Casgrain, Frank Oliver, Kemp, Pringle, Bell of Pictou and Hon. Mr. Blair until 10.15, when the House got into Committee, and $219,480 departmental justice items were passed. The House rose at 12.40.

New Senator Introduced.

Ottawa, May 27.—The Senate had its first sitting yesterday, after a four weeks' holiday, and opened proceedings by the introduction of a new member, Hon. James T. McGregor, who takes the place of the late Senator Carmichael of Pictou, N. S.

Bridge Co. Bill Passes.

Ottawa, May 27.—At the Railway Committee of the Commons, a bill was passed, empowering the Pere Marquette International Bridge Company to bridge the Detroit River, at Amherstburg.

MINISTERS' RESIGNATIONS ASKED.

Victoria, B. C., May 27.—Premier Prior has anticipated the report of the special committee appointed to investigate the C. & W. land scandal, and yesterday afternoon he asked for the resignation of two of the Ministers most intimately associated with that deal, namely, Messrs. Eberts and Wells. This step is believed to be but the prelude to the stirring events which will mark the opening of the House to-day, for the two Ministers concerned are not disposed to accept their degradation meekly, and are preparing counter statements with which to meet the announcement of the First Minister when the House opens.

B.C. Legislature Re-Assembles.

Victoria, B.C., May 27.—The British Columbia Legislature, which has been adjourned three weeks, to investigate the Columbia and Western subsidy, will resume its session to-day, when a report is expected to be made by the special committee.

SECOND STRETCH UNSTARTED.

Hereafter Automobilists Must Have Private Track For Speed Trials.

Paris, May 27. — The second stretch of the Paris-Madrid automobile race was not started yesterday morning owing to the interdiction of the French and Spanish Governments.

Premier Combes, replying in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday to an interpellation on the automobile race said permission to race had been granted, owing to solicitations in behalf of the interests of French industry. The accidents were not due to lack of precaution. The Government was not disposed to grant further permission. If automobilists want more speed trials, they must make a private track.

JOHNSTON RAKES BLAKE IN THE GAMEY CASE.

Charges Him With Founding Argument on Statements Not in Evidence.

No Corruption, No Patronage No Support— Without Money the Correspondence, Interviews, Etc., are all Innocent— The Review Not Concluded.

Following is the continuation of Mr. Johnston's argument in the Gamey-Stratton case Friday afternoon:—

Now, on the 24th October ,1902, exhibit 43, and that was the letter that I was referring to a few moments ago when speaking of this date, that is the denial that Mr. Gamey published in the Algoma Conservator, which is a Conservative organ. Now, just see what that states.

The Chancellor—He does not quite admit that, does he?

FROM THE NEWSPAPER.

Mr. Johnston—Yes, my Lord, he does. There was some question about the date when he got the paper, whether he saw it after it was published or not. Now, just see for a moment what that letter says and see how utterly opposed it is to Mr. Gamey's present contention:— "A foolish rumour was started here last week to the effect that Mr. Gamey sold out for a consideration to the Ross Government. Mr. Gamey called at this office on Tuesday and asked us to give an explicit denial to it, and at the same time he stated that the absurdity of the rumour was a sufficient denial in itself." Bear in mind that the pledges he had given were based on the expectation that the Conservatives would be in power, for the odds were in their favour.

Now, my Lords, what story does that statement tell us? It contradicts Mr. Gamey absolutely, because he says he was covering up his tracks, that he was pretending to be a supporter of the Government while at heart he was favouring the Conservative policy and the Opposition, and he was doing all this for the purpose of unearthing the state of corruption which he believed existed in the administration of provincial affairs. If that is so, then I ask why state publicly in a newspaper he believed in a few months the Conservatives would be returned to power? Why refer to the Oxford election trial which was won, the details of which I am not here to justify or palliate in the slightest degree; I am not concerned with that. But we know the odium attached or sought to be attached, to some of the details that were elicited at the Oxford election trial.

HAD EXPLAINED.

Chief Justice Falconbridge —Mr. Gamey did not quite adopt that article; did not quite assume the responsibility for it. He gave an explanation about it, whether satisfactory or not.

Mr. Johnston — I should be glad to put in the explanation, because I do not want anything to go down on the notes as being said by myself in any way. Your Lordship will see that I read the whole article to him and I said to him, "Is that right? A.—I suppose it is.

Q.—The question of publication I did not say that it was? A.—No.

"Do you repudiate it? A.—No.

"Q.—What did you call at the office of the Conservator for? A.—Simply because I called at the office very often when I went in. He may have said when I called there what about these rumours, and I may have said there is nothing in them, Mr. Price, why should a man go over now? I did not tell him to publish that in the paper.

"Q.—You saw this in the paper? A.—I may have seen it; it is likely I saw that; I wouldn't swear.

"Q.—So that you would be home shortly after the paper was published? A.—Very likely.

"Q.—Does the paper take a day or so to go to your place? A.—It would reach me sometime within a few days."

The Chancellor—That is rather a qualified answer I should think.

Mr. Johnston—I should think so.

TO PACIFY THE PEOPLE.

The Chancellor—That was put in, was it not, to pacify the people up there, to disabuse their mind of the rumours that he had received money, and thereby degrade him in their eyes?

Mr. Johnston — Perhaps it was. Your Lordship sees if it was published in a newspaper it would get into all the papers in the province.

The Chancellor—Yes, well, that is the reason he said what he did.

Mr. Johnston—"Q.—The man did not invent that out of his own imagination, I suppose? A.—I do not know that he did."

The Chancellor—I have been trying to get a motive for some of his actions. That will account for giving colour to the position he was in, if he was still pursuing this policy of the plot and had several parts to play.

Mr. Johnston—Why should he take that position at the Walker House? No obligation there.

NARROWING THE POSITION.

Whenever we get his position narrowed down to this, namely, that he was intending to give a Liberal an independent support to the Government in power we do not require to explain anything.

The Chancellor—If you say ,that that is the explanation of the whole thing, if you assume that was his real earnest position?

Mr. Johnston—Yes, then everything is explained.

The Chancellor—Beyond all show or appearance or other indications of his opinion and standing you say that that was the solution of the whole thing, that Manitoulin was his politics and he was going to stick to them through thick and thin.

Mr. Johnston—I say that that explains the whole matter and is the only explanation which is consistent with his various utterences at various times and places.

GOING INTO THE PLOT.

The Chancellor—He was going into this plot according to his own statement?

Mr. Johnston—Yes, my Lord, but his own statement is utterly opposed to the writings we have and the conversations I have given Lordship.

The same consistent course, the same view, the same reasons, the same motives, the same language from time to time in different places without any connection whatever with the plot or scheme, all consistent with the fact that Manitoulin was his politics and he was going to give the Government in power an independent support. Then that being taken, no further or other explanation is required. If that is so and if I am right in that then the protest and the patronage so far as they are concerned are of no value whatever because he was entitled to the patronage on the one hand and he was justified in saying, I am now a supporter of your Government and you should not protest my election.

UP TO THE TENTH.

Now, having brought the matter up to the 10th day of September, and having shown that at that date Mr. Gamey's position, instead of becoming more strenuous and more vigourous and more pretending to support the Government, became more or less divergent, and he was taking a still more independent course after having, as he said, received the bribe than he did prior to and within, at any rate, a few days of the alleged occurrence.

If what I submit to your Lordships be the correct view of this evidence, then the letter of the 10th September is as equally consistent with the position that I have been urging was the true position of Mr. Gamey as the article of the 24th October, the letter to Bellwoods, the Globe interview, or any other documentary evidence that we have, all of which documentary evidence, at all events, is undisputed. In other words, the Aylesworth letter itself, of the 10th September, speaking of that letter, and in order to give point to Mr. Gamey's story, before Mr. Gamey can succeed in this story against the Government, he must prove that the Aylesworth letter is a misleading, untrue, deceptive letter.

THE FOUNDATION.

He must prove that that is the first evidence of deceit, that the Aylesworth letter is a lie, because upon that foundation the member for Manitoulin has built his superstructure. And he is so convinced of the truth of that, and the force of that, that he has to go in the box and swear that that letter was prepared by Stratton in his presence, and was returned to Stratton by him and Sullivan as evidence of the unholy compact that he says they entered into. If he fails to prove that the letter of the 10th September, upon his testimony, is not a false letter, if he fails to prove that that letter did not emanate from Mr. Stratton as part of the contract, if he fails to prove that that letter was not returned to Mr. Stratton as an evidence of the crime, his story utterly and absolutely fails. I am within the ordinary illustration that if a man in the witness box lies about an important matter the court is suspicious of the rest of his testimony. I am not putting it upon such a harsh rule as that, I am putting it upon the ground of the construction of this man's story.

IF THE LETTER IS INNOCENT.

Now, your Lordships will bear in mind no doubt that if that letter of the 10th September is an innocent letter, not emanating from Mr. Stratton, as evidence of a criminal compact, and if a wrong motive is attempted to be given by Mr. Gamey with full knowledge of the facts to that letter, then he fully discredits himself, and his evidence cannot for a moment be relied upon because it is a matter about which no man could be mistaken.

It is well known that there are circumstances in themselves, it is well known that there are writings that have been made and published and sent, and that letters have been written known to my learned friend perhaps more extensively than myself, known to your Lordships on the bench, known to every counsel who practices at nisi prius—that are innocent.

HONEST, GUILELESS LETTERS

written from time to time and under various circumstances. Afterwards when the feel of the man, when the touch of the man actuated by wrong motives, comes to be applied to them, he sees guile where no guile was intended and by attributing a false motive, he rendered that which was perfectly honest and innocent, or attempts to render it, evidence of wrong doing and crime.

That letter is the foundation of Mr. Gamey's whole building. That letter is the first connection with the Government. That letter is the only evidence in writing of any kind, shape of description affecting Mr. Stratton or the Government, and in regard to any understanding it is the last, as it was the first, that passed between Mr. Gamey and Mr. Stratton or the Government upon that particular point.

It was necessary for that letter to eminate from Mr. Stratton, not with a view of protecting the man, but as evidence of the crime to be committed —evidence that Mr. Stratton was willing to pay this man $3,000 to sign that letter.

WHAT WAS NEEDED.

It was necessary to show that that letter had not only to emanate from Mr. Stratton, but to be his initiative; necessary to show that that letter was returned to Stratton as the evidence of the unrighteous contract. I venture to submit to your Lordships that upon the evidence which has been given here, and which I will deal with now, that the position taken by Mr. Gamey in that respect has been proved to be absolutely false; and that unless he can show that Mr. Stratton, Mr. Aylesworth, Mr .Boland, and Mr. Myers, are telling what is absolute perjury he can make nothing of that letter except innocence and propriety, and in order to make that corrupt he has to have all these witnesses practically guilty of perjury; because, as I said before, it is a matter about which there can be no mistake.

ON PATRONAGE.

That letter is of course bearing upon the question of patronage alone. He puts his position in this way:— "I am practically a supporter of your Government, and all that I ask, as the representative of the riding which I have the honour to represent, is that my recommendations receive reasonable and fair consideration at your hands, and that I will be considered and treated as if I had been elected to support your government."

There is the only instance, the only case in writing, in which Mr. Gamey stipulates for a single thing; and he stipulated for that which I have pointed out to your Lordships, is not a result of the bargain or arrangement for support, innocent although it may all be, but comes to him as a matter of right, to which he was entitled if he became a supporter of the Government, either corruptly or incorruptly, so long as the Government were not cognizant of the fact. In other words, whatever Gamey's motives may have been in supporting the Government, unless these motives were brought into existence by some act of the Government, the giving of the patronage to Gamey was an honest, fair and legitimate act. That is all that he is asking as representative of the riding; and he gives his reasons in the letter of the 10th of September, the Aylesworth letter, why he has come to that conclusion; being a continuation of the reasons which had been agitating his mind during the summer of 1902.

THE LETTER.

Now, as to the question of the letter I propose to deal with that in a few moments in connection with the other circumstances leading up to the main issue; but this brings me, in the view that I take of this letter, to the question of the patronage of the riding, because as I have pointed out, that is all that Mr. Gamey is seeking. Let us see what he got by reason of that letter. He says, "All I ask is the patronage."

Chancellor Boyd—"To have my recommendations considered," he puts it.

Mr. Johnston—That is equivalent.

Chancellor Boyd—He does not control the matter; he recommends and they accept, if they think proper. Usually they do.

A MEMBER'S POSITION.

Mr. Johnston—Now, in dealing with this, it is just as well to ascertain and have it put just as your Lordship puts it, what position a member is in with regard to the patronage. The Government will appoint their own nominees to office. The first preference, all things no doubt being equal, would be given to the person endorsed by the member. The endorsement by a Conservative member might have very great weight with the Executive in determining between rival claimants. But in any event Mr. Gamey, in taking his position, took the true position, namely, "When you come to make appointments from my riding I hope you will give the same weight to my suggestions, my recommendations, as you would have given if I had been originally elected a member of your party." Now, it is well to know exactly just what he could get from Mr. Stratton — what he asked.

WHAT ONE WOULD THINK.

One would naturally think if there was a bargain of that kind where he could get large sums of money, that cost a good deal to procure sometimes, that he would have got that which cost the Government nothing, namely, appointments. He said that he got that which was more difficult to get — money. He did not get that which could have been given to him as a matter of political patronage without costing the party or the Government one dollar. What he could have got from Mr. Stratton's department, and all that he could have got from that department were: The License Inspector, the License Commissioners, the Issuer of Marriage Licenses and the Lock-up Keeper.

FOUR APPOINTMENTS.

Those four appointments were the four appointments that he was asking for. The License Inspector is a paid official; the License Commissioner is purely honourary; the Issuer of Marriage Licenses, paid by fees, the Lock-up Keeper paid by salary. Here was a man who, according to the statement of my learned friend, had been bought in by the corrupt use of patronage, and so the Royal Commission declares as one of the charges to be investigated before your Lordship, and although he made strenuous efforts to get these appointments made he got not a single appointment made in Mr. Stratton's control and not one single nominee of his received an appointment, and he got no promise that any single one would be appointed. Now, that is the attitude of Mr. Stratton, the man who did the buying, according to Mr. Gamey; he would not even appoint an Issuer of Marriage Licenses to suit Mr. Gamey, the man that he was buying through patronage. My learned friend says, "You bought us through the exercise of patronage." Mr. Stratton, according to the evidence, gave him no patronage whatever and no promise of patronage, would not even appoint a lock-up keeper.

ANOTHER APPLICATION.

Then his other application was for Flesher, a justice of the Peace, which goes through the Attorney-General's Department. Before Mr. Gamey sent that to the Attorney-General's Department, or before it reached the department at all, there had been a petition signed by lumbermen and a gold company and others setting forth the necessity for the appointment of a justice of the peace in that district. Mr. Gamey's letter of the 20th September merely forwarded the petition .Mr. Stratton's letter merely did that which my learned friend says is evidence of a terrible conspiracy, because it was passed on to the Attorney-General. That had to be passed on to the Attorney-General's Department, because it properly belonged to his jurisdiction. It is not shown that Mr. Stratton exerted himself beyond the usual line of forwarding the correspondence and calling the attention of the Attorney-General to it and asking him to give it his consideration.

MR. GAMEY'S LETTER.

Mr. Gamey, in his letter,says: "Enclosed please find a petition of the lumber company on Aird Island to have Thomas Flesher, customs collector at that port, appointed a J. P., as the present J.P. is leaving. I know the necessity of this port and know Mr. Flesher, and I know that he will make a good J.P." Mr. Stratton in his letter of 5th October to the Attorney-General, writes:—"I enclose you a petition from the Huron Lumber Company asking that Mr. Thomas Flesher, collector of customs at Aird Island, be appointed a justice of the peace in the room and stead of John Andrew, who is said to be permanently removing from the island. It is recommended and approved of by Mr. Gamey, member for the district. Will you be good enough to have the matter attended to at your earliest convenience."

The Chancellor—That petition was in September.

Mr. Johnston—Yes, my Lord, 20th September.

Now, that was the whole correspondence as far as Mr. Stratton was concerned. The appointment was made, so far as Mr. Stratton, one of the parties to this improper contract, is concerned, upon that material, the petition. Mr. Gamey's letter enclosing it, Mr. Stratton's letter forwarding it to the Attorney-General, and from that time on there is no evidence that Mr. Stratton had part or lot in the matter. There is no pretence that it was not a proper appointment, and we look for guilt and evidence of guilt in regard to appointment when we find that there is a motive for making an appointment other than qualifications of a proper character. Swanson is asked to be appointed by Mr. Gamey and does not get it. Mr. Swanson had been recommended by Mr. Farwell, the former Liberal member, and Mr. Gamey is again refused.

The Chancellor—I thought Swanson got this in the long run?

DIDN'T GET IT.

Mr. Johnston—No, he did not; he got no appointment whatever; but it stood over until matters came up before the House and the Attorney-General had been making enquiries.

The Chancellor—Was that an appointment as J. P.?

Mr. Johnston—Yes, my Lords.

The Chancellor—I thought he had got it?

Mr. Johnston—No, Flesher was the only man appointed. Swanson was not appointed, although there had been a previous recommendation, but not acted upon.

The Chancellor—There was the loss of the petition, then there were letters to individuals, and one man answered. "He was the best man we could get for the place."

Mr. Johnston—Yes.

The Chancellor—Then I thought he was appointed.

Mr. Johnston—No; recommendation was only made, but not approved of by the Lieut.-Governor; it stood over.

The Chancellor — He was recommended by the Attorney-General.

REFERENDUM OFFICER.

Mr. Johnston—Yes. Then the other appointment is a returning officer on the referendum. That was a capital appointment. That was one of the classes of cases from which the appointments were made — sheriffs and registrars. Mr. Jackson was a Liberal ;Mr. Jackson apparently was no friend or supporter of Mr. Gamey because he had no voice in the elections.

The Chancellor — I suppose between those two it did not matter who was appointed. They were both Government officers.

Mr. Johnston—Yes, and here there was a reason for appointing Jackson, because Avery had been the returning officer at the elections. Then we have this significant fact—

WHY JACKSON CAME.

The Chancellor — Jackson came down to promote his own case.

Mr. Johnston — Just what I was going to point out — that Jackson came, and naturally and reasonably the inference may be drawn, as the result of his interview with the Government, Mr. Jackson gets the appointment. Now, I point out to your Lordships that on the question of patronage there can be no such deal as that contended for by my learned friend and Mr. Gamey, because he got none. He asks on the 13th January, 1903, at a time when he says he had promised to give the Globe interview, with that peculiar characteristic that distinguishes the patriot in politics from all other classes of human beings, with that delicacy which one can understand, he asks for the appointment of his brother to the Crown Lands. He asks also, with the same sensitiveness and regard for his party feelings, that the brother should be shifted away out to the wilds of Algoma or James Bay in order that nobody would know anything about it.

TO DRAW THEM OUT.

The Chancellor—He says that was merely to draw out the Government. He did not want the appointment. He merely wanted to see what they would do.

Mr. Johnston—Quite so; people do not ask for things they don' want, and if there had been any drawing out to be done, and if there had been a corrupt bargain, and if he had stood as a man with Government money in his pocket and evidence of the crime, he could have had his brother and father and his mother, and for that matter his mother-in-law, appointed to any office that could be opened.

The Chancellor—There is no evidence of those people being in existence.

Mr. Johnston—Quite so, but if they had been in existence he could have got the whole family; but the thing that he asked for, which would be perfectly reasonable in itself, which would not be a corrupt act, whilst it may be a misfortune to be a brother of R. R. Gamey, it should not be used against him in political preferment, and a man should not be denied the right to preferment and to office because his brother or his father or his uncle happens to be a member of Parliament.

THE BROTHER'S BURDEN.

It may be that the brother may have enough load to carry without the burden of an office. At the same time it was the kind of thing that would have been done in a moment if there had been corrupt understanding between Mr. Gamey and Mr. Stratton. Roads and road grants —another trap, another plot, and he does not get a dollar. The man who had the Government by the throat, the man who could expose a Minister of the Crown, the man who had in his pocket $500 of tainted money, the man who had at that time all the evidence except the piano factory interview, all the evidence which he had on the 11th March to implicate the Government or any member of it—that man can't get a promise of a dollar for roads, but has an evasive letter, a putting-off letter from Mr. Latchford, asking him to make his application smaller—no variation from a single application in the year 1902-3, from what had taken place in 1890-1, or any other years since Confederation. No handling with gloves the man who was a dangerous element; the man that Mr. Stratton must have felt, if his story be true, was a bomb and a piece of dynamite in the midst of the party; no handling that man gently and

NOT JUST AS GOOD

Did you ever inquire at a store for certain articles and get for a reply "We have something just as good"? Did it ever occur to you that "Something just as good" is something the dealer has been able to buy much cheaper than the articles you inquire for? This is true in drugs, fabrics, groceries, hardware, and in fact every line, including silver-plated ware. If you inquire for 1847 Rogers Bros.' Knives, Forks or Spoons, don't accept any bogus Rogers' stamp because your dealer tells you it's just as good.

JOHNSTON RAKES BLAKE IN THE GAMEY CASE.

carefully and cautiously; no request granted by Stratton; no going to the Crown Lands to see what he could do for him there; no going to the Public Works on the other hands, and urging his claims there; no going to the Attorney-General, and saying to the Attorney-General, "I must have this man appointed." He treats him with utter unconcern; and during the six long, weary months of suspicion and plot and counter-plot, and diabolical schemes brooding in the mind of this saintly gentleman from Manitoulin, Mr. Stratton does not take the trouble to answer a single letter of his, except one, and ignores the man entirely, as if he was a purely politica opponent; and yet we have people come here, Mr. Gamey himself, and say that this was all a scheme. "I had Stratton just where I wanted him; I got the evidence and accumulated it, and had so strong a case that I felt justified in making the statement on the floor of the House and coming here to pledge my oath as a further safeguard of its truth."

STRANGER TO STRATTON.

One cannot conceive that a man who was not trusted by Mr. Stratton, a man who was to Mr. Stratton an utter stranger personally, a man in whom Mr. Stratton could not reasonably and confidently repose this confidence, and yet, like the actions of a highway man, utterly careless of consequences and regardless of everything else, Mr. Stratton, we are told, goes to that man and says, "Here I give you $3000 for your vote and support, and for six months afterwards ignores Mr. Gamey, refuses to answer his letters and refuses to keep in confidence and touch with him, and practically says to this man, "I owe you nothing, I am under no obligation to you, do your worst."

NEGATIVE EVIDENCE.

That is the position which I take as to the question of patronage, and I submit to your Lordships that if ever there was a case in which negative evidence is of the greatest value this is the case. If he had got what he asked for I would at once be compelled to submit and admit that would Lordships would be justified in holding that there was some evidence of a bargain; if he had been written to by Mr. Stratton and confidence maintained between them, if the sympathy had been kept up—if all that had been done by Mr. Stratton it might have been said, with some degree of force, that there is some evidence of corrupt motives and a corrupt bargain. Here we have the value of negative evidence, because it is wholly inconsistent with the case which Mr. Gamey seeks to make. These are facts which are not disputed, and the most singular part of the whole case is the fact that Mr. Stratton never once wrote to this man, except on the 2nd of October, 1902, exhibit 8.

The Chancellor—That is about the referendum?

CALLS IT NON-COMMITTAL.

Mr. Johnston—Yes, my Lord. The letter is about as non-committal as a letter could possibly be. The first two paragraphs refer to the appointment of Mr. Flesher and the next paragraph refers to Mr. Boyd and suggests that the Minister of Public Works should speak to him about it; in other words that Mr. Gamey should be consulted as to certain localities in which grants might be made. Then as to the railway passes which form at least one-half of the space of the letter he writes, "I do not know that it would be possible for the members to obtain railway passes just now. If you were to communicate with the General Managers of the C.P.R. and G.T.R., Montreal, they might be able to carry out your wishes in that direction." Your Lordships will note that that was the first communication from Mr. Stratton to Mr. Gamey and with the exception of the addition that was put in at the same date it is the only communication that Mr. Stratton ever had with this gentleman. Mr. Stratton could have no doubt got a railway pass for Mr. Gamey; we know how these things are got by members of Parliament and how other people get them; it is by reason of influence or by reason of holding certain positions, or by reason of many other considerations that may be, or perhaps may not be, in the interests of the railways.

DIDN'T GET ONE.

The Chancellor—It was in evidence that Mr. Gamey did not get a pass.

Mr. Johnston—He applied through Jones.

The Chancellor—It was not in evidence here how he got it.

Mr. Johnston—Here is a letter from Mr. Gamey to Mr. Stratton; he wants to know about railway passes, he wants to know about Mr. Boyd and about Flesher, and Mr. Stratton answers him and if you eliminate the thought of money the answer is perfectly straightforward and innocent.

But take into consideration the supposition that a bribe had been given on the previous month a few days before the letter of Oct. 2nd. Then this letter is wholly inconsistent because no man dealing with a bought member would have thought it safe to have written in that careless, indifferent sort of manner. On that basis Mr. Gamey was the man above all others whom Mr. Stratton was interested in conciliating in whose welfare he should have taken the greatest interest and of course have got the railway passes asked for because that would have cost him nothing. Nevertheless, he does not get them.

At this point the Commission adjourned for lunch till 2 p.m.

Resuming his argument at two o'clock Mr. Johnston said: Having presented the views which I take relating to the question of patronage I come now to deal with the matter concerning which my learned friend had a good deal to say, namely, the matter of the protest. Before doing so I desire to give your Lordships the reference to the evidence of Mr. Gamey.

"Q.—A good many Liberals voted for you, I am told? A.—I got a good many votes.

"Q.—You got a good many so-called Liberal votes? A.—I got quite a few votes.

"Q.—You stated in your letters you knew that a number of Liberals voted for you? A.—So they did, as far as I know. I think they did."

POSITION OF THE PARTIES.

Dealing with the protest one has to ascertain first of all just what the position of the parties was in regard to the filing of election petitions and the relation in which they stood towards the particular protest in question, but before touching upon that I desire to clear up any misapprehension that might exist either in the minds of your Lordships or in the mind of my learned friend as to the Aylesworth letter and the circumstances connected with it. Now, this letter as I have pointed out was in accord with previous statements made by Mr. Gamey. Statements made not under stress of circumstances, not under any obligation beyond that which he felt he ought to assume, and quite in accord with the position which he was taking, not only with his own friends but with recognized members of the Liberal party and to some extent leaders of the Liberal party in their respective localities, but also with regard to utter strangers to Mr. Gamey; and I submit that that letter is not only so in accord with Mr. Gamey's previous position and then present position, but is entirely inconsistent with the guilt which my learned friend endeavours to cast about it.

ON THE NINTH.

On the 9th day of September it is manifest from Mr. Stratton's evidence and from Mr. Aylesworth's evidence, quite apart from Mr. Sullivan, Mr. Boland and Mr. Myers, that Mr. Gamey had an interview with the Minister, because the evidence is uncontradicted that when the matter was talked of in Mr. Stratton's department Mr. Stratton suggested to Mr. Gamey, when he mentioned about his protest, to see Mr. Grant. That was objected to by Mr. Gamey. "Then," said Mr. Stratton, "see Mr. Aylesworth; I will make an appointment with him to see you;" and the time is fixed by Mr. Aylesworth independently of any of the parties concerned in this transaction by his evidence, which shows that on the 9th day of September Mr. Stratton made the appointment with Mr. Aylesworth, casually meeting him in the corridor of the Parliament Buildings, and on that occasion the letter was first mentioned.

ABOUT THE TENTH.

Now, that could not have been on the 10th September. Mr. Aylesworth is positive that it was the day before the letter was delivered to him, and there was no mention of Mr. Aylesworth's name until Mr. Grant's name had been proposed and rejected. Mr. Aylesworth says that he thinks he suggested a letter. Mr. Stratton says that that is the fact. There is no contradiction of that evidence, and therefore the letter did not come from Mr. Stratton as an evidence of a compact or as part of a bargain, but came from Mr. Aylesworth from a totally different motive, namely, Mr. Aylesworth's position as counsel for the Liberal Association of Ontario in dealing with the protest against Mr. Gamey. Mr. Aylesworth says that he was told by Mr. Stratton that Mr. Gamey talked of supporting the Government.

MR. AYLESWORTH'S KNOWLEDGE.

Such an eminent counsel as Mr. Aylesworth is, with his great knowledge of election matters and election trials, it would at once occur to him to say: Well, what evidence have you got that he will support you? Am I as counsel for the petitioner to abandon this protest upon the mere statement that Mr. Gamey thinks of supporting the Government? I should be at once to blame, and would at once be blamed by my clients. You are not my clients, and the petitioner is a client of mine, the Liberal Association of Ontario is my client. Mr. Aylesworth said he thinks as a natural protection, not to the Government, not to the payment of the money, not to any bribe or anything approaching bribe, but in connection with his relation to the protest he suggested getting a letter. Mr. Stratton then says to Mr. Aylesworth, You had better draw a letter, the letter you want — not that the Government wanted, but the letter that Mr. Aylesworth wanted. Mr. Aylesworth apparently somewhat approved of that, according to his own evidence, and then said, You know the position better than I do, and you had better draw the letter up yourself, and Mr. Stratton said, Very well; and the letter was drawn on the 10th September, the following day.

WRITTEN EVIDENCE.

Now, when you bear in mind the fact, as I have pointed out, that that is the foundation of the whole story, and that that is the only written evidence which can be brought here signed, excepting the Globe interview, in any way connecting Mr. Gamey with the Government, it is well to consider very carefully just what the position of that letter is and what it was at the time it was drawn up. When that letter is taken down the following day to Mr. Aylesworth he goes to his office in pursuance of the appointment which had been made the day before, and which, as I have pointed out, could not have been made unless Mr. Gamey saw Mr. Stratton at the Parliament Buildings. Grant was turned to one side, Aylesworth was selected and the appointment made accordingly. That letter would, in the ordinary course of events, if Mr. Gamey's story be true, have been delivered to Mr. Stratton when the agreement was fully carried out, if such an agreement existed. Mr. Gamey feels the importance of that by swearing that he and Frank Sullivan delivered that letter to Mr. Stratton before the payment of the money.

GAMEY'S STORY DENIED.

On that point we have the clearest kind of evidence showing that Mr. Gamey is telling what is not true as a matter of weight of evidence. We have Mr. Aylesworth, who says he thinks that Mr. Gamey took the letter away. We have Mr. Sullivan, who swears that Mr. Gamey took the letter and put it in his pocket and he never saw it again. We have the evidence of Mr. Stratton, who says that he never saw the letter until the 23rd or 24th October. We have the evidence of Miss Jeffries, who was then acting as the Premier's private secretary, during the absence of Mr. Percival for two or three weeks, that she got that letter, and she remembers the letter being received in the ordinary course of business through the post, and the reason she remembers it is that it struck her as being singular that a typewritten letter should have the address, the date and the place in handwriting instead of in the ordinary typewritten form.

WHICH IS TRUE.

Now, these people are all telling what is absolutely untrue if Gamey is telling the truth, and if their evidence is to be accepted as true then it destroys one very serious element which Mr. Gamey had to endeavour to establish in the box namely, "I got my part of the agreement fulfilled when I delivered that letter back into Mr. Stratton's hands." Otherwise there was no assurance on the part of Mr. Stratton that the letter he had prepared was the letter that had been signed. There was no evidence before Mr. Stratton that the contract, according to Mr. Gamey's theory, had not been entirely changed.

KEPT BY THE GOVERNMENT.

Now that letter is kept by the Government; that letter is produced in court by the Premier on his productions. We are asked to believe if Mr. Gamey's story be correct, that not only did the Government allow a letter of that kind, which was evidence of crime, to remain in existence, but they kept it for six or seven months and then produced that letter in evidence of crime against themselves.

Then we have the interview; and just here I shall deal with Mr. Aylesworth's version and with the point suggested by your Lordship the Chancellor as to why Mr. Aylesworth made the remark that he did, which apparently was the one remark on which my learned friend suspended or endeavoured to suspend several arguments. Mr. Aylesworth met Mr. Stratton on Tuesday the 9th day of September accidentally in the corridor; and Mr. Stratton remarked, after some general talk, "Gamey is going to support us." He spoke about the petition against Gamey, saying that Gamey was very anxious about it. Mr. Aylesworth said he did not suppose the petition would be pressed very strongly, if Gamey was going to support the Government; Mr. Aylesworth said also, "What guarantee have you that the fellow is going to support us?" and the reply was "That is just it; what guarantee can we have?"

NO SCHEME READY.

At that time there was no scheme matured in the mind of Mr. Stratton. A very essential part of the agreement, namely, the ensuring of the support of Mr. Gamey, for which he said money was to be paid down, had not been thought of or considered by Mr. Stratton. The suggestion comes from Mr. Aylesworth, who says, "I think I suggested writing the letter. Certainly it was suggested. My strong impression is that I suggested it. He said, 'Well, will you write me such a letter—draw me up such a letter?' I said I could if he wished, but I said, "You know what you want; you had better do it yourself." Mr. Stratton askey, "Would you see Gamey if he came to see you?" Mr. Aylesworth said "Certainly." Mr. Stratton said, "He will probably come to you to-morrow about his petition, and if he does, get such a letter." Mr. Aylesworth's evidence proceeds, "I said 'Very well.' The next day he brought a typewritten letter, saying, 'This would do.'"

LOOKING FOR NUMBER ONE.

Now, all that is entirely foreign to any compact of any kind between Mr. Gamey and the Minister; done with a different motive, for a different purpose, and under circumstances which are quite proper, politically speaking, and done with the approval and sanction of Mr. Aylesworth. Then the conversation takes place, to which I will give references shortly; but at the close, after this man had been trying to borrow money from Mr. Aylesworth, and from what took place with reference to the holding of the letter, Mr. Aylesworth says, speaking in the box, that he was suspicious of Mr. Gamey, and made use of the expression—to whatever weight it may be entitled—because, after all, it was only the impression of Mr. Aylesworth at the time—"This man is for sale." Assume that to be Mr. Aylesworth's conclusion. That proves nothing whatever against Mr. Stratton or the Government; because any of us might have thought from the way he was acting — Mr. Commee might have thought; Mr. Marter might have thought; any of these gentlemen might have reasonably come to the conclusion, "This man is looking out for Number one," that number one being R. R. Gamey.

MR. AYLESWORTH'S VIEW.

Now, Mr. Aylesworth says, as explaining his view and just how the conclusion arose, "Gamey sat between Sullivan and the window, in a strong light opposite me, and I remember I was looking at him all the time, because the whole thing impressed itself—he, a member of Parliament behaving as he was doing, when, according to the Empire newspaper, he was attending the convention of Mr. Whitney's supporters that very day." Now Mr. Aylesworth was confusing what he saw the next day with what had actually taken place, because the convention did not take place until later in the afternoon; and it was on Mr. Aylesworth's mind, now looking back, a very suspicious circumstance—just as we borrow truth or falsehood from the relation of the mind back to a particular circumstance when something has intervened in the meantime. Mr. Aylesworth says then, "It was in my mind — perhaps I am confusing what I thought on that occasion and thought immediately afterwards—it was in my mind that it was in the newspapers of that morning." His attention was called to the fact that it was on the 10th, and he answers, "Then I am confusing what I thought during the interview and what I thought during the next two or three days."

THE EXPLANATION.

That is Mr. Aylesworth's explanation, and an explanation that is perfectly legitimate. So that whether or not Mr. Aylesworth's impression was a true or erroneous one, what had operated upon his mind was the conjunction of the two circumstances—the man acting about borrowing money from a stranger in that way, and the dropping of the petition, the signing of that letter, and the meeting of the Conservative caucus at which he saw Mr. Gamey was present and which did not take place until the following day. Mr. Aylesworth was doing a very natural thing, relating back a circumstance which subsequently occurred, and speaking of an impression which was formed no tat the immediate time but about the time of that occasion. So that Mr. Aylesworth's evidence is manifestly clear on that point, and clear to that extent, because he states very positively that he must be confusing the occasion.

Now, with regard to that interview, we will see just how much truth there is in Mr. Gamey's story. Mr. Gamey says that when he went in Mr. Aylesworth asked him if he wanted him to act for him in his petition. Mr. Aylesworth says, (page 679) that is not so, he says that Mr. Gamey went in there and asked him to act. "I told him I could not do it, as I understood him to have been elected in opposition to the Government. I explained to him my retainer and what obligations it put upon me; and on my saying that I could only act for supporters of the Government, he said, "Well, I am going to support the Government.'" Mr. Aylesworth then said, "That puts a different face on the matter;" and then he deals with the question. Then he is asked specifically in reference to certain other statements made by Mr. Gamey.

MENTION OF A LOAN.

He says at page 684 that what Mr. Gamey wanted was a loan, and that the word "stock" as used referred in his mind to a stock of goods, because he made the remark at the time that he would have a very great difficulty in getting a loan on a stock of goods in Manitoulin, and lending on such security as that. He says, "He never conveyed in the least degree to my mind any impression of shares in a stock company." Now, that is what Mr. Gamey has been endeavouring to show, that it was a stock company, covering up by that name a nefarious transaction. Mr. Aylesworth says that that did not take place. Then Mr. Gamey says that the objection was made to his keeping the letter. Mr. Aylesworth says that that is not so, that there was no objection made whatever. Then, as I said, he is asked specifically certain statements. "Q. — Mr. Gamey says that you (that is Aylesworth) said you would keep the letter; Mr. Frank Sullivan said 'No, there is some question of stock consideration to be dealt with before we give up that letter.'" Aylesworth says that is not correct. At page 692 he was asked, "Q.—After you had said you would keep it, there was some question of stock consideration before giving up the letter? A.—That is not the way it took place." Then he was asked with reference to what Mr. Gamey said in his statement in the Legislature, that Aylesworth said that he had nothing to do with that part of it, that is, with the stock transaction, which was the culpable portion of the deal apparently.

MR. AYLESWORTH'S CORRECTION.

Mr. Aylesworth says, "That conveys an utterly erroneous impression, an utterly untrue impression. That part of our office business, the money-lending part, is another branch of the business. He certainly did not explain to me anything which conveyed to my mind the slightest idea of shares in a stock company." Then he is asked, at page 694, "Q.—Was there anything said about holding the letter until the stock question was settled? A.—No. Q.—Mr. Gamey says Frank refused to do so"—that is, to leave the letter with Mr. Aylesworth. Mr. Aylesworth says, "That is not true." He said that Mr. Frank Sullivan had little or no conversation with them on that occasion. Frank Sullivan says that what Mr. Aylesworth says is perfectly correct with reference to that. Well then with regard to that—this is at the very inception of that matter—I refer your Lordships to at volume 6, pages 2,423 and 2,425. I give your Lordships the reference to Sullivan's testimony, and I only ask you to accept Sullivan's story in this connection because it is corroborated by three witnesses — Aylesworth, Stratton and Miss Jeffreys. Now, that letter manifestly was a tentative document in that sense; the letter was drawn up, not addressed to anyone; it was given as a guide to Mr. Aylesworth; it was completed in Mr. Aylesworth's office by Mr. Gamey. It was sent, as Miss Jeffries said, to the Premier. It was kept with some other letters, and she gives us the details and she says she is not mistaken and cannot be mistaken.

A continuation of Mr. Johnston's address will appear to-morrow.

SUMMER COLDS

Produce Chronic Catarrh.

Madame Isabella Ellen Bevens.

Madame Isabella Ellen Bevens, Life Governor Grand Lodge of Free Masons of England, in a letter from Hotel Saratoga, Chicago, Ill., says:

"This summer while travelling I contracted a most persistent and annoying cold. My head ached, my eyes and nose seemed constantly running, my lungs were sore and I lost my appetite, health and good spirits. Doctors prescribed for me all manner of pills and powders, but all to no purpose.

"I advised with a druggist and he spoke so highly of a medicine called Peruna, that he induced me to try my first bottle of patent medicine. However, it proved such a help to me that I soon purchased another bottle and kept on until I was entirely well."—Madame Isabella Ellen Bevens.

Summer colds require prompt treatment. They are always grave, and sometimes dangerous. The promptness and surety with which Peruna acts in these cases has saved many lives. A large dose of Peruna should be taken at the first appearance of a cold in summer, followed by small and oft-repeated doses. There is no other remedy that medical science can furnish, so reliable and quick in its action as Peruna.

Address The Peruna Medicine Company, Columbus, Ohio, for a free book entitled "Summer Catarrh," which treats of the catarrhal diseases peculiar to summer.

FATAL CASUALTY AT CORDOVA MINES.

Four Men Thrown Headlong Down a Shaft.

One Man Killed, Two Fatally Injured and One Escaped—Inquest to be held Thursday at Cordova.

The accident, which occurred in a 400 foot shaft, resulted in one man Elizer Yeomans, being killed and two others so seriously injured that they are not expected to live. There are two skips in this shaft, east and west, it transpires that the west skip got orders to ascend from the 400 foot level to the 200 foot level, and was at once boarded by four men. When it came up to the 200 foot level it stopped, and the east skip received orders to ascend to the 300 foot level. While this skip was raising the machinery of the west skip got out of order, and it fell a distance of 140 feet. Three of the men were thrown out and fell 60 feet, one was killed, and the remaining man hung on. Thomas Catney, one of the two injured, is married, while Yeomans was not.

Coroner Grey will hold an inquest at Cordova to-morrow, and High County Constable Cochrane has been sent there to summon a jury.

AT POLICE COURT THIS MORNING.

Seventeen Cases Were Disposed of by the Police Magistrate.

At the police court this morning, the Police Magistrate disposed of three dog cases in the usual manner. Seven men were charged with non-payment of their statute labour tax. They were ordered to pay $1.05 and 85 cents costs. Three men were charged with riding their bicycles on the sidewalks. The charges were dismissed. Two claims for wages against a local hotel keeper were discharged. The case of Timothy Kearns, jr., for assaulting Samual Ellery and Rudolph Noble, was dismissed.

EXCURSIONS TO TOWN.

There Will be Two From the North Next Month.

Peterborough will be the objective point of two excursions from the north during June. The Guardian Angel Court Catholic Order of Foresters, of Orillia, will run an excursion to Peterborough on June 9th, when the Provincial High Court Catholic Order of Foresters will convene here. On June 4th the Brechin Branch, C.M.B.A., will excurt here, and the local Branch, No. 30, are making preparations to receive them.

During the past week the town has been favoured with a visit from the Knights of Columbus, who all went away very favourably impressed with the growth and importance of Peterborough. "We are surprised at the size of your town and the hustle and activity noticeable on every side," said a visiting Knight, on Monday. "We have heard a great deal of your town in connection with the great important organization — the Y.M.C.A., and we came to see for ourselves what the society was doing in your midst."

THE DAY AT CAMPBELLFORD.

Many Peterboroughians in That Burg on Monday.

Campbellford held a demonstration on Monday which attracted a large number from the district. The horse races were a feature of the day's programme, and a number of Peterborough horses were entered in the events run off.

"Doc" Johnston's Caper Belle in the .40 class took first; time .30. George Powell's Fred K., took second place.

In the free-for-all Geo. Powell's Sphinxbes carried off the honours.

The victory of Caper Belle was a surprise to the spectators. The track was in poor condition and it was felt by many that the animal would not make the pace in respectable time. Her time was equal to .22 on the local turf club track, and there are a great many who think she has not yet reached her speed, and expect to see her stopping the clock at .16. Caper Belle was sired by Keepsake, a Peterborough animal owned by Burke, and is the first horse raised and bred in this town that has gained notoriety.

57TH REGIMENT'S WEEKLY DRILL

Was Held Last Night in the Drill Shed.

The weekly drill of the 57th Regiment was held last night, but it must be said that the turn out was small; perhaps to balance this, the turn-out of the lights was far too long.

The Sergt.-Major began by putting the men through battalion drill, but this had to be abandoned as the shed was in total darkness owing to all the lights going out. After a long wait the following orders were read "by the struggling moonbeam's misty light, and the lantern dimly burning":—

Headquarters, Peterborough.
May 26th, 1903.

No. 1. Detail of duty for the week ending June 3rd, 1903: Officer for the week, Capt.-Lieutenant McPherson; next for duty, Lieutenant MacWilliams.

No. 2. The following are taken on the strength of the regiment: D Co., Pte. G. A. Howell, H. R. Cuthbertson, G. T. Freeman; E Co., Ptes. T. A. Frost, J. G. Hardwick; G Co., Pte. W. E. Elliott; H. Co., Pte. J. W. Rous and J. J. Quinlan.

No. 3. Leave of absence from parade is hereby granted to Captain Hayes, Lieutenants Matthews and Watt.

No. 4. The regiment will parade at the drill hall on Sunday, May 31st, at 3.45 p.m., and march out at 4 p.m., to attend divine service at St. John's church. The dress will be divine service order serges to be worn instead of tunics. Companies will march in sections, the sections to be equalized.

By order,
D. WALKER, Capt.,
Adjutant.

After the above orders had been read the commanding officer, Lieut.-Col. J. W. Miller, presented Sergts. Ayres and Henderson each with a locket for having obtained the highest and next highest marks in the non-coms. class.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

Mr. George Pope has returned to Toronto after spending the holiday in town with old friends.

Mrs. W. A. Kindred is spending a few days visiting her daughter Mrs. A. F. Saunders, Toronto.

Mr. Braden Fitzgerald, son of Mr. John Fitzgerald, of Smith, has succeeded in capturing the first silver medal in the primary examinations of Trinity Medical College, Toronto.

On Saturday afternoon Mr. David Breeze took a party, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. A. Phillips, Mr. and Mrs A., and Miss M. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. S. Fred Browne, Mrs. and Miss Maud Breeze, up Lake Katchewanooka, through Clear Lake, and up to Stony Lake, to his cottage Glenwood, Breeze's Island, where they spent three very pleasant days, returning on Tuesday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Breeze own one of the prettiest islands in the lake, and certainly understand how to entertain their guests, while their yacht Flash, is one of the prettiest and speediest of her kind on the waters.

THE WAY TO BE WELL.

The Blood Must be Kept Rich and Pure and the Nerves Strong.

Good health is the most precious treasure any man or woman can have. But good health can only be had by keeping the blood rich and pure, and the nerves strong. If the blood is allowed to become weak and watery ,the whole system is weakened and falls an easy prey to disease. There is no medicine can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in keeping the blood rich and pure, and the nerves vigourous and strong. Every dose helps to create new blood, and by a fair use of the pills, pale, sickly people are made bright, active and strong. Here is proof. Mr. Robert Lee, New Westminster, B. C., says:—"Befor I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, my blood was in a very impure state, and as a result pimples that were very itchy, broke out all over my body. My appetite was fickle, and I was easily tired. My wife urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I got half a dozen boxes. By the time I had used them I was completely restored to health, my skin was smooth and clear, and my appetite good."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do not purge—they simply make pure, rich blood. That is why they cure such troubles as indigestion, neuralgia, rheumatism, anaemia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, scrofula, erysipelas, and the ailments so common to women ,young and old. Sold by all dealers or sent post paid, at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by writing the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MR. SANDERSON STILL MISSING.

Details From an Examiner Eye-witness.

THE OVERTURNED CANOE.

Hope for the Safety of Mr. Sanderson Almost Abandoned

Aid. Shortly's Telephone Message—The "Flash"—No News at the Home.

Circumstantial evidence seems to point to the fact that a most tragic canoeing fatality occurred at Stony Lake on Victoria Day, and apprehensions grow graver that Mr. W. A. Sanderson has been drowned, and in a manner which, as yet, is shrouded in mystery.

Yesterday, hours before the publication of the Examiner, all Peterborough had heard the report, received by Alderman Benj. Shortly, that Mr. W. A. Sanderson, the George street jeweller, had been drowned, and all Peterborough was sympathising with the bereaved wife and her four daughters. However, although circumstantial evidence convinces, it never proves, and there is still a glimmer of hope that Mr. Sanderson is yet alive.

The minute details which follow were obtained from a member of the Examiner staff, who assisted in the search for Mr. Sanderson, a search which only seemed to point more clearly to the supposition that Mr. Sanderson had indeed met with an untimely death.

At six o'clock on Monday afternoon last, Mr. David Breeze and a party of friends, started from "Glenwood," for Mount Julian, in his steam launch, "The Flash," which place they left at eight o'clock. On the return trip the launch was steered round the island, as it had too much steam up, and while passing near Mr. Sanderson's cottage met a skiff in which were Mrs. Sanderson and her eldest daughter, who hailed the launch and told the occupants that Mr. Sanderson had left about 4 o'clock in the afternoon in his 16 foot canoe for Crowe's Landing, and not returning at the usual hour she had become alarmed and took the skiff out to hunt for him, however to no avail, and was returning when she saw the launch. Mrs. Sanderson then got on board the launch while her daughter returned with the skiff, to keep the other three children company. The bow of the Flash was turned north-east and the little vessel steamed to the head of the lake, meandering around the many islands, and continually blowing her whistle in order that Mr. Sanderson should know of its approach should he be on any of these. For an hour and a half, that is to say until ten o'clock, the Flash searched, without, however finding any trace of the missing man. On passing her cottage, Mrs. Sanderson was landed and Mr. Breeze returned to Glenwood. Shortly after 10 o'clock Mr. S. F. Brown and Mr. Art Scriver rowed through the inky darkness to Mr. D. W. Dumble's cottage, where they informed the Police Magistrate of Mr. Sanderson's prolonged absence. Mr. Dumble and his son, Fred, returned with their informants to Breeze's Island, after which they visited the Sanderson cottage, where it was decided that they should search the islands. It was finally resolved that Mr. Dumble and his son should go one way while Messrs. Brown and Scriver should take the opposite, which plan was put into execution. Both parties searched diligently all through the still night, which seemed ominously dark and oppressive. Once Mr. Dumble and his son thought they saw a light on the Dummer shore, for which they immediately headed. Here they found a party; a Mr. Brunson and Mr. Dumble thought it would be advisable to follow up the shore to the mouth of the Dead Channel. Mr. Brunson passed ahead and Mr. Dumble keeping very close in shore found the shining bottom of an upturned canoe. Calling back Brunson, they over-turned the canoe, dreading the result, but they only found in it two paddles under the thwart, a cushion and carpet.

This was about 2 a.m. Tuesday, and the night was gradually losing its intense blackness.

The inhabitants of Breeze's Island were notified at 3.30 o'clock and the "Flash" was got out. Steam was up by 5 o'clock and a party consisting of Messrs. D. Breeze, A. Jones, F. Donald and A. Scriver headed for Burleigh, whence Mr. Breeze telephoned the sad news to Alderman Shortley. On its return journey the "Flash" landed Mr. W. H. Meldrum at the Sanderson cottage.

The above are the facts of what occurred between six o'clock Monday evening to noon on Tuesday.

AT THE HOME.

An Examiner representative called at the Sanderson residence on Brock street, with the hope of gaining some additional information from Mrs. Sanderson, who had returned from the lake yesterday afternoon. Although an interview was not obtainable, the information was kindly volunteered that no further intelligence had reached them that was not covered by the account as it appeared in yesterday's Examiner. It was also added, in reply to the reporter's enquiry, that after the dinner hour on Monday, Mr. Sanderson had collected some firewood and prepared the fire for the evening meal. Afterwards, Mrs. Sanderson asked him if he would sleep during the afternoon, when he replied in the affirmative, and the whole family enjoyed an afternoon nap. It is supposed that Mr. Sanderson was the first to awaken and took advantage of the occasion to go out alone in his canoe, while the rest of the family were asleep. That was the last that was seen of Mr. Sanderson by his family. It was also stated that Mr. Sanderson was in the best of health and spirits.

S. A. SELF-DENIAL WEEK.

The Salvation Army's annual self-denial week, which is now so well-known ,will be held from May 24th to 30th, and the members of the local corps will put into practical effect the plans made for the success of the effort.

All who recognize the good work which this organization is doing, both for the spiritual and social well-being of man, are asked to co-operate.

The following information re the missionary work of the army is taken from a pamphlet to hand:—Although the army has scarcely been fifteen years at work among the heathen, considerable progress has already been made and work is being done among the following races:

India — The Tamils, Gujeratis, Bengalis, Bheels, Marathis, Singhalese, Sikhs, Niaks, and Sunthals.

Africa — The Zulus, Kaffirs, Bechuanas, and Mashonas.

Men and money are needed to enable the army to take advantage of the great opportunities opening continually.

CIVIC IMPROVEMENT CONCERT AT KEENE

Held on Friday Evening, May 22nd

Was a Great Success—A Delightful Programme Provided.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The Civic Improvement Association and the citizens in general are justly proud of their entertainment of Friday evening. It was a decided success in every sense of the term. Dame Weather was most gracious in favouring us with an ideal summer evening, so that together with this and the enthusiasm of our people for the work they have in hand, to say nothing of the excellence of the programme, the hall was filled to the doors. The programme as advertised was carried out with the exception of Miss Lottie Bell's violin solo. This talented violinist regretted very much that she was unable to contribute as her violin was in Toronto being repaired. However, the public is assured of hearing her in the near future in the same cause. The two choruses given by members of the choirs were admirably rendered, and the public school children, who are always favourites in their appearances, gave their stirring patriotic chorus, "Hark the Drum" with much enthusiasm and force and it was much appreciated. The recitations were special features of the evening and deserve more than usual mention. Miss Gjerdrum, of Norwood, in "Laska" or "Down by the Rio Grand" vividly pictured the wild life with prairie cattle and their irresistible stampedes. The interweaving of the love-tale led the imagination riot through all the intricacies of human passion in faithfulness and devotion. She was recalled and graciously responded by a humorous sketch "They were there, and so was I". Miss Mary Powel, of Norwood, gave two numbers. Her first, "The Interpretation of three Italian Words" was admirably rendered. She was heartily applauded and to the persistent recalls responded with "What the Winds Say." In her second sketch "The Eccentric Spinster," she excelled herself and showed the result of training coupled with natural ability. Miss Jennie Weir is always sure of a hearty greeting and sympathetic hearing. Her picturing of the old man's views of a college Rugby match was decidedly humorous and she was compelled to respond to vigorous encores. She was equal to the occasion and got the joke on the house in a ten word sketch. The vocal solos in one respect alike excelled. Mrs. (Dr.) Harrison, in her sweet sympathetic voice sang "A Song of Home" and responded by singing "Annie Laurie" which was fully appreciated. Miss Boyce delighted the audience by singing "Love the Pedlar" and was compelled to return, when she gave "My Whip-poor-Will." Both of these selections displayed the remarkable range, sweetness and power of the singer's voice. But in her last number "A Song of the Morning" Miss Bryce fairly carried away the audience. Mr. Mr. McCamus gave "A Stein Song" in his usual good form and was well received. Mr. David Edwards sang a bass solo entitled "Down in the Deep" which delighted the house. Mr. Tom Clither's two humorous sketches "Wheel the Baby Out" and "Tidings of Comfort and Joy" brought down the house and Mr. Clithero will be sure of a warm welcome from a Keene audience again. Misses Humphreys and Hope sang a very pleasing duet, "In the Starlight." The trio by Messrs. Boyce, McCamus and Moore "Miss Brown" was especially good and we hope to hear more of such art another time. The instrumental duet by Miss Laing and Miss Shaw was fully appreciated which says a good deal. The feature of the concert was the excellence of the order. Such speaks volumes for a community. The receipts were $43 which were highly satisfactory. The committee wishes to thank all who so kindly contributed and especially those not of our own village and should fortune so favour these as to allow them to visit our pretty village at any time we trust to show our appreciation of their service in our good causey. Pianiste for the evening was Miss Helen Laing. T. J. Wallace chairman. The committee intend to run an excursion some afternoon early in June (date to be announced later) to Idylewild when we trust a pleasant outing will be enjoyed.

ONEMEE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The 25th May's sports were not what people expected this year. The crowd was very fair sized to witness the football matches between Mount Pleasant and the local team, which resulted in a "tie". Our citizens are asking for old time games and celebrations.

The pulpit of the Presbyterian church was occupied by Mr. Robertson, of Knox College, last Sunday and was very well received. The congregations are anxious to become permanently settled again.

A wedding is announced for Wednesday the 27th May, in the Presbyterian church. The contracting parties are Miss Edith Thornton and Mr. Fred. Sandy. A large assemblage of people will witness this event no doubt.

There were many of our old citizens from Peterborough here visiting over Sunday and Monday and are all doing well in their respective positions. Some were also home from Toronto.

There is now a strong probability of the Bobcaygeon, Lindsay and Pontypool Railway being built. Ties are to be floated down Pigeon River to Bobcaygeon instead of shipping to other foreign points and will open up navigation on our river.

Fred. Rowan and Percy Thornton, two of our local young students at Knox College, are home and intend shortly going out on their respective Mission fields for the summer.

The farmers are looking for rain as vegetation is slow in many places. The seeding has been well completed.

Some farmers have already cultivated their sugar beets, which promises well.

Very Popular With the Ladies.

I have sold as high as six boxes of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets to one of my lady customers during the past year, and two or three boxes to many of them. I have, I believe, sold fifty boxes of these Tablets on the recommendation of one lady here, who first bought a box of them about a year ago. She never tires of telling her neighbours and friends about the good qualities of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. —P. M. Shore, druggist, Rochester, Ind. 10c

Some Lacrosse Notes—Baseball and Other Sports.

LACROSSE.

The Lindsay Post has this to say in a lengthy write-up of the Lindsay-T.A.S. game :—The remaining sixty minutes was all Peterborough's way as far as the scoring was concerned, but nevertheless our boys put up a stubborn fight to the finish. Mr. Jos. Begley, a member of the T.A.S., was the referee, and it is the opinion of the Lindsay team that he slightly favourd Peterborough. Anyway he allowed too much roughness from the start, and if he had been stricter, the spectators would have enjoyed the game much better. The last twenty minutes was very rough and various mix-ups occurred, one ending in blows. Our players all did well for their first work. They lacked team work a little and were not in quite as good condition as their opponents. The green and white, however, were better stick handlers, and the work of the defence men was good.

FOOTBALL.

In the Midland Football League on Saturday the Auburns defeated the Quakers by 1 to 0. The line up was as follows :—

The Millbrook stars went to Bethany on Saturday and played a draw game with the noted football team of that village. At 4 o'clock the referee blew the whistle to call both teams to the centre of the field, and read the general instructions, and warned them of the penalty of infringing the rules or of rough play. At 4.05 the gong sounded and the game commenced. Millbrook took the kick-off. After a few minutes of rough play Bethany managed to get the ball in close quarters to Millbrook's goal and made some clever shooting, but owing to the stonewall defence of Millbrook, were unable to score. Reynolds secured the ball and soon it went to the other goal like a sky rocket, and now was the time for the yellow and white to play and they certainly did make some very close shots, but owing to hard luck were unable to score. In like manner the play continued from one to the other goal until half-time was called. Score, 0—0.

After ten minutes rest the game started again in earnest, each team determined to win. This time Bethany had the kick off and closely rushed the Millbrook goal, but again they were driven back by the strong defence. Inch secured the ball, passed to Clark, who made a hard shot on goal, but owing to the cleverness of Millbrook's goal keeper their efforts were useless.

It was at this period that Bethany began to realize that they were up against it, but the yallow and white appeared more confident than ever. Forsythe secured the ball and passed to Harvey, who again passed to Wood, but in the act of scoring received a severe kick, which necessitated stopping the game for a few minutes. The accident was soon overcome by the treatment of Dr. Grey. Time was again started, there being only 15 minutes time left. After a few minutes hard work, Millbrook's fastest forward man was sent to the fence for five minutes. The remaining ten now at a great disadvantage, thought it was time to be up and doing. By a clever combination the ball was rushed on Bethany goal and stayed in that quarter until time was called. Score 0—0.

SOME HAPPENINGS IN THE NORTHERN TOWN.

Personal Mention and Other Happenings of Interest at Lakefield.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Mr. Michael Hagrigan, of Douro, met with a severe accident last week. He was holding a team of spirited horses in front of the Lakefield Milling Co. when the train came along and whistled. The horses bolted and threw Mr. Harrigan out, breaking several ribs and bruising his head. He was picked up unconscious and Dr. D. Fraser, immediately sent for. It is understood that Mr. Harrigan is doing well and a speedy recovery is looked forward to.

STEAMBOAT SERVICE ON KAWARTHA LAKES ROUTE.

The Steamer "Empress" on Regular Routes—Capt. Reynolds' New Appointment.

In all probability the steamers on the Stoney Lake route this year will give a first-class service. The steamers Majestic and Alert have not as yet announced their time table. The Trent Valley Navigation Co., who now own the steamer Empress, have published their time table for this season. The Empress will continue the Stoney Lake service, but will do so on a regular route and fixed time table. She will leave Burleigh, commencing June 15th, at 8 in the morning, and 1.30 in the afternoon, and arrive at Lakefield at 8.50 and 4.15, calling on the way at Mount Julian, Breezes, Juniper Island, McCracken's, Young's Point. Those are the regular calls, and she will call on signal at Brownscombe's, Sheriff Hall's and Baptie's Island. She will leave Lakefield at 9.15 a.m., and at 6.30 p.m., reaching Burleigh at 12.30 and 9.30. For the convenience of the cottagers of Stoney Lake, the Empress will run from July 1st to 15th, leaving Lakefield each morning on arrival of Peterborough train, and returning for connection with the evening train to Peterborough. On the two Saturdays of this period she will leave Lakefield after the evening train from Peterborough, and return to connect with the Monday morning train for Peterborough. During these two weeks she will call wherever desired.—Lakefield News.

LANG—OTONABEE.

On Saturday, May 23rd, the 7th line team of Otonabee played a game of football with the church team of Bethel. Of course this was no league game, but it showed some uncoached stars, who in their day will make a mark in this large and fair country of ours.

The game was one of the best, as was shown by the score, which was 2—1 in favour of the 7th line team. The goal-minders were players from the word go, and watched the game at all stages with eyes as big as baseballs. The goal-minder for Bethel was, of course, very excitable, and at one time jumped over the goal post, which was no less than 7 feet high, at the noise of the explosion of a firecracker, still for all that he was in the game until all the girls had gone home. But talking of girls, they were here, there, everywhere, and many, I am sure, were very hoarse cheering for their swains, when they would make some dashing play.

Pilky, the teacher was the hero for Bethel, scoring the first and only goal for Bethel in two minutes. He scored from a pass by Fife. Then by a beautiful combination by the twin Weirs, the first goal for the 7th line team was notched. The play then continued very quiet for some time, during which time no less than three were laid out for dead, and the ball lost no less than twice in the skies. About five minutes before time was up Stark, the left wing, by a very severe effort, in which he was knocked down and two ribs broken, secured the ball and passed to Thrussel Goodfellow, the right wing, who scored, gaining the second goal and game for the 7th line team.

As I said before this was no league game, but if the Bethany, Y.M.C.A., or any other Midland League team wants to learn something about the game, let them go down to Bethel, where a game will be played next Saturday, starting at six o'clock.

P. S.—The Bethel team were the biggest and strongest, but the best team won.

As the season of summer visitors approaches, the preparations at hotels and cottages are going on briskly. The Empress being under the T.V.N. Co. will ensure a reliable through service, and the through lakes traffic which increased wonderfully last season, will certainly double again this year with the improved and certain service. It is understood that Captain Reynolds, the late owner of the Empress has been appointed General Passenger Agent for the T.V.N. Co., and one of the many lines of travel that he will certainly develop is the round from Lakefield to Chemong, a trip that properly placed before the Peterborough people will surely be a popular outing. The route from Cobocank to Lakefield requires a passenger agent or some outside official to keep in touch with the public, and this Captain Reynolds will be able to do well. Then in the winter months there is the work of advertising to be done through the Southern States, and the Captain will find plenty of work to do in placing the Lakes before the people of the continent.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

ABOUT THAT COAT

You wear a coat. Why? To keep the cold out? No; to keep the warmth in. What of the body that has no warmth—the thin, poor body that lacks the healthy flesh and fat it needs?

For such we say that Scott's Emulsion provides the right kind of a coat. Why? Because Scott's Emulsion builds firm, solid flesh and supplies just enough fat to fill nature's requirements—no more. That means bodily warmth.

We'll send you a sample free upon request.

JOHN HAGGART,
AUCTIONEER

MR. BLAKE'S CONCLUSIONS IN THE GAMEY CASE.

A Report of Their Findings to be Laid Before the Executive Early in June.

Mr. Blake, in his reply, said Mr. Johnston had referred both at the beginning and end of his speech to the purity and high character of the Government. He did not think that such a claim was well founded, and their Lordships would conclude whether or not Gamey was of the same opinion, and was determined to test the truth of many rumors, and the many facts which must lead one to the conclusion that all was not as fair as the counsel would lead one to think.

Mr. Blake in dealing with Todd's statement about patronage, that preference was given to a Government supporter, said that in Ontario practice all the patronage was given to the supporter, not merely a preference.

The only right conferred upon the commissioners, contended Mr. Blake, was that of taking the evidence and returning it to the Legislature, together with such remarks as fitted the tone of a judicial finding. The House was to be the ultimate forum.

The whole of the Manitoulin evidence, whether given by prosecution or be defence witnesses, showed that Gamey had been elected to oppose the Ross Government, but to support good measures which would benefit his constituency.

Gamey's Politic.

The evidence of Mr. Aylesworth showed that Mr. Gamey wanted money before he gave up the letter. Why was the letter given up if no money was forthcoming? How did the letter get into the hands of the Premier? Money had been deposited by Gamey, and the only man who had an interest in giving him that money was the man who wanted his support for the Government. The uncertainty as to the date of the payment was immaterial. The defence's witnesses had themselves shown that there had been plenty of times and places when the money could have been paid on either September 9, 10, or 11.

The Globe Interview.

The interview had not been demanded earlier, because there had been no reason for it until Mr. Gamey, by appearing on Conservative platforms, showed that he considered he owed the Liberals no allegiance outside of the House. He considered it an insult to the intelligence of the Commission to argue that Frank Sullivan had summoned Gamey all the way from Manitoulin to see a mythical man, who had never turned up, about a Kagawong Lake deal.

Minister of Mines.

Mr. Blake considered the evidence of the piano factory witnesses an absolute negation of Frank Sullivan's evidence. So far as the Minister of Mines reference was concerned, Gamey might have desired to secure the office either in a Reform, a Tory, or a coalition Government. The agreement with Sullivan did not incriminate the Government so that it was not necessary to preserve it. If the statement in the House had been concocted, pages 8 and 14 would not be left in a shape to arouse suspicion; the document would have been copperplate. The very inconsistencies alleged showed the truth of the tale. In reply to Mr. Johnston's statement that the "X.Y.Z." letter was a reply to a letter sent by Gamey to Sullivan, he said there was no evidence aside from Sullivan's to show that such a letter had been sent. Mr. Gamey's trip to Buffalo and the deposit slip incident could be explained from the great strain Mr. Gamey had undergone.

The arguments of Mr. Johnston to minimize the force of Hammond's evidence caused Mr. Blake to ask why Hammond's written statement was not produced in court.

Mr. Blake's Case using

As to Mr. Johnston's statement that the changing of politics had been done again and again in Parliamentary history. Mr. Blake begged to differ. He remembered that in one incident touched upon, the paper with the words "Speak now" was picked out of a spittoon. There was no talk then of a corrupt bargain, of a protest, or of patronage. Mr. Blake said he had no objection to either a Conservative or a Liberal changing his politics, if he received more light, and honestly was convinced that he must change his course. This, however, was not the position in this case.

Mr. Blake agreed that the crisis was a grave one, and would have farreaching consequences, but he said that the honorable gentlemen should have thought of that before.

A Report in June.

Chancellor Boyd said that in bringing the sitting of the Commission to a close, he would announce that the finding would appear in the form of a report, "This report," he said, "we hope to lay before the chief executive of this province during the present session of the House, hardly during the present month, but early next month.

"My brother and myself have had but little opportunity to confer on this controversy during the sittings of the Commission, and some days will be needed for this purpose, but our earnest desire and efforts have been from the outset to ensure a full, fair and unhampered enquiry such a one as will be satisfactory to every thoughtful and honest man. A fair inquest has been kept in view as to the object to be attained, although we may not have gone far into the inviting fields of echics open to us.

"The final words used by a great judge at the close of a great inquiry may be fittingly applied to us: "Conscious that throughout this great inquest we have sought only the truth, we trust we shall be guided to find it, and set it forth plainly in the sight of all men.' More apt, more terse, more striking words could not be used to express this thought and aspiration, and, thus inspired, we hope to make complete dischargo of our duty."

THE ONTARIO HOUSE

Rapid Progress Made on Government Bills.

THE TEMISKAMING RAILWAY.

The Premier's Power Bill Again Discussed, and Mr. Ross Announces That the Government Has No Intention of Selling the Road—Mr. Gibson's Bill Amending the Loan Companies—Poor House Bill.

Toronto, May 27.—Mr. Ross announced in the House last night that it was no part of the Government railway program to hand over to the Grand Trunk Pacific the railway into the Temiskaming country, which the people are building for the opening up of that immense tract of sparsely settled territory.

The Premier's intention that the Temiskaming Railway shall remain a Government road was given to the House on the discussion of the bill to amend the Temiskaming and Northern Railway Act. The Government might consider the advisability of leasing the road for a sum sufficient to pay the bonds issued for its construction, but the Government was not going to give the road away. Nor did he deem it wise to pay for the road out of the present resources of the province. There was money in the bank, but the province had not got through with works of importance.

Mr. Latchford offered a brief explanation of the bill, which provides for the issue of bonds, instead of debentures, to the amount of about $2,700,000 for the construction of the road and its extensions. It was proposed to dispose of timber limits for the payment of the bonds.

Col. Matheson argued that the road would pass through the most valuable pine lands in the province, and the sale of the pine would pay for the construction. The Colonel had been told that there were lumbermen who would build the road for the pine.

Mr. Latchford—Quite so.

Mr. Ross—The pine is worth more than the road.

The second reading of the bill was carried without further objection.

Loan Corporations Act.

On the House going into committee to consider the Attorney-General's bill to amend the Loan Corporations Act, Mr. Downey rose and held up an agreement of a loan company which collects money from children on savings bank deposits, and read a clause providing that the depositor may withdraw after payments have been made for five full years, and that was the method of doing business which he objected to. The Government ought to see that corporations doing this class of business return the amount deposited if for some reason the deposits may cease at a period under five years.

When he called the attention of the Attorney-General a few days ago to this feature of the contract, Mr. Gibson had declared that no such contract existed, and if his attention was called to it he would strike the company off the list.

Mr. Downey declared that he had endeavored to secure a copy of the contract referred to from the office of the Inspector of Friendly Societies, and it was not there, but on Monday he was able to secure one from that source, and found that a change in the contract, had been made providing that depositors may withdraw at any time, but no interest is allowed if money is taken out short of five years.

Colonel Gibson said he had made no such statement. His hon. friend was trying to make political capital rather than to rectify an abuse. There was a provision that a company not complying with the law should be refused registration.

Mr. Carscallen (Hamilton) said that provisions should be inserted in the bill compelling loan companies to publish a list of unclaimed balances, and taking away the privilege afforded by the statute of limitations. He cited a Buffalo company, which erected a $2,000,000 building out of funds that had been deposited with it and forgotten. He knew a man who forgot he had $300 in a bank in Ontario.

Col. Gibson said that the loan companies in their annual returns were compelled to report as to the balances in their hands. He had never heard of anyone not being able to secure money from a loan corporation in Ontario by reason of the statute of limitations.

The bill was reported, with amendments.

The House also went into committee to consider two resolutions of the Attorney-General to amend the "Loan Corporations Act" and "The Land Titles Act."

Premier's Power Bill.

The House went into committee on Premier Ross' power bill.

Mr. Whitney objected to the passage of the clause which will prevent municipalities from collecting a higher rate of taxation than that fixed by the Municipal Act, and held that such clause would practically debar municipalities from going into power development.

Mr. Carscallen and Dr. Nesbitt also thought this clause would render nugatory the provisions of the bill.

The Premier said one good effect of the bill would be the prevention of extortionate prices by the three companies, as in the event of a combine the municipalities could by union prevent high prices. There was nothing in the clause to prevent a number of municipalities joining and asking for special legislation to override it.

Mr. Whitney thought the latter was a vicious principle; the bonus system was a sample of that kind of legislation whereby municipalities were given privileges denied them by the Act. He also objected to centralizing the affairs of the municipality in the Chief Justice, who could not do the work as well as the municipalities.

The discussion was continued after recess.

Mr. Foy found fault with the agreements made with the power companies. There ought to have been something inserted to protect the public from excessive rates.

Mr. T. H. Preston (Brant) asked if some provision could not be made for the regulation of rates charged for power.

Col. Gibson said the varying circumstances of amount of power and distance of transmission required by each consumer rendered it impossible to have any fixed scale, and, in fact, there should be variations.

A number of clauses and the schedule were passed, and the committee rose and asked leave to sit again.

Windsor School Property.

Mr. Harcourt's bill, respecting the property of Public and Separate Schools in Windsor, was discussed in committee, and an amendment inserted, that the report of the arbitrators who are to be appointed to fix the proportionate ownership of the Windsor school buildings between the Protestants and Roman Catholics shall be subject to an appeal to the Court of Appeal.

Poor House Bill.

In moving the second reading of the bill respecting municipal houses of refuge in the Legislature, Hon. Mr. Stratton said the bill provided that every county or union of counties shall before Jan. 1, 1904, erect for such county or union of counties a house of refuge for the reception of indigent persons. There were twenty-two counties which have established institutions of this nature and twenty-one counties which have not. There were at the present time in the county jails a large number of persons whose only crime was that they were poor. Fifty-four persons were confined in twelve cells in the jail at Cobourg, and the statistics of several other counties were quoted in this connection.

The bill was commended by several members, and was given its second reading.

The House adjourned at 10.30 p. m.

Scores of Uses.

While Dr. Chase's Ointment is best known on account of its wonderful control over eczema, salt rheum and piles, it is found to be in almost daily demand in many homes as a cure for chilblains, chaffing, pimples, sunburn, burns, scalds, and each and every form of itching irritated or inflamed skin. It is invaluable in every home and as a soothing and healing application, knows no equal.

RIOTING IN MONTREAL.

Five Hurt and Two Cars Demolished by Montreal Strike Sympathisers.

Montreal, May 26.—Forty-five cars running; two cars smashed; three men and two women in the hospitals; the cars on the line up to 7 o'clock; over 300 lights put out, and ten or twelve men under arrest for intimidation, were some of the features of Sunday's strike record. There was a conflict on St. Denis street at 6 o'clock and another at East St. Catharine street a little earlier, with the results as given above.

Firemen Awed the Rioters.

The serious riots which took place Sunday seem to have cleared the air, and the order of the Attorney-General to allow none of those arrested for intimidation out on bail has had the effect of quieting down things to their normal state. Some 45 cars were run yesterday, and while they were crowded most of the time there were no attempts to interfere with the employees in the discharge of their duty; consequently the last car entered the shops last evening at 7 o'clock, without a single accident being reported.

The turning out of the fire brigade by the Mayor with orders to duck the leaders of any parade or procession that might be formed prevented all protested demonstrations.

COLLINGWOOD IS WITH THE REST.

Valentine Fisher's Terrible Sciatic Pains Speedily Vanished Before the Great Kidney Remedy.

Collingwood, May 25. (Special.)—Every city, town and village in Canada is reporting remarkable cures by Dodd's Kidney Pills, and Collingwood is not behind the rest. There are scores of people here who have used the great kidney remedy and who are not slow to tell of the good results. Valentine Fisher, well known in the town and surrounding country, is one of them.

"I was troubled with kidney disease for thirteen years," says Mr. Fisher in telling of his cure. "It developed into Sciatica, which located in my side so that I could not walk without a cane. I had to use hypodermic injections to morphine to ease the pain.

"I tried different medical men and medicines, with no good results till I was persuaded to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. Three boxes effected a perfect cure. I can recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to all who are suffering from rheumatism or any other form of Kidney disease".

CHILD FATALLY HURT.

Belleville, May 26.—A probably fatal accident happened at Mountain View, nine miles from this city, on Saturday morning last. Mr. John Ralston, his wife and little daughter were coming down the hill at the village when the circingle broke and the shafts dropped to the ground, frightening the horse, which kicked frantically, striking the little girl in the forehead. She fell to one side, and was caught in the wheel, being whirled round two or three times before her father could rescue her. Doctors say the child, who is about fourteen years of age, will never recover consciousness, and may die at any moment.

200,000 Men on Strike.

New York, May 26.—It is estimated that there are close on to two hundred thousand men idle to-day in Greater New York, as a result of strikes and the lock-out by material men and contractors.

Sawmill Burned.

Wiarton, May 26.—P. Newman's sawmill was totally destroyed by fire yesterday morning about 4 o'clock. Most of the lumber was saved.

Emaciated by Kidney Disease

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS.

One feature of kidney disease is the gradual loss of flesh and wasting away of the tissues of the body. Slowly and surely the victim feels strength and vigour ebbing away and realizes his awful condition. The following letter suggests a remedy which has brought back health and happiness to thousands of sufferers from kidney disease.

Mr. William E. Balditch, Port Robinson, Ont., states: "I was for several years a great sufferer from kidney trouble from which dread disease I am now happily free. I had all the usual symptoms in an aggravated degree and at times was completely incapacitated with pains in the back, billousness and headache. I had little or no appetite, insomnia resulted and my condition was really wretched. I became emaciated and grew despondent and hopeless of relief as I had taken treatment from doctors to no avail.

"Finally on the advice of a friend, I began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and, after using a few boxes I was again enjoying health and vigour as the worst symptoms had entirely passed away. When I think of my present good health in comparison with my miserable condition of three years ago I would not go back to my former state for any amount of money. I may be considered enthusiastic over Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, but, considering the benefit derived from them, I have every reason to be."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box. At all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. 5

A Golden Heart

BY BERTHA M. CLAY

CHAPTER XXXI.

The morning air was blowing freshly, the rooks were cawing in the great oaks, the blackbirds were singing in the hedgerowd, the whole earth lay smiling and glad, when Mme. St. Ange, left the hotel to revisit the places she had once loved so dearly. They were all in the vicinity of Deeping Hurst. The old home of her rival was nearest; then came Scarsdale; Beaulieu lay at some little distance to the west, and Fielden Manor toward the south. It was a neighborhood singularly rich in grand, old historic houses. Mme. St. Ange decided to look first of all on the home of her youth—Beaulieu again; she attracted no attention as she went through the streets.

Once more she trod the old familiar paths winding through the grounds round to the side-door. In her mind's fancy she could see her mother's face as she had seen it hundreds of times looking out of the great bay-window, with its wreath of flowers around it, waiting with loving words to welcome her "There is no love like a mother's," Lola thought; and a great, tearless sob rose from her heart to her lips.

Could it be that but a few years ago she had been a beautiful, happy, innocent child? She could remember so vividly the day when Mrs. Chiefden came from White Cliffe, bringing with her Dolores, and how madame had said they were to be friends and to love each other always.

A cruel, bitter smile curled her lip. "Well," she said, "if I have suffered, she had suffered more; and that was all I asked."

Her heart grew hard and cold again. She looked into the old hall; nothing was changed. It might have been only yesterday that she placed the flowers she had gathered on the hall table, and laughed at her own fancy for calling herself a red rose.

She walked back to Deeping. In the High Street she saw a fruit-shop where some fine grapes and peaches were for sale. She was thirsty and faint from fatigue, and she thought that nothing would be more delicious and refreshing than a bunch of purple grapes. She went in to purchase them, and sat down. There was some little delay in serving her, and, while she was thinking that this would be a good opportunity to ask a few questions without attracting attention, a smart, little pony carriage stopped at the door, and a beautiful girl in a blue dress descended from it.

Mme. St. Ange, watching eagerly, with eyes full of pain, fell back with a low, startled cry when she saw the girl's face, and clung to the chair, as though to prevent herself from falling. It was Sir Karl's face under another disguise; there were Sir Karl's clear, blue eyes, with no shadow of guilt or guile in their depths. There were his clustering waves of hair, there was his mouth, at once so gracious and so proud. For a few moments its was as though the sight had stricken her dumb. Then the girl was by her side, and a sweet, silvery voice was saying—

"I should like some of those nice grapes, Mrs. Grey, for a sick woman whom I am going to see."

The low voice was like Sir Karl's. The soft, blue eyes glanced carelessly but kindly at the bent figure in the black dress. If each could have but have known! If some good spirit could have told Gertrude that this was the woman for whom she had sought, the woman with whom rested the knowledge of her father's fate, what grief and trouble might have been spared her.

Mme. St. Ange watched each movement of the graceful girl. She listened to each word she spoke; she could have cried out, "Karl, Karl!" She was nearer losing her senses and reason just then than she had ever been. Karl's eyes, Karl's voice! Her head drooped on her breast; she could not hold it up.

"I am afraid you are ill," said a sweet, kindly voice; and the eyes like Karl's were bent upon her compassionately.

"Thank you, I am quite well," madame answered, coldly; and the young girl drew back with a chilled and disappointed air.

Mme. St. Ange did not hear what else passed; it seemed to her that her mind was all chaos. That some one spoke of Lady Fielden she knew; then the beautiful girl was gone, and she sat there with her grapes before her.

She raised her miserable eyes to the woman who had just served her.

"Who is that young lady?" she asked.

The woman replied coldly. She had been displeased by the stranger's repulse of Gertrude's well-meant kindness.

"That is a visitor of Lady Fielden's—Lady Fielden of Fielden Manor," she said.

"But who is she—what is her name?" cried Mme. St. Ange.

The voice was so earnest that the woman was compelled to answer.

"Her name is Allanmore," she replied. "She is the only child, I have heard of Sir Karl Allanmore, who ran away from his wife and his home many years ago."

"He—what?" asked a voice that was hardly human.

"Ran away from his wife," was the brief reply. "And his daughter is on a visit to her mother's old friend, Lady Fielden."

"And her mother—is she living or dead?" asked madame.

"And Scarsdale?"

Scarsdale is shut up; only the servants are living there; and a great loss it is to us at Deeping. Sir Karl was the best customer that ever came into this town. The grapes are three shillings. Thank you. Good afternoon."

The next minute Mme. St. Ange was standing in the sunlit street, scared and bewildered, and really more at a loss than ever.

She decided on going home and resting; and then, when the shades of evening fell, she would make her way to Fielden Manor. She remembered the keeper's cottage; she could call there under pretext of having lost her way, and talk to the keeper's wife—she could in that manner perhaps learn something of what was going on.

She lay down to rest, but she could not sleep. Karl's daughter! She must see her again. How cruelly she had repulsed her! When the gentle hands had touched her, why need she have shaken them off? Yet—strange contradiction—she hated her!

It was growing dusk when she took the road which led toward Fielden Manor. It had been one of her favorite spots; she knew the grounds quite as well as she knew those of Beaulieu. She would like in the dusk to steal up to the windows and get just one sight of Gertrude in her evening dress, and then she would spend an hour or two in the keeper's cottage. She felt that the key of the mystery would be found there. So, in the falling evening light she stole round among the tall trees where once she had been proud to show her face. In her dark dress, and with her light footsteps, she passed on, making no sound. She knew the road too well to make any mistake, and fortune favored her. The night was so densely dark that it was almost impossible to see even one's own hand. The moon was hidden behind a mass of clouds. Madame hid herself behind the thick leaves and sprays of the creepers which clustered around the bay-window of the dining-room. The blinds were but partially drawn, and she could see into the room. In the dark shadows, with the thick, overhanging leaves, she was sure of not being discovered herself.

CHAPTER XXXII.

It was a pretty home-scene that the miserable watcher gazed upon. The room was large and lofty, with a few priceless pictures, and a magnificent oaken sideboard with gold and silver plate, of which Lord Fielden had been very proud. She remembered every detail, and clinched her fingers as she looked on the silver and glass, the fruit and flowers, gleaming in the full light from the chandeliers. What a comfortable, luxurious room it was! She saw the footmen all on the alert, the butler solemnly occupied at his post, and then those whom she wanted to see entered and took their places. Lady Fielden looking very stately and beautiful even in her old age, was attired in a warm-looking dress of maroon velvet; a cap and fichu of delicate lace completed a most recherche costume. Lord Fielden looked handsomer than ever in his evening dress, and Gertrude bright and beautiful in a robe of white lace and rich, ruby silk, a spray of white jasmine in her golden hair, and in the bodice of her dress.

As her eyes rested on the group, the miserable watcher at the window drew back, unable to restrain the burning tears and bitter sobs that would come in spite of her. Was it possible that she had once been young, beautiful, happy, and beloved, as that fair young girl?

She soon read Lord Fielden's secret; there could be no mistake about it. Harry could not help showing it in every line of his face, in every gesture, in every tone of his voice; it was plain and palpable to every one, and madame's dark, sad eyes were not deceived. Oh, for the days and the love that were past! Love is better than hidden well-water, than amber lying in cold seas, than gathered berries under snow.

Had this love of theirs anything to do with the advertisements? They seemed very happy. She watched them, fascinated; she could not withdraw her eyes. The handsome young lord was attentive to his mother—no want of hers seemed to escape him—but his heart was at bonny Gertrude's feet.

Gertrude, glancing toward the window, by the purest accident, caught the gleam of the dark, miserable eyes and the white hair, on which the light shone. She started with a cry—a cry of fear quite unusual with her, for she was naturally brave.

"Harry," she exclaimed, "there is a face at the window—a woman's face!"

"A woman's face!" he said. "Are you quite sure, Gertrude? It must have been the shadows that startled you."

She had quite recovered from her fright now, and walked at once to the window.

"It was no shadow," she said. "It was a woman's face, with wild, dark eyes and white hair; she was looking in through this pane of glass."

Lady Fielden came to her.

"I think," she said, "you must have been mistaken; no woman could get in here without the servants' knowledge, and they would not admit a stranger." She drew the lace hangings back. "I have no doubt;" she said, "that it was one of the pale passion-flowers that blew against the glass."

Gertrude smiled.

"You know, Lady Fielden," she said, "that I do not suffer from nervousness. I was startled for a moment, but by no means nervous, and I am perfectly convinced that it was a woman's face I saw. I noticed the dark, wild eyes and white hair; there could be no mistake. You will wonder more, perhaps, when I tell you that I am sure those eyes are familiar to me, that I have seen them before."

"My dear child, I am convinced it is fancy," said Lady Fielden, smiling—"quite convinced."

Gertrude raised her hands with a pretty, graceful gesture to her temples.

"Let me think," she said; "where have I seen that face before?"

They looked at her in astonishment.

"Now I remember," she said, "and I can verify my words. I called in at Grey's, the fruiterer's, to purchase some grapes, and that woman was in the shop. I thought she was going to faint; but when I spoke, she answered coldly—almost rudely, poor creature! I noticed her eyes then, how dark and wild they were, and what a weird contrast they presented to her white hair."

Lord Fielden was listening intently.

"Did she speak to you, Gertrude?" he asked.

"No—only a few words. I think she said, 'I am quite well.'"

"Did you notice her voice any peculiarity in it?" he asked.

"No; I cannot say that I did. But you see, Harry, it was no fancy. Was it, Lady Fielden?"

"No, my dear, I begin to think not. Harry, you had better take a couple of men out with you and search the grounds. I feel uneasy."

"I will go first myself," he said; and he did.

But he found no one. Close to the window, however, there was a broken spray of passion-flower and some rose-leaves, as though some one had pulled aside the branches in order to look in. That was the only suspicious circumstance. Then the butler and two footmen accompanied Lord Fielden through the grounds. Mme. St. Ange, from her hiding-place amongst the ferns, saw the reflection of the light that they carried, but they failed to discover her.

Harry was grave and thoughtful that evening. Lady Fielden said that there was no cause for any anxiety; evidently it was a woman who had some idea of begging from them, and who was curious to see the inmates.

"Good-night, Gertrude," he said, "forget all about the woman peeping through the window, and sleep well."

"I do not think I shall ever forget her," was the answer, "but I am not in the least nervous, if that is what you mean, Harry."

He watched her as she went up the broad staircase. She stopped half way, and, looking down at him, kissed her hand to him. He thought how like that fairest creature, Juliet, she looked.

How little they dreamed of what would pass before they would meet again! Gertrude went to her room, and soon forgot her troubles in sweet sound slumber; while Harry, with the new idea growing in his brain, felt more and more sure that there was "something" in it, and determined to go out once more and see if he could discover anything before he retired to rest.

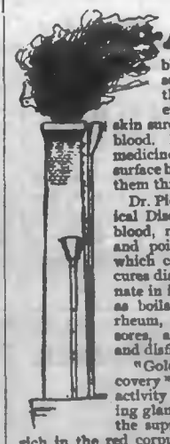
WHERE THERE'S SMOKE

There's fire, the saying runs, and so as a general rule the saying holds true. The fire is unseen, hidden, but the ascending smoke makes its presence undoubted.



Similarly you can argue from eruptions of the skin to corrupt blood. You can't see the blood, but the pimples, boils, etc., which mar the skin surely indicate impure blood. For this reason the medicine which cures these surface blemishes must cure them through the blood.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery purifies the blood, removes the waste and poisonous substances which corrupt it, and thus cures diseases which originate in impure blood, such as boils, pimples, saltrheum, tetter, eczema, sores, and other painful and disfiguring diseases.

"Golden Medical Discovery" also increases the activity of the blood-making glands, thus increasing the supply of pure blood, rich in the red corpuscles of health.

"It gives me much pleasure to testify to the merits of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery," writes Miss Annie Wells, of Pergussons Wharf, Isle of Wight Co., Va. "I can say honestly and candidly that it is the grandest medicine ever compounded for purifying the blood. I suffered terribly with rheumatism, and pimples on the skin and swelling in my knees and feet so that I could not walk. I spent about twenty dollars paying doctors' bills but received no benefit. A year or two ago I was reading one of your Memorandum Books and I decided to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Favorite Prescription,' and am entirely cured."

Accept no substitute for 'Golden Medical Discovery. There is nothing "just as good" for diseases of the stomach, blood, and lungs.

She has been restored to perfect health.

She writes: "About seven months ago I was badly run down in health and became very weak. I was troubled with fluttering of the heart and shortness of breath. When lying down at night I was almost afraid to go to sleep for fear I would never wake up. When I arose in the morning I would feel a little better, but as soon as I started to work my heart would start fluttering, my head would become dizzy, faint weak spells would come over me and it seemed as if black objects were floating before my eyes. I was growing worse every day until I got a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. When the box was half gone I could feel that they had done me good and by the time it was finished I was in excellent health and would advise all sufferers from heart and nerve troubles to try them."

A ROMANTIC CAREER.

Volatile Temperament of Lord Lyveden, Who Comes Shortly to Canada.

The romantic and adventurous career of Lord Lyveden is recalled by his project, in conjunction with Mr. Cumming Macdona, for a visit of members of both Houses of Parliament to Canada in the autumn recess, says M.A.P. Soldier, sailor, steward, purser, actor, nurseryman—Lord Lyveden's volatile temperament has made him all these in turn. He was a son of the Rev. the Hon. Courtnay John Vernon, and was intended for the army. Failing to pass his examination, he enlisted in the Royal Artillery. But the restless spirit of adventure was on him, and after eight months' service he bought himself out. In 1882 he joined Mr. and Mrs. Bancroft's Haymarket company, and appeared as Captain Sebright in "The Overland Route." Starting with a utility part, he rose in two years to second lead, but suddenly he thought he would like to see America, and threw up his part. He made the journey as a saloon passenger, but when he reached the other side his ready money amounted to about £4. His pride of birth did not prevent him from taking the first work that turned up. He found a berth in the Bowery as a waiter in a cheap eating-house, and soon after turned nurseryman in North Carolina. Later, the article says, he became a nurseryman in England, then went back to sea, and to within three months of succeeding to the title he was caterer to a navigation company. M.A.P. concludes:—Lord Lyveden is tall and of fine physique, with features which have determination written upon them. He does not look his age—forty-five—with his hearty, almost sailor-like, breezy manner. His friends have been verily all sorts and conditions of men, and he holds in respect the comrades beside whom he scrubbed in his under-steward days as much as he does any belted Earl of his friends. "They only knew me as Percy Vernon," he once remarked to a friend, "but they were friends worth having—men as straight and true as any on earth. I hope I may do some of them a good turn now."

Younger Brother of Our Governor.

The London Daily Express says:—Mr. Hayes Fisher, M.P., has been succeeded as Financial Secretary to the Treasury by the Hon. Arthur Ralph Douglas Elliot, M.P. for Durham. Mr. Elliot, who is in his fifty-seventh year, is a younger brother of the Earl of Minto, Governor-General of Canada, and has been in Parliament for over a score of years, off and on, but has not previously held office. He has been chiefly known rather as a lawyer and a man of letters. For the past twelve years he has edited The Edinburgh Review, and in his hands that famous periodical has regained not a little of the fame it enjoyed when it could bring from Byron his famous "English Bards and Scotch Reviewers." After a course of study at Edinburgh University, Mr. Elliot went to Cambridge, where he took his B.A. degree in 1862. Two years later he was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple. His M.A. degree followed in 1873.

The Express, continuing, says he first entered Parliament for Roxburgh in 1880, was defeated in 1892, and was returned for Durham in 1898, which riding he has since represented. A polished and gifted speaker, the paper proceeds, Mr. Elliot is a welcome addition to a platform. He has not frequently addressed the House, but in the country he is much sought for on account of his oratorical gifts. He has not always seen eye to eye with the present Government, and has been one of the ciritics of their war policy. While dividing his time between Parliament, the Bar and the editorial chair of The Edinburgh. Mr. Elliot has found time to produce a couple of books, and his "State and the Church" and "Criminal Procedure in England and Scotland" have become well-known works.

New York, May 27th, 9.45 a. m. — Roswell Miller denies intention to cut St. Paul dividend. Atchison operating expenses will work lighter from now on No quarrel between P.A. and Rockfeller Considerable demand for stocks in loan crowd. London bullish on Americans. Banks lost to sub-treas. since Friday $479,000.

DOW, JONES & CO.

It would be rather too optimistic to assert that market will start right off with active bull speculation but there is a generally better feeling particularly in view of many wild reports of last few days having proved greatly exaggerated. It will take some time before the generality of operators recover sufficient courage to take an aggressive position on bull side and it is quite likely that any rally to-day will witness considerable selling which some of large interests were obliged to take this week. Losses have been so heavy among the larger operators and the heaviest selling last few days having come from a source that has not yet been traced will cause traders to be conservative. All of this we believe will be reflected in a narrower speculation and we will drift again into traders' market until general situation improves.

M. & M.

New York, May 27th, 11.50 a. m. — London.—Derby result: Rock Sand, 1; Vinculus, 2; Flotsam, 3;

Market is starting up on large buying by Keene brokers. It has been reported that they have been returning stocks which they have borrowed and this buying to-day looks like this interest making a turn again on long side.

Messrs. McMillan & Maguire, stock brokers, Hunter street, have received the following:—

New York, May 27th, —It is announced that the underwriting of the new Penna stock issues has been closed and that it was successful. Subscriptions amounted to twice the amount of the issue.

HUNTER & SCHUMACHER.

New York, May 27th.—The true reason why the recent decline went to the lengths it did simply is that the market has been undergoing a process of readjustment, the moving forces in which are entirely unaffected by questions of investments values. Over speculative excessive issues of new capital and all the other factors which helped to strain bank credits and bank liabilities to their utmost limit during the two preceding years have during the past year met their natural corrective, (in wholesale liquidation). The point to emphasize now, however, is that Wall Street is certain to go to as much an extreme in its present pessimistic mood as it went to an extreme of optimism while the Western operators were "bulling" stocks so energetically last summer. There is much talk of the gold exported from the United States coming back in the autumn.

A Family Necessity.

Owing to artificial modern life, almost everybody suffers more or less from constipation, torpid liver, and sluggish kidneys, and as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are the most prompt and thorough cure for this derangement, they have come to be considered a family necessity. Hosts of families would not think of being without them. One pill a dose; 25c a box.

To Navigate the Assiniboine.

Winnipeg, May 27.—A boat will start this week to sound the Assiniboine River, from Winnipeg, as far west as Brandon. It is believed that the river bed can be put in excellent condition for freight steamers at little cost.

THE FRIGATE ANSON.

An interesting find was made among the wreckage of the famous frigate Anson, which after a submersion of 95 years was discovered last October on the eastern shore of Mount's Bay, Cornwall. Captain Anderson of the steamer Greencastle, belonging to the West of England Salvage Company, who purchased the wreck from the Admiralty, was directing the salving operations. Almost the first piece of wreckage to come up was a gun ten feet six inches long, with several round shot attached. The Anson is a relic of the navy of Nelson's day. As a line of battle ship she was with Rodney in his famous victory over the French in the West Indies in 1782, and was afterwards commanded by the great Admiral's son. Then she was cut down to a 38-gun frigate, and appeared on the scene once more when the war with France broke out. In the famous Quiberon Bay expedition of 1795 she took a conspicuous part, and in the later stages of the long struggle fought several spirited actions, notably one with the Loire, which was forced to surrender. Though not at the battle of Trafalgar, the Anson was some time previously under Nelson's orders. In 1805, in company with the Arethusa, she accomplished the famous feat of destroying a Spanish frigate and ten gunboats in West Indian waters. The same year, after being engaged with the fleet watching Brest, she was driven ashore at Mount's Bay, her gallant commander, Captain Lydiard, and 50 men being drowned.

British Taxpayers in Germany.

"A British Chaplain Abroad" writes us the following note dated April 2: "Now that the grievances of the taxpayer are under discussion, may I draw the attention of your readers to the hard lot of the British subject resident in Germany, who is compelled to pay income tax in both countries? The German Government, in order to raise money for the fleet which will ono day be used against Great Britain, last year imposed on all resident foreigners an income tax of 6½ per cent., or 1s. 3½d. in the pound, on their aggregate income both in Germany and in their native countries. Thus, last year, I had to pay 1s. 3d. to the British Government and 1s. 3½d. to the Kaiser, on every pound of my income, or altogether 2s. 6½d. in the pound. The result is that the foreign colonies in Germany are rapidly diminishing, and British and other residents are seeking refuge in Switzerland. Even worse than the pecuniary hardship is the knowledge that I am involuntarily contributing to the increase of the Teutonic fleet. and thus rather more than neutralizing the results of my contribution to the British exchequer. One day, I may be placed between the two navies, each of which I have thus helped to support. Now, the remedy is in the hands of the British Government. It wants money; it wants also to relieve the British taxpayer. Let it imitate the policy of our cousins German, and impose a heavy tax on all Germans in England, until the corresponding impost on British subjects resident in Germany be removed. The Teuton, like some other races, understands a firm policy of retaliation, whiles he is apt to mistake conciliation for weakness.—London Chronicle.

The Howieson's Service.

In connection with the King's visit to his Scottish capital, it is suggested to revive the ancient ceremony of the presentation to the Sovereign of a silver ewer by the present-day representatives of the doughty Jock Howieson, who rendered such yeoman service to James V. when that wandering monarch was hard beset by gipsies at Cramond Brig, near Edinburgh. After putting the disguised King's assailants to flight Howieson, who was a miller, was invited to visit Holyrood Palace on an early day and inquire for the "guid man o' Ballengeich." Howieson did so, and duly appeared at court, where he found his ally in the tussle with the gipsies. He asked to be shown the King, when Ballengeich told him to look for a man wearing his hat over his head. After inspecting the courtiers, Howieson, scratching his head, said, "The King must be either you or I, as we are the only persons here with their hats on." Howieson was rewarded with a small estate held from the Crown on presentation of a silver ewer to the Sovereign whenever he visited Edinburgh. The last occasion on which the ceremony was held was when George IV. visited Edinburgh.

Are You Fond of Tomatoes?

Most people are—and if you like them early, smooth, hard and almost seedless, plant "Spark's Earliana,"—earliest and most prolific tomato that comes on the Boston market. I am selling these famous seedlings, well started, at the rate of three boxes for a quarter. Cabbage plants —Henderson's Reliable, and other high bred garden plants—the most for your money at my greenhouses. Flowering plants, ready for transplanting, cheapest anywhere. Sample Cobb's Asters, a special variety, the best that grows. Jos. H. Cobb, Aylmer street greenhouses; phone 132.

STRIKERS MULCTED.

Seventeen of the Striking Car Men at Montreal Were Fined.

Montreal, May 27.— The Montreal Street Railway Company operated about 70 cars yesterday. There was no opposition.

The men arrested on Sunday for lawlessness are not receiving mercy in the courts. Yesterday seventeen were fined from $3 to $10 each for such offences as shouting "Scab!" and unlawful assembly, and Joseph Limoges, a striker, who was once a policeman, got six months at hard labor for hitting an officer with a sign which he tore from a passing car. Ten others were remanded for investigation, and warrants were issued for further arrests.

BROTHER JONATHAN.

Will Establish Alaskan Coaling Station as Precautionary Measure.

Washington, May 27. — Admiral Dewey, as President of the General Board, has recommended the immediate establishment of a coaling station at Dutch Harbor, Alaska, and the erection there of a coal depot with an initial capacity of 5,000 tons. The estimated cost of the work is about $51,000. The President has approved the plan and preliminary steps in the work have been taken already.

BLOWN UP AND KILLED.

Workman Tapped Dynamite and an Explosion Occurred.

Montreal, May 28.—J. Lawrence Sutherland, a well-known Nova Scotia railway contractor, was instantly killed at River Rouge, seven miles from Labelle, last night.

Frederick Migneron, a boarding house keeper, was blown into the air and came down at his wife's feet, a corpse.

Telsphore Michaud, one of Sutherland's foremen, was so horribly mutilated that his death at Notre Dame Hospital, in this city, is hourly expected.

The disaster was the result of the carelessness of Michaud, who, in placing the dynamite in a cut in the rocks, now being torn asunder, and through which the Northern Colonization Railway extension is to pass, failed to notice that a quantity of rock crumbs had fallen in upon the sticks of dynamite. In order to dislodge the dynamite, he struck it with a "tapping rod," and the next moment a fearful explosion took place.

BILL NEXT SESSION.

Premier Ross' Temperance Announcement in Legislature.

THE REASONS FOR DELAY.

Nothing Could Be Gained Now If the Bill Were Passed as New License Year Has Been Begun—Capt. Sullivan's Case Becomes More Serious—Discussion of Iron-Smelting Bonuses.

Toronto, May 28.—In the Legislature yesterday two very important subjects were debated, namely the question of dealing with the liquor traffic and the proposed bounty to the peat fuel industry.

Missing "Cap." Sullivan.

Public Accounts Committee reported that Capt. Sullivan could not be got before the committee.

Col. Matheson moved that he be summoned to attend on Tuesday next.

Premier Ross was not seized of the facts and the motion stood.

Delay in Liquor Bill.

Dr. Barr moved for copies of all correspondance between the Government, any member, or department thereof, and any person or persons respecting any temperance legislation promised by the Government in the speech from the throne.

Dr. Barr, in speaking to his motion, said he moved it to ascertain the position of the Government on this question.

Premier Ross Replies.

The Premier agreed that the question was an important one and should be considered calmly and dispassionately. He did not know that anyone questioned the bona fides of the Government in promising to bring down legislation of an advanced character, and he thought the course of the Government last session in submitting the referendum merited the approval and not the condemnation of the temperance people. The Government had given the people the opportunity to express their opinion on the measure on the ground that they were the final judges.

The promise of temperance legislation this session was made in perfect good faith. A bill had been drafted for the purpose of improving the license laws, and it had been the intention to submit it to the House, but when charges of a serious nature were made against the member of the Government who has control of the license department it was deemed proper to withhold the bill for this year. The bill was drafted under the supervision of the Provincial Secretary, but his attendance was required at the investigation, and he was, therefore, prevented from giving advice to his colleagues on the measure. Under the circumstances it was the reasonable and proper thing to delay bringing down the bill.

The original intention was to bring the bill down early in the session, and deter its third reading until the latter end, in order that the people might have a full opportunity to acquaint themselves with its provision.

No good could be accomplished by bringing down the bill at this late season, as another license year had been entered upon, and, in all probability, the House would assemble in January next year, affording ample time to put the measure through before the end of the license year. Would the country expect them to bring down a measure so important at so late a season? The Government had merely postponed the fulfilment of the promise made to the temperance people. He would deal with the question rationally and patiently, and was willing to trust himself to the good sense of the people. While the motives of the temperance advocates were good, they were not giving the question the same consideration as the men who are responsible for legislation. He would be very sorry if any hasty action would prejudice such an important question.

The Premier said he was not at all disappointed in the result of the referendum. It must have done a great deal of good, and the expression of the people given at the polls would assist any Government in promoting advanced legislation.

Messrs. Crawford and Clark continued the debate, and the order was passed.

Flea For Peat Fuel Bounty.

Mr. Hoyle moved for a return of the amount paid by the Government for the encouragement of the pig iron industry. He said the province was committed to the bounty system. There were seven iron furnaces in Ontario, and he found that in 1900-1 there was given by the Dominion Government to these furnaces no less a sum than $259,158.60, and by the Province of Ontario $25,000, making a total exceeding the amount paid for labor by these industries by $10,000. Yet pig iron could be bought in New York for $19 to $21 a ton, to $20 to $23 a ton in Ontario. Mr. Hoyle said he was a protectionist, but he doubted if it would be wise to continue the bounty after it expired next year. The bounty on pig iron was protection run mad. The industry has been overfed.

He suggested that the bounty be applied to fostering the peat fuel industry. In Beaverton there was a peat fuel industry which was no longer an experiment. This year it was expected the Beaverton enterprise would produce 8,000 tons of peat fuel and the proprietor had perfected machinery which made it possible to operate in all seasons.

Not Intended to Be Permanent.

The Minister of Crown Lands said that when the Government set aside $125,000 for the encouragement of the iron industry. It was not intended that the bounty should be permanent. He believed the Government adopted a wise policy in respect to the industry and he quoted figures to show the growth that had been brought about by the encouragement held out.

The Bureau of Mines had taken an interest in the peat enterprise. Large sums of money had been expended on the industry, but the results had not been as successful as the promoters had expected. He assured Mr. Hoyle that anything that could be done to develop the peat industry would be considered by the Government. It was for the Government to consider whether the bounty on pig iron should be continued after the amount voted had been exhausted.

Mr. Russell said the amount expended for wages at the furnaces was but a small proportion of the total wages paid in connection with the industry.

Mr. Conmee would regret very much if the Government should discontinue the bounty to this industry. It was one of the best pieces of legislation the Government had enacted.

There was no objection to the order, and it was declared carried.

The Temiskaming Road.

Mr. Powell (Ottawa) moved for a return of copies of all correspondence, papers and documents which have passed between the Government, or any member, or official thereof and the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway Commission, in any way relating to the act governing the same, or to any amendments, or proposed amendments thereto.

Mr. Latchford said the question of leasing the road to the Grand Trunk had not been under consideration, but under the act the commissioners were empowered to allow any road running powers. It was not correct to say that the cost of the construction would be as much as $30,000 a mile. Mr. Latchford made an explanation of the working of the act, which satisfied the mover, and the motion was withdrawn.

Other Matters.

Col. Matheson's motion that all papers concerning the defalcation of Alfred Macdougall be referred to the Public Accounts committee for investigation was allowed to stand until there is a full House when the Premier will demand a division.

The Premier announced that he would ask the House to consider on Thursday the resolutions adopted by conference of Provincial Premiers at Quebec.

A number of bills were considered in committee and others were read a second and third time.

A number of questions of local import to members asking them were answered, and the House adjourned at 6.45.

A PERTH WHIRLWIND

Houses, Barns and Orchards Levelled to the Ground.

STRIP OF FOUR MILES LONG.

Everything From Thirty to Forty Rods in Width Levelled in Its Path—Mrs. Gamble Seriously Injured—Heavy Losses Reported—Tornado in Essex County Causes Very Considerable Damage.

Listowel, May 28.—A funnel-shaped cloud swept over the northern section of the Township of Mornington, between 4 and 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, levelling everything in its path. It was the most destructive cyclone ever known in this country, and before it had spent itself, nearly every structure within an area 200 yards wide and four miles long, was partly or completely demolished. A schoolhouse, two farm houses, and five barns were demolished by the wind, and the wife of John Gamble was seriously injured by being struck by a flying piece of debris.

The storm struck a point about eight miles south of Listowel. The barns of Arthur Dowd and Levi Watson were completely destroyed, and scattered in all directions.

The most satisfactory feature of the affair is that the storm struck after school hours.

Telegraph communication with Carthage and other villages in the vicinity of the storm area is cut off, and the full extent of the damage cannot be ascertained.

Damage Near Elora.

Elora, May 28.—Between 5 and 6 o'clock Tuesday afternoon a cyclone passed over a section of the country about three miles northwest of this town. It seemed to take a narrow strip, and, in its course, unroofed part of the barn of Charles Hays, carrying it a distance of sixty yards, and depositing it by the house.

South Essex Swept.

Amherstburg, May 28.—About 4 o'clock yesterday a small tornado sweeping everything before it for a width of about 60 rods, passed through the district about half a mile south of here, going in a northeasterly direction.

Wm. Lepain's drive sheds and implements' shed, containing his farm implements, including buggy, binder and many other things, are in a mass of fuins, levelled to the ground. The loss is about $1,000.

The next in the path was the large new barn of John Gould, containing his buggy, farm implements, hay and grain, and the residence of David Hall. Both were completely destroyed. John Gould and his brother, George, miraculously escaped with their lives.

David Hall's residence was two-storeys. The upper storey now lies scattered here and there through the fields.

The speed and force of the tornado was terrible, everything went instantly when struck.

Stopped the Cars.

London, May 28.—During the storm Tuesday afternoon, eight cars used on the regular lines of the street railway in the city and two of the Springbank cars were damaged by lightning and are now under repairs. The storm was so severe that the plant of the London Electric Company had to be closed down for a time.

A Weeping Tree.

A species of tree found in Oregon, Washington, Montana and British Columbia continually drips pure and clear water from the ends of its leaves and branches. The tree is a species of fir. The "weeping" is attributed to a remarkable power of condensation peculiar to the leaves and bark. The tree drips as copiously on bright and clear as on cloudy days.

MR. JOHNSTON DISSECTS THE GAMEY EVIDENCE.

His Lucid Argument of the Globe Interview and Independent Support Phases of the Case.

No Corruption, No Patronage No Support— Without Money the Correspondence, Interviews, Etc., are all Innocent— The Review Not Concluded.

Following is the continuation of Mr. Johnston's argument in the Gamey-Stratton case Friday afternoon:—

MYERS' AND BOLAND'S STORY.

Well then, Mr. Gamey is again contradicted by Mr. Myers, and Mr. Myers' and Mr. Boland's story corroborate Mr. Aylesworth's recollection of it and indeed the facts about which there can be no dispute, because Mr. Aylesworth is able fortunately to fix the time so definitely that there can be no mistake. Mr. Boland says that on Wednesday morning the 10th of September, he was in Mr. Stratton's office. He fixes that by producing and filing a letter dated the 9th day of September. He says, I have my books here and I will show you the entries in those books if you desire to see them. They were not called for, no one disputed apparently, Mr. Boland's recollection of the matter as to date. He says that the letter was dictated in his presence to Mr. Myers, who took it out, brought it back, a slight amendment was made to it, it was taken back the amendment was put in, and that he left Mr. Stratton shortly afterwards to go to the hall to see Mr. Aylesworth.

MR. JOHNSTON'S IF'S.

Are all these people telling what is false? Because if they are, then it may be possible that Mr. Gamey is telling the truth. If Mr. Gamey is telling the truth those people are all telling deliberate falsehoods. Now that letter, as I have pointed out, does not deal at all with the question of protests. The great anxiety of Mr. Gamey was the protest apparently, and yet he does not stipulate in that letter, "If I support your Government will you withdraw the protest?" His discussion in that letter is directed to the question of patronage; and it could not be an arrangement with Mr. Stratton regarding the protest, because Mr. Stratton's position was this—Mr. Stratton only attended 3 meetings in the early part of June, concerning the question of protests, and his position was not with regard to the constituencies that were to be protested, but rather with regard to those that were to be put upon the safe ground of no protest, and the meetings that he attended were meetings that were attended by representative men from the Opposition, Mr. Nesbitt and one or two others.

DETERMINED ON FIFTY.

At those meetings some twenty or thirty on each side were struck out from the list of constituencies which had returned members of the Legislature. In other words, something like fifty were determined upon by the gentlemen that should not be protested, and when Mr. Stratton's intervention in that matter was ended his connection with the protests entirely ceased, and one can understand that. These gentlemen could not stop a protest, but what they could do by an amicable and mutual understanding was to say, "We shall not protest Mr. Whitney, Mr. Ross, Mr. Foy, Mr. Stratton and so on. Others we don't decide upon must take the ordinary consequences and must be left in the hands of the Liberal Association and in the hands of the private petitioner." Now, the third meeting was early in June, long before Mr. Gamey became a factor in provincial politics. Mr. Grant was acting for the Liberal Association, and not for the Government, and that must manifestly be so, because in most of those cases the petitions are filed by the local solicitor, and Mr. Grant apparently had charge as the agent, or principal, if you wish to call him so, of the solicitors throughout the country who were conducting the protests against the Conservative members.

MR. GRANT'S POSITION

is defined in vol. 6, page 2,410; and after that third meeting, which took place early in June, there is not the slightest shred of evidence to connect Mr. Stratton with the protests or with anything else in connection therewith. No evidence has been adduced here to show that Mr. Stratton intervened with regard to a single protest. No evidence here that Mr. Grant ever reported to Mr. Stratton. On the contrary, the evidence is abundantly clear that Mr. Stratton's connection was entirely severed, and that the matter was left in the hands of the Liberal Association and Mr. Grant and the local petitioners. Now, leaving out the question of all other protests, and confining myself exclusively to the protest from Manitoulin, let me see what was done. The protest was entered by Mr. Fraser, the defeated candidate. The deposit was put up by Mr. James Conmee. There was a reason, no doubt, for that. James Conmee represented one of the western constituencies, one of the new group of newly formed constituencies. These men were acting apparently in self protection and self-defence. They may protest my election: I will protest Manitoulin. They may protest Western Algoma. I will protest Eastern Algoma—as the case might be.

NOT FELT OR SEEN.

Mr. Stratton's hand is not felt, is not seen, is not heard of, in connection with the Manitoulin protest from beginning to end. After that meeting of the 10th September, Mr. Aylesworth's hand is not seen or felt in connection with the Manitoulin protest; but the condition of things having changed, and the matter having passed into other hands and under different conditions, the only men who have to deal with the matter are the representatives of the respective parties, Mr. Grant and Mr. Bristol. No instructions from the Government although the records were ransacked from cellar to garret, although every effort was made to connect Mr. Grant with the Government in some way or another; there is not a particle of evidence adduced before your Lordships to show that the dealings with the Manitoulin protests had any relation whatever to Mr. Stratton.

NOT ENOUGH EVIDENCE.

On the contrary, what do we find? Some time about the 19th or 26th December, and after Mr. Grant had received information from Mr. Staunton, whom he had engaged to see what evidence there might be against Mr. Gamey; and having come to the conclusion that there was not sufficient evidence to warrant him in going on—and so he pledges his oath, and so he remains uncontradicted—he has an interview with Mr. Bristol, who was acting for the Conservatives in the matter of the protests. Now, both of these gentlemen are, so far as we know, very honorable members of our profession. No attack is made upon Mr. Grant or upon Mr. Bristol in regard to their management of the protests, except that my learned friend seems to think that that which has been done in my office, and perhaps in my learned friend's own office, is now to be made the subject of horror because it suits the Gamey purpose so to make it.

THE SAW-OFF SYSTEM.

Well, now, that is not a fair way of putting the matter. We have to take things as we find them, and if that is recognized, without any corrupt motive existing, as being a proper method of dealing with the matters, then there is nothing materially wrong in regard to it except this that if a petitioner objects then it becomes a serious question. But the law provides that if a petitioner objects no power, no lawyer, can interfere.

Chief Justice Falconbridge — You are referring now to what is commonly known as the saw-off?

Yes, my Lord, and I don't desire to put myself upon a higher plane than my neighbours, and I don't want to assume any virtue that is not common to humanity.

MENTIONS IMPROVEMENT.

The Chancellor—Don't you want to have things improved?

Mr. Johnston—I don't know that it would be very much of an improvement; at least there is always this safeguard, if a party thinks it has a sure case then you may be pretty sure that that constituency is not the constituency that is being sawed-off.

Mr. Justice Falconbridge—Suppose a political party happens to know that there is a sure case against them—?

Mr. Johnston—And the other party does not know it, that of course would change the matter entirely. The party that my learned friend represents—

Mr. Blake—That is only some more of your suspicions.

Mr. Johnston—Well, I have a very grave suspicion on that point. When they find that they are not in a position to prove their case or find that through financial reasons, or perhaps through other reasons, that it would be well to drop the protest they ought to be permitted to do so, and it would be a monstrous thing if all the protests that were filed should go to trial because if they did for four or five years in the Dominion as well as in the province they would have to get a new set of judges for the express purpose of trying all these protests.

MR. FRASER'S PROTEST.

What took place? This is very important. Mr. Fraser, who is represented by Mr. Murray, a local solicitor of Gore Bay, files the protest and Mr. Conmee puts up the money for the deposit and the case goes on. No doubt there was a reason for Mr. Conmee doing this. We have Mr. Grant's testimony, and if this is wrong, it is open to my learned friend to call Mr. Bristol, and refute it, but the whole thing is honestly done, as honestly done as politics can be nowadays. "We started to make a list and the list was made out and we were both sparring a little for the agreement to abide by that list was not reached at the first interview." Then Mr. Grant fixes the 26th on account of the meeting on the next Friday. Mr. Grant goes on to say that "Mr. Bristol asked if I would drop West Hamilton and said how will South Bruce do you? I said all right, put that down on the list. Then he explained to me that he had promised Mr. Carscallen that he would go along with Mr. Hendrie so that made East Hamilton the next one on the list. Then we put down South Norfolk against East Hamilton and they then proceeded to consider the Doctor Dickenson case in South Wentworth, and I put that down, and I said, what are you going to put against South Wentworth, and Mr. Bristol looked over the list, and said why not put in Manitoulin. He explained that he knew Mr. Gamey, that he was a friend of his, and I said all right, put down Manitoulin, and he went that way all through the list. There was evidently a relationship existing between them either that of partners or as solicitor and client. And Mr. Bristol is not called to even modify Mr Grant's statement.

MR. GAMEY'S STATEMENT.

The Chancellor—Look at the statement of Mr. Gamey on this point. He speaks of the letter but there is no complaint with regard to Mr. Grant according to the evidence.

Mr. Johnston—It was intended to include that at any rate. He is asked then particularly about the Aylesworth letter and his answer is that he never heard of it, and knew nothing of it.

The Chancellor—As I read this document there is really no complaint made about the dismissal of the protest; the complaint is about the money and about the patronage, but on the evidence brought in it has to be dealt with.

Mr. Johnston—I understand that. So we have the protest which is the burden of my learned friend's complaint with reference to the letter of the 10th of September, even going so far as to almost implicate a man so eminent and so correct as Mr. Aylesworth, as to his being introduced in a precautionary manner into the dealing with this protest.

THE LITTLE SMILE.

Now, Mr. Blake in his argument yesterday, of which I have the extended notes, in reading what Mr. Aylesworth says, "I know that there was an election protest against him," and there he adds with a little smile between them, "it is very likely to be pressed against you," and he goes on to speak of the Government's pressing an election petition against one of their own supporters. It shows how completely this matter was in the hands of the Government if that petition was dismissed without a word passing between the persons who followed it, and the persons who were acting for him in the matter. We find also this statement, "We want this seat and there is no use in your saying anything more about it, and Mr. Aylesworth very likely follows that up." Now, is that fair to Mr. Aylesworth, or is it similar to the other methods that have been adopted to substantiate this prosecution? Your Lordships will find that in the addresses of counsel, pages 3,224 and 3,225, and I say that a more unfair and unreasonable way of putting evidence it would be very hard to conceive, because the evidence of Mr. Aylesworth, Mr. Grant and of everybody else is entirely opposed to any such construction being put upon it.

SAYS PATRONAGE IS GONE.

Then, the patronage is gone, because he never had it, and the protest is the only thing upon which my learned friend can stand in his argument; and in order to do that it is stated in argument that certain things took place which did not in fact take place; not intentionally—I am not accusing my learned friend of anything of that sort—but by some one who prepared the material for him in collecting the evidence, he has given an entirely erroneous impression of it.

That being disposed of, I come now to the copy of the 27th of October, the copy of that letter, and I desire to say a few words about that—this is Exhibit 13—before I pass on to another branch of this discussion.

The Chancellor—When do you say the letter came out of the hands of Mr. Gamey?

Mr. Johnston—That day. It was mailed and reached the buildings in due course, because if it had not it could have been noticed that it was of a much earlier date, but there was nothing to call the attention of the parties in the Attorney-General's office to it. That is the nearest I can come to that.

The Chancellor—The banks had the money that day.

Mr. Johnston—He got it either on the 10th or the 11th of September.

THE MISSING LEAVES.

The Chancellor—The leaves which are missing in the book at the Crossin factory are said to cover the 10th and 11th of September.

Mr. Johnston—Oh, yes, more than that.

The Chancellor — Your theory is then, that this letter passed out of Mr. Gamey's hands or that he held it till the next day.

Mr. Johnston—And I hope to show according to the evidence that that is not true, and I say more than that, that the evidence of Messrs. Boland and Myers and Mr. Stratton also that the statements made are quite wrong in regard to that transaction.

THE DATED COPY.

Now, a copy of that letter of the 10th September, which is dated October 27th, is a matter to which I would like to call your Lordships' attention for a few moments. If there was no reason given for the production of this letter bearing a date subsequent to the 10th September, your Lordships might say, Why this letter? And I think Mr. Stratton would be fairly called upon to answer a question of that kind. But we have the very best reason that could possibly be given. We have the fact that on the 10th September, the day having the same date as the letter, in which, if my learned friend's language may be used, he bartered and sold himself in the manner of a beast in the market, then it would not look well that he should be coquetting with his former friend on the very day that he had by some evidence at any rate, expressed a desire to support the Government. One would think that that reason would occur to a much less sensitive man than Mr. Gamey. At any rate it did occur to him, according to Mr. Stratton's version.

THE CHANGE IN DATE.

There was no object in changing the date of the letter so far as Mr. Stratton was concerned, because the evidence has proved beyond all doubt that the reason given by Mr. Gamey in the box, namely, that it had relation to the dismissal of the petition, is an absolutely false reason, false to the knowledge of the man who made it. If these different witnesses whom I have named are telling the truth, then the dismissal of the petition came without reference to Mr. Stratton, and without any of his handiwork, and therefore the giving of a letter of a later date could in no way relate to the question of times regarding the election petition. But see how urgent the other reason is: A man leaving his party, to some extent, at any rate, exercising an independent right to support the Government, desires to clear the way for himself when explanations have to be given.

AT THE CAUCUS.

He knows that on the 10th he was at the caucus, on the 11th it became public property, and he says "in order to protect my own sense of decency I think it would be better to post-date that letter and have it come from Gore Bay, or have it come at a later date than the 10th September." Why Gore Bay? Why Gamey at all? He had seen Mr. Stratton on the 23rd October; they could have dated the letter there and then and they could have left that letter with Mr. Stratton or returned it to the Premier, and, if the reason given by Mr. Gamey be correct, the letter of the 10th September would have been destroyed.

Now, what does this letter of the 27th October tell us? It tells us stronger than any argument than mine could make it, the simple, innocent interlineations show far more strongly than any words, that Mr. Gamey's whole object was to give an independent support to any government in power. The letter is an exact copy of the 10th September excepting in two instances, the very hinge upon which the door turns, the pivot upon which the whole action of Mr. Gamey depends:

THE ADDED WORDS.

"If you have a reasonable majority when the House meets," are the words aded. Again, "I have decided to give you my support during the present Parliament, if you have a reasonable majority," marked "strictly private and confidential." There we have the key-note to Mr. Gamey's position, exactly what he said on the platforms, exactly what he said during the summer, exactly what he said throughout his whole career, from the time he became member for Manitoulin up until the statement in the House. "If you have a reasonable majority I will support you; if you have not I will support the other side, because they will be in power." If we wanted stronger evidence than that we could not possibly expect to get it, even from the mouths of the multitude of witnesses.

SIGNED BY HIS SON.

Then he says, I had this signed by my son, a young lad of sixteen, not resembling his father's signature; and he says I stooped so low in the pursuit of my favourite scheme, I so lost my respectability and my sense of right and wrong, that I asked my son to sign a letter which was intended for the Premier of the province, against whom not one word has been said, and against whom I venture to say, not one word can be said. Writes it for what purpose? To try to entrap the Premier of the province into an answer. An answer for what? In order that he may, or that the astuteness of counsel may, be able to torture any reply that is given into an admission of guilt. What was there in this letter that could possibly call for any reply from the Premier, that would entrap him or commit him or the Government in any possible particular? A letter which was written according to the very facts and circumstances of the case truthfully, because if the Government had not a reasonable majority when the House met he was not going to support them, and there was no Government to support; the Government was on the other side, and Gamey was putting in a condition, which was his condition from the beginning, and which the members of the Government would certainly know would be the position of any man looking for favours for his constituency, namely, supporting the Government if they have a reasonable majority when the House meets.

EVIDENCE OF INNOCENCE.

If I asked or called for stronger evidence of innocence, I do not know where I could place my hand upon a single document that so establishes the care, the honesty, the truthfulness of the gentlemen who represent the Crown in this province. I could not call for any stronger evidence of the honesty and the care and the watchfulness on behalf of his constituents than that letter sent by Mr. Gamey; and it is Mr. Gamey's doing when I say that if I looked for a man deeper in the slough of corruption, deeper in the mire of deceit and lying and treachery, I could not ask for stronger evidence, if Mr. Gamey's story be true.

REPLY EXPECTED.

Now, he says that when that letter was sent which I have alluded to, he expected a reply. I asked again what reply could he expect to a letter of that kind? What reply could be given that would indicate in any way connection with the giving of a bribe? And just here let me submit to your Lordships a general statement. Where is there in a single document, where is there in a single letter, where is there in a single communication of any kind from Mr. Gamey to any Minister of the Crown the slightest suggestion of corrupt or improper means having been used? The man was seeking for evidence, according to the story to-day; the man looking for some proof to convict the Government of a very high bribe; the man labouring, according to his story, month after month, and hatching out a plot upon which he was going to unseat the Government, writing and writing and writing; and throughout the whole of his correspondence I ask the question, Where is there a single line, where is there a single syllable upon which he can put his finger and say, That suggested a bribe?

THE MAJORITY OF ONE.

I come now, my Lords, to deal with the question of the Globe interview. But before reaching the question of the Globe interview, let us bear in mind this important fact—The Government prior to that, according to Mr. Gamey's testimony, had a majority of one; they had somewhere about the 7th or 8th January, 1903, three bye-elections, those going adversely to the Government meant defeat.

Mr. Gamey's object was to ensure defeat, according to his story. Why was not this payment of the three thousand dollars, and the letters, and the corrupt acts, disclosed before the 7th of January, if they were corrupt? Because Mr. Gamey's statement up to that time had been made, charging the Government, adducing this correspondence to which he attaches the meaning which he does—and he can make it no stronger to-day than he could in January—in all human probability it meant

DEFEAT TO THE GOVERNMENT.

If his object was to defeat the Government and expose their corruption why did he allow three bye-elections to take place which gave the Government a substantial majority? Then, if the Government had desired to use Mr. Gamey's support as a factor in those bye-elections—and I desire to take both sides of it—what could they have done? They could have published his letter of the 10th of September or the 27th of October. They could have made it known officially that Mr. Gamey had come over to support the Government, and thereby have got help in the bye-elections. Why did they not do it? Because he was a man they could not trust. And yet, we are asked to believe that he is the man they are paying sums of money to, and making all kinds of promises to, and placing themselves entirely at his mercy.

A MAIL CARRIER'S EXPERIENCE.

CURED OF KIDNEY TROUBLE AND PAIN IN THE BACK, FROM WHICH HE SUFFERED MANY YEARS, BY

DR. PITCHER'S BACKACHE-KIDNEY TABLETS.

MR. JAMES TAGGART, mail carrier for the past eighteen years, Palmerston, Ont., gives the history of his case as follows: "For a good many years I have had kidney trouble and pain in the back. It is so many years ago that I can hardly say what it came from, but think it came from a heavy lift; after that the back grew weaker and weaker. I tried everything, and never got a bit of relief until I got a bottle of Dr. Pitcher's Backache-Kidney Tablets. They cleared up the pain, soreness and kidney trouble, and strengthened the back."

The action of Dr. Pitcher's Backache-Kidney Tablets is rapid and positive, curing backache, eruptions, blood humors, dropsical swellings, gravel, smarting and scalding of the urine, frequent rising at night, rheumatic pains, and all kidney troubles of young and old. Price 50c. a bottle at druggist or by mail. The Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto.

Patent and Enamelled Leather Shoes The Slater Guarantee

No shoe manufacturer would have the temerity to guarantee ordinary Patent or Enamelled leather—certainly the makers of the famous "Slater Shoe" would not guarantee ordinary Patent or Enamelled leathers because with them a guarantee is a guarantee, not a pleasant sounding but meaningless play of words.

But the "Slater Shoe" makers use a standard of Enamelled leather which they can and do guarantee—every Enamelled shoe which bears the "Slater Shoe" trademark is guaranteed—The "Slater Shoe" makers use no Enamelled leather which they cannot guarantee.

And the "Slater Shoe" people have a patent leather made of Colt skin, pliable, flexible, as brilliant as the best patent leather and tough and durable enough to carry with it the responsible guarantee of the "Slater Shoe" makers.

Every pair of "Slater Shoes" bearing their guarantee has with it a Guarantee Bond Scrip lithographed like a bank note and as good a guarantee as one.

It says:—

"We (the makers) warrant the leather in this pair of shoes not to break through within three months from date of purchase."

The bond also bears the registered factory number of the pair of shoes to which it belongs.

Slow Horrors of War.

A Bloemfontein newspaper which has come to hand contains an affecting advertisement. A resident of Jacobsdal, evidently a Boer, is asking for news of his wife and family. "She was last heard of in the Women's Camp, Bloemfontein, in October, 1902, and had with her four children, three girls and a boy. Two of these belong to her, and two to her brother-in-law, Mr. Johannes J. Appelgreyn, whose wife died in that Camp in January, 1902." And the advertisement concludes with the statement that "both fathers are very anxious about their children and the mother." The slow horrors of war reveal themselves in that little detail of two wrecked homes.

MR. JOHNSTON DISSECTS THE GAMEY EVIDENCE.

THE GLOBE INTERVIEW.

Now, looking at the Globe interview, on the 13th of January, Mr. Gamey comes to Toronto and has an interview with Mr. Stratton. About that there is no dispute; and present at that interview is Dr. Chamberlain. Is Dr. Chamberlain another perjurer —to take a flower from my learned friend's conservatory? Dr. Chamberlain swears that on that occasion Mr. Stratton spoke to Mr. Gamey and said, "We will consult our friends with reference to these appointments when the House meets. "Why," said Mr. Gamey, "I am a friend of the Government." "Well," Mr. Stratton said, "you have a very peculiar way of showing it;" and then he deals with his action in North Perth. Mr. Stratton says to him, "If you want to put yourself right with the Government, if you want to put yourself fairly right with your constituents it lies upon you to make a public declaration, in order that there may be no misunderstanding." Is that the language of a man to the chattel that was bought? Is that the language of a man to a member who has him at his mercy? That is the language of Mr. Stratton to a man who is not trustworthy and whom he never believed to be trustworthy. Mr. Stratton and Dr. Chamberlain both state that to be the fact. Mr. Gamey does not substantially differ, except that he says that a talk took place between them alone on that occasion. In that he is contradicted by Myers, Chamberlain, Stratton.

LIGHT FROM THE GLOBE.

Bearing this in mind, the Globe interview will help us, perhaps to see some light upon this subject. The Globe interview is exactly along the lines of Mr. Gamey's actions and conversation for the six or seven months previous. No difference. No hand and foot binding to any party. No leaving the Conservative party for good. No supporter of the Government through thick and thin; but "if you have the confidence of the people; if you have a majority of the House; in view of my peculiar circumstances and the peculiar demands of my riding, I will give you an independent support." Pay a man three thousand dollars to have him a free lance in the House? Pay a man three thousand dollars to get from him a declaration which was of less value than the letter of the 10th of September? Pay a man a thousand dollars who had attended the Conservative caucus, who had spoken for the Opposition in North Perth, a man who was reaching for certain appointments and was not getting them, a man who was not trusted? Pay a man a thousand dollars for giving an interview with the Globe which meant anything or nothing, as the member saw fit to construe it?

THE PREPARATION.

Now it is the fact that this interview was not prepared by Mr. Stratton, in the sense in which we desire to understand the word "preparation," and think it is important in that view to keep in mind that the mind which prepares the interview is not the hand that does the writing; it is the mind behind the pen. Mr. Stratton says that on that occasion Mr. Gamey offered and desire to give some interview regarding his position for publication; that he thereupon took certain notes of that; that these were written out by one of his newspaper men, Mr. Yokome, who sometimes assists him in special matters when he is busy. The ideas were not Mr. Stratton's ideas, but were the ideas of Mr. R. R. Gamey; and the reason why the Globe interview was not then published was because Mr. Gamey said, "I want to confer with some of my friends in my riding before I give it." He takes away the document. The document is prepared from Mr. Gamey's hands on the 13th, as an absolute supporter of the Government, as if he had been elected a Liberal, and giving the reasons that I have adverted to upon more than one occasion during the argument. The interview comes back entirely

SHORN OF ITS STRENGTH.

Comes back, for political purposes, a poor puny weakling, that could not stand alone without support—a document, as I said before, that might be signed by any member of the Opposition without injury to this political conscience; a document the principles of which are acted upon again and again by Mr. Whitney, and his followers in the House; because they do not by any means vote against every Government measure, nor do the Government vote against every measure suggested by Mr. Whitney—a document that was not worth one thousand cents, to say nothing of one thousand dollars; a document got from a man who if he is to be believed, was bought, and would not stay bought, a man who was playing fast and loose, a man who is ready with the lip reason and the heart deceit.

A CHANGED CHARACTER.

The whole character of the document is changed when he brings it back after having seen his friend, or rather when he has consulted with his friends and comes back and gets the document, he makes these changes. Now, why did he make the changes? Why was he qualifying and modifying and adding and subtracting? Because he had seen his friends at the Island in the meantime; he had consulted them as to how far he should go. He had determined upon the course of action with his friends and the only support which he had ever agreed to give the Government, and the only support which his friends in the meantime would allow him to give was the support contained in exhibit 17, as amended by Mr. Gamey. In the third paragraph it was stated that he would support the Ontario Government if it had sufficient support to carry on the work. Here again we see because he changes that so that he will support any government. Was that a delivery of the goods for payment of the thousand dollars? Was that what Mr. Gamey wanted; if Mr. Gamey's story be true, Mr. Stratton wanted Mr. Gamey's support on a vote of want of confidence. Without that this support was of no value whatever to the Government in power. In paragraph 5 he talks about helping the Government, and he adds the words, "with an independent support." That is a position which does not in any degree help the Government, but leaves Mr. Gamey free to act as he sees fit. He goes on still further and puts in the words "an independent support," instead of "my support." In place of "the Government development policy" he puts "any good development policy." He qualifies the question of a vote of want of confidence—the very thing that he was being bought for — and so emasculates that that it stands for nothing, by adding the words "in matters that I am satisfied with." Then he writes again, using the words "Independently supporting the Government; induce them to introduce changes. The members of the Legislature have erred through lack of knowledge; I have travelled the country; I can materially assist any Government that is anxious to do the best for us, and I am convinced that this Government have the best interests of that country at heart. It is nonsense to say that any body of intelligent men are wilfully desirous of continuing or enacting legislation that is detrimental to as important a part of the province as the newer portions are." Again, "Manitoulin my politics."

"MANITOULIN IS MY POLITICS,"

INDEPENDENT SUPPORT.

Again, "Only an independent support in matters I am satisfied with." Again, "Support the Government in power." Exactly in line, in accord with his previous declarations. And for that blank sheet of paper for that document that has no earthly value from a political or a business standpoint, Mr. Gamey has the hardihood to come here and say he was paid $1,000. Then there is this singular thing about this transaction—When these notes were taken from him on the 18th and not initialled, or signed or approved of in any way, and when Mr. Gamey told Mr. Stratton that he would have to consult his friends about this matter before he signed any paper or gave an interview, Mr. Stratton had a right to infer that what he was telling was the truth, and so inferring that he was telling the truth, that he was honest in his desire to see his friends, did not press him to sign the document, did not press him to give the interview on the 13th.

WANTS TO KNOW WHY.

Why? Because he was willing that Mr. Gamey should go and consult his friends. Why consult his friends if it was a case of bargain and sale? Why hesitate to hand over the goods for which he was getting the money? And in addition to that, on the 13th day of January no mention is made of money, according to Mr. Gamey's testimony. No mention is made on the 10th or 11th of September of money.

"CONSIDERATION," THE WORD.

The only word being used was "consideration," which we find in its natural place when we are told that what was said to him was, "You will get the same consideration as any other supporter of the Government." No money mentioned in Mr. Stratton's office. No money mentioned except Mr. Gamey says — and it is denied by Frank Sullivan—in the corridor, the day upon which the document was signed. Frank Sullivan says, "When you sign that interview you will get $1000, or we will get $1,000." Not a word about money in the office. No bargaining, no dealing, no trafficing in this man's honour, if he had any; no talk between him and Frank Sullivan until the very moment of the execution; no knowledge, no understanding that he would get $1,000 for signing that interview at all until it came up in a totally different manner. Now, I ask your Lordships to say, if this was a plot, why hesitate to sign? If this was a scheme, why change it materially? Why take time to think? Why give the man that which he had not bargained for? The document as originally prepared was what Mr. Stratton thought Mr. Gamey's ideas were. The documents as amended were Mr. Gamey's own ideas without reference to Mr. Stratton.

AGAIN ASKS WHY.

Then why change the whole character of this document upon a crucial point of it in the absence of Mr. Stratton and in the presence of a stranger, if it was a dishonest document? Because the crucial point was, "I want to see the Government kept in power by a fairly strong support and will stand by them on all questions which may involve a vote of want of confidence." That was what according to Gamey, he was being bought for. That was what he was getting his price for. And yet, after he gets this document, after he thinks it over for two or three hours, takes it away and rewrites it practically after it leaves the hands of Mr. Stratton, and in the presence of the reporter he adds "In matters that I am satisfied with." That, as I said before, might be signed by Mr. Whitney himself.

INDEPENDENCE.

We find therefore that the document as representing Mr. Gamey's views, represents, as nearly as we can get at it, the position of an independent member of the House. It not only represents it in that way, but represents it by the individual act of Mr. Gamey in contradistinction to the action of Mr. Stratton, and it deals with and sets up a condition of things for which no money could possibly have been paid by any man on the outside of the walls of an asylum. Then his letter to Mr. Whitney, he says, is part of the scheme and part of the deal. This letter is consistent exactly with the rest of his arguments, consistent with the intention to do the best he can for his constituency. Now that letter is No. 18, "I have decided that the Government are going to continue the affairs for another term." The same old key struck, the same note sounded; the same application of "Manitoulin is my politics," "I will give any Government in power my independent support, and at the request of many of my constituents I have decided to take an independent stand, in the House."

NOT THE PURPOSE.

That was not what Mr. Stratton was buying this man for, according to his own story. The weak tottering Government, standing upon the brink of a precipice, liable to topple over to destruction at any moment, depending upon the charity of the man from Manitoulin, and he takes their money and he gives them back a stone instead of bread. Now, can we be asked as reasonable human beings to say for one moment that that letter written to Mr. Whitney was not written exactly in accord with his past declarations and with the position that he was taking and with the position that he was anxious to take, because if there was a change of Government it left it open to him to support the Opposition if they were in power?

SULLIVAN'S TELEGRAM.

Now, just dealing with the question of the telegram of the 27th January sent by Sullivan to Gamey, which was not acted upon. I admit that if that telegram was a corrupt telegram or a telegram for a sinister purpose, that, whether it reached Mr. Gamey or not would be a matter of no consequence. Mr. Sullivan is called and he says what is, I should imagine, by this time manifestly clear, that this man and he were engaged in certain deals and certain prospective transactions out of which they expected to make a certain amount of money. Rightly or wrongly, I am not concerned with that, because until the Government is connected with those transactions and until Mr. Stratton is shown to have been a party to this going on between Sullivan and Gamey, the relations between those two men do not in any way affect the position of the clients whom I represent. Sullivan says he had a man who was desirous of getting a certain privilege, and had so arranged that he should be here at a certain time—Kagawong Lake, page 1,221.

A RAKE-OFF.

These privileges seemed to be of some importance and it does appear that some rake off, I think as it has been called, had been obtained upon previous occasions, and these two men thought that there was money in it for them in that way. Now, the telegram is sent by Frank Sullivan, sent openly, sent without any reservation or any concealment whatever, and is capable of production and is produced. Sullivan knew that; Stratton knew that; Gamey knew that; and yet we are asked to belive that, leading up to the payment of a sum of money by a Minister of the Crown to a member of the House, these men set to work to put themselves on record and enable the transaction to be proven.

MR. BLAKE'S IMPRESSION.

Now, my learned friend in dealing with this telegram again conveyed a wrong impression of the evidence. He put it in this way. He said Gamey reached town on the night of the 28th and that there was an appointment made for him to be at Mr. Stratton's on the 29th, thereby endeavouring to convey the impression that the matter was arranged between Mr. Stratton and Frank Sullivan. Now, that is not the evidence. The evidence of the books put in shows that my learned friend has been wrongly advised and wrongly instructed, because Mr. Gamey reached here before breakfast on the morning of the 28th and the appointment was for the next day and was made by telephone, and your Lordships will remember that some dispute arose as to whether the voice was the voice of Esau or the voice of Jacob at the other end, all agreeing upon the fact that a telephone message was sent by either Mr. Gamey or Sullivan and that Mr. Gamey was in town on the morning of the 28th but that Mr. Stratton was unable to see him on the 28th and therefore they had to make another appointment and it was arranged for the 29th. Now, was it fair that the telegram should have that construction put upon it for the purpose of showing this when as a matter of fact they did not have any appointment for the 28th, and to state that Mr. Gamey only got here on the evening of the 28th and that the telegram was Mr. Stratton's telegram in fact and Mr. Sullivan's telegram in main, and EXONERATES MR. BLAKE.

I submit that that statement is wholly incorrect and again I exonerate my learned friend, though I do not know in view of what the evidence has disclosed how far I ought to go in this respect with those who prepared this statement for him.

The Chancellor—I see he says, "He told me that Mr. Stratton wanted to see me that day so he 'phoned me to come to Mr. Stratton's office."

Mr. Johnston—That is his statement here, but what I say is that the evidence does not show that Mr. Gamey got here on the evening of the 28th and that therefore the appointment must have been made through that telegram. The Walker House books which were produced here show that he got here on the morning of the 28th, before breakfast and that the appointment was made for the following day. Mr. Stratton's evidence on that point is at page 2,605 of Volume 7. He says he had the annual meeting of the Trust Company which was on the 28th and when he 'phoned me I could not see him that day, I was going down town.

THREE THOUSAND AND ONE.

Now, that disposes of that testament, and I come now to the question of the bribes of $3,000 and $1,000 respectively. Here again let me say that the charge involved in this statement by Mr. Gamey is a criminal charge, a charge which must be proved beyond reasonable doubt, and I am not claiming the benefit of any doubt for any member of the Government whom I represent. If they are guilty they should be so found, and they should be punished accordingly. If they are not guilty, then we think there ought to be a strong and emphatic finding upon that particular point; because if they are innocent men, any equivocal finding might be as dangerous in the hands of other people as a finding of guilt.

Now, on the subject of the $3,000 and the $1,000, with the exception of the bank, which proves nothing in itself, Mr. Gamey stands alone; and in dealing with the question as to whether or not the money was actually paid to Mr. Gamey we have always before us this important factor to be considered. What was the motive? Few crimes are without motive. This is not a case of an offence being committed on the impulse of the moment; this is a deliberate, wilful, well conceived well planned offence—if it took place. When men commit crimes there are certain reasons, certain surroundings considerations, to which we are always entitled to look carefully before pronouncing a verdict. Gamey was an utter stranger to Mr. Stratton; Gamey was a man that no Minister of the Crown is shown to have the slightest knowledge of; he was a man, so far as Mr. Stratton knew at that time from hearsay and without any definite knowledge, not to be trusted to any great extent; and yet on practically the first page of their meeting he gets from Mr. Stratton the sum of $3,000, according to his statement, he and Frank Sullivan together; and he takes that money, the $1,500, he says, of the bribery money, the price of guilt, the fruit of crime, and before the hands of Mr. Stratton are well away from the bills Mr. Gamey pays his own promissory notes with it.

THE BUYING OF MR. GAMEY.

Now, at that particular moment, on the 10th of September, the buying of Mr. Gamey would have been a mad act, because the Government had not at that time a working majority even if they bought Gamey. At most the Government majority was won with several protests pending; these might have resulted in disqualification, might have resulted in the overthrow of the Government. On the 10th of Sept. the Government having to elect a Speaker and buy Mr. Gamey would still only have a majority of one and the Government could not carry on the affairs of the Province by a majority of one; then the Government might reasonably have the right to look to the bye-elections on the ground that the bye-elections would very likely turn out favourably to the Government. But at that particular moment there were no constituencies open and they did not know but what the circumstances that might be open might be their own and that therefore they might not be able to increase their majority. Assuming that the bye-elections would be favourable to the Government, if there were any, then there is no occasion to buy Mr. Gamey at that moment till the result of the bye-elections was known and that fact was not used as an element in the campaign at all. The most marvellous thing about it is that if he was converted and was honestly converted, or if he was bought and intended to stay bought, or if he was acting independently and was intending to act independently that the Government did not utilize that fact in any way or take advantage of the help it would have given, if they had seen fit to make it known and use it in the bye-elections.

A continuation of Mr. Johnston's address will appear to-morrow.

NOT JUST AS GOOD

Did you ever inquire at a store for certain articles and get for a reply "We have something just as good"? Did it ever occur to you that "Something just as good" is something the dealer has been able to buy much cheaper than the articles you inquire for? This is true in drugs, fabrics, groceries, hardware, and in fact every line, including silver-plated ware. If you inquire for 1847 Rogers Bros.' Knives, Forks or Spoons, don't accept any bogus Rogers' stamp because your dealer tells you it's just as good.

1847 ROGERS BROS. TRADE MARK

The above trade mark has been stamped on every article of the original and genuine Rogers Bros.' goods for over 50 years. Get this and you get the best that is made.

As Summer Advances Make

Malt Breakfast Food

The First Dish at the Morning Meal.

As summer advances, avoid meats at the morning meal. They conduce to heaviness, drowsiness and defective digestion. Summer dieting that does not contribute to health, vigour and heartiness, should be stopped at once. If the stomach is weak and irritable and digestion impaired, use Malt Breakfast Food instead of a meat diet, and carefully avoid oatmeal and other blood-heating foods. Malt Breakfast Food is delicious in taste, light and refreshing to the stomach, easy to digest, and keeps the user in good condition physically. All grocers heartily recommend Malt Breakfast Food.

Runaway on Hamilton Mountain.

Hamilton, May 28.—The Jolley Cut was the scene of a disastrous runaway accident last evening. As Mrs. Manser and her niece, Miss Nellie Ripley, were driving down the mountain side, the horse ran away. The lines snapped, and both ladies were shot out of the buggy. Mrs. Manser, who is a stout woman, was thrown over the wall, falling 15 feet over the mountain side. A big wound was made on the back of her head, and her spine was injured. Her niece was thrown against the wall, but did not go over. They were both removed in the ambulance.

CHILD ESCAPED ENGINE BY FALLING INTO CULVERT.

Life on the rail, and especially at the locomotive lever, has plenty of danger, excitement and sensational experiences, and the Haliburton Division of the Midland last Tuesday furnished an incident that was likely as dramatic as occurred on any line.

The pay car on the road referred to was spinning southward with Driver Dave Clarke at the throttle. Approaching a curve on the line he looked across to the other side of the semi-circle, and saw an object appear for a moment and go out of sight again in the bushes adjoining the track. As the engine rounded the curve the engineer was horrified to see a child toddle in between the rails, and make its way along ahead of the train. He immediately reversed his engine and applied sand to the track in a frantic effort to come to a standstill. But it was impossible to stop in time. At high speed the engine rushed upon the spot, and the child disappeared.

Cold sweat broke out on Driver Clarke's face as he thundered over the place where the child had been. Bringing the train at last to a standstill, he leaped from the cab and rushed back, expecting to find a lifeless little body. But the child was nowhere to be seen. Going along the track, he heard a cry, and a few yards farther along came to a cattle guard in which, with its hands raised up, as if anxious to be helped out, was the three year old child that had run before his engine on the track.

Other moisture than perspiration, it is said, glistened on the swarthy cheeks of the stalwart engineer, as he reached down and lifted up the baby boy, who had been saved from a terrible death by falling into the pit just as the engine was about to strike him.

A MEETING OF THE COURT OF REVISION.

Held in the Town Clerk's Office Last Evening.

A meeting of the Court of Revision was held last night, at which the following Aldermen were present:—D. O'Connell, chairman, Clinkscale, Finnie and Morrison.

Mr. Medd, for the Peterborough Underwear Company, asked for remission of part of the taxes of the company, on the ground that the property was a tenement and had been vacant for more than three months in 1902.—Laid over until Friday night.

The following applications were considered:—

From a resident asking remission of dog tax.—Not granted.

From W. J. Green to the effect that Rev. J. C. Davidson had been assessed twice in 1902, for north Hunter and east Water, part 4, and asking that the taxes on one assessment be remitted.—Granted.

From H. O'Neill for remission of one assessment for statute labour tax for 1902, as he was assessed twice.

Six applications for remission of statute labour tax were disposed of.

From W. J. Green stating that J. Gracey had been assessed twice for statute labour in 1902, and asking that the tax on one assessment be remitted.—Granted.

From the T.A.S. for the remission of their taxes for 1902 and also on a room assessed to Miss Brown and used by the society.—Granted except as to school taxes.

From the Y.W.C.A. requesting remission of the school taxes on the property occupied by them. — Not granted.

The court then adjourned until the 29th of May at 8 o'clock.

NO TIDINGS RECEIVED ABOUT MR. SANDERSON.

Mr. Shortly Interviewed This Morning About the Search.

Fruitless Efforts to Find any Further Traces of Mr. Sanderson's Body.

This morning an Examiner representative visited Mr. Shortly's store on George street, and asked if he might be granted an interview regarding the search for Mr. Sanderson. Mr. Shortly acquiesced and in answer to the reporter's query, said:

"We want up to Stony Lake on Tuesday morning. The canoe was then lying on the beach, with the contents by its side, exactly as it has been reported in your paper."

"That is to say, Mr. Shortly, you saw the cushions and two paddles lying beside the canoe?" asked the reporter.

"Quite so," Mr. Shortly assented.

"How long did you search, Mr. Shortly?"

"For two days. We found nothing. The report that Mr. Sanderson's hat was found is entirely incorrect; besides he was wearing a cap at the time of the feared fatality."

In answer to a question as to the manner in which the search was conducted, Mr. Shortly remarked, "We walked along the shore for miles, and dragged the lake with grappling irons. The lake bottom we discovered to be very uneven; in fact there were spots within 60 feet of the shore over 140 feet in depth."

"Who were the other men in the searching party?" queried the Examiner representative.

"Besides myself, there were Messrs Adam Hall, W. G. Ferguson, W. G. Morrow, Jas. Connal, Lloyd, Brunson and Choate. The latter gentleman comes from Warsaw."

"Is the search abandoned?"

"No, certainly not; hired men under the direction of Clark Brunson, are still searching night and day, and have been given instructions to telephone from Burleigh here should they find the body."

"Then you assume that Mr. Sanderson is drowned," questioned the reporter.

"Well one can hardly think otherwise. A man goes out on the lake; his canoe is found upside down and he is missing. There seems to be no alternative."

"To what do you attribute Mr. Sanderson's death?"

"I think he must have either been taken with a dizzy fit or else he died through heart failure. It is certain that the canoe was overturned in the fraction of a second or the cushions and paddles would not have remained in it. His death was instantaneous and without a struggle."

"I understand that the canoe was found quite close in shore?"

"It was touching the rocks. There was not an eighth of an inch between it and the rock-bounded coast. There was an east wind blowing and the canoe had probably been rubbing against the rocks for some time when found as one side was quite frayed."

"Then you think the wind caused the canoe to drift from the spot of the accident?"

"Certainly. The canoe was probably overturned at a point some distance east of where Mr. Dumble found it."

"And yet the cushions and paddles remained with it," remarked the reporter.

"Yes, that's the remarkable point," answered Mr. Shortly.

Mr. Shortly also stated that the results of their search was not very satisfactory owing to the large expanse of water which had to be covered.

LIGHTNING'S CAPERS.

It Created a Stampede in a Local Barber Shop.

Mr. W. Morgan and his staff of barbers, have reason to remember last night's electrical storm.

They were busily engaged during the heavy downpour of rain in attending to several customers, when lightning flashed along the wires in the interior of the shop and wrought havoc to a fine chandelier. The lightning penetrated the ceiling, and fire flashed fiercely from the wire.

This state of affairs created a stampede, and the occupants of the shop, about ten person in all, made a wild rush for the door, as the sparks were flying in such numbers that the store resembled the Brocken scene in Faust. Fortunately, no one was injured, but the lightning badly damaged the chandelier and the ceiling above.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

A musical attraction of special moment is Mrs. Morrow's choral class practice, which is held every Wednesday evening in the Y.M.C.A. Hall. The result of Mrs. Morrow's teaching was clearly apparent in the excellence of the singing. Miss Florence Miller, soloist of St. Andrew's church choir, and Mr. Norman Jolliffe sang excellently. Miss Miller's distinct enunciation and the excellent manner in which she executed the difficult passages in both solos, "The Way of Peace," and "Sorrow," were greatly appreciated by the audience present. Mr. Norman Jolliffe was heard to great advantage in the "Bedouin Love Song," which was heartily applauded. The singer has an excellent voice of good tone and with no apparent breaks.

The concert which Mrs. Morrow intends giving on June 17, should be of great interest, as some fifteen new voices will be placed before the criticism of the music loving public. It is understood that besides many solos there will be a number of quartettes and choruses. Mrs. Morrows expects to have a fully occupied auditorium, to whom she expects to give one of the best concerts of the season.

THE TOWN COUNCIL AND HEALTH BOARD.

Letters From the Hospitals Were Read.

A joint meeting of the Town Council and the Board of Health was held on Tuesday evening last. However, no action was taken as only two members, besides Mayor Roger and the Medical Health Officer, of the Health Board, put in an appearance.

There were present, Aldermen R. Clinkscale, Finnie, Rush, McWilliams, Edgcumbe and Batton, while Messrs. Parker, Schnaider and Dr. Bingham represented the Board of Health.

Letters from the two local hospitals, which were published in the Examiner some time ago, were read, but no action was taken, as there was not a quorum present. The meeting then adjourned.

A JOURNALISTIC CHANGE.

Mr. W. A. Buchanan Will go to the St. Thomas Journal

Mr. W. A. Buchanan, a well-known and popular member of the Toronto newspaper fraternity, who has been for some years city editor of The Telegram, is about to leave that journal in order to become managing director of the St. Thomas Journal. Mr. H. C. Hocken, who resigned the editorship of the Toronto News a year ago, to take charge of The Journal ,will return to Toronto.

"Billy's" many friends in Peterborough will be delighted to hear of his advancement. He was initiated into the field of journalism by becoming identified with the Examiner as a "comp." some years ago, and by close application together with Napoleonic ambition he has risen to a prominent place in the newspaper fraternity of the province.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE MELVILLE GREEN

It Took Place Yesterday Afternoon to Little Lake Cemetery.

The funeral of the late Melville E. Green, son of Mr. J. W. Green, photographer, Hunter street, took place yesterday afternoon to the Little Lake Cemetery. It was attended by a large number of the friends of the deceased, including representatives from the bowling and curling clubs, of which the deceased young man was a member. There were many handsome floral remembrances. Rev. J. P. Wilson, pastor of the George street Methodist church conducted the services at the house and at the grave. He referred in kind and extolling terms to the life the late Melville Green had led and the belief that he had gone to a better land.

The bearers were Messrs. Benj. Simpson H. Finnie, H. E. Ayres, Roland Waddell H. Rush, jr., and E. S. Clarry.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

Miss Katie M. Hanlon, Hunter street, left yesterday for St. Paul, Minn., where she will reside in future.

Mr. Hugh McMahon, formerly of Peterborough, now of London, Ont., is in town visiting with friends. Mr. Mr. McMahon expects to make his home in Peterborough shortly.

Mr. F. Sparling, Secretary-Treasurer of the National Life Assurance Company, Toronto, is in town in the interests of the Company. He expresses himself well pleased with the capable manner in which the interests of the Copnay are looked after by the local district manager, Mr. D. J. DeVine.

LACROSSE.

Billy Kelly has signed a Port Hope certificate, and will play against his old friends, the Tecumsehs, on Saturday. Herb Soules is also said to be considering inducements to move east. Glover and McCabe, of Peterborough, will again figure on the Ontario home, along with a star per former named Roberts, who is said to hail from the vicinity of Ottawa.

The above is from the Toronto Telegram, and the sporting editor is certainly working on his imagination regarding the two Peterborough men referred to in the above paragraph.

"Hinny" Hoobin is out again with the Shamrocks. This means that the Irishmen are again billed to beat all creation, and that Brantford's Minto Cup chances ain't worth a dollar a week. When the great Irishman gets going he puts ginger into all the rest of the Irish outfit, and it's all off with their opponents.—Telegram.

Lindsay Post—Lindsay has a great goal keeper in McGinnis. His work on Monday was fine, but he requires a little practice along with some of the other players. The management have signed Geo. Halwarth, of Cannington, and Messrs. West and McGinnis, of Beaverton. With the exception of these the team are all home brews. Our boys are counting on giving the T.A.S. team a game in Lindsay later in the season, and will endeavour to turn the tables.

A Family Necessity.

Owing to artificial modern life, almost everybody suffers more or less from constipation, torpid liver, and sluggish kidneys, and as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are the most prompt and thorough cure for this derangement, they have come to be considered a family necessity. Hosts of families would not think of being without them. One pill a dose; 25c a box.

GANG OF HORSE THIEVES WORKING THE DISTRICT.

Keep Your Eye on Your Horse Flesh.

The Gang are Said to be a Hard Lot—Authorities on the Watch.

A bold gang of horse thieves are operating in the Midland District and it is the opinion of the authorities that the band is made up of criminals, lately discharged from the penitentiary.

Chief of Police Roszel has received several communications in reference to the depredations of the gang and a description is given of one who it seems has been purloining a horse and buggy at Napanee, a team at Belleville and a horse at Bewdley. The crook's name is James McMullen alias Joseph Watson alias James Agnes, and he is described as being about 5 feet 7 inches in height, small sandy moustache; one eye, cork leg or foot, walks little lame. Wears a brown coat and black pants, and occasionally dons either a peak cap or straw hat.

From the above description one would naturally conclude that there should be no trouble in capturing the culprit.

At an early hour last Sunday morning a thief entered the stable of Rev. C. H. Marsh, and stole his horse and buggy. Since then no clue has been secured, although chief Nevison has communicated with the police at all points, giving a description of the property.

The following from Campbellford goes to show that the gang is operating in that vicinity:—

Mr. Henry Brown passed through Campbellford on Tuesday, with his team of horses and democrat which were stolen from his premises, north of the C. O. R. Diamond some time ago. The democrat he found near Cobourg, and the horses were in possession of a farmer near Port Hope. The thief was going that way and accosted the farmer asking him to buy the team. The farmer had learned in Port Hope of the robbery, and noticed that the horses answered the description given of them. He told the fellow he had a warrant for his arrest when he immediately fled, leaving the team in the farmer's hands.

Mr. B. O. Lott, of Rawdon township, who also lost a pony and harness and buggy, recovered them about three miles from Trenton the next morning, the horse having been tied to the fence.

Mr. Tinney, of Seymour, has yet received no tidings of his stolen horse and buggy.

NORWOOD BUDGET OF CURRENT TOPICS.

Some Personal Mention From the Village to the East—Other Notes.

Master Ross Nichol comes fat the palms for the finest brook trout caught by any other fisherman this year. It measured 16 1-2 in length and weighed 2 1-4 pounds. It was caught in the creek in the ouse. This beats the one that Mr. G. R. Cristic, of Aylmer, caught near Twiselburg, of which particulars were in the Toronto Star. This fish was caught in the same creek that Mr. Thos. Fraser caught his in about three years ago, a picture of which appeared in the Saturday Globe.

Messrs. Roxburgh & Son shipped this week a car load of peas to New York, and one of rye to Montreal.

Mr. John Davidson, of Whitby, shipped 50 head of first-class yearling calves to Craine Lake, Alberta, average price $12.00.

Mr. J. Pearce, M. P. P., spent Sunday at Onsmore, the home of his brother.

Mr. Henry Nichol, of the Union Bank, spent Sunday in Toronto.

Mr. Harvey Godfrey, of Meaford, spent 25th with friends here.

Miss Annie Bert, of Peterborough, was home on Monday.

Rev. R. Taylor and Dr. Ford attended the Methodist District meeting held in Campbellford last week.

Mrs. C. Miller, of Midland, is the guest of her mother Mrs. M. Nichol.

Miss Ethel Cunming who has been a nurse in training in the Evanston Hospital, returned home last week.

A football match in the series of the Trent Valley League took place here on Saturday between Warsaw and our home team. The score resulting 1-0 in favour of the visiting team.

On Saturday afternoon fire broke out in Messrs. Finlay & Son's factory It had gotten a fairly good start before any person noticed it, but when noticed it was quickly extinguished, very little damage being done.

Very sudden death of Mr. Wm. Quinlan occurred on Sunday last. He attended service in the morning in the Roman Catholic Church and on his way home took suddenly ill, and was taken into the home of Mr. Ed. Hen, where after a very short time he died. The cause of his death was acute indigestion and heart failure. The funeral took place from his residence, lot 19, con. 12, Asphodel, on Tuesday. His remains were taken to the Roman Catholic Church where High Mass was tendered. He leaves a wife and eight children, six boys and two girls — John and Patrick, of Chicago, James of British Columbia, Cornelius and Andrew at home and William of Douro.

Mr. Arthur Hall, of Toronto, is the guest of his sister, Mrs. Fred. Pearce.

The death of Mr. Paul Scott occurred Tuesday at his residence, lot 19, con. 7, of Asphodel, He will be buried by the Ancient Order of United Workmen, on Tuesday, May 26th.

Rev. McKee McLennon sold to Mr Malcolm McCollum, of Luna, Charlemagne, Que. Province, 3 thoroughbred registered Jersey cattle—2 cows and 1 calf for $125.

For a Certainty I am Cured.

Mr. Jas. Treneman, 536 Adelaide street, London, writes that for two years he was laid up with kidney disease and urinary troubles. He became dropsical and his legs would swell so that he could hardly walk around. He never used any medicine that did him so much good as Dr. Chase's Kidney Live Pills, and knows for a certainty that this treatment cured him. One pill a dose; 25c. a box.

LATEST NEWS FROM VILLAGE OF KEENE.

Interesting Local News—Personals—Sporting Events.

The first conference of the Keene Presbyterian church, was held here to-day, May 28th. The afternoon session was opened with devotional exercises, after which Rev. J. W. McIntosh, M.A., of Centreville, took up the subject of the Church's place in building up the Nation. He showed clearly that the function of the church is to make good citizens, and that none living up to its precepts and leading a Christian life, could be otherwise; as an ideal citizen is a man or woman of developed intelligence and of moral integrity; that he must be unselfish, as was the Master, and that he must have unbounded hope in the future of the state.

Rev. D. A. Thompson of Hastings, gave an interesting address on Family Worship. Quoting from the Scriptures he pointed out the gradual growth of the idea of Family Worship, and developed the thought of its benefit to the home and through the home to the state.

Rev. R. P. McKay, D.D., was listened to with great interest when he described our great Northwest, with its vast extent and undeveloped resources. In his inimitable manner, he pictured the wonderful land, the beauty of the country, the bracing air and the free life. He spoke of the problem of populating this vast field, or rather of regulating it, as it flowed in; he pointed out the mistake of the grouping plan, where Doukohobors remained Doukohobors, and Gallicians remained the same, and nationalization was prevented. In future this would be looked into, and that the mission workers were placing churches and schools that would remedy this mistake. In a few words he described a settler's home so that almost everyone saw it. The speaker has unbounded faith in the future of that territory and expresses his belief that if the education of the state, in church and school, is carried on, simultaneously with its development, no trouble will be experienced in making it a law abiding country.

After the session speakers and listeners betook themselves to the basement of the church where a tea was laid out in a most tempting manner. The interior of the room was tastily decorated and the laden tables seemed to speak a welcome. Among the visiting clergymen were Rev. Mr. Yule of Springville, Rev. Mr. Atkinson, of Warsaw, and Rev. Mr. McClellan, Norwood.

After the inner man was refreshed the assemblage returned to the auditorium of the church.

The session presided over by Rev. D. D. McDonald, B.A., opened with a quartette excellently rendered by Misses Bryce and Hope and Rev. Potter and McClennan. Rev. Mr. Potter then took up the subject of "Our Duty to God in Dollars and Cents," and in a clear, pleasing and forcible manner brought forth the following points: We are squatters on God's earth; we hold our wealth in trust; we owe to God an honest execution of this trust; we have immense fields—home and foreign. The church has excellent organizations, capable men ready to go forth, but lack means to send them. With perfect confidence in the leaders, the time is come when the entire world may be made brethren in Christ. God bestows on us the wealth, we are the chancellors of the exchequer. Angels would be glad to do the work, but it is ours—the work of men. We have colleges where men are fitted to do the work of the Master, and with all these we should invest at least a small share of our wealth for true manhood, not for the aggrandisement of self. All the money of a nation will not suffice to pay for the villainous acts of an enemy, but the best blood must be spilt. We should feel with Paul our indebtedness to the unsaved, as much as lies within us. The rich are warned and the widow's mite was her might. Render to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's.

It was a most eloquent appeal and much appreciated.

Misses Lillian and Agnes Campbell favoured the audience with a very pleasing duet, after which Rev. MacKay, D.D., spoke for some length on foreign missions in a lucid and pleasing manner in which he impressed the importance of this congregation sustaining a missionary of its own.

The meeting voted hearty thanks to the visiting clergymen, and the conference closed by singing the 501st hymn.

It is to be regretted that Prof. McNaughton was not able to attend. His absence was unavoidable, as he was ill.

Miss Bella Newton, Kate Roache and May Bruff, spent 25th in Lakefield.

Mr. and Mrs. Benton, of Peterborough spent Victoria Day the guests of Miss May Gall.

Fred. and Earnest Howson spent Monday here.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Anderson, spent the 25th in Norwood.

Mr. James Elmhirst attended the races, of course, in Campbellford.

Mrs. John Bolin with daughter, Mrs. Burns, of Nebraska, U.S. is here visiting her sister, Mrs. P. Quinn. Mr. and Mrs. Bolin removed from here eighteen years ago, and old acquaintances are delighted to meet the friends of other days.

The boys are again into football, some victories ahead sure.

The community will be grieved to learn that Mrs. Sam Armstrong died Tuesday at noon. Mrs. Armstrong has been ailing for some time but the end was not thought to be so near. She leaves besides a sorrowing husband and brothers and sisters, two dear little boys. Mr. Armstrong and family has our sincere sympathies in his severe affliction. The funeral will be held on Thursday, proceeding from her late home to the Little Lake Cemetery, Peterborough.

The Keene yachting and boating club held their first outing on Monday afternoon. Commodore McCamus took his commodious yacht out for a spin and a pleasant day was spent. Twelve canoes and skiffs joined in the parade after which a tea was partaken of at O'Keefe's Point.

Mr. Thos. Fraser, of Norwood, and party in a new steam launch paid us a visit.

Mr. Peter McFarlane is making extensive improvement to our burgh by erecting in several parts his excellent wire fence.

Mr. Art Elmhirst's horse won 2nd money in Campbellford on the 25th.

TWENTY-TWO LIVES LOST.

British Steamer Huddersfield Foundered After Collision With Uto.

Antwerp, Belgium, May 28.— The British steamer Huddersfield, which sailed from this port Tuesday evening for Grimsby, England, collided with the Norwegian steamer Uto. The Huddersfield is reported to have foundered. From fifteen to twenty of her passengers are said to have been drowned. The crew were saved. The passengers were mostly seamen returning to England. It is believed they were crushed in the collision. The bows of the Uto were damaged.

A telegram from Grimsby says the Huddersfield carried 29 emigrants and five other steerage passengers. It was ascertained here later that 22 Austrian and Italian emigrants perished when the Huddersfield sank.

MINISTRY SMASHED.

Col. Prior Will Ask the Lieutenant-Governor to Dissolve the House.

Victoria, B. C., May 28.—The dismissal of two Ministers, the resignation of Mr. McInnes as a third, and the defeat of Col. Prior, Premier, on a motion to adjourn by 17 to 14 was the record of the Legislature yesterday. Col. Prior then rose, and said it having been demonstrated that he had lost control of the House he would ask the Governor to come down to-day and dissolve the House.

COLLINGWOOD IS WITH THE REST.

Valentine Fisher's Terrible Sciatic Pains Speedily Vanished Before the Great Kidney Remedy.

Collingwood, May 25. (Special.) — Every city, town and village in Canada is reporting remarkable cures by Dodd's Kidney Pills, and Collingwood is not behind the rest. There are scores of people here who have used the great kidney remedy and who are not slow to tell of the good results. Valentine Fisher, well known in the town and surrounding country, is one of them.

"I was troubled with kidney disease for thirteen years," says Mr. Fisher in telling of his cure. "It developed into Sciatica, which located in my side so that I could not walk without a cane. I had to use hypodermic injections to morphine to ease the pain. "I tried different medical men and medicines, with no good results till I was persuaded to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. Three boxes effected a perfect cure. I can recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to all who are suffering from rheumatism or any other form of Kidney disease".

A Farmer Cured of Rheumatism.

"A man living on a farm near here came in a short time ago completely doubled up with rheumatism. I handed him a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and told him to use it freely, and if not satisfied after using it he need not pay a cent for it," says C. P. Rayder, of Pattens Mills, N.Y. "A few days later he walked into the store as straight as a string, and handed me a dollar saying 'Give me another bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm; I want it in the house all the time for it cured me.'" For sale by all druggists.

Simcoe Statue Unveiled.

Toronto, May 28.—The statue which has been erected in Queen's Park in memory of the first Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, Col. John Graves Simcoe, was unveiled yesterday afternoon by the Hon. W. Mortimer Clark, K.C., present incumbent of the office. Lord Minto and Hon. G. W. Ross spoke.

Scores of Uses.

While Dr. Chase's Ointment is best known on account of its wonderful control over eczema, salt rheum and piles, it is found to be in almost daily demand in many homes as a cure for chilblains, chaffing, pimples, sunburn, burns, scalds, and each and every form of itching irritated or inflamed skin. It is invaluable in every home and as a soothing and healing application, knows no equal.

Arthur's Broken Jaw.

Ingersoll, May 28.—Little Arthur Ensign, the seventeen-year-old son of Mr. Isaac Ensign, is a patient at the Sanitarium here. On Sunday Arthur slipped from the seat of a buggy and the wheels of the rig passed over his face, breaking his jaw in two places.

EXPRESS COMPANIES

Members Went to Put Them Under Railway Commission.

HON. A. G. BLAIR'S ANSWER.

Minister of Railways Says Carriage of Express on Railways Is Included, But Objects to Making the Present Bill Unwieldy—House Discusses Proposed Railway Commission—The Militia Estimates.

Ottawa, May 28.—Hon. Mr. Blair's bill to create a railway commission came up in the House yesterday afternoon.

After some discussion on the first clause, Mr. W. F. Maclean moved that the express companies be subject to the authority of the commission as in the case of the railways.

The Minister of Railways said he had considered the matter carefully and it was quite impracticable to incorporate such conditions. If desirable express companies could be taken up in a special private bill, but he would not burden his railway commission bill with provisions affecting express companies.

Mr. Kent urged the Minister to reconsider his determination. The fruit growers had made out a strong case in this direction.

Mr. McCreary (Selkirk) said the proposed amendment was an effort to defeat the bill. Why attempt to cure every ill at once?

Mr. Maclean said he was anxious to see the bill put through and he had no such intention in moving his amendment. If it carried the dairy and fruit interests would be encouraged.

Mr. Blair's Answer.

Mr. Blair said that the Commission would have general powers over the express companies. This would cover all general complaints. Any further provisions must be dealt with in a separate bill. What the deputation of fruit men had objected to was the classification which made it possible for railways to affect their interests.

Dr. Sproule claimed that the railways could evade the powers of the Commission through the express companies.

Mr. Haggart failed to see why the Commission should not be given power over freight carried by express, as well as by other means of carriage.

Mr Monk said it was very essential to include express companies in the bill. The value of the bill would be lost if express companies were exempt. The railways would take out of the public in express charges what they might lose in freight rates.

Mr. Smith of Wentworth said it cost the fruit growers of the Niagara district $200,000 annually to ship their fruit, and this seemed to him a very large sum. With lower rates the fruit men could capture new markets.

Classification No. 12.

Mr. Kemp asked if the Canadian freight classification No. 12, taking effect May 1, had been approved by the Governor-General-in-Council.

To this the Minister of Railways replied that the classification had not been approved. There had been no such approval since October, 1899.

Mr. Kemp said this showed how completely the railways controlled the situation. The classification had never been submitted to the Governor-in-Council, as required, though the classification had been purely in the interests of the railways, and every pound of freight between the Atlantic and Pacific had been subject to these rates.

Mr. Blair said his department was not at fault in the matter referred to by Mr. Kemp, but he severely criticized the railways.

"It was a high-handed proceeding," he said. "It was an indefensible action. Without a word of communication to any officer of the department, this classification was made. It will be the exclusive duty of the Railway Commission to see that the law is not violated."

A long discussion ensued over the limitations of the commission, inasmuch as several railways are excluded or partially excluded from its operation. Several members urged putting I.C.R. and C.P.R. roads under the authority of the commission.

Militia estimates were taken up after recess and some progress was made before adjournment.

THE RAILWAY COMMITTEE.

Rather Fruitlessly Considers the Grand Trunk Pacific Bill.

Ottawa, Ont., May 28.—There was a large attendance at the Railway Committee yesterday, when the Grand Trunk Pacific Bill again came up for consideration.

The first speaker was Mr. Bell (of Pictou) who spoke from a Maritime Province standpoint. He dwelt upon the necessity of an all-Canadian route with an ocean port on the Atlantic coast in winter, so that the produce of the west might find an outlet at a Canadian port. The G.T.R. was tied up to its Portland terminus. In his opinion there was no urgent necessity for the road. The Grand Trunk Company was not going to give a dollar to this Company, and the people of Canada would have to build the road. The Government had not said what assistance was to be given to the road. The bill should not be adopted until they heard what aid was to be given the company.

Mr. Maclean (East York) said that he was opposed to the bill entirely. It was an exploitation scheme. Private individuals were applying for a franchise which would be sold to the G.T.R. If they were to deal with any one let it be the G.T.R. Company. He was opposed to the bill on principle, but if any one were to have it let it be the G.T.R.

Refused to Be Held Up.

Dr. Sproule wanted to know what the Government was to do in the way of assistance. Mr. Blair said that the position of the Government in regard to the bill was announced in the House yesterday. He refused to be held up by Dr. Sproule or any one else on the matter. The applicants for the legislation were before the committee in the same way as any other company. As for the Government they were as free as the air to assist this company or any other company or to give no assistance at all for building this road.

Mr. J. G. Scott, of Trans-Canada, appeared before the committee in opposition to the bill. He represented a company that had subscribed some $200,000. They had surveyors in the field. The route was a better one than the G.T.R. as it ran north of Lake Winnipeg and the wheat of the west would be carried cheaper by this route than any other. It was not likely that the Government would aid two transcontinental lines and he wanted his to get that assistance.

Mr. Cowan—"Is your company properly organized?"

Mr. Scott admitted that the company was not properly organized. The charter only fell into the hands of the present company a year ago. The charter was granted in 1895.

In reply to Mr. Tarte, Mr. Scott said that the company did not want to begin construction until the surveys were made. It would cost $83,000,000 to build the road to Port Simpson. The route of his road north of Abittibi Lake would open up a rich region which would not be touched by the G.T.R.

Mr. Thomas Davidson, of Quebec, was also heard in the interest of Trans-Canada and in opposition to the bill.

Col. Tisdale's Argument.

Col. Tisdale said he was surprised to hear Mr. Bell say that no route of the kind suggested was needed to the west. Any one who traveled in the west could not come to this conclusion. He would be willing to vote almost an unreasonable assistance to the undertaking to hold the people coming into the country. As to the subsidy question, he was a believer in the constitution and would leave the matter to the Government, who were responsible to Parliament and the country.

Hon. Mr. Emmerson said that it was impossible to consider the question without also considering the question of subsidy. There were three lines asking for subsidies. The Government would have to consider whether one, two or three were to get aid. In his opinion the Government would not be justified in subsidizing another line south of Lake Winnipeg. The people would not support them in doing so. If it were for a line north of Lake Abittibi, north of Lake Nepigon and north of Lake Winnipeg that would be a different matter. The committee was justified in providing facilities for the west. This could only be done so as to carry the products of the wheat fields of the West over an all-Canadian route to the seaboard, with a port on Canadian territory summer and winter by the Government building by the shortest route.

Mr. Oliver (Alberta) spoke of the needs of railway in the west. There was room for five roads in the west. The west did not require so much a trans-continental line as the east did. What the west was most interested in was getting its wheat to Lake Superior, but they did expect that the through line would carry grain in winter to a Canadian port. He advocated a Government constructed line from Winnipeg to Quebec and St. John.

Mr. McCarthy moved that the bill be taken up to-morrow and have precedence until disposed of.

Mr. Maclean moved that it have only precedence to-morrow. Mr. McCarthy's amendment carried.

A NEW DEPARTURE.

A Guarantee For Bonds of the Canadian Northern Railway.

Ottawa, May 28.—The Prime Minister will probably announce to-day or within a day or two that the Government propose asking Parliament to guarantee bonds of the Canadian Northern Railway to the amount of $13,000 per mile in order to facilitate the construction of about 500 miles from the Manitoba boundary to Edmonton, taking in return a first mortgage on the property of the company. This is a new departure on the part of the Government, and it will insure the construction of a most important stretch of railway without entailing one cent of cost to the country. The line to be thus aided is known as the "Grandview-Edmonton section."

WENT OUT AND HANGED HIMSELF.

Collingwood Contractor Takes His Life Because of Domestic Worry.

Collingwood, May 28.—The dead body of Eli Holmes, the well-known contractor, was found yesterday at 1.30 hanging by a strap to one of the rafters in a stable on the east side of Hurontario street. The deed had evidently been carefully planned, as his hat was placed on a shelf and a frame had been carried from the other end of the stable and used to support him while preparing the noose, which was a common halter strap.

The body presented a shocking appearance, as death had been from slow strangulation. The cause of Holmes' rash act is supposed to be from worry over family troubles, as he and his wife had not lived together for some time. A letter from his wife and a business letter were found in his pocket and taken charge of by Dr. Stephen, coroner.

Eli Holmes came to Collingwood about a year ago to build a residence for Dr. McFaul, and was afterwards awarded the contract for building the new library building. Upon this work he was engaged at the time of his death. He was a man of great energy. The coroner decided that no inquest was necessary. It was a case of deliberate suicide.

The Final Stages of Locomotor Ataxia

Are Absolute Helplessness, Loss of all Power and Complete Paralysis — Prevented and Cured by

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Locomotor Ataxia is a form of paralysis which is becoming frightfully common these days, because of the nerve-exhausting habits of the present age.

Probably you have seen victims of this ailment walking with a jerking motion and putting their feet down in an awkward manner, and wondered what ailed them. It was locomotor ataxia, or paralysis of the nerves and muscles which control motion.

There is a peculiar numbness of the feet and legs, an uncertain feeling when you start to walk, when you go up or down stairs or around corners. The limbs no longer obey the commands of the brain, the soles of the feet seem to have lost their feeling and you feel as though you might topple over or move backward instead of going ahead.

The final stages of locomotor ataxia are absolute helplessness, loss of all power and complete paralysis of the nervous system.

The time to begin treatment is when the first symptoms of nervous exhaustion become apparent. When you find that you do not sleep well, start up suddenly, have difficulty in concentrating your thoughts, suffer from headaches, indigestion and irritability, it is time to take prompt action to restore the vitality of the blood and nerves. For this purpose there is no more satisfactory treatment than Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Nervous diseases never get well of themselves, nor can they be cured in a few days, but Dr. Chase's Nerve Food assists Nature in restoring vitality to wasted nerves, acts in accordance with Nature's laws, and is certain to do you good, because it forms new rich blood, and nerve cells. Fifty cents a box; six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. 7

Mrs. I. W. Warner, Riverdale, N.S., is glad there is such a remedy as

Burdock Blood Bitters.

IT CURED HER
AND WILL CURE YOU.

She says: "I wish to add my testimony to the many others who have spoken so highly as to the unfailing virtues of Burdock Blood Bitters. I was all run down, had no appetite, lost all ambition, could not sleep much and had terrible headache and backache, and my food did not digest properly. I saw B.B.B. advertised, so concluded to give it a trial, thinking if it did no good it could do no harm. But after using one bottle I began to feel better, and by the time I had used three bottles I was feeling like a new person. I am so glad there is such a remedy provided for suffering humanity, and cannot praise it enough for I think there is no medicine like it on the market."

A Golden Heart

CHAPTER XXXIII.

Lord Fielden was in no way daunted by the darkness of the night. If the moon or the stars had been shining, the woman, let her be whom she might, would never have ventured through the park. The darkness had favored her; it would also favor him in finding her. He thought that the best thing to do first was to go down to the lodge and see if any person had been noticed there.

The people at the lodge had seen no one; they were quite certain that no strange woman had passed through the gates—in fact, no person could pass through them without their knowledge; nor did they believe that it was likely any person could get into the park by the other entrances.

Lord Fielden's suspicions increased. The woman had evidently gained access to the park in some secret manner; therefore her purpose could not have been legitimate or honest. It was idle to suppose that robbery had been the motive; consequently Harry was more convinced than ever that the stranger was some person who had read the advertisement about Lola de Ferras, and wanted to discover the reason for it. As the woman had not passed through the gates, it seemed probable that she might still be in the park. If he could but find her! He knew the grounds well himself, but he could not decide at what point to begin a search. He vowed to himself that he would linger all night in the park rather than she should escape him.

More than an hour passed, and he was no nearer the object of his search. Oh! surely there was a sound at last—that of slow, creeping, stealthy footsteps on the other side of the beeches. The footsteps came nearer. He must see who it was without alarming her, and so he began to noiselessly retrace his footsteps, only pausing now and then to see if the other stealthy footsteps faltered.

He reached the end of the grove and stood waiting. He was brave and fearless as a lion, but there was a queer sensation at his heart as the stranger drew nearer and nearer.

The footsteps grew more distinct now that the grove was past, and presently they sounded quite close to him. He put out his hands, and they grasped a woman's garments. The woman stopped with a faint low cry.

"Who are you?" he exclaimed; but there was no answer. It was too dark to see. He only knew that he clutched a tall figure that seemed frozen with fear. There was silence for a minute, and then the woman struggled violently to free herself, all without a word.

"You shall not go," cried Lord Fielden, "until you have told me who you are! You need not struggle; you are a strong woman, but I am a strong man. Such efforts to escape are useless. Tell me who you are and what is your business here, and then I will let you go."

She struggled with such violence to free herself from his grasp that the black cloak she wore was torn, her bonnet fell off, and with it something white and soft. She knew it was the wig which had so effectually disguised her, and with the knowledge came an access of despair; it made her so strong that this time she almost tore herself from her captor's grasp.

"No," he said, "I will not hurt you. I could bind you fast this moment if I liked; but I will not. If it pleases you, though we will stand here until morning—until daylight dawns—so that I may see, if you will not tell me, who you are."

It was as much as he could do to hold the strange woman, but he kept her hands tightly grasped in his. How long a time passed in the terrible struggle he could not tell. He found presently that she was panting for breath, and that her strength was failing her, and that in a short time she must be still from sheer exhaustion. So it happened. After a few more efforts to free herself, she gave up struggling, and stood panting and trembling. Then came a long-drawn sigh, a low, piteous cry.

"For Heaven's sake, let me go—let me go!" she murmured.

"Tell me who you are and what you want," he said, "and you shall go the next moment."

"I am no one whom you know. I have been looking for work. I am a poor woman, and I have been to all the big houses to try to get some sewing. I came here to-day; but there was nothing for me to do. I was tired and hungry, and I fell asleep among the ferns in the park. I am only trying to find my way out of the park. I have done no harm. Let me go, for Heaven's sake!"

The woman's story might be true. He relaxed his hold.

"Tell me," he said, "was it you who looked in at the dining-room window at the Manor and terrified a young lady?"

She was silent. He repeated the question.

"Yes," she said, "it was. I did not mean to frighten any one. I was cold and hungry. The bright lights attracted me, and I looked in. I meant no harm—I did no harm. Let me go!"

That one word "attracted" proved fatal. She had spoken in a low, murmuring, hoarse voice, almost impossible to distinguish; but in that word he had recognized the never-to-be-mistaken roll of the French "r," which the people of no other nation can imitate.

He grasped her more closely.

"You are a Frenchwoman!" he cried. "You have perhaps come from that wicked woman herself!"

She struggled afresh with the strength of a man, uttering low, piteous cries; but in his strong grasp she was helpless as a child.

"You cannot escape," he said. "Your struggles are more vain than those of a bird in the fowler's net."

Just then a few rays of light broke through the clouds; they parted in majestic grandeur, rolling away in heavy masses of black and white vapor, leaving the moon sailing peacefully in the sky.

"Thank Heaven!" he cried. "Now I can see you!"

"Let me go," she wailed, piteously "let me go!"

Resolutely she turned and bent her head lest the moonlight should fall upon her face.

"I will kill myself if you try to look at me!" she cried.

"You cannot.6 Have you not the sense, woman, to know when you are conquered?"

She made a wild dash at him. It was her last hope. It was as though an ocean wave had flung itself against a rock—useless, vain, indeed injurious to herself. The last shred of disguise fell from her, and she stood revealed in the moonlight—which she cursed in her heart — a tall, stately woman, with a mass of black hair and dark, wild eyes, contrasting vividly with her white face; the false hair had been trampled under foot in the struggle. The moon now shone out more fully and clearly, so clearly that Lord Fielden could see every line of the stranger's face and figure.

In a moment it flashed across him who she was. This was no poor, common woman looking for work. She was rather like a queen of tragedy.

"I know you," he said. "You are the woman for whom I have been searching morning, noon and night, for whom I have sought all over Europe—you are Lola de Ferras!"

A low cry came from her lips, and, Lord Fielden releasing his hold, she fell upon the ground, shuddering, trembling.

"You are Lola de Ferras," he repeated, "the woman who alone knows the secret of Sir Karl Allanmore's fate. You must come with me."

Her strength was gone. The mention of her name seemed to have paralyzed her. He raised her, and she made no resistance. He trampled the false hair under his feet.

"You will not want this again," he said, "you will have no more need for disguise. Come with me."

As he took her hands for the second time, his eyes fell upon her wedding-ring, and it startled him. Was she married, and to whom?

"Whither are you taking me?" she asked. "I will not go to the Manor House. Where are we going?"

"To the keeper's cottage," he replied. "I shall keep you there until you solve the mystery of Sir Karl's absence for us."

"Then I shall die there!" she replied, with a triumphant laugh. "There are many clever inventions in this world, but I have not yet heard of one which can make a woman speak when she chooses to be silent."

"Nor have I," he agreed, gravely. "I shall leave it to your sense of honor to speak. I am quite aware that I cannot compel you."

"You can lock me up, shut me in prison—you can do anything and everything you will; but I am queen of the position, and I shall remain so."

They reached the keeper's cottage at last; and she stood in silence while the door was unfastened. Lord Fielden kept a keen watch upon her, knowing well that she would make her escape if it were possible, and that he was resolved she should not do.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

The keeper looked bewildered when he opened the door. There stood Lord Fielden, and by his side, held fast by him, was a lady, with a face very beautiful and proud, yet white and weird, with great, black eyes that seemed to blaze with liquid fire, and a mass of black hair. She had neither bonnet nor shawl; her dress was of plainest black; yet, in some vague way, the man felt that she was a lady.

"Walk in, madam," said Lord Fielden. "Mrs. Turnbull will find you all needful accommodation. You will like tea, or coffee, or some refreshment, perhaps?"

He closed the door behind him as he spoke, and then turned with a stern face to the keeper and his wife.

"I have brought this lady here," he said; "and here she is to remain in close custody until to-morrow. Let her have every care, every attention—all that she requires; but she must not be left alone, so that she can escape."

Lola looked at him defiantly.

"You may do all that, yet you cannot make me speak," she replied. "I tell you frankly that, if I can get a chance to kill myself, I will do it, if I can find the least opportunity to escape, I shall take it."

"Will you excuse me, my lord?" said the keeper, after a steady look at the flashing black eyes. "I am afraid to undertake the charge of this lady, I am not used to such a task. Foxes, pheasants, and partridges, and such like I understand, but not ladies. I should not be able to detain her, my lord, if she made up her mind to go."

"Then I will stay myself," said Lord Fielden. "You have a room up-stairs, Mrs. Turnbull; the lady will prefer it to this, and you can take her some tea there. I shall sit up here. Madam," he continued, turning to where Lola stood with a white, defiant look on her face, "I shall be on the alert. I can hear the stealthiest of footsteps, the slightest creak of a board or upraising of a window. Remember, if you make any desperate attempt to escape, I will give you in custody for a crime you would not like to hear my name."

"Merci, monsieur," she said, with a mocking smile—"merci, you will have to prove every charge you bring against me."

She went up the narrow staircase more with the air of an injured queen than of a prisoner. It was a plain, pretty room into which she was shown. For a few moments she stood like some caged tigress in the middle of it, and then hastily closed the door.

"Are you open to a bribe?" she asked, turning to the keeper's wife. "I will make you a rich woman for life if you will do one of two things. Either bring to me poison that I may destroy myself, or give me the chance of escape through the window here. I swear to you that I will make you rich for life."

"I cannot," said the woman, "I dare not; we have always served my lord faithfully."

"If he and you but knew what was best for the whole family, you would beg of me on your knees to go," she said.

But the woman shook her head; she could never, come what may, betray her trust.

The night passed in pleading and useless prayers. Once or twice the keeper's wife nodded, and awoke suddenly, to find the dark, beautiful face bent over her with murderous gaze.

"I warn you," said Lola; "I am a desperate woman. I should set little value on your life. If you wish well to yourself, do not expose me to temptation."

This so effectually scared the keeper's wife that she checked all further inclination to slumber, and watched every movement of her companion.

It was pitiful to see the way in which Lola de Ferras paced up and down the room, at times wringing her hands and crying out that she was trapped and lost, at others that they should never make her speak — never; no one could do that.

When morning came, and the watch was ended, when the dark head, tired and wearied, was laid to rest, Lord Fielden wrote a little note to his mother to say that she was to come to the cottage at once, and bring Gertrude with her—that there was immediate need for their presence. He cautioned the keeper to be silent as to what had happened—indeed, he had little to reveal—Lord Fielden had told him nothing.

In less than an hour the two ladies were on their way, Lady Fielden deeply anxious and agitated, Gertrude full of wonder.

"I am sure," said she, as they drove along, "that it is something about the advertisements; Lady Fielden, I feel quite certain of it."

Lady Fielden's first words to her son were of reproach that he had been out all night, and that she had been greatly alarmed about him.

He went up to the side of the low pony-carriage, and in a few words told them what had happened. Gertrude's face flushed and her eyes flashed.

"Lola de Ferras!" she cried. "Is it possible? Has Heaven granted my prayer at last?"

But Lady Fielden grew deadly pale.

"Lola de Ferras! Oh, Harry, I cannot see that woman—that wicked woman!"

"You must see her for my sake!" cried Gertrude. "Oh, Lady Fielden, my dearest and truest friend, you must forget everything else except that you have to help me, and that my father's name must be cleared!"

They spent some few minutes discussing what had happened.

"She will never speak," said Lady Fielden; "she is still, as she says, 'queen of the position.'"

"She will speak," declared Gertrude, "for I shall implore her to do so in my father's name."

Then Lord Fielden asked if they could go upstairs, and Mrs. Turnbull answered, "Yes."

They found Lola sitting in a chair by the window, and in her eye was the look of a hunted animal driven to bay. She never glanced at the ladies, but spoke to Lord Fielden at once.

"Have you any further indignities to offer me?" she demanded. "Am I to be kept here in prison, a show for you and your friends?"

"Lola de Ferras," said Lady Fielden, in a solemn voice, "do not use such words to my son. Wicked and weak as you have been, make the best atonement you can."

"I have no atonement to make," she answered. "I shall die as I have lived—mute; you may be sure of that."

"Tell us one thing," said Lord Fielden—"you and you alone can tell it. Is Sir Karl living or dead?"

A curious smile curled her lips.

"I shall tell you nothing," she replied.

"Do not be obstinate, madam. Think of the lives that you have ruined already."

"Have I?" she cried. "I am right well pleased; that is just what I intended to do. I tell you candidly that you are all right in your supposition. I, and I only, so far as I know, can solve the mystery of Sir Karl's fate. You want to know, of course, if he went away with me or not—if he asked me or I asked him—if he thought the world well lost for love of me—if it was he who placed this wedding-ring upon my finger—if he be living or dead. All these things you want to know; but you never shall. I am the only one who can tell you, and I never will—never!"

"You shall be compelled!" cried Lord Fielden.

"I do not think so. No human power can compel me. I would rather—. Ah, well, never mind what! Let me remind you of one thing, my young lord," she said. "Be pleased to bear in mind that you are laying yourself open to a heavy penalty, if not imprisonment, by the course you are pursuing."

Harry knew that what she said was perfectly true.

"Justice before men and justice before Heaven are very different things," he said. "Before Heaven you know your own crimes; you know the live that have been ruined by your sin, and, whatever man may say, Heaven at least will not misjudge."

The smile she gave them was most insolent.

"You will find out your mistake," she said. "I am queen of the position."

"Will you tell us one thing at least? Is Sir Karl living or dead?" asked Lady Fielden.

"That is one thing, Lady Fielden, that I refuse to tell," she replied defiantly.

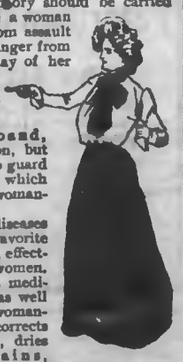
Pistol Practise

Is becoming more popular among women. The reason given is that a woman should know how to use the pistol for self protection. The theory should be carried farther. Where a woman is in danger from assault once she is in danger from disease every day of her life. Women have not only to run the risk of diseases which threaten husband, brother, and son, but they have also to guard against diseases which are peculiar to womanhood.



From these diseases Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will effectively defend women. The use of this medicine preserves as well as restores the womanly health. It corrects irregularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

"I cannot say enough for Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery,'" writes Mrs. Ida M. Tutt, of 306 Franklin Street, Crawfordsville, Ind. "I could hardly walk alone or do my housework when I heard of your wonderful medicine. I used five bottles of each and several vials of 'Pleasant Pellets,' and can say I am a well woman. I thank Dr. Pierce for his advice for he helped me to live. May many thousand women take my advice and when in poor health or suffering from any female trouble take Dr. Pierce's wonderful medicines."

Sick women, especially those suffering from diseases of long standing, are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

New York, May 28th, 9.45 a. m. — There is no doubt that a great deal of the selling of Rock Island and Leather in last hour yesterday was short stock put out by traders under a raid on the general list. There was tips in circulation to sell R.I. early. When this stock broke and leather was attacked the wholel ist ran off with a renewal of selling by the bear element in the Trunk Lines and Grangers. Most traders who had bought earlier in the day and had been working for further rally became discouraged and threw over their stocks. Market closed weak under the pressure. It was noticed, however, that there was a good borrowing demand for stocks last night. This seemed to indicate that short interest had increased again. In openmarket, however, almost any stock could be borrowed in moderate quantity at prevailing call money rate except C.P.R. which continues closely held.

M. & M.

Americans in London generally below parity. Mex. Gov. secures practical control of Mex. N. in return for special concessions. Strike on S.P. no longer considered likely. Active progress reported in readjustment of Mex. Cen. capital. Banks lost to sub-treas. since Friday $1,616,000. No gold exports possible before Tuesday at earliest. Good demand for stocks in loan crowd.

New York, May 28th, 12.30, p. m. — A nervous feeling exists all over the room.

M. & M.

New York, May 28th, 12.50 p. m. — London sold 10,000 shares almost all during first 15 minutes but they have since shown no disposition to purchase on decline. Most important selling has apparently been in R.I. and A. C. P. Knapp sold it down then Content took considerable. Shortly afterwards the first named firm sold it down. A nervous feeling exists all over the room.

M. & M.

Messrs. McMillan & Maguire have received the following despatches:—

Jas. R. Keene was an open buyer of stocks yesterday. His orders were executed by T. J. Taylor & Co., who bought St. Paul, R. I., So. Pac. and the steel issue heavily. It was also believed that Keene was buying through other brokers. His total purchases were estimated at fully 60,000 shares. It is seldom that Keene is such an open buyer of stocks. There was a difference of opinion on his own account for the last three days. Keene has been expressing bullish opinions on the market. Yesterday he advised several friends to buy stocks and hold them until the fall, he said that stocks would then be selling at much higher prices. In view of the fact that Keene has been selling the market for the last six months. This change in his attitude most significant. He is still carrying an extensive line of So. Pac. on which he has averaged heavy loss and some traders claim that he is trying to bull the market so as to unload this stock.

DOW, JONES & CO.

MARKET NOTES.

The anonymous circular referred to in these columns some time ago as having been distributed widely, urging the sale of C. P. R. stock, is still going the rounds. It purports to be the opinion of "a prominent banker," but its comments on the great Trans-Continental system are apparently carrying little weight. Holders of Pacific doubtless have in mind the fact that the stock at present prices pays four per cent. on the investment, a rate of interest that is considered good on a stock of its character. Comparisons indulged in of its price compared with other systems across the lines hardly reply. Suffice to say that C. P. R's capital contrasted with the roads specified is extremely moderate, while none of them possess the valuable equities of the great Canadian System or its valuable assets in the shape of land.

POWERFUL INTERESTS BUYING STOCKS.

Present Prices of Securities Attracting Attention.

The large fall in the prices of stocks is now attracting the attention of many important interests in the streets. Cables have been sent to the men who are most influential now in Europe. Mr. Morgan and Mr. Vanderbilt particularly have been heard from. Mr. John D. Rockfeller has also been communicated with, as to some features of the situation which demand his attentin. While other influential men like Gould, Harriman, Rogers and others, are beginning to do business.

There is no doubt that people who have sold stocks are rich men and they have unquestionably been influenced by the labour situation as well as the political situation and more particularly by the attitude of the administration toward the so-called trusts. The labour situation is something which can be mended, but the effect of the decisions against the Northern Securities Company and the coal companies is harder to deal with. They think it means changes of a radical character, and changes always lead to uncertainties which frighten capital.

We compare in the table which follows the highest prices of the current year with those touched Monday in the break. This will give some idea of the magnitude of the decline in representative stocks:

Amalgamated Copper, high, 75 5-8, low, 60 1-2; Atchison, high, 89 7-8, low, 73 1-8; Baltimore & Ohio, high, 104, low, 86 5-8; Brooklyn Rapid Transit, high, 71 1-8, low, 59 5-8; Canadian Pacific, high, 138 3-4, low, 126; St. Paul, high, 183 1-4, low, 147 5-8; Illinois Central, high, 151,1 ow, 133 3-4; Manhattan, high, 155 1-2, low, 135 1-4; Missouri Pacific, high, 115 7-8 low, 103 1-2; New York Central, high, 156, low, 134 7-8; Pennsylvania, high, 157 5-8, low, 125 5-8; Rock Island, high, 53 5-8, low, 36 1-8; Southern Pacific, high, 104 5-8, low, 83 3-4; U. S. Steel, common, high, 39 7-8, low, 30 1-2; U. S. Steel, preferred, high, 89 3-4, low, 80.

It is unnecessary to say that a decline like this is large enough to discount a great many things. It may well be questioned whether it has not fully discounted the worst that has happened and a little over for good measure.

OMEMEE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The 25th May's sports were not what people expected this year. The crowd was very fair sized to witness the football matches between Mount Pleasant and the local team, which resulted in a "tie". Our citizens are asking for old time games and celebrations.

The pulpit of the Presbyterian church was occupied by Mr. Robertson, of Knox College, last Sunday and was very well received. The congregations are anxious to become permanently settled again.

A wedding is announced for Wednesday the 27th May, in the Presbyterian church. The contracting parties are Miss Edith Thornton and Mr. Fred. Sandy. A large assemblage of people will witness this event no doubt.

There were many of our old citizens from Peterborough here visiting over Sunday and Monday and are all doing well in their respective positions. Some were also home from Toronto.

There is now a strong probability of the Bobcaygeon, Lindsay and Pontypool Railway being built. Ties are to be floated down Pigeon River to Bobcaygeon instead of shipping to other foreign points and will open up navigation on our river.

Fred. Rowan and Percy Thornton, two of our local young students at Knox College, are home and intend shortly going out on their respective Mission fields for the summer.

The farmers are looking for rain as vegetation is slow in many places. The seeding has been all completed. Some farmers have already cultivated their sugar beets, which promises well.

DESERTED VILLAGES.

English Writer in London Express Gives Remedy for Overcrowding Slum and Empty Cottages.

Our villages are in a bad way. The evils set out in your recent article, "The Truth About Country Life," are no exaggeration. And of all the causes that have brought about this sad state of affairs the ambition of Hodge is the most potent.

Modern civilization penetrates even the remoter hamlets of the kingdom. The laborer does not, because he cannot, live to-day in blissful ignorance of the great world's bustle and affairs. The schoolmaster has done much, the newspaper has done more, the traveling circus and the village library have assisted, and a vague unrest in the bucolic mind is the result.

Because his betters travel now as never before, and he hears their speech, watches their manners, and marks their dress, the desire for imitation arouses fitful stirrings in his breast, and appears in weird extravagances of costume and habit. He does not, as his father did, put his mind into his plowing and sowing, and his tending of the sheep; nor does the placid animalism of the alehouse fill the ambition of his leisure hours. The club feast loses its charm, and the weekly market ceases to satisfy. The big city beckons not in vain, and one day he gets upon the carrier's cart and is gone.

The band of advancing education has begun to play, and Hodge is facing the music. He feels it has a message for him, and, though he cannot interpret it, he follows, with open mouth and ears, and when the strains are silent he finds himself in the thick of the fray.

A Vague Ambition.

The man is seeking something he cannot find in the village. What is it? A living wage? Say rather a pittance and a portion of land that helped it out, the cultivation of which was but an irksome addition to the long day of dreary toil. He had no recreation.

But he had a home? True, of a sort; and picturesque to the sight, indeed, but not seldom an offense to the smell. At the school there penetrated his slow-moving mind certain facts about the strange machine called the human body, its claims and duties. He came to put a sinister interpretation upon certain sights and scents and conditions of things that his fathers had ignored for generations, till even his stolid conservatism was aroused, and he gathered up his bundle and quitted.

Into the question of wages one need not go; what the farmer can, and what he should, pay are considerations beside the point. What he does pay we know; so does Hodge, and he says it is not enough, considering what he has to endure and what certain earlier emigrants, who have chanced on good fortune in the cities, tell him of their circumstances.

So he elects to take his chances in the town, though the only occupation nature, environment, and experience have fitted him for is agricultural labor.

Model villages are a suggested remedy. And such are to be found in England here and there. But do they meet the case? I think not. It is the bustle and attraction of town life that the laborer wants.

The New Scheme.

In the interests alike of British agriculture and our great overcrowded centres of industry, a remedy is demanded which will combine the economic advantages and social attractions of town life with the refining and health-giving influences of the country. Such a plan has been set forth with great insight and good sense by Mr. Ebenezer Howard in his book, "Garden Cities of To-morrow." It was this volume which led to the formation of the Garden City Association a few years ago.

This association seeks to educate public opinion in these matters by drawing attention to the evils of the deserted village, the overcrowded city, and the manifold disadvantages of each, and the eminently practical character of the remedy proposed by Mr. Howard. It has been successful in winning the support of people eminent in many varied spheres of influence, who find a bond of union in their realization of existent evils and their belief in the remedy proposed.

Briefly put, the plan in this: That a company, adequately financed, should purchase an ample estate, near a great manufacturing centre and a main line of railway, and there begin the establishment of a new city. Lest it should be regarded as merely a speculative venture, I hasten to point out that the company's expenses will be fixed at a relatively low rate, and their dividend limited to 4 to 5 per cent, per annum.

Great advantages will follow from the land being thus held. What no municipality has power to attempt, a body of private individuals many accomplish. Manufacturers will be invited to do systematically and in numbers what isolated firms have found it to their advantage of late to adventure—i. e., to move their factories to the country or to establish a branch there. The workers in these factories will probably form the bulk of the Garden City community.

Where Hodge Benefits.

But the point I would at present make is this—that Hodge will not be forgotten. About five-sixths of the estate of, say, six or eight thousand acres, will be given up to agriculture in the form of small allotments or larger farms, and the proprietor will have a market for his produce at his door. Should he find it to his advantage to send away his produce, a convenient local line will give him rapid access to the main railway system.

The great increase in value that will follow the conversion of agricultural land into a town site will belong to the community. They will have the power, after a certain specified time, of buying out the company and electing their municipal officers in the usual way.

Leases will be granted on terms far more favorable than an individual landowner would allow, and ample protection for all improvements placed upon the land will be afforded to every tenant. By a rigid agreement the residential portion of the estate will be guarded from all possibility of overcrowding, and all buildings will be erected after the most approved methods of sanitary and artistic construction.

The advantages of this scheme are immediate and enormous. The artisan will live in sight of the country and within easy distance of its charms. The agricultural laborer will enjoy the manifold advantages of electricity and the attractions of the life and bustle of a fair-sized city. Public buildings, places of amusement, and schools of adequate design and ample proportions will be erected by the income derived from the natural increase in the land's value.

Bill will have his chance, and Hodge his heart's desire; each will arrive with the first Garden City in the near future, and the success of the first means that others will follow.—George J. H. Northcroft, Organizing Secretary Garden City Association, in London Express.

TOO SHORT.

Life is too short for any bitter feeling;
Time is the best avenger; if we wait,
The years speed by and on their wings bear healing;
We have no room for anything like hate.
This solemn truth the low mounds seem revealing,
That thick and fast about our feet are stealing—
Life is too short for hate.

A Man of Strong Convictions.

Captain Wheeler of the British army relates a story of that class of soldier commonly called the "company lawyer," the man who is never quite sure whether he is being punished according to regulations. One of these men, he says, went into musketry camp and on Saturday evening informed the color-sergeant that he could not be made to attend the church service—which in musketry camp is conducted by the senior officer present—because he was a Wesleyan. He fully counted on spending the morning in slumber, but he had met his match in the captain. The camp was about thirteen miles from cantonments, so the "company lawyer" was marched in under a stalwart corporal to the Wesleyan place of worship and marched out again the same evening, the rest of the company receiving him with ironical cheers. The next Sunday he wanted to attend church service. "Oh, no," said the captain; "your convictions were so strong last week that they must be respected." And again the "company lawyer" had to trudge to and from the chapel.

Prepared in Advance.

The British Postoffice has a reputation for its proverbial dignity, but The London Chronicle tells of an election incident that was almost too much for it: The imperturbable Postoffice was nearly upset at Chertsey on Friday—but not quite. A minute or so after the poll was declared a breathless boy rushed into the office with a huge bunch of telegraphic forms addressed to all parts of the country. The clerk looked at the first, turned them through. "Why, they're blank," he gasped. "That's how I got them," said the boy. By that time the clerk had resumed his official balance. They were addressed, and that was enough. By this time the recipients have probably guessed that someone had prepared everything for despatch but the result, and in the excitement of the moment forgot to add the thing that mattered.

Lieut.-Gen. Sir J. B. Edwards.

Lieutenant-General Sir James Bevan Edwards, who has been appointed Colonel Commandant of the Royal Engineers, in succession to the late Field-Marshal Sir John Linthorn Simmons, joined the corps from the Royal Military Academy at Woolwich in 1852, and served in the closing scenes of the Crimean War. He accompanied Sir Hugh Rose in his long and arduous campaign in Central India in 1857, which ended with the capture of Tantia Topee. He was repeatedly mentioned in despatches, particularly for his gallantry at the storming of Jhansi, where he led the only two successful columns of assault. He commanded the Royal Engineers during the Soudan campaign of 1885, and was again highly praised in despatches for his services before Hasheen and at the destruction of Tamai.

Schoolboy Slang.

The colloquial style of the boy seems to be founded on four main principles—a desire to be thought funny, a belief in the virtue of slang, a strong taste for hyperbole and a disregard of all elegance of expression. The observance of these principles may be illustrated by the following examples: "Master—Why are you late this morning? Boy—Please, sir, I smashed my braces while I was sticking my breeches on." Similarly "lug out" is always preferred to "remove." The following, we must hope for the credit of surgical science, was a misrepresentation of what took place on the painful occasion: "Master—Why did M. come back two days late this term? Boy—He had to stop at home to have his tonsils lugged out."—London Spectator.

Lemons at Funerals.

In 1878 I was called upon to officiate for a neighbor at a funeral in a Lancashire town. The relatives, working people, but not poor, desired me to attend at the house before the procession left it. I found the company drinking lemon juice, mixed with warm water, sweetened and spiced. The vessel was a large two handled pot mug, and the rind of the lemon was wreathed from handle to handle. I found it would have been a great offence to refuse to drink of it.—Notes and Queries.

The Grand Trunk Pacific Bill Again Before Committee.

SOME CHANGES IN THE ROUTE.

The Company Willing to Build From Moncton, N.B.—A Limit to Be Placed Upon the Issue of Stock—Regulating the Bond Issue—Proposed Advances to Settlers by the Road.

Ottawa, May 29.—At the opening of the Railway Committee yesterday morning, on resumption of the discussion of the Grand Trunk Pacific Bill, Mr. McCarthy, the father of the bill, announced that Mr. Wainwright had assured him that the company had written to Mr. Logan, M.P., a letter specifically agreeing to an amendment empowering the company to build to Moncton, N.B.

Mr. Oliver renewed his discussion of the Western aspect of the case. He declared that the Canadian Pacific Railway, in spite of railway legislation, would control rates based, as he put it, on what the traffic would bear. Government ownership alone would control rates. The Canadian Pacific Railway from ocean to ocean had not cost the company a cent. The Canadian Northern had not cost that company a cent. But both these roads charged three times as much for transport from Winnipeg to Lake Superior as did the New York Central from Buffalo to New York. Mr. Oliver said he stood first for a Government railway. In any other case a subsidized railway should be subject to absolute control of rates by the Government.

Progress With the Bill.

The committee proceeded to pass the bill. The first three clauses as to incorporation, head office and provisional directors were approved.

The clause dealing with capital stock followed without dissent.

The clause empowering the company to issue preference stock was opposed by Mr. Blair, but the clause was adopted in face of Mr. Blair's protest.

The promoters relinquished the clause for the issue of guaranteed or preferred stock.

The clauses providing for the election of directors were approved with some verbal amendments.

The committee reached the clause dealing with the route, and Mr. McCarthy offered the company's amendments to the route.

The company proposes now to run from Moncton through Central New Brunswick to Quebec, thence north of Lake Nepigon to Winnipeg. There will be branch lines to North Bay, Port Arthur, Brandon, Prince Albert, Regina, and Calgary.

The clause stood over to be reprinted.

Regulating Bond Issues.

The bond issue asked is $30,000 per mile for the Quebec and Woodland section, $20,000 for the prairie section, and $50,000 per mile for the mountain sections.

The bond issue clause was passed after slight opposition to the amount of the bonding privilege for the prairie section.

The next clause, empowering the company to own and operate vessels, was approved.

The provision for the improvement of navigation, wherever the company saw fit, was struck out. In respect of the company's steamship business, Mr. Blair secured the insertion of a provision that it must be subject to the Railway Commission.

Power to hold lands, wharves, warehouses, and shares in other companies, and to own hotels, restaurants, and parks, was granted.

No Federal Land Grant.

On the clause authorizing the issue of "land grant bonds," Mr. Blair made an emphatic declaration against the alienation of public lands, and was loudly applauded.

His colleague, Mr. Fitzpatrick, the Minister of Justice, differed with him on the point as to the right of the company to mortgage lands that might be granted by Provincial Legislatures.

Mr. Fraser moved in amendment that the provision for the issue of land grant bonds upon any land granted in aid of the undertaking be amended to read: "Upon any land owned by the company for other than railway purposes."

The committee divided on the clause as amended. Mr. Blair voted to strike the clause out; Mr. Fitzpatrick to retain it as amended. Sir Frederick Borden voted to pass the clause, as did Mr. Prefontaine.

The clause passed by 56 yeas to 32 nays.

The telegraph and telephone provisions were passed.

The clause as to the development of lands and water powers stands as the committee objected to the scope of the provision.

The provision for the construction of irrigation works, was opposed by Mr. Oliver.

Mr. Fitzpatrick supported the clause.

Mr. Blair supported Mr. Oliver, and the clause was struck out.

The provision for mining powers, lumbering, iron and steel manufactures, was also struck out.

The provision for the construction of branch tramways stands.

Proposed Advances to Settlers.

The next clause would enable the company to make advances to settlers for the purpose of developing the country served by the railway. It was opposed by the committee on the ground that it would give the company the power to secure mortgages on the settlers' lands.

Mr. Blair opposed the clause, while Mr. Fitzpatrick agreed with Mr. McCreary that such powers should be granted any transcontinental railway project. It would promote immigration and assist settlement. The differences of opinion between the two Ministers as to the details of the bill were strongly marked and clearly expressed. The clause stands.

It was the 32nd clause of the 38th in the bill. The only clause of great importance remaining for discussion now is that covering the route of the road.

The committee adjourned until Tuesday morning.

BRITAIN MAY RETALIATE.

Important Speech by Premier Balfour Respecting Preferential Trade—Mr. Chamberlain's Address.

London, May 29.—On the motion being made for the Whitsuntide adjournment of the House of Commons, Sir Charles Dilke (Advanced Liberal) yesterday raised a discussion on the fiscal views recently enunciated by Colonial Secretary Chamberlain.

Premier Balfour said Sir Charles Dilke had attempted to make mischief between the Colonial Secretary and himself, but any such attempt would fail. The Premier argued that the tendancy was to raise a tariff wall against British goods.

With respect to tariff negotiations, continued the Premier, if foreign countries were to be allowed to treat the British colonies as foreign nations, Great Britain would be forced by patriotic interests and regard for her colonies to retaliate.

Mr. Chamberlain expressed surprise that his Birmingham speech has aroused such attention. There was absolutely no difference of opinion between himself and Mr. Balfour.

Mr. Chamberlain said he would do his utmost to bring this question in all its bearings before the people. Thus far he had only raised a principle and had not formulated a plan. If there was no change in the fiscal system the country would have to give up all hope of closer fiscal relations with the colonies, and must abandon all idea of securing at any time closer political relations with them.

Mr. Chamberlain concluded with an emphatic assertion that he intended to press the matter on public attention, and said he was prepared to justify the taxing of food before the working classes of this country.

After some further discussion, the motion for the Whitsuntide adjournment was adopted and the House adjourned until June 8.

Drowned While Swimming.

Woodstock, May 29.—Word was received in the city yesterday afternoon of a drowning accident at Hawtrey, near Otterville, Wednesday in which Thomas Clark, blacksmith, of the village, lost his life. He was bathing in the millpond at the time, and got beyond his depth. He was 45 and leaves a widow and five children.

Will Lose Both Eyes.

Detroit, May 27.—A pitiable accident occurred Monday in Windsor, when Gordon Doug, the 7-year-old son of William Doug, lost the sight of both eyes, by the explosion of a firecracker.

Disabled at Sea.

Halifax, May 27.—Word was received here last night by William Roche, agent of the Hamburg-American line, that the steamer Bulgarian had been passed disabled at sea, on May 20. The steamer is from Hamburg, from Halifax, and has nearly 3,000 passengers on board.

THE I.C.R. EARNINGS.

Have Been Almost Doubled Since the Year 1896.

HON. MR. BLAIR'S STATEMENT

Minister Made Comparisons Which Showed That the Business of the Road Had Steadily Improved During the Year—He Has Reduced and Improved the Government Railway.

Ottawa, May 29.—Hon. A. G. Blair's defence of the management of the I.C.R., which has come to be an annual affair, began early yesterday afternoon, as the House was about to go into Committee of Supply. He used many figures to show that the business of the road has steadily improved during the year, and showed satisfactory gains over 1901.

The natural increase, he estimated at $760,000. The passenger receipts in 1896 were $971,400. In 1902, they were $1,788,000.

The earnings of the road for the year ending June 30, 1902, were: Passengers, $1,788,000; freight, $3,644,513; mail and express, $25,593; total, $5,671,385.

For the year 1901, the passenger receipts were $1,607,166; freight, $3,121,006; mail and express, $244,063; total, $4,972,235, an increase of $699,150. In both years there were under operation 1,314 miles of road.

The earnings per mile in 1902 were $4,313, and in 1901 they were $3,782, an increase of $531. The gross earnings per train mile in 1902 were $93.46 as against $79.89 in 1901.

Mr. Blair said the increased earnings for 1902 were $683,822, on passengers, and $1,587,379 on freight, after allowing for an increase of 15 per cent. on train mileage. Last year the working expenses were $5,574,563, and the surplus is $96,822.

Mr. Blair spoke of his efforts to moderalize the road's larger engines and cars and improve the roadbed. These improvements meant increased business without any corresponding increase in expenditure. The balance against the I.C.R. used to range from $60,000 to $72,000 a year. Last year this was changed to a credit of $16,800.

Mr. Blair claimed that, on the I. C. R. there is little room for political influence. Sweeping charges against its administration were untrue. He instituted a comparison with other roads, and claimed that Canada's state owned road was a success.

"It is also to be remembered," said Mr. Blair, "that rates on the C.P.R. and G.T.R. are from 50 to 100 per cent. higher than on the I. C.R." By this he did not mean that either the C.P.R. or the G.T.R. charged excessive rates. Put on 50 per cent. on I.C.R. freight rates and the revenue of the road would be increased one half without increasing the expenditure. On this basis the I.C.R. would show a profit of $2,046,000.

Hon. John Haggart said the comparison of the revenues of the road made by Mr. Blair was unfair, and that the present management of the road gave no encouragement to the plan of extending the line westward to Winnipeg or the coast. He said he seriously doubted whether the rates on the I.C.R. were much lower than those of the C.P.R. and G.T.R.

The debate was continued by Messrs. Barker, Clarke, Emmerson, Bell and Jabel Robinson. The Maritime Province members, Messrs. Emmerson and Bell, contended strongly against the theory that in the construction or running of the I. C. R. the Maritime Provinces were receiving any undue advantage at the expense of the rest of the Dominion. The House then went into Committee of Supply, and after passing items aggregating $171,000 adjourned at midnight.

The satisfaction of having the washing done early in the day, and well done, belongs to every user of Sunlight Soap. 10B

Confide in a Woman

Women may write about their ills to Mrs. Pinkham, and avoid the questioning of a male physician. They can tell their story without reservation to her; she never breaks a confidence, and her advice is the best in the world.

The questions asked of a woman by a male physician are embarrassing, and often revolting to a sensitive nature. In consequence the whole truth is not told; this makes it difficult for female troubles to be successfully treated even by the best physicians, and is the reason so many women grow worse rather than better. A woman understands a woman better than a man,—there are symptoms which sick women have that a man cannot understand, simply because he is a man, but the whole truth may be told to Mrs. Pinkham, and her vast experience enables her to give advice which leads to a cure.

All women who suffer should secure Mrs. Pinkham's advice; it costs nothing but a letter addressed to her at Lynn, Mass. Female troubles are real troubles, and must be treated understandingly. For a quarter of a century Mrs. Pinkham's advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have been helping women to get strong and well, and her great file of letters prove that more than a million women have been restored to health and strength by her advice and her medicine when all other means have failed.

When you go to a druggist for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, do not let him persuade you to try something which he says is just as good; there is nothing just as good, because Mrs. Pinkham's medicine holds the record for the largest number of cures of any female medicine in the world.

GAMEY'S CONSPIRACY TO WRECK GOVERNMENT.

To Become "Minister of Mines" in the New Ministry.

No Corruption, No Patronage No Support— Without Money the Correspondence, Interviews, Etc., are all Innocent— The Review Not Concluded.

Following is the continuation of Mr. Johnston's argument in the Gamey-Stratton case on Saturday morning:—

LABOURS OF LOVE.

Another matter which we have to look at in that connection is that Mr. Stratton was not needing the office of Provincial Secretary. He is, according to his statement in the box, a man who is not dependent upon the emoluments of that office; he is a man of means, a man who does not need to buy men to keep him in his seat; besides, I have no doubt, as is well-known in many other cases, Mr. Stratton would be equally as well off out of politics as in them. Mr. Gamey's evidence is beyond all contradiction on this point. He was not in need of funds either. "I can raise $1,500 in 12 hours; I have plenty of assets and plenty of credit." He was not going with his hat in his hand seeking the dole of charity from Mr. Stratton or anybody else.

Now where was the motive for buying this man Gamey? Then look at other circumstances.

MOTIVE OF SUPPORT.

Gamey's motive for supporting the Government was infinitely stronger than a monetary one, the confidence, the affection and support of his constituents; doing the best he could for his Island. That is a strong motive if he was looking forward to future political life.

Look at the other circumstances about the payment of the money. There has been no connection between Jones on the one hand and Frank Sullivan on the other with the Government. The talking to Gamey and these letters which have been produced here and could only have been produced under a charge of conspiracy, could not have been produced in the charge which is only left now to your Lordships to hear and determine, namely, the charge of bribery and corrupt acts in that way. The evidence of the Jones and Sullivan letters could not have been admitted because first of all they would have had to establish an agency or some bond between Mr. Stratton and these men authorising them to write such correspondence and have such interviews. Under conspiracy it was got in, but it gives it no weight whatever in regard to the legal bearing of the facts at all now before your Lordships.

JONES AND SULLIVAN.

Then look at this fact also. Jones had nothing to do with Sullivan, was not acquainted with the Sullivans excepting to know one of them by sight. Jones was acting on his own responsibility dealing with Gamey and there you get the true inkling of the true character of Mr. Gamey, the member from Manitoulin; you get it from his uncle, you get it from a man who know him; you get it from a man who has had deals with him and you find that the first man Jones goes to to engage in this class of business is his nephew, Mr. R. R. Gamey. He knew him well and he knew the mill to go to get his grist.

SULLIVAN AND GAMEY.

Now, Sullivan's connection with Gamey manifestly originated from their desire to get into deals, and to use Gamey for that purpose; and what I want to point out is that there is no common action, no common hand guiding and directing the affairs of Jones and Sullivan with reference to Mr. Gamey, and the only way in which it could be done would be by Mr. Stratton being the guiding and directing hand, telling Mr. Jones what to do, telling Mr. Sullivan what to do, and get upon the evidence that part of the case entirely and utterly fails. They ask your Lordships to draw the inference because Frank Sullivan chooses to write letters which he comes in the box and says are absolutely untrue, and done for a purpose, to make this man believe he had a great hold upon the Government of Ontario. It only requires to state the fact to supply its own answer. The submission and charge has utterly failed against the Government. There is no evidence here that the Premier or any of his colleagues knew for a moment what is alleged to have been going on, and whilst my learned friend may talk with reference to the Ministers not coming here and perjuring themselves — perjuring themselves of what? Of aspersions cast upon their character by my learned friend? Of insinuations made against them by Mr. Gamey recklessly in the witness box? Of inferences which a guilty and wrong mind chooses to draw from otherwise innocent circumstances? Called upon to answer that? One might as well call the Premier in the box to answer to the howlings of some cur that yelped at him as he went past the gate as to call upon the Premier of this province to answer the charges which are utterly foundationless and without the slightest particle of evidence, and my learned friend knows that fact as well as I do. But they subpoenaed the Ministers and asked them to be here; the Ministers have been ready and waiting and willing if they wanted them to put in the box. No difficulty about getting them. They could have called them and could have asked them whatever questions suggested themselves to the minds of my learned friends.

WANTED ANOTHER HOUR.

Mr. Johnston states that he finds it will be impossible for him to finish to-night; that he thinks he will require to ask the indulgence of their Lordships for an hour longer. The Chancellor stated that the Commissioners had hoped that the argument would have been finished to-night; that they did not anticipate any reply would be given, but as they had noticed Mr. Blake making voluminous notes they would ask Mr. Blake whether it was his intention to reply.

Mr. Blake stated that he thought a reply was usual, and did not know that there was going to be anything but the usual practices followed, but stated that he was in the hands of their Lordships.

Mr. Johnston stated that he was not introducing any new matter, to which Mr. Blake replied that there were a number of matters which were easily capable of explanation, and he thought it was usual to give it. The Chancellor thereupon stated that Mr. Blake would be allowed to reply and an adjournment was taken until the following morning at 10 o'clock.

At the hour of adjournment yesterday I dealt with the absence of a motive on the part of Mr. Stratton or the Government in bribing or attempting to bribe Mr. Gamey, and I have just one word to add in that connection, and that is, that so far as the evidence goes the approach that was made was not made on the part of the Government; the approach to obtain Mr. Gamey's support was apparently on the evidence, a voluntary act on his part, and not induced in any way by the Government, unless the prosecution is able to satisfy your Lordships that Sullivan was an agent, that Jones was an agent, empowered to see Mr. Gamey for that purpose, and regarding which there is not the slightest particle of evidence, and all the evidence is to the contrary effect.

MOTIVE FOR THE STORY.

Now, having dealt with that phase of it, and in order that I may not take up more time than is absolutely necessary for the purpose of presenting the case of the Government to your Lordships, I pass to another motive, namely, the motive for the story concocted by Gamey. It would appear from his own showing that his life has become burdensome; it would appear that the man elected by a majority of over three hundred had lost the pleasure and sympathy to some extent of some of the more rabid partizans of his constituency. He had to occupy that position which every member has to occupy who leaves his political party, whether for good reason or bad. Assume the reason to have been an honest one, he was not trusted by his old friends; he was berated more or less by his old supporters, at least by some of them, and he was in that transition stage when life, as he says himself, not in so many words, had become unbearable.

HIS NEW FRIENDS.

The Chancellor—Whom do you refer to by "his new friends."

Mr. Johnston—I am speaking now of the Liberal party, and I am speaking entirely from Mr. Gamey's political standpoint. He had to do something; he had to satisfy his constituents now that he had deserted his party — had to satisfy them in some way or another. He says himself he was hounded and in order to do that he takes the position for many months or many weeks, at any rate, that he was doing this in the interests of Manitoulin, that he was doing it in pursuance of his election promises and that he thought as the Ross Government was returned to power it was the best thing for him and his friends there that he should support them, but he found that he was not getting the sympathy apparently of Mr. Stratton and his colleagues. He was practically getting nothing.

AN ALLEGED KEY NOTE.

He had been demanding for some five or six months patronage which had been refused him, and the key-note of the position is found in Mr. Kinney's evidence. He says, "I said I thought Gamey used the words that they both joined in stating they wanted to have the thing right, if there was any future trouble." When Sullivan mentioned the fact that it was not Myers who brought the letter down, Gamey said I am glad you mentioned that fact; I will take it down. We want to have things right. And Sullivan joined in and said, Yes, we want to have it right.

"Q.—What about the future trouble you mentioned? A.—That is what I understood.

"Q.—What? A.—Well, in talking of their mining deal they gave me the understanding that if things did not go their way on the one side that they would fix it so that it would come anway.

"Q.—They would fix their stories so that there would be no trouble. Is that what you understood? A.—No, I did not say they did; that is merely my expression." Then, and this is where the crucial point comes in. "Q.—You stated you know that if they did not get their mining deals they would get it from the other side. Do you remember their stating that? A.—I said that was my impression."

THE TWELVE HUNDRED.

Now, we have Mr. Gamey in this position, supporting the Government, or pretending to support the Government, getting nothing. It was necessary that their deal should be carried out, because if Mr. Gamey's story is true—and I shall deal with that in another connection more particularly—but if his story is true, in his answer to your Lordship, the Chancellor, he was to repay the $1200 he borrowed from Frank out of mining and timber and other deals, when they were cleaned up. So that the sole object of these men—and I am not disassociating Gamey and Sullivan in that connection—was to get all they could from whatever Government was in power; if they could not hold up the Ross Government, then something must be done to get rid of the Ross Government, to put the others in power; and then we have the significance of the remark, "And I will be Minister of Mines."

MR. JOHNSTON'S THEORY.

The Chancellor—Your theory is that in this Crossin interview the motive was, if possible, to arrange a plan to coerce the Ross Government or oust them.

Mr. Johnston—Certainly, beyond any doubt, between the two of them, and I make no distinction.

Why should he want to be made Minister of Mines, except for some sinister purpose? Why, should he take all this trouble and these precautions? Because he knew he could not be Minister of Mines under the Ross Government. It was the contingency to which these two men were looking. "Arrange our stories so that it will tell; arrange our stories so that it will hang together; make it right; we must not have our stories crossed; we must have things so that they will fit in together, and if this Government won't do what we want we will explode a story upon them which will oust the Government from power and place the Opposition in power. I shall be made Minister of Mines and then you (Mr. Frank Sullivan) and I will have it all our own way in respect of the deals, timber, mineral, fishing," and every other deal which was open to them. That was the object of these two men, and not Gamey alone.

LETTER TO LATCHFORD.

Then we have the further fact and as another strong motive contained in Mr. Boyd's letter, written at a time when there was no object in misrepresenting the actual condition of things. I refer your Lordships to the letter written to Mr. Latchford.

The Chancellor—Where he speaks of Mr. Gamey's character?

Mr. Johnston—Yes, my Lord, in which he speaks of him as being a vain, ambitious man.

The Chancellor—It is not exactly that way, I think.

Mr. Johnston—Now, there is a letter which bears out the statement which I am making, shown at page 109 of the exhibits.

The Chancellor—What is the expression there?

Mr. Johnston—"He is a man considerably over-estimated; is extremely zealous and ambitious for power and patronage."

TO HIS CHIEF.

There is a letter from a man to his chief, a letter written without the slightest knowledge of the facts; a man who was called here and gave his testimony in, one would say, a most satisfactory manner; a man who perhaps from his examination by my learned friend may have and in the event of a change of government certainly has imperilled his position as a civil servant, yet he thought it was his duty, and I am not finding fault with him for a moment for doing that, to warn his chief, the Hon. Mr. Latchford, against Mr. Gamey whom your Lordships will observe was at that time a friend of Boyd's, so friendly that they appeared to be more or less intimate and called each other by their second names.

POWER AND PATRONAGE.

And there we have the motive, there we have the moving spring, of Mr. Gamey's ambition, Mr. Gamey's story—"Extremely zealous and ambitious for power and patronage." Then need I call to mind in support of this the man's conduct during this whole proceeding? Notoriety is the only morsel that is sweet under his tongue. Even the terrors of Buffalo, that seem to have alarmed my learned friend in reference to Mr. Wilson, were no terrors for Mr. Gamey. His conduct throughout has been that of a man posing to become notorious, posing to put himself in a position to hold up one party or be in a position to demand recognition from the other. That has been Mr. Gamey's whole course.

THEORY OF CONCOCTION.

Then that the story was concocted seems to bear upon its face ample evidence Frank Sullivan says that they had the interview at the Parliament Buildings on the 9th of March. That is not denied, but is admitted by Mr. Gamey. That they discussed certain parts of their story is admitted by both witnesses. They met subsequently at Orossin's factory, perhaps Frank Sullivan with the object of placing himself in a position to get deals and transactions put through, and thereby benefit personally by the transaction. Gamey with the same common motive, the same common object as Frank Sullivan, but with the stronger, with the more cunning, with the more astute idea of how he could make himself safe in this transaction and tie up Frank Sullivan. Tie him up for what? Tie him up in order that Mr. Gamey's story might be corroborated, with the object of telling that story in the House. Not to turn out the Ross Government especially, but to be made Minister of Mines — a fact which Mr. Gamey here saw the danger of, and in spite of three or four witnesses was prepared to state on oath that he never mentioned the Minister of Mines to anybody; because Gamey was clever and cunning enough to know that that was the moving spring in his whole action, and he denied it in the box, although the two Prices and Frank Sullivan have all sworn emphatically that one of the matters of discussion was that Gamey proposed that he should be Minister of Mines.

Chancellor Boyd—In the new Government only.

Mr. Johnston—In the new Government only, if they could hold up the present one; and your Lordship will see that they had reached the stage when they could not hold up the present Government, when the present Government was refusing to do anything for Gamey. Frank Sullivan is not contradicted Gamey is afraid to go back in the box, afraid to be put in the box by my learned friend, to contradict the oaths of these various witnesses. Yet this is the man upon whose evidence your Lordships are asked to find, or to report, as the case may be, that his evidence is worthy of credence, and upon his statement, contradicted, as it is, in every particular, the Government should be driven from power.

ZEALOUS, AMBITIOUS MAN.

Now, we have this zealous, ambitious man, fond of power, fond of patronage, left practically alone, left unsupported, helpless against the Ross Government, and with no fruit in his hands with which to go to the Conservative party and endeavour to hold them up for the office of Minister of Mines—an office that has been talked of being created for some years, an office that would place a man like Gamey or Sullivan in a position to amass a fortune in a few years; an office that means to the man who improperly administers it, unlimited money and command of money—with every mining applicant and every mining concern, with every company that is incorporated, money flowing into the hands of these men, the Minister of Mines and his deputy.

A CONTRADICTION.

Let us see now where Mr. Gamey is contradicted. Your Lordships will remember that I pressed him again and again to say whether he had ever said to Sullivan or anybody else at any time or at any place that he would be Minister of Mines or that he was looking for that position; and he absolutely denied it. We have the evidence of W. H. Price, and the evidence of a man not seen by us and not called by us, but a man who is selected by Mr. Gamey as man to be trusted, and put in the box as a man worthy of credence. He says, "We have got them where we want them"—that is Sullivan. Look at Sullivan's attitude. He says, "They can't afford to go back on us now." That was the position taken by Frank Sullivan. Then, further on, Gamey said, "You see, Frank, if I was made Minister of Mines on the Tory side you could give me a lot of information." Frank said, "I could; I could tell you a lot of things." Then Percy Price says—and this is significant, because it shows the undercurrent that was working in Gamey's mind all through that period—this young man, Percy Price, says, "They also discussed as to who was to be appointed license commissioner. Gamey said he did not care who was appointed license commissioner. Sullivan said he had better hand in the name. Gamey said he did not care about that." "Now that cannot be true if Gamey's contention be correct; because Gamey pretended to be anxious about the license commissioners, and wanted them appointed.

MAN FROM THE WEST.

Then further down on the same page of this evidence they are talking about a man from the west, about a thousand dollars, and Sullivan said that he did not think a thousand dollars would be much. "We don't want to make a fool of ourselves like that; whatever we want we want to be good and large. We have got the Government where we want them now, and if we squeal on them it will put them right out of business." Sullivan says that. These two men met together to concoct and perfect the story which was to put the Government out of business. Why? The answer is in the next line, "Gamey said

GAMEY'S CONSPIRACY TO WRECK GOVERNMENT.

'Yes, and if I become of the Minister of Mines we could arrange things all right.' He says, 'You could get evidence for me.'"

Chancellor Boyd—That is about the mine?

Mr. McPherson—Read on.

THE SCARE-HEAD GENTLEMAN.

Mr. Johnston—No, my Lord, that was to unseat. They were to have the new Cabinet, with a Minister of Mines. Then, further on, there is this, "Sullivan said, 'We can easily bring them to time,'" and if there was any question about it he could get this scare-head gentleman from the World, who would put the Government out of business. Now, if this was an honest story, and there was no other motive than the motive of exposing corruption, if it existed, why would this be done? The meeting at the factory—and I will deal with that in a moment—and will deal with it most briefly, because it does not appear to me to have any great bearing upon the issue presented now that the evidence is in, in the shape in which it is—but what Gamey wanted was evidence, not against the Government, but in support of whatever story he had told or was going to set up.

SULLIVAN'S STORY.

Frank Sullivan says, "At the Buildings he told me that that was the story he had to tell some of his constituents, and he told Frank Sullivan at the Buildings, "If you stick by me we will make this story hang together, we will turn out the present Government, we will put the Tories in, and I will be Minister of Mines, and you and I will be provided for for life, and we will take good care that we are so provided for." That story at the Buildings is not contradicted. Now he gets these men there and they tell their story. Now, just see how it works out in practice. Gamey was so sure that he had Frank Sullivan tied up that he instructed my learned friend to put Frank Sullivan in the box, and my learned friend put him in the box, and from the beginning of his evidence to the end he gave Gamey the lie? Why? Because the thing was founded upon falsehood, because there was not a ring of the true metal from the beginning to the end; because they were a pair of men who were there for a nefarious purpose, and meant to hold up the Government—whatever Government might be in power!

MANITOULIN NO MORE.

Manitoulin no longer my politics; service to my country in a department no longer my duty; and with a most marvellous application they say to each other "We will apply that beautiful old maxim to ourselves, 'Charity begins at home.'" Now, when we are dealing with this question as to whether this is a concocted story or not—and if I were appealing to twelve of my fellow men I would ask those men to say what are the probabilities, and as your Lordships are sitting hearing solely questions of fact, I may equally appeal to your Lordships upon the same grounds, because humanity will insist upon stories being reasonably probable, and the highest test that counsel can present to a jury dealing solely with the facts is the question, What are the probabilities? Now, I will just state them as briefly as possible, because I am aware that in making an argument of this kind I do not have to elaborate before your Lordships as one would have to elaborate perhaps before the ordinary mind, and therefore I need only state them rather propositionally to your Lordships than otherwise, without much comment.

RULE OF PROBABILITIES.

Apply the rule of probabilities to this story and see how the story connects itself and how it stands the test. The payment of money; this change in the political condition of Mr. Gamey, if change there was—certainly the payment of the $3000 was the most important event, in the whole of this man's life—important, from a public standpoint, because he had only lately been elected to public life; important from a personal standpoint, because it affected more or less his future and reflected more less upon his past, if it is true; important from a moral condition, because if he accepted the bribe he was doing that which, as far as a public man is concerned, is the sin without forgiveness, because no man who hands the bribe, no man who receives the bribe can ever after hold up his head amongst his fellow-men and say, "I am entitled to your support and I am entitled to your confidence."

GRAVE STEP TO TAKE.

It was a grave step, the most important in his life; the only time in his life that anything of that kind, he says, had been said to him; the only time that any such arrangement had been talked of; and yet he comes here and tells your Lordships that the agreement, which was the basis of the whole of this transaction, was made casually upon the sidewalk of a leading street in the city of Toronto, outside the Walker House. He comes there and he gives certain dates and days of the week in his statement, composed in the solitude of the Manitoulin Island, when there were no lawyers to examine him or cross-examine him, and he fixes the time upon which he received the bribe from Mr. Stratton according to his story, and he comes into the box and forgets the day upon which he got the money.

SIX MONTHS SINCE.

Six months ago the man placed himself in the position, if true, of being either on the one hand a man capable of any amount of treachery, or on the other hand of stooping to do work for his own personal gain and benefit, because at this day no man accuses no man frames a criminal indictment against Mr Gamey that he did all this out of pure patriotism. Mr. Gamey comes in the box, although he has the Aylesworth letter of the 10th, although he has the caucus of the 10th, although he has the returning home on the 12th, and what does he say in the witness box? In volume one, page 219, at line 3. Q.—And the day after you attended a Conservative caucus he deliberately pays you $3,000; is that your story? A.—He either paid it to me that day of the caucus or the next day; I won't swear positively." Then at page 220 he is asked the question—and here, although I was very pressing upon the witness, and although it might appear that I was taking up unusual time in endeavouring to ascertain the facts, it became and has become all-important that the day should be fixed—

WHAT MR. GAMEY SAID.

"Q.—Let us get the bald facts; do you want the court to believe that you got $3,000 from a Minister of the Crown within six months from this date, seven months at any rate, and you can't swear to the day on which you got it? A.—That is right. Q.—Is that what you want to swear to—yes or no? A.—I won't swear which day it was. Q.—I am not asking you that; answer my question? A.—I told you I won't swear which day it was." Then at page 232, line 5, "Q.—Did you keep any figure in your mind of the date? A.—Yes, sir. Q.—It was an important event? A.—Yes, sir, an important event. Q.—And you don't know anything except in this way that you speak of; you don't know any more than you have told us? A.—I don't.

THE DATE QUESTION.

Then it became important, from the position that I was looking to for the defence, to ascertain whether or not these days were consecutive, and at page 228 I asked him—"When nobody was disturbing you in the witness box, is that true? A.—That is as true as my statement in the House. Well, I think the date is wrong. I think the 11th is the day. Well, it is true in this regard, that I say about those dates." Then he is asked at 227, "You saw him on two days, one after the other consecutively? A.—Yes. Q. — No doubt about that? A.—No doubt about that." Now we have him down to a position that he cannot swear to the days, he cannot swear to the date upon which he got the money, and won't swear to it, but he does swear that the two days were consecutive. Now looking at his original statement one is struck with the particularity with which this man gives the account. "About September 9th I was taken into Stratton's office. He showed me the letter I would have to sign." Now, that letter was not written. "The consideration was to be paid that day, but he was not ready." They went to a lawyer's office that day. Then he had an appointment for the next forenoon. "We went up to his office about ten o'clock on September 10th and he was not ready." They went back at twelve or twelve thirty, and he says he got the money, and then he says in consecutive order, "I left for home on Thursday night, September 11th."

Against that they called a cabman named Greene as to the 11th. I did intend to have called some witnesses against that statement. Unfortunately one lady was in New York, another in Winnipeg. On considering the matter and looking at his evidence, it occurred to me that to ask for a postponement for the production of the witnesses would have been perfectly unreasonable and absurd. Here is a man, confessedly a drinking man, a man who has been arrested for drunkenness, a man who had lost his position, a man found by some strange circuitous coincidence driving with the solicitors on the other side the night before he gave his evidence—not that I am imputing anything wrong, but I am imputing to the witness either a desire to make himself notorious in the case by being called, or that some person had acted upon his mind in some way or another by which the poor man, rightly or wrongly, confused the dates.

TEST OF HIS EVIDENCE.

Now, the best test of incorrectness of Mr. Greene's evidence is this fact, that his oath is contradicted by his written record made at the time. He went home and entered in his book, or had entered, that these people had been at McConkeys's, and were shopping — two places that Mr. Stratton at that hour of the day was most likely to go, places that ladies would most likely go to. So that when he asked with reference to his memory in these matters, he is absolutely contradicted by the entry in his book, because he swore that they were not at McConkey's at all. Then he swears that it was the week after the Exhibition that he drove Mr. Stratton. That of course would not be the 11th. Then he says that he got these people at Mr. Strathy's, 71 Queen's Park, not Mr. Stratton's residence, but the residence of Mr. Strathy of the bank. Then he says, in addition to that, "I don't know whether I drove Mr. Stratton back or not." Now, if your Lordships can take the evidence of a man of that character and of that peculiar memory, a man who is contradicted and contradicts himself, as against all the evidence of men whose names I have given to your Lordships, and who speak with certainty, then of course it would be useless to attempt to contradict any witness in any case.

ARMSTRONG'S EVIDENCE.

Then R. J. Armstrong is called, and your Lordships will find his evidence at pages 2923, 2925, Vol. 7, on the point at which I start. He says that he was down at McCormack's a few minutes before eight o'clock. He says that he was an hour at McCormack's; he was an hour or two afterwards wandering around up and down, which he qualifies subsequently by saying that he said an hour. He met Mr. Gamey as shown at pages 2928, and spent a few minutes with him. He was fifteen or twenty minutes in Eaton's store, and we know, as common knowledge, that to go from Eaton's store to the Exhibition would take at least half an hour; and he waited five or ten minutes for Mr. Gamey at the gate, making in all, according to his own account, over three hours from the time that he got to McCormack's in the morning, a few minutes before eight o'clock; and he swears in the face of that, that he looked at his watch, and swearing by that, he knows it was about ten o'clock that he met Mr. Gamey at the Exhibition. Can your Lordships accept testimony of that kind as against the evidence which we have given? Because there is this significant fact to be considered in regard to that: If he met Gamey five or ten minutes after he got to the exhibition, having an appointment with Mr. Gamey, why didn't he wait for him at this end, or why didn't Gamey go with him? Because Gamey must have started after him within five or ten minutes. A man who could afford the time wandering up and down in the wet—because we have shown that it was a wet morning—a man who could spend twenty minutes in Eaton's——

HEAVY RAIN TILL NINE.

The Chancellor—A very heavy rain till nine o'clock.

Mr. Johnston — Then it was drizzling and wet, and came on heavier later on — uncomfortable, the man said, to be out; I think that is the expression the man used. Why couldn't he have waited for Gamey at this end as well as at the Exhibition end?

Mr. Johnston—He didn't. Why? Because there was an hour's difference between his time of his story and the time that Gamey went up.

The Chancellor— An hour would make all the difference.

Mr. Johnston—An hour would make all the difference.

Mr. Johnston—An hour would make all the difference. Gamey had some appointment.

The Chancellor — He does not say Gamey had an appointment.

Mr. Johnston — Yes, my Lord, I think he does. However, it is not material. If he had no appointment, why should not Gamey have gone up with him at the time, unless he had something to do? Of course I am putting these questions to your Lordships as to the truth or correctness of this man's story. Now, the documents which he presented do not help the question at all, one way or the other, because they are not in any way connected with the transaction.

FIX THE DATE.

The Chancellor—They enable us to fix the date, that is all.

Mr. Johnston — No, but it does not enable him to fix the date.

LEAVING THE LETTERS.

I therefore deal with these matters and I do not propose to say much, if anything, with reference to the Jones letters or the Sullivan letters, because until there is some evidence connecting these men with the Government and authorizing them to write letters of that kind there is no obligation on our part to reply. There is one matter only that I desire to point out and it is this: That when Frank Sullivan is put in the box by my learned friend and is asked the question how he came to write the X.Y.Z. letter and enclosure, he said that he had got a letter which (he subsequently discovered was similar in character and tone) to the letter which Mr. Gamey sent to Mr. Stratton beginning, "well, there is certainly a row on." Then as to the explanation which my learned friend endeavoured to get from Sullivan in regard to that and in reference to the information which Frank Sullivan had at that particular time, we find an explanation of that in the X.Y.Z. letter itself of Feb. 11th, containing the enclosure as to what Mr. Sullivan meant by the meeting. This letter—Exhibit 29—says "I understand they are holding a meeting at Gore Bay on Monday, 16th inst., at which you will be asked to state your position." The insinuation is that that information was derived by Frank Sullivan from the letter which was addressed to Mr. Stratton commencing,

"X. Y. Z." LETTER.

"Well, there is certainly a row on." But the letter of Feb. 11th written by Frank Sullivan (X.Y.Z.) clearly sets forth the source of his information: McGregor and Reilly the exdruggist, were talking the night before last at the Walker House, and they decided they would have your promise to resign if the convention of McGregor and Reilly from Gore Bay, and he said also in addition to that that he had a letter, which is contained at page 1,315, Vol. 3, in Sullivan's evidence, and at 1,316, where he says that there was an understanding with Mr. Gamey that he (Sullivan) should write Gamey and keep him posted as to what was doing. Then he says in answer to the question "I suppose you obtained that information from that letter? No, sir; positively. I see that letter gives it, but I have a letter from Mr. Gamey, and I also had an understanding with Mr. Gamey that he was to give me the information. That being so, I do not propose to deal with that question any further, but to add this, that Sullivan's letters are admittedly untrue, and in addition to their being admittedly untrue by Sullivan himself, they are proved to be absolute falsehoods; every witness that we have called as to Sullivan's power or intimacy in regard to the Minister has shown that no such power or intimacy existed; that during the whole course of this time Sullivan was only in the Minister's office while the Minister was there, excepting when he was in the main office once or twice looking after some work about the building.

The conclusion of Mr. Johnston's address will appear to-morrow.

For a Certainty I am Cured.

Mr. Jas. Treneman, 536 Adelaide street, London, writes that for two years he was laid up with kidney disease and urinary troubles. He became dropsical and his legs would swell so that he could hardly walk around. He never used any medicine that did him so much good as Dr. Chase's Kidney Live Pills, and knows for a certainty that this treatment cured him. One pill a dose; 25c. a box.

The Home Comers.

Toronto, May 28.—Rev. Prof. Clark, Prof. Maurice Hutton, Prof. Pelham Edgar, and Prof. W. S. McKay, the judges of the Old Home Sentiment Poem competition, decided yesterday that Duncan Campbell Scott of Ottawa had won the first prize of $100, Miss Helen M. Merrill of Picton the second prize of $50, and Miss Marjorie Pickthall of Toronto the third prize of $25. Nearly 200 poems were sent in from all parts of North America.

Charles Was a Broken Jaw.

Galt, May 28.—Charles Cromwell and four of his friends tried to thrash an Englishman in the Galt House Monday. Charles has a broken jaw, and the others are quiet.

Wakeful Children.

For a long time the two year old child of Mr. P. L. McPherson, 59 N. Tenth street, Harrisburg, Pa., would sleep but two or three hours in the early part of the night, which made it very hard for her parents. Her mother concluded that the child had stomach trouble, and gave her half of one of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets which quieted her stomach and she slept the whole night through. Two boxes of these Tablets have effected a permanent cure and she is now well and strong. Children are often troubled with disorders of the stomach which makes them peevish and restless in daytime and wakeful at nights. One of these Tablets taken just after supper is all that is needed. 12c

Obituary.

The death occurred in Port Hope on Saturday last, of Anna Sarah Holmes, John street. The deceased was 29 years of age. The funeral took place on Tuesday afternoon to the Union cemetery, the service being conducted by Rev. E. B. Lanceley. The funeral was private, only the relatives of the deceased being present. It was only on Friday, May 15th, that a daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Holmes. The child is thriving, but a week after its birth the mother passed away. Mr. Holmes was at one time a resident of Peterborough, and his friends here will sympathize with him in his sad bereavement.

LORD AND LADY MINTO TO VISIT PETERBOROUGH.

Will Arrive on June 5th by Noon Train.

Their Excellencies to be Shown Over the Town—Mayor Roger's Communication.

Mayor Roger has received a communication from Major Maude, the Governor-General's Private Secretary, stating that Their Excellencies Lord and Lady Minto, will pass through Peterborough on their journey from Muskoka to Ottawa, on June 5th. They will arrive in town about noon, and it is expected that they will remain two hours, during which time they will be presented with an address, and be shown the main sights of the town. Since receiving the letter, the Mayor has telephoned to ascertain what sort of a reception would be most acceptable.

It has been decided that as the time of Their Excellencies' stay is so limited, they will not be banquetted. They will probably take luncheon on the train between here and Belleville.

AN OLD LAND MARK.

Tearing Down the Old Rogers' Saw Mill in Ashburnham.

Workmen are at present busily engaged in removing the machinery, shafting, etc., from the old Rogers sawmill in Ashburnham, and it is understood the Dickson Company will utilize some in their new mill now nearing completion on Burnham's Point.

The old mill, which is an old land mark in the village, will be torn down, and the passing away of the structure brings to mind the rapid changes that has taken place since its construction.

Away back in the eighty's the scene in and about the mill was a busy one indeed. At that time the mill was owned and run by Mr. J. E. Rogers who gave employment to a large number of the villagers. The product of the mill was piled in considerable quantity in the mill's lumber yards on Elizabeth street, on the north-east side of the flour mill, and also along the race way near the roadway to the brewery, off Elizabeth street, it being conveyed to the latter place by band cars.

Drives of logs bearing the Rogers stamp floated down the river, and were boomed above the Rogers dam, and the stables of the management are still standing near McAllister's mill.

Of late years the mill has been run by the Dickson Company under the supervision of Mr. Robert Sheridan, and its demolition is but another of the many changes that are taking place along the old Rogers raceway.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

Mrs. R. R. Hall was in Toronto yesterday.

Miss C. H. Lough of Ida, is visiting friends in Ashburnham.

Mrs. R. S. Davidson arrived home last night after an extended visit with friends in the United States.

Mr. J. T. Boyd, superintendent of the Confederation Life Assurance Co., was in town on Thursday, the guest of Alderman H. Rush.

Mrs. Wm. C. Spence, sister of Mr. W. A. Sanderson, and husband, arrived from Chicago to-day in answer to a telegram sent from here.

Mr. A. H Stratton returned from Toronto last night after a business interview with English travellers about fall goods.

Mrs. John Guy, accompanied by her three daughters, Misses Lilly and Etta of Chatham, also Miss Mino M. Guy, of Toronto, are the guests of her son, Mr. Wm. Guy, 258 Brock street.

Mr. and Mrs. John Devonshire, of "Bay View," Blaxley, Eng., who have been residing in Peterborough for several months past, left for their home this morning by C.P.R. A large number of friends wished them bon voyage. During their short stay in Peterborough they made a number of very warm friends.

Are You Fond of Tomatoes?

Most people are—and if you like them early, smooth, hard and almost seedless, plant "Spark's Earliana,"—earliest and most prolific tomato that comes on the Boston market. JURY'S VERDICT WAS ACCIDENTAL DEATH.

Enquiry Into the Cordova Mines Disaster.

Eleasor Youmens' Tragic Death—Two Injured Men not Expected to Recover.

Coroner Gray held an inquest on Thursday at Cordova, on the death of Eleasor Youmans, who was killed at the Belmont Mines, Cordova, on Tuesday morning last by falling 60 feet down No. 3 shaft. It will be remembered that this shaft has two skips, one of which in some manner slipped down 140 feet. There were four men on board, three of whom were thrown out. One man was killed and two others very seriously injured, while the fourth miraculously escaped. After all the evidence had been taken, the jury retired for a short time, and returned the following verdict:—

"We find that the said Eleasor Youmens came to his death by falling out of the skip at No. 3 shaft on the morning of Tuesday, May 26th, 1903, being purely accidental, and that the hoist man and the company are exonerated from all responsibility."

The jury was composed of the following gentleman:—Robert Miller, foreman; Jos. Chase, Adolphus A. Brown, Wm. Thompson, Robt. Cole, Stephen Sapha, William E. Brown, Absolam Brown, James Gilbart Covert, J. Milton Brown and Danial T. Young.

The first witness called was Mr. Laurie Holland, acting manager of the mines during Mr. D. G. Kerr's absence in England. He on being sworn, said that there were two tracks in the shaft, and that one man operated both skips from above. He said that the accident occurred about 5.45 o'clock in the morning, and that Youmans died about 8 p.m. on the same day. During his evidence he stated that the company strictly prohibited men riding on the skips. It was also contrary to law.

David Crippan, the hoist man, was the next witness sworn, and with tears in his eyes blamed himself with the death of Youmans. He said that he was working the skips at the time of the accident, but had no idea how it occurred, unless he had pulled the wrong lever by mistake, thus sending the west skip down until it had reached a chain stretched across at a point some 60 feet above the bottom of the shaft. This he supposed caused the skip to turn over as a result of which Eleasor Yeomens, T. Catney and A. Lyman were thrown out while the fourth man hung on and escaped by climbing up the ladder. He said that two of the men landed amongst a lot of steel drills and broken timbers, which were placed in the other skip for hoisting to the top, and it is nothing short of a miracle that they were not immediately killed. The third man fell about twelve feet further and landed in the very bottom of the shaft, sustaining such injuries as caused his death the same evening.

Harvey Reid, the fifth witness called, related a miraculous escape. He said that when the skip struck the chain he braced his feet and back against the sides so was not thrown out. With some difficulty he climbed over the upturned skip, got hold of the cable and crossed over to the ladders up which he climbed. He admitted that all four of them had broken rules in riding in the skip, for which he said there was a fine of $5.00. He had been warned about riding in the skip only the day before.

Dr. Mackechnie, M.D., on being sworn said that he saw the deceased at his own house, near the mine, about 8 a.m. He was entirely unconscious and had been evidently suffering from concussion of the brain with perhaps some other complications. He had a slight scalp wound, but no bones were broken. He said he continued attendance until death which occurred the same evening.

He said that the cause of his death was injury to his brain sustained by the fall.

At the conclusion of the inquest the officials of the company entertained the visitors. County Crown Attorney R. E. Wood conducted the inquest.

57TH BATTALION TRIP.

Picton has been Selected for the Annual Outing.

The members of the 57th Regiment unanimously decided on Thursday evening to go to Picton this year for their annual trip on the 1st of July.

It is understood that arrangements are all completed. The 15th Battalion of Belleville, will accompany them.

The troops will leave by C. P. R. and go by way of Central Ontario Junction to Picton.

This will be the second visit of our Battalion to Picton and the volunteers are assured of another cordial reception by the citizens of that town.

FRESH ARRIVALS WERE ENTERTAINED.

A Smoker held in S. O. E. Hall last Evening.

About 30 young Englishmen, who have just arrived in Peterborough, were entertained at the Son's of England Hall last evening. The entertainment was in the shape of a very informal "smoker," anyone who could either sing, recite or make a speech, was asked to do so. Mr. R. Wareham ably fulfilled the duties of chairman. During the evening some carpet ball was indulged in. There were forty members of the local branch of the Sons of England present. It is reported that this organization will be strengthened by a majority of the new comers.

PROVINCIAL HEALTH BOARD'S MEETING.

Annual Gathering at Parliament Buildings.

Outbreaks of Contagious Diseases the Principal Subject of Discussion.

(Globe.)

The Provincial Board of Health commenced its annual meeting Thursday. There were present Drs. Vaux, chairman, Cassidy, Kitchen, Oldright and P. H. Bryce. Toronto Junction reported a severe siege of contagious diseases since December 1st. Scarlet fever had been responsible for thirteen deaths, a record which had not been equalled in any other part of the province. The scarlet fever patients had been kept in a tent at the Junction which had proved satisfactor yin prevanting contagion.

Teeswater reported the failure of the local Board of Health to placard scarlet fever cases. There had been 100 cases since January 24th.

Minden wrote asking for literature dealing with contagious diseases. A serious outbreak of scarlet fever there resulted in thirteen deaths during March, April and May. The local board had been unable to cope with the outbreak.

A report from Lindsay was received stating that they were unable to build an hospital for contagious diseases this year. Dr. Bryce said it was strange that the town could not provide an hospital for contagious diseases in view of their having been given a general hospital free of any expense to the town by Messrs. McKenzie and Ross.

Dr. Bryce said that he had experienced cases of obstinate local physicians who would send out children who had had the scarlet fever as soon as they looked well, and then they went to school and spread the disease. If he had to do so he would godown to the town of Port Hope, one of the most pronounced offenders.

The afternoon session was devoted to the hearing and discussion of Dr. Bryce's report as Medical Health Officer for the province, which was adopted. The report stated that the epidemic of smallpox which broke out in Galt last Autumn, and originated in a case coming from Cleveland, was accountable for 142 cases and 11 deaths, of which 86 cases and 6 deaths were in Galt. For 21 years isolation and vaccination had been the chief weapons used in combatting smallpox. From 1882 to 1900 there were 135 outbreaks, 1,085 cases, and 170 deaths. In 1901 there were 199 outbreaks, 2,500 cases, and 12 deaths. In 1902 there were 1,800 cases.

No case had yet been heard of which was officially recognized as having been taken from Ontario into a neighbouring State, all going to show the efficacy of vaccination.

Scarlatina had prevailed seriously during the year, but the latest reports showed a decided decline. During the four months of 1903 there had been 350 deaths. Dr. Bryce said that the importance of the measure making the local medical health officer responsible for determining the nature of quarantine necessary had been well established, and its wisdom proved during the recent outbreak. This view was substantiated by the Mayor and Medical Health Officers of Ottawa, Hamilton and London.

A table showing the percentage of cases of smallpox, scarlet fever, diphtheria and typhoid, treated in hospitals in various large cities, was given by Dr. Bryce. In reference to scarlet fever the percentages are: London, Eng., 78; Liverpool, 54; Birmingham, 80; Dublin, 100; New York, 7; Toronto, 40; Ottawa, 56.

In the hospitals of London the percentage of admissions out of total cases were as follows:—Smallpox, 97; scarlet fever, 78; diphtheria, 74; enteric, 45.

The available figures and facts, Dr. Bryce said, apart from experience in handling smallpox, scarlet fever, and diphtheria, in this Province seemed to settle effectually any question of the necessity for dealing with a serious epidemic disease in a thorough manner, and made it apparent that medical health officers must be empowered, as in smallpox, to provide means for separating cases from their families.

TRENT VALLEY CANAL.

Trenton Route now Being Examined by Government Engineer.

Henry A. F. McLeod, engineer, of Ottawa, was in Trenton last week for the purpose of verifying the surveys that had been made on the Trenton Section as an outlet for the Trent Canal. Accompanied by several gentlemen, the Engineer started from Trenton wharf eastward to the distance of about seven miles, sounding with a twelve foot pole, at short intervals, and in no instance did the pole touch the bottom.

Mr. McLeod afterwards visited Chisholm's Rapids and Healey's Falls, near Campbellford.

AT THE LIFT LOCK.

Satisfactory Progress Being Made on the Structure.

From the first glance it would not appear to a visitor that very rapid progress was being made in the construction work on the lift lock by the Dominion Bridge Company.

However, the longer one surveys the operations the more convincing is the fact that a great deal of work has already been performed by the staff of men engaged since operations began on the steel work in connection with the structure.

Mr. David Conroy has a gang of men at present employed sodding the embankments on either sides of the lift lock, and an excellent job is being made of the terrace work.

An iron railing has been placed around the towers and abutments of the lift lock proper, and the staff of men are busily engaged on the various parts of the work under the supervision and control of the Dominion Bridge Company.

ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION.

Rev. C. L. Thompson Remembered by His Otonabee Friends.

A pleasant event took place last evening in Stewart Hall, Otonabee, when Rev. C. L. Thompson, pastor of Ashburnham and Bethel Methodist churches, was presented with an appreciative address and a beautiful gold headed cane suitably engraved.

Mr. Thompson has, during his pastorate here endeared himself to the Otonabee people, and it is with feelings of regret that they look forward to his removal to a new sphere of work.

The flourishing Young People's Society which meets in Stewart Hall on Thursday evenings felt that they could not let Mr. Thompson go without some expression of their appreciation of the kind interest he has always taken in their work.

The address was read by Miss Nettie Stewart and the presentation was made by Mr. Bruce Savigny.

The following is the address:—

Dear Mr. Thompson,—Knowing that before another month has passed you will be removed from among us, we, the young people of this neighborhood, wish to express to you the sorrow we feel at the separation, and to offer you our most sincere thanks and appreciation for what you have done for us. We have always felt your influence encouraging and uplifting, and although we have sometimes been careless in carrying out your plans the time you have spent with us has not been in vain, and we feel that by your going away we lose a very dear friend and benefactor.

We wish you to accept this cane as a slight token of our esteem, and we hope it will often bring to your mind the pleasant times you have spent with the people of Otonabee.

Our paths will now lie in different directions, but we will look forward to a time in the future when you will have the opportunity of being with us again, and you may always be sure of a warm welcome.

We trust that your future home may prove a happy one, and we will ask God's help to enable us to live up to your teaching so that we may be ready when He calls us home.

And now we will just remember that "Tho' sundered far, by faith we meet, around one common mercy seat."

Signed on behalf of the Young People's Society,

WILL HANBIDGE
NELLIE STEWART
BRUCE SAVIGNY
SARAH KERR.

Otonabee, May 25th, 1903.

Mr. Thompson was taken entirely by surprise, but found words to express his thanks to the people for their kind remembrance of him.

After a few words from Rev. J. A. Wilson of St. Paul's Church, who was present, refreshments were served, and a most pleasant evening came to an end.

COBOURG SOCIAL CIRCLES STARTLED.

Husband of Society Bride Said to be a Bigamist.

Wedding Took Place in Port Hope—Wife and Children in Pittsburg.

Port Hope Times.

A scandal which, when it becomes known, will create an intense sensation in the aristocratic society of the drowsy village of Cobourg had its origin in Port Hope a couple of weeks ago. One of the best known young ladies of Cobourg, a leader in all social entertainments, was recently married here and now it is said that her "husband" is "wanted" on a charge of bigamy.

Two weeks ago last Saturday one of the proprietors of the Hotel St. Lawrence was sitting in his office enjoying a cool smoke from one of his best imported cigars, when he was approached by a stranger who made himself known and began a friendly conversation. After chatting for a time the stranger invited the proprietor to retire to the wine room. The talk went on and soon became very confidential. At last the stranger disclosed the fact that he was going to be married that afternoon and asked permission to have the matrimonial knot tied in the drawing room of the hotel. He also requested the handsome proprietor to grace the ceremony with his presence and to affix his signature to the documents as a witness.

This the proprietor was pleased to do and a bell-boy was immediately dispatched for a leading divine while the groom procured a license. Everything being in readiness, the proprietor carefully waxed and curled his moustache and attired himself in a wedding argument. It is said that his reflection is still in the mirror, it having got stuck there from constant impression.

The divine arrived, also the prospective husband who brought the issuer of marriage licenses as an additional witness. After all hands had been introduced to the bride the sermony began. The hotel proprietor was much surprised to behold in the bride a Cobourg young lady who moved in the highest society in that town. After the ceremony the happy couple left for Cobourg.

The story does not end at that. It is now said on good authority that the groom was a married man and that a warrant is out for his arrest on a charge of bigamy.

Chief Douglas when asked about the affair said that he had no official information about a warrant being issued, although he had heard unofficially that that was the case.

A Times reported also interviewed the Rev. A. G. Sinclair, who is said to have performed the ceremony, but he said he would give nothing for publication, although he admitted that the marriage had taken place and that he was pledged not to say anything about it.

The father of the bride is a well-to-do Cobourg citizen and is said to be much distressed over the affair. He has placed the matter in the hands of a leading Toronto attorney. The groom is said to have a wife and family in Pittsburg and the attorney visited that city in search of evidence.

The marriage has not yet been registered in the Town Hall but a month is allowed in which to register marriages. This will have to be done by the minister who performed the ceremony.

A ONE-LEGGED HOBO IN ROLE OF HORSE-THIEF

Captured Near Rice Lake Last Saturday.

In Thursday's Examiner reference was made to the depredations of a gang of horse thieves in the Midland District, and the description was given of one of the gang as received by Chief Roszel.

It now transpires that the one-legged crook with the many aliases was captured on Saturday last by Mr. Sculthrope, the well-known seed man of Port Hope.

Mr. Sculthrope was driving in the vicinity of Rice Lake, partly on business and partly with a view to locating horses which had been stolen from Port Hope. About 5 o'clock in the evening he came across a team which answered the description of stolen equines. The team was unhitched, a democrat was standing near at hand and harness, robes and whips were in the vehicle. The outfit was in charge of a man who answered in every detail to the culprit referred to yesterday.

Mr. Sculthrope at once accused his man of the theft. This he stoutly denied. He declared he would not surrender the property under any circumstances. As a revolver was conspicuous in one of his pockets and as he had the appearance of a bad man the task of recovering the team was no snap.

Mr. Sculthrope, however, was persistent. He pretended that he had a warrant for his arrest and insinuated that mounted policemen were hot on the man's trail. Finally the man helped to hitch up the team and was thankful to be allowed to sneak off into the thicket.

Residents of Otonabee have seen a suspicious looking one-legged hobo in that township during the past few days, who is no doubt the man in question.

FISH AND GAME CLUB.

A New Sporting Club Organized in Havelock.

The Havelock Fish and Game Club is the name under which a few anglers of that village have clubbed together to promote the fishing and hunting reserves in this vicinity. A few days ago they deposited 10,000 speckled trout fry in Balforeau Creek, situated about four miles north of Havelock.

It is estimated that in three years time splendid fishing will be the result of this enterprising mov

A twenty-five years' lease has been obtained from the owners of the land through which the creek flows, and the fry will be closely guarded from all trespassers.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

What the public wants is something new, and from all appearances this is promised them in the concert which the Choir Boys of St. John's Church intend giving in the Sunday School this evening. The preparation for the event has been under the able supervision of Mr. Joe Halpany, who, it is understood, will also favour the audience with some selections probably of a humourous nature. The object of the entertainment is a laudable one, the proceeds being devoted to giving the Choir Boys a trip down the river. The programme which from commencement to finish is an excellent one, should be heartily appreciated, as it contains enough comedy to please the frivolous, plenty of the emotional for the sentimental and sufficient really excellent music to delight the lover of good music. Among other items there will be a solo "Under Southern Skies," Vernon Morphet; chorus, "When A Lady Leads the Band;" Sextette, "Blooming Lize;" overture, "Danse D'Amour," Clark; march, "Whistling John," Asher.

MATHESON'S THEORY

Thinks He Knows Origin of Money in Gamey Case.

CAUSE OF THE OUTBREAK.

Mr. E. R. Woods' Absence—An Exciting Day in the Public Accounts Committee—Sullivan said to Have Handed Mis Timber Proceeds to Members of the Government—In the Legislature.

Toronto, May 29.—In the Public Accounts Committee of the Legislature yesterday morning, the Chairman, Mr. Graham, announced that he had received a message from Mr. Wood, manager of the Canada Central Loan and Savings Company, that he desired to consult his solicitor before producing the Sullivan papers asked for.

Col. Matheson.—"I do not believe that Sullivan got that money for his own use. I believe this Government or members of it got the greater portion of that money, and I further believe, and I say I have a strong suspicion, that the three thousand paid to Gamey came out of that money. I am satisfied that the Government and their supporters are trying to balk this inquiry. I know that Sullivan has been complaining very bitterly among his own friends at not getting this money. It was taken from him by members of the Government."

Mr. Latchford — Mr. Matheson should be more specific or not make the statement at all.

Col. Matheson—You get your bank manager here and I will show you.

Mr. Latchford—He will be here; he was only summoned yesterday.

Col. Matheson—In the last days of the session you are fighting for time.

Mr. Latchford—We are not fighting for time, and I do not think there is any disposition on the part of the manager to delay or defer action at all.

A motion by Mr. Hugh Clark that Mr. R. A. Grant be summoned to appear before the committee to-morrow and produce papers in connection with the Rutherford limit was objected to, and an amendment by Mr. A. G. Mackay changing the time till Tuesday was carried.

Mr. Davis gave his word that all the time necessary would be given on and after Tuesday next. Mr. Davis also declared Col. Matheson's charge to be most unfair. Every effort had been made to get the witnesses here; there was nothing to conceal, and in this connection he repudiated most emphatically the insinuation implied in Col. Matheson's remarks. He had never discussed timber or politics with Capt. Sullivan in any manner whatever.

Col. Matheson moved to report Mr Wood's absence to the House and recommending that the House issue an order to compel his attendance today (Friday).

Mr. A. G. Mackay moved in amendment that the committee adjourn till Tuesday next and that Mr. Wood then appear.

The amendment was carried by 15 to 8.

THE ONTARIO HOUSE.

House Orders the Appearance of Capt. John Sullivan on Tuesday Next.

Toronto, May 29.—In the Legislature yesterday afternoon Col. Matheson moved:

"That, inasmuch as it appears by the second report of the Committee on Public Accounts that Capt. John Sullivan of St. Catharines was summoned (notified) to appear before the said committee, and that he has neglected or refused to appear, that the House do order the said Capt. John Sullivan to appear before the said Committee on Public Accounts on Tuesday, the second day of June next at 10 o'clock in the forenoon for examination respecting the Shannon limit in Rutherford and to produce all papers in connection therewith, and that this order be served on John Sullivan."

Col. Gibson objected to the recital of the motion and after some discussion over the matter between the Attorney-General, the mover and Mr. Whitney it was struck out and the motion ordering Capt. Sullivan to appear was carried.

Some questions of local import to the members questioning were answered.

Mr. Smyth (Algoma) was granted an order for correspondence between the Government and James A. Browning of Bellingham, Ont., relating to the imprisonment of the latter on a charge of obtaining property under false pretences.

Power Bill Amended.

In committee, the House took up the Premier's power bill, when the Premier moved an amendment providing that when the production of electrical energy is undertaken the debentures shall be issued for forty years and when only transmission is undertaken the debentures shall run for twenty years. The bill was also amended to provide that when only municipalities are interested it shall have the power of saying how many commissioners shall be appointed to construct the works.

The Premier's bill, respecting taxation of patented lands in New Ontario, was also amended by adding a proviso that the owner of such lands may produce a certificate from the sheriff of the district that the lands are in actual occupation as farming land in order to claim exemption.

A number of bills passed the committee stage, and others were read a second and third time.

The House then went into supply. The sum of $88,597 was voted for public works. Other items passed were: To meet unforseen expenses, $50,000: to defray the expenses of legislation, public institutions, maintenance and the salaries of the officers of the Government and civil service for the month of January, 1904, $80,000.

Hon. Mr. Stratton introduced a bill to amend the Industrial Schools Act, and Hon. Mr. Gibson introduced one to amend the Judicature Act.

GLORY WHALEN MURDERED.

Thirteen-Year-Old Daughter of Henry Whalen, Near Collingwood, Found Dead in the Bush by Searchers.

Collingwood, May 29.—Information has just been received here of what promises to be one of the most horrible atrocities in the annals of Canadian crime.

It appears that a 13-year-old daughter of Mr. Henry Whalen, living three miles from Collingwood, left her home Wednesday morning at 7.30 for school, which was some two miles distant. Nothing had been seen of her since until her dead body was found yesterday morning in the woods by a searching party which had hunted all through the night.

The child was blind-folded when found, and whether she had been maltreated or not is not yet known. As to who committed the crime remains also a mystery, but three small children who had preceded the child along the railroad track state that they saw a colored man hiding in the bush beside the track. There have also been several Syrians peddling in this locality for a week past.

Lawyer A. A. Bond, Coroner Stephens, and Chief of Police James Wilds have left for the scene of the murder.

A late report says that death resulted from a bullet in the brain. It had been fired from the rear. She had been dealt a savage blow on the head, and a three-foot cedar club, apparently freshly cut, has been found by the searching party. The child had not been ravished. The coarse white handkerchief blindfolding the victim is the only known clue to the author of the crime. The search is still being prosecuted with the greatest resolution, though still without result.

COLLINGWOOD IS WITH THE REST.

Valentine Fisher's Terrible Sciatic Pains Speedily Vanished Before the Great Kidney Remedy.

Collingwood, May 25. (Special.) — Every city, town and village in Canada is reporting remarkable cures by Dodd's Kidney Pills, and Collingwood is not behind the rest. There are scores of people here who have used the great kidney remedy and who are not slow to tell of the good results Valentine Fisher, well known in the town and surrounding country, is one of them.

"I was troubled with kidney disease for thirteen years," says Mr. Fisher in telling of his cure. "It developed into Sciatica, which located in my side so that I could not walk without a cane. I had to use hypodermic injections to morphine to ease the pain.

"I tried different medical men and medicines, with no good results till I was persuaded to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. Three boxes effected a perfect cure. I can recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to all who are suffering from rheumatism or any other form of Kidney disease".

Was Crushed to Death.

Toronto, May 28.—William Victor Stewart was crushed to death at noon yesterday in the C.P.R. freight yards here while coupling cars. The accident occurred while he was endeavoring to couple a passenger coach and baggage car in the Simcoe street yards.

Killed by Lightning.

Chatham, May 29.—By the heavy rain and wind storms Wednesday evening, trees were uprooted and barn roofs torn off. A farmer named Purdy, driving a team, was killed by lightning, between Jeanette's Creek and Tilbury, his horses being unhurt.

Scores of Uses.

While Dr. Chase's Ointment is best known on account of its wonderful control over eczema, salt rheum and piles, it is found to be in almost daily demand in many homes as a cure for chilblains, chaffing, pimples, sunburn, burns, scalds, and each and every form of itching irritated or inflamed skin. It is invaluable in every home and as a soothing and healing application, knows no equal.

GRIP CONVALESCENCE

There's nothing better than Scott's Emulsion after the grip. When the fever is gone the body is left weak and exhausted; the nervous system is completely run down and vitality is low.

Two things to do: give strength to the whole body and new force to the nerves. Scott's Emulsion will do it; contains just what the worn-out system needs.

Rich blood, healthy flesh, resistive force, more and better nourishment are what Scott's Emulsion supplies to the convalescent.

PAUPERS IN ENGLAND.

They Seem to Grow Fat—Institutions May Encourage Begging—Luxuries Provided at the Workhouses.

A guardian of Bridgnorth having cast an envious eye over the luxurious accommodation provided at the workhouse there, remarked that he was looking forward to the day when there would be no ratepayers and only tramps. He was but putting into words a general and growing feeling that a check should be placed upon the steadily augmenting numbers of able-bodied paupers, who, encouraged by too little work and a too generous diet, remain idle and wax fat at the expense of the community.

True, there are still a few boards of guardians who are so behind the times as actually to discourage the able-bodied pauper, but the majority of these authorities are in friendly competition with each other in providing every comfort for their undeserving clients.

One of the most desirable—from the inmates' point of view—of these homes of rest for able-bodied men is the institution at Peckham for the District of Camberwell, where everything is done to secure the able-bodied inmates happiness and comfort. The result is that scores of certified able-bodied men who have found the struggle for existence in the outside world too keen for their taste are whiling away in leisured contentment the prime of their lives in this loafers' paradise, cheered with the knowledge that they are only costing the ratepayer 7s. 10d. a week each.

Admission to this retreat is quite a simple matter. All that has to be done is to plead destitution to the relieving officer, who courteously supplies the applicant with the necessary order. Arrived at the institution he is given a comfortable warm bath and presented with a clean towel and nightshirt, after which he is conducted to his bedroom.

If the morrow happen to be Sunday, he will in the course of the day be furnished with the following meals. First breakfast, consisting of four ounces of bread and a pint and a half of porridge, followed at 10 o'clock with light refreshments in the shape of four ounces of bread and one-half ounce of cheese. Next comes dinner, with four and a half ounces of beef, four ounces of bread, eight ounces of potatoes, and four ounces of greens. For tea he will receive eight ounces of bread and half an ounce of margarine.

Next day, the medical officer being quite sure that he is in a fit state to work, the new inmate will be set to break a modest quantity of stones. In all probability he will have done this work before, in which case, chatting the while to his mates, he will lounge through his work and finish about 4 o'clock, when he will be at liberty to amuse himself till bedtime and smoke tobacco sent him by his friends.

His diet during the week will be good and nourishing. One day, for instance, he will receive for dinner 16 ounces of shepherd's pie, the recipe for which is 4 ounces of cold beef without bone, ¼ ounce of fat, 11 ounces of potatoes, ½ ounce of gravy, and pepper and salt to taste.

Once a week or so the guardians' guest will feel the need of a slight change. All he has to do is to give notice that he desires to go out to look for work. He goes; sometimes there are 100 discharges on a Saturday morning, and as a rule about 80 per cent. return on the Sunday, cheerfully remarking that they can obtain no employment.

So the able-bodied pauper will continue till he has reached the age of sixty, when he will have qualified for the free tobacco and the bagatelle tables in the old men's special quarters.

Even the casual at this institution, though his diet is not so generous, has an electric button over his bed, by which means he can summon the doctor should he in the night feel the effects of a supper that was too rich.

There are, of course, workhouses in the metropolitan area where the able-bodied pauper is not tolerated; such a one is the institution at Whitechapel. Here the guardians have a shameful maxim that an able-bodied man has no right to be in a workhouse, and the master carries out their idea with a degree of intelligence that is disconcerting to applicants.

He inquires into each case, and then, provided that the man is in good health, he sends him to the Church Army or to some other labor bureau to obtain work, and if afterward he finds that the man has been offered a task and declined it, he prosecutes him for refusing to maintain himself. If the man cannot get work at once he has to cover the cost of his keep and a little more by grinding 100 pounds of corn a day.

As a consequence most of the men, on hearing the terms, elect to leave so unreasonable a workhouse at once, with the result that this house has been 120 below its certified accommodation during the past year, and one day had not a single able-bodied pauper on its books. The same system has been practised with equal effect at St. Pancras.—London Mail.

The Broken Health of School Life.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

So many school girls and school boys, too, are pale, languid and run down in health, subject to weak spells and nervous headaches, and victims of sleeplessness, that we no longer realize the folly of developing the mind at the expense of the body.

It is on the mothers and fathers that falls the responsibility of looking after the health of their children and to them we suggest the wisdom of having the health of their children kept at the high water mark by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

This great food cure is so gentle and natural in action as to be admirably suited to the requirements of children. The benefits to be derived from its use are certain and lasting, as it goes to form new red corpuscles in the blood and creates new nerve force.

Mrs. R. Wareham, 267 Sherbrooke street, Peterborough, Ont., states:

"One of my children has suffered a great deal with nervous headaches, dizziness and sleeplessness, and in fact, was all run down, pale and languid. These troubles we attributed to over-study and confinement at school. She began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and I can say that we have found this treatment exceedingly helpful. It has relieved her of headache, steadied her nerves, and built up her system wonderfully. We can see a great change in her, as the color is returning to her face, and she is gaining in flesh and weight."

A Golden Heart

BY BERTHA M. CLAY

"But you know?" said Lord Fielden.

"Certainly I know; but I will never share my knowledge. You can do anything you please—imprison me, place me in a madhouse, kill me, if you will—anything: but my secret and his you shall never force from me. You cannot prove a single thing against me. I defy you!"

"We have your letters," remarked Lord Fielden; "and you must remember how they criminate you.

"I do not believe," she said, "that if you laid them before the most skillful lawyers in England, you could find a single damaging statement against me."

He feared that it was true, no matter what their own opinions of her might be. They could take no proceedings against her for anything she had written.

"It will be your wisest course," she said, proudly, to Lord Fielden, "to let me go, or I may probably do what you are doing to me now—imprison you. I have warned you. If you keep me here until I die, what will you gain if I refuse to speak?"

"Unless you had something to conceal or something to fear, you would not have struggled so desperately with me in the park," declared Lord Fielden.

"I wanted to be free," she said, "I came over here in disguise, I wanted neither to be known, or to know any one. The plain fact of the matter is, I saw your advertisements, and I wished to know why I was wanted—what had happened. Foolishly enough, I left my home and came in disguise."

"Do you know why you are wanted?" asked Lady Fielden.

"No," she replied. "I am still in the dark about it."

Lady Fielden appeared surprised.

"During all these years," she said, "Sir Karl's name has been associated with the commission of a great crime, but the time has come when people refuse to believe him guilty of that crime, when his fair, young daughter here demands, in childlike guileless fashion, proof of his innocence to give to the whole wide world."

Lola de Ferras smiled again the mocking, hateful smile for which Lord Fielden could almost have struck her.

"Innocence is a most charming quality," she said; "the difficulty in the present instance is to prove that it ever existed. I refuse to speak. I have not kept silence all these years to be compelled to speak now; there is no power which can force me to do so."

"Not if you have lost all womanly feeling," said Lady Fielden. "If pity, compassion, justice, and honesty are all dead in your heart, then is all appeal in vain, both for the living and the dead."

"I appeal to you, Miss de Ferras," cried Lord Fielden, "by the memory of that which on earth you loved most dearly, by your mother's memory, by your lover's memory!"

She held up her hand.

"It is all in vain," she said. "I will tell you what you will no doubt think a very shameful truth. This moment, in which I see my enemies humbled before me, is one of the proudest and sweetest of my life. After that, have you anything further to say to me?"

It was Gertrude who spoke next; until now she had kept perfect silence.

"Let me speak to you," she entreated. "Dearest Lady Fielden—Harry, leave me with her; for my father's sake she will surely speak to me! Go and leave me alone with her."

CHAPTER XXXV.

As mother and son descended the stairs, it occurred to Lord Fielden that it might not be safe after all to leave Gertrude with Lola de Ferras; she was so violent that she was quite capable of doing her bodily harm. But he contented himself by pacing up and down beneath the window, where he would be within call of Gertrude if she had any cause for alarm.

As soon as the door closed behind Lord and Lady Fielden, Gertrude went up to Miss de Ferras.

"Let me speak to you," she said. "You repulsed me yesterday; you will not do so to-day. They tell me that you loved my father very dearly, so dearly that your life was ruined for his sake. If that be the case, you must love me, for I am Sir Karl's daughter."

"You are also the daughter of Dolores, who stole him from me," was the sullen reply. "But for her, he would have been mine."

"That is all past," said Gertrude. "I do not know what your life has been, but no one could have been more unhappy than my mother. She is so sweet and true, so thoughtful and good, so well fitted to adorn a high position; yet, since my father's disappearance, she has been buried alive. Dear mamma, I have never seen her enjoy one moment's happiness! Have you no pity for one whose life has been wrecked through your instrumentality?"

"I have none for Dolores. She took from me the only treasure on earth for which I longed. Even now the mention of her name maddens me. I have no pity for my old rival, the white rose. I hate Dolores. Do not name her to me again."

"Then if you have no pity for mamma, have you none for me? You loved Sir Karl. I am his daughter; and, strange to say, although you have been our most bitter enemy, I cannot help liking you and feeling a kind of sympathy for you because you loved my father."

For the first time, the defiant expression on Lola de Ferras's white face softened, and her pale lips quivered piteously. How long was it since any human voice had spoken kindly to her?

"You loved my dear father," went on the pleading voice. "They say that I am like him, that I have his eyes and hair, and that my voice resembles his. Look at me, and tell me if it be true?"

Lola de Ferras was seated in a low rocking chair by the window. Gertrude went up to her, took her with sudden emotion, and kneeled down by her side.

"Look at me," she repeated, "and tell me if I have my father's eyes."

The pale face bent over her, the pride and hardness dying out of it as the unhappy woman met the clear, honest gaze of the sweet, loving eyes. Gertrude went on—

"I was a little child when my father left us, but I feel the deepest and most passionate love for him. I wish that I could remember him, that I had some recollection of his dear face, of his kissing me, of sitting on his knee; it would soften my pain. I cannot even go to his grave and sob out all my grief and longing there. I love mamma most dearly, but the deepest love of my heart is for my father. All these years," she continued, feeling that her companion's interest in her was aroused, "I have honestly believed him dead; but suddenly and quite accidentally, I have discovered that death is not the cloud which overshadows us, but shame. My mother, who had kept the story from us, was compelled, through our meetings with Lady Fielden, to tell us the truth, but, while my mother, my sister, my friends, and the whole together believed my father guilty, judged and condemned him, a voice cried ever louder and louder in my heart, that he was innocent, and that I must clear his name. It was as though by night and by day he called to me, 'Gertrude, my daughter, for long years all men have traduced me; come and prove to the world that I am innocent of the crime with which I am charged.' Think you, who loved him, that in all the wide world no one believed in his innocence but I, I stand alone to do battle for him, and there is no one but you who can help me. Mamma has told me everything—how you wrote to my father, and begged him to see you, and how he went out to meet you. After that night he was neither seen nor heard of again; every one says and believes that he went away with you. I alone refuse to believe it."

"Why do you refuse to believe it?" asked the elder woman in a low voice.

"Because I have faith in him. I have looked for hours together at his photograph. His face is not that of a man who would be disloyal. People may say what they like; I do not believe that my father went away with you. Then a letter came from you, saying that you had your revenge, and that my mother should never see my father again. Do you know how I interpret the letter? I found no proof in it of my father's guilt. I came to this conclusion, that, whatever might have been my father's fate, it was known to you, and that you alone could solve the mystery. You may hate my mother because you found she was your rival; but you, even with those hard lines on your face, look too proud and pure to have spent your life as the world believes you to have done."

The pale lips quivered, and it seemed as though the elder woman's eyes were filled with tears; she held out her hands with a gesture of pain.

"Do anything," she cried, "except be kind to me; that is the one thing I cannot bear."

"If kindness will win you, let me be kind," pleaded Gertrude. "Try to think that it is my father who is kneeling here, pleading to you, asking you to clear his name from a foul stain, to clear me, his innocent and loving child, from the shadow of guilt that is on me. I call upon you by the memory of the love you had for him to speak!"

With a bitter cry Lola fell upon her knees.

"You torture me," she said. "For Heaven's sake, let me alone!"

"I cannot," answered Gertrude. "Oh, tell the truth! Tell me one thing, I pray, I beseech you? Is my father living or dead?"

Lola de Ferras was silent for a few moments. It seemed to her as though the words pierced her inmost soul, while the thought overwhelmed her that Karl's daughter, with Karl's blue eyes and clustering hair, with the well-remembered tones of his voice, was praying to know whether he was living or dead."

CHAPTER XXXVI.

"I long for my father," said Gertrude to Lola de Ferras, who still kept silence. "My heart is thirsting for a look, a word from him. Ah, tell me, if you ever loved him, is he living or dead?"

"He is dead," replied Lola, in a low voice.

"Dead," repeated Gertrude, with a burst of bitter tears; "dead! Ah, then I shall never see him! Oh, my dear, dear father, I have longed for you, I have worked for you, and I have loved you; yet I shall never see you! But better a thousand times dead than living as they believed! Tell me one thing more. Did he go away with you?"

"No," she answered, "he did not."

She paused, startled even in her own pain by the cry which broke from Gertrude's lips.

"I knew it, I knew it! Ah, my darling, if I could but see you, hear you, tell you how much and how dearly I love you, and how I have always believed you innocent!" Then, turning to Lola, she added, more earnestly, "Heaven bless you for telling me even so much!"

It was the first time for so many years that any one had prayed Heaven to bless her, the first voice for so many years that had spoken kindly to her, that Lola was completely overcome.

Gertrude's excitement had almost reached fever-heat.

"How could they say it of him?" she cried. "How did they dare?"

Lola, bending over her, said—

"It was I who caused them to say it for a purpose of my own."

For some time the young girl's wild, incoherent cries for her dead father continued; then she sprung suddenly from her knees, and looked at Lola.

"If he never went away with you, and if he is dead, tell me how and where he died. After being so good to me, you will not refuse me this?"

There was a struggle in the heart of the miserable woman; and then she answered, slowly—

"Ask Lady Fielden to come here and I will tell you all."

* * * * * * *

Lord Fielden followed his mother into the room with Gertrude.

"You are too clever a woman not to guess that whatever you have to tell is life or death to me for Miss Allanmore's sake," he said to Lola.

"For Miss Allanmore's sake?" Lola asked, looking at the noble face with a wild longing that it were possible to undo the past.

"Yes," he replied. "What touches her is life or death to me."

She was deeply removed. She remembered having seen the expression of Lord Fielden's eyes in those of the men who had loved her, but never, alas, in the eyes of the man she loved.

"I have something to tell you," she said—"that which I have long kept secret, and which I reveal now for her sake—only for hers, for she is the only being who has touched my heart for years—this girl who is Sir Karl's daughter."

She resumed her seat in the low rocking-chair, carefully keeping the lace on Gertrude's dress clasped in her hands. Lord Fielden placed a chair for his mother, and stood behind it.

"Your eyes and your voice to me, child," went on Lola, "are like those of one come back from the dead."

"The dead!" cried Lady Fielden. "Sir Karl is dead then? Oh, Dolores, Dolores!"

"Yes, he is dead," said Lola slowly. "You must not think that I am a repentant sinner, nor that, if my life could begin again, I should act differently. I am proud, after my own fashion, of what I did. Few women would have had the strength of mind to act as I did, to keep the silence that I kept. I have had my revenge!"

A touch from Gertrude's hand controlled her. She avoided looking at the pure, sweet face as she spoke; but her eyes were fixed on Lady Fielden.

"It will be no news to you," she said, "that Dolores robbed me of the only love of my life, Sir Karl—that she came between us and stole my life's happiness away. It is no secret either that I swore to have vengeance. I ought, perhaps, to feel ashamed of myself; but I do not. I loved Sir Karl with all the strength of my heart—a strength that your weaker natures do not even understand. I may have been blinded by my affection; but I certainly thought that I saw in him some sign that he loved me. It all ended when Dolores became a widow, and he married her. It was then that my blind, mad, furious hate against her began, and I resolved upon revenging myself, cost whatsoever it might. I loved Sir Karl so well that, if he had asked my life, I would have given it to him without a sigh. From the day of the marriage I was like one mad. I had sworn to her and to him that I would be revenged—and I was! I persuaded my dear mother to leave Beaulieu and go to Germany. She did so, and she died there. I need not dwell on any of the details; but when she died I was alone in the world, my heart full of the bitterness of disappointed love and of a fierce longing for revenge."

"I heard how happy Sir Karl and his wife were—that a little daughter had been born to them, that they were a model couple—she so tender, he so proud. In those days I had many correspondents in this neighborhood, and my brain was fired by these home-pictures. I felt that I must see him or die. I wanted to heap burning reproaches on him, to make him wretched by seeing my wretchedness, to show him my great misery, that the sight of it might chill his happiness. Let me be truthful. I hungered to look on his face, to hear his voice, to touch his hand! Never did thirsty hart pant for living streams as I for one look at the man I loved!"

"Oh, blind, mad folly! As well might a hungry man try to eat stone! I thought that looking at him would slake the thirst of my fever, would cool the fire that burned my brain. I wrote to him, telling him that I had a favor to ask him. I begged that I might see him, prayed and implored him to meet me. I told him that I would wait at the white gate near the coppice. I went to Deeping by train; no one recognized me. At eight o'clock I was standing at the coppice gate, wondering with a doubting heart if he would come.

"The night was fair and brilliant. I remember the odors from the trees, the song of the nightingale, the soft murmur of the brook. I remember—Oh, heaven, would that I had died then and there! Look at me, child, with your father's eyes. With a kindly light, those same eyes rested on me that night so long ago—there was no reproach in them, no anger, no contempt.

"I trembled when I saw his shadow on the grass, I trembled when he spoke to me. He held out his hand in all kindness to me.

TWO BOXES OF

MILBURN'S HEART and NERVE PILLS

Cured Mrs. Edmond Brown, Inwood, Ont., when she had almost given up hope of ever getting well again.

She writes: "I was so run down that I was not able to do my work, was short of breath, had a sour stomach every night and could scarcely eat. My heart palpitated, I had faint and dizzy spells and felt weak and nervous all the time. My husband got me a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills but I told him it was no use, that I had given up hope of ever being cured. He however persuaded me to take them and before I had used half the box I began to feel better. Two boxes made a new woman of me and I have been well and have been able to do my work ever since."

Few people can understand the feelings of the pugilist as he is being counted out. He hears the seconds ticked off. He struggles to rise, but struggles in vain. He has lost the fight.

There are some who are making a losing fight for life that can appreciate this; those whose lungs are diseased. With every tick of the watch, they know that they are being counted out.

The great question is how can a quick rally be made to continue the fight against disease? Many who have asked that question have found a satisfactory answer in the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures bronchitis, obstinate, deep-seated coughs, hemorrhage, night-sweats, emaciation, and other conditions which if neglected or unskilfully treated may find a fatal termination in consumption.

"When I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery," writes Mr. John T. Reed, of Jefferson, Jefferson Co., Ark., "I was very low with a cough, and would at times spit up blood. I was not able to do any work at all, was weak and my head was dizzy. The first bottle I took did me so much good that I had faith in it and continued until I had taken twelve bottles. Now I do not look like nor feel like the same man as I was a year ago. People were astonished and said they did not think I could live. I can thankfully say that I am entirely cured of a disease from which had it not been for your wonderful 'Discovery' I would have died."

There are cures behind every claim made for the "Discovery," which no "just as good" medicine can show.

New York, May 29th, 9.45 a. m. — Reading statement for April all companies show net increase $350,000 and for 10 months net for system decrease $327,000. Surplus decrease about $436,000. U. S. leather's financial scheme for paying back dividends due on preferred stock equal to 37 p. c. was issued after directors' meeting late yesterday. It is entirely different from the view recently held in Wall Street. There is no issue of either stocks or bonds on account of leather but company offers 30 p.c. in bonds and cash of newly formed Central Penna Lumber Co. which U.S. Leather Co. formed in capitalization its 40,000,000 worth of timber lands. According to plan if agreement of 80 p.c. of preferred stock holders are secured, 10 p.c. in cash and the remaining 20 p.c. in stock of Lumber Co. and its 10,000,000 first mortgage 5 p. c. 15 year bonds will be given to the U. S. Leather preferred stockholders in payment for the back dividend. Practically all the larger and important interest in directorate of Leather Co. have approved the plan and it is hard to see how it can be regarded otherwise than bullish on Leather, particularly preferred stock. We look for a narrow market with considerale evening up by traders over the holiday. There was so much bear news yesterday that it is hard to see how things can go much worse. There was various reports of financial trouble none of which have been confirmed. The rally was on shorts covering and room-traders taking profits. It is a question whether we have seen the last of liquidation.
M. & M.

New York, May 29th, 10.55, a. m. — Stock market firm and quiet since opening with less pressure and more disposition shown by traders to buy. London started to buy on opening but it looks as though their orders were limited. There is still some pressure against R. I. and A.C. P. Commission houses mostly buying.
M. & M.

In canvassing a few reputable brokers as to their views they express themselves in this way. "That stocks have got to go," meaning that everything will sell lower. You can decide for yourselves what your own impression is.
M. & M.

New York, May 29th, 12.00 p. m. — Bank statement is a negative one as far as its influence on sentiment is concerned because none of its items show important changes. Banks now hold total surplus over all deposits of $9,645,000 against $12,000,000 a year ago and 21,000,000 two years ago. They now have outstanding $923,000,000 in loans against $913,000,000 in deposits.
M. & M.

Messrs. McMillan & Maguire have received the following despatches:—

Liverpool opening.—Wheat, 1-8 lower; corn, 1-8 lower. 1.30 p. m.—Wheat, 1-8 lower; corn, 1-4 lower.

New York, May 29th, — Manhattan throughout the late decline has attracted favourable attention to the stocks. The support to the very alert, Gould brokers were open buyers of M. O. P. which was one of the strongest stocks on the list. The gossip continues to Mr. Gould is getting ready announcements of a greater plan of M. O. P. system.

DOW, JONES & CO.

There is a strong bear party in Can. Pac. It is believed to be composed largely, if not all, of local traders. The stock was singled out yesterday for attack and gave way rather easily under the forenoon selling. Persons who have been identified with the Canadian pull party attribute the decline wholly to the operation of this bear clique affair. Short interest was forced to cover around 130, a still larger one was still created it is thought to have been somewhat reduced on the decline this week the selling past been inspired by comparison between C.P.R. at 5 p.c. selling around 130 with M.O.P. and other corresponding stock. 5 p.c. stocks much lower than C.P.R.

FOUR FIREMEN HURT IN A BLAZE AT OTTAWA.

The Loss About $7,000—Particulars of the Disaster.

Ottawa, May 28.—In a fire at the corner of Gladstone avenue and Concession street this afternoon four firemen were injured, four houses and two stores were burned and about $7,000 loss was entails. The injured men are Thos. Green, Hugh Thompson, Stephen Starr and W. McKay, all of No. 2 station. Starr was injured internally and it is feared that McKay's skull was fractured. The fire had been in progress about half an hour and at the time of the accident it was centred in a brick block at the corner of Gladstone avenue and Concession street. A chimney suddenly collapsed and as it went released the binding walls. An instant later the whole west side of the building fell out, burying beneath a mass of brick and stone and plaster the four men. As soon as possible the victims were extricated and several physicians, including Drs. Bourque, Birkett, Kirby, Argue and others administered temporary relief. The fire started at 12 o'clock in the loft above a Chinese laundry in the Gladstone avenue block. In view of the fact that a gale was blowing a general alarm was sent in. This created somewhat of a panic amongst the citizens generally who in view of the prevailing high wind, feared another conflagration.

DIED FOR HIS BROTHER.

Story of Singular Tragedy Enacted Near Odessa, Russia.

A despatch from Berlin says: — News of a singular tragedy near Odessa, Russia, has reached here. Stefan Monvastyrski, the owner of a large estate ,met and loved a Viennese variety singer, calling herself Baroness Von Nagel, and induced her to visit his estate. His brother Alexis, 14 years old, strongly disapproved of this, and repeatedly threatened to compel the Baroness to leave the estate.

One night Stefan went to Odessa, and the next morning a servant noticed that the door of the Baroness' room was still locked. A rapping at the door was not answered, so the police were summoned. It was opened forcibly, and the corpse of the Baroness was found on her bed. She had been strangled, and on her nose were the marks of teeth.

From a leather strap attached to a hook in the wall hung the body of Alexis, and on a table was the following note:—

"The woman wanted me to share my brother's sin. May God pardon me for what I have done. Through this act I have ensured Stefan's future welfare, and I beg him to erect a cross over my grave. The woman was strangled by my hands. May God have mercy on me. It is 2.30 o'clock at night. Farewell, Stefan; fulfil the request of your unhappy brother, who warmly loved you."

THE SONG OF THE GRASS MACHINE.

The recent rains will make the grass grow at an astonishingly rate. Suburbanites may like to read the following parody taken from the Montreal Herald:—

With hands all calloused and hard,
With red and puffy mein,
The suburbanite with all his might
Keeps shoving the grass machine!
Push! push! push!
With back bending lower and lower,
While frogs they croak and crickets creak
The song of the old lawn mower.

Shove! shove! shove!
From morning till late at night,
And push! push! push!
With all your muscle and might.
It's O! to be once more
In the clasp of a city flat
Where you don't have to rattle an old machine
With a cabbage leaf under your hat

O, men with country tastes,
O, men in city spots,
O, you have lots to be thankful for,
Yes, lots and lots and lots,
Push! push! push!
Is a thing you never need do,
'Neath the broiling, baking, scorching sun
With the heat at one hundred and two.

O, for an hour of rest,
Which I know will never be mine,
Though for my part I'd let the grass
Grow up 'bout six foot nine,
But a fellow he hardly rests,
When a voice is heard near by Saying, "O, dearest, don't you think
The grass is getting too high?"

Then push! push! push!
Till you wilt in your very clothes,
Shove! shove! shove!
With face as red as the rose.
It's O! for a city retreat,
Away from this vernal green,
I'd rather be a slave to a jan-i-tor
Than work this grass machine.

The Fairweather Homestead.

Attention is directed to the advertisement in another column offering for sale that very valuable homestead ,well known as the Fairweather homestead, on Gilmour street. The fine situation of this property, its convenience to town, as well as its particularly attractive home-like character, makes it a very desirable residence. The house possesses some of the best modern improvements and conveniences, while the outbuildings, garden and lawn, enhance the value of the property as a home. 2ds

All the best Baseball Mitts are on sale at Sailsbury's at least ten per cent. lower than any other place in town.

MALFEASANCE CHARGED.

Mr. Smith Curtis Arraigns Premier Prior of British Columbia.

Victoria, B.C., May 29.—In the Legislature yesterday afternoon, Mr. Prior's motion for supply was defeated by 19 to 16. The Opposition pressed for a statement of the circumstances regarding the promise of the Lieutenant-Governor to grant a dissolution, and the House adjourned.

Then Smith Curtis of Rossland moved that a special committee of five be appointed to investigate the charges preferred against the Premier by The News Advertiser of Vancouver, to the effect that Col. Prior, while acting as chief commissioner, opened tenders for the supply of a cable for the Chimney Creek Bridge, and that with the knowledge thus secured his firm tendered lower and secured the contract.

Mr. Prior denied the charges. He willingly acquiesced in an investigation. Four of the members named refused to act, and a secret ballot chose others.

DROWNED AT PORT COLBORNE.

Two College Lads Go Down With Foundered Yacht in Lake Erie.

Port Colborne, May 29.—A two-sparred yacht foundered Wednesday night outside of the breakwater. The boat is supposed to be the yacht Emma Detric of Cleveland, recently purchased by E. S. Pettit of Lockport, N. Y., from Mr. Detric, pastor of the Congregational Church, at Cleveland.

Mr. Pettit's son Stanley, and his friend Clarence Baylis, both college lads of Lockport, aged 17 and 18 years, were on board, sailing the yacht from Cleveland to Olcott Beach, on Lake Ontario, via the Welland Canal.

A boy's navy blue cap with Greek letters on the peak, part of the yacht's stern with name "Emma," an oar, and some cards were picked up at noon yesterday. Mr. Pettit is here searching the shore for the bodies.

ORCHARDS RUINED.

Late Storm Reports Indicate Great Damage in Perth County.

Stratford, May 29.—Later reports of the great windstorms of Tuesday and Wednesday indicated great damage in a large section of Perth County. In the city large limbs of trees were torn off and hurled long distances. The Roman Catholic church at Kirkora, Ellice Township, was badly damaged. Many orchards in that neighborhood are ruined, Mitchell suffered greatly, and Mr. Larkworthy's cow was picked up bodily by the wind and hurled through the fence, being badly bruised. In Mornington township the damage is greater than at first reported. Johnston Barr was badly injured.

Fishing Crews Drowned.

Halifax, N. S., May 29. — Word comes from Bay of Islands, Nfld., of a drowning of four men of the crew of the fishing schooner Peerless, Capt. Zinck, Lunenberg. News also comes of the drowning of 14 of a crew of another Lunenberg vessel at the same place; name of vessel and men not given.

The Ontario Alliance.

Toronto, May 29.—There was no fiery denunciation of the Government at the meeting of the Ontario Alliance here yesterday, for its delay in bringing down liquor legislation, but the Premier's name was quietly dropped from the list of vice-presidents.

The new list of officers shows Mr. G. F. Marter, ex-M.P.P., President. The finances were reported satisfactory, the deficit after the referendum fight being only $45. The province contributed $4,906 to help carry the referendum vote. F. S. Spence, secretary, was presented with an illuminated address and $1,000. One resolution condemned the Premier for violating his pledges re. the Liquor Act.

Ottawa Firemen Hurt.

Ottawa, May 29.—Two tenement and two detached buildings destroyed; $6,000 damage, and four firemen injured was the record of a fire on Concession street yesterday afternoon. A tall brick chimney fell, causing a wall, on which the men from No. 2 Station were working, to fall out, burying Firemen Green, Thompson, Starr and Mackay. Starr and Mackay were the only ones seriously hurt.

More "Red Spots" on the Map.

Tahiti, May 15, via San Francisco, May 29.—Information received on the best authority confirms the rumor that three small islands near Pitcairn were seized by England recently. It appears that they were regarded by British Consul Simons at Tahiti as valuable, anticipating the completion of the Panama Canal. The British Foreign Office approved of the seizure.

Earthquake Kills 500.

Washington, May 28.—Vice-Consul Ojalvo, at Ezercum, Turkey, reports that an earthquake in the Canton of Malasgird district of Bitlis, on the 29th ult., caused the death of 500 people and left the city in ruins. The shock was strongly felt in Ezercum, a journey of 38 hours, and threw the people into a panic.

Revision Is Adopted.

Los Angeles, Cala., May 29.—In the Presbyterian General Assembly yesterday a motion by Dr. W. N. Page, for the adoption of the report of the Revision Committee as a whole, prevailed by unanimous vote.

Town Clerk Suspended.

Windsor, May 29.—C. H. Ashdown, Town Clerk of Sandwich, has been suspended by the Council of that town. He is 68 years of age. It is alleged that he has not been attending to his duties of late.

A Family Necessity.

Owing to artificial modern life, almost everybody suffers more or less from constipation, torpid liver, and sluggish kidneys, and as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are the most prompt and thorough cure for this derangement, they have come to be considered a family necessity. Hosts of families would not think of being without them. One pill a dose; 25c a box.

BUILDING AT A STANDSTILL.

Toronto Will See 5,500 Workers Out on Monday Morning.

Toronto, May 30.—When the union painters go on strike next Monday the building trade in Toronto will be completely tied up. Monday will see over 5,000 men connected with the building trade idle. The building trades unions now on strike number 2,450, and with the 400 union painters the total will be swelled to 2,850. In addition there are 1,000 carpenters out, 700 builders' laborers, 600 bricklayers, and 150 structural iron workers.

The idleness of the carpenters, builders' laborers and structural iron workers since May 1 has affected a number of the other trades, making it impossible for them to proceed with their work.

Though the tie-up is about complete, the builders' exchange shows no signs of anxiety to get differences settled between the bosses and different trades.

SEVERE CRITICISM.

B. C. Legislature Adopts Report Against Col. Prior.

WAS THE TENDER CROOKED?

Premier Prepares His After Opening the Others, and Secures the Contract Involved for His Firm—Report Presented to and Adopted by the British Columbia Local Assembly.

Victoria, B.C., May 30.—The special committee appointed by the House to investigate the charge against Col. Prior in connection with securing for his firm the contract for supplying the cable for Chimney Creek bridge, reported to the House yesterday afternoon. The report was really only a digest of the evidence. This was to the effect that tenders were asked for from four firms, that after their receipt they were taken to Col. Prior, who was acting as Chief Commissioner of Public Works, to award the contract; that he asked why the firm of Prior & Co. could not tender, and instructed the Engineering Department to ask them to do so. Subsequently Col. Prior sent to the engineer for papers in connection with the matter, and also for one of the clerk's of his firm.

Prior and the clerk swear the contents of the other tenders were not disclosed by Prior to his clerk or to the firm, but that they only discussed the specifications. The clerk of the department, who took the document, says he did not give Prior the specifications, but the tenders only. Prior disclaims giving his firm the benefit of his information, but the firm afterwards secured the contract, being the lowest tenderers. Prior in the House admitted he was indiscreet, but said he was not dishonest.

The House yesterday unanimously adopted the report of the committee, the Premier being severely criticized. After the vote Prior said he would submit a report and the evidence, to the Lieutenant-Governor, and leave himself in his hands. The House adjourned till Monday to this end, Mr. Martin making a final appeal on behalf of Prior to get supply.

It is believed the Lieutenant-Governor will refuse Col. Prior dissolution and send for Mr. McBride, leader of the Opposition; Mr. Oliver, who pressed the charges and caused the downfall of the Government. Mr. McInnes, who claims eleven Liberals in the House, will support him or Mr. Martin.

GREAT FIRE LOSSES.

Another Quebec Village Devastated—Other Blazes.

Marieville, Que., May 30.—Fire wiped out over sixty dwellings and caused a loss of over $100,000 Thursday night. The blaze started in a hay barn at the south of the village, and, fanned by a very heavy wind, spread rapidly to the many wooden buildings nearby. The inhabitants were asleep and many of them had to make their escape clad only in their night attire. Within half an hour the houses on three streets were burning fiercely and Montreal was asked for assistance. As there is no water service in the village, however, it was useless to send engines. The villagers got together and organized bucket brigades, and after a hard and distracting battle with the flames, finally got them under control at 2.30 Friday morning.

Montreal.—A large hay storehouse owned by Crowe & Son, ten C.P.R. freight cars, several sheds and a dwelling house were destroyed early Friday morning at a loss of $50,000.

Gainsboro, N.W.T.—The Northern elevator, with 4,000 bushels of wheat, was burned Friday morning; cause unknown.

After Fifty Years' Service.

Toronto, May 30.—The ceremonies attendant upon the fiftieth anniversary of the ordination of Rev. Dr. MacLaren of Knox College were begun in the Bloor street Presbyterian Church last evening. The ladies of the congregation provided a bountiful supper, after which Dr. MacLaren was presented with four illuminated addresses, the first from his first charge, the Amherstburg Presbyterian Church. Rev. R. C. Tibb, clerk of the Toronto Presbytery, read the congratulations of that body; Rev. J. McD. Duncan, president of the Knox Alumni Association, presented the regards of the men who had learned their theology at the professor's feet, and Prof. Ballantyne, on behalf of the Senate and College Board, read an address dwelling on their cordial relations with and high appreciation of their fellow-worker. The most affecting scene was the presentation by John L. Blakey, on behalf of the congregation, of a beautiful casket of silverware. Prof. MacLaren's reply was given in a husky tone, as the presentation was evidently an entire surprise. He modestly went over his connection with the church and the college and hoped he had earned a tithe of the good things that he had heard during the evening.

Gladys Reiley Killed.

Glencoe, May 30.—A sad accident occurred at the G.T.R. crossing here last evening at 8.20, when Gladys, the 12-year-old daughter of George Reiley, was instantly killed. The eastbound local was shunting in the yard, and the little girl, notwithstanding the warning of her companions, attempted to cross. While her attention was fixed upon the shunting train, the westbound express struck her, throwing her across the road. She expired a few minutes after the accident.

Turtle Mountain Continues to Threaten Town of Frank.

REPORT OF THE GEOLOGISTS.

Great Masses of Rock May Fall at Any Time, But in What Manner Depends Upon Unknown Future Conditions—A Jar May Start Mountain on a Career of Destruction—Advisable, Therefore, to Move.

Ottawa, May 30.—The report of Messrs. McConnell and Brock, the geologists, who carefully explored Turtle Mountain, to Sir William Mulock, contains the following statements:

"The base of Turtle Mountain consists of beds of shales and sandstones of the cretaceous age, the upper precipitous portion of beds of carboniferous limestone. The line of separation between the two series is the plane of a thrustfault, along which the lower beds are highly contorted and shattered. In addition to dangerously steep slopes, the shattering due to faulting and the easy separation of rock slabs along bedding planes, Turtle Mountain is further weakened by several series of jointing plants which traverse it in various directions.

"The disaster was due to a combination of causes, cumulative in their effects. The chief of these was the structure and condition of the mountain, aided by exceptional atmospheric conditions, and in all probability by the weakening of the mountain as a result of mining operations.

"The ground between and adjoining the two remaining peaks is badly fractured. This fractured zone surrounding the old break is bound to fall away, but whether it falls gradually and in comparatively harmless blocks, or in large, destructive masses, depends upon future conditions which cannot be foretold. The fissures about the north peak render the tunnel and lower portion of the town unsafe. The safety of Frank depends upon the stability of the shoulder from the north peak. Apparently it is still secure, but the fissures some distance back from the north peak may extend far enough north to weaken this shoulder. If these fissures show any sign of movement, the town ought at once to be evacuated. A succession of seasons with unusually heavy precipitation and rapid changes of temperature, a slight earthquake shock, or creeping in the mine upon drawing the mined coal away might cause a jar that will dislodge this shoulder and start it on a career of destruction. Since this possibility must always overhang the town, it would seem advisable to move it a short distance up the valley beyond the reach of danger."

Against the Railway.

Ottawa, May 30.—The jury on the coroner's inquest into the cause of death of little Ferdinand Potvin, killed on the C.P.R. tracks last Saturday, returned a verdict describing the death and finding that "if proper fences were erected and maintained on the said track, the accident might have been avoided."

Escapes Murder Charge.

St. John, N.B., May 30.—Peter Devine was tried in County Court yesterday on the charge of killing John Mangan at Masquash, on election day, last month. The men were fighting, and both went over a bank, Mangan's neck being broken. The jury acquitted Devine.

ROBERT MANSON'S SUICIDE.

Sad End of Respected Career—Stock Markets the Cause.

Toronto, May 30.—The vagaries of the stock market are said to have been responsible for the untimely death of Robert Manson yesterday. Arising at an early hour, as was his habit, he was found in his garden later, dead. An ugly gash across the throat told the story of a tragedy.

Manson was a little over 50 years of age, and had been a resident of Toronto nearly all his life. Some years ago he retired from his business as a butcher. About a year ago, he commenced to play the stock market, and became a well known and respected figure in the downtown brokers' offices. But fate dealt hardly with him, and his acquaintance on the street say that his losses recently were very heavy, one estimating them at $40,000.

These financial reverses and the worry and strain consequent on the relentless downward trend of stock values in which he was interested, accentuated by ill-health of long-standing, evidently preyed upon his mind, and caused him to destroy himself.

Mr. Manson is survived by a widow and one son, in the Niagara district.

UTTER FALSENESS OF GAMEY'S CHARGES.

Effect of Sullivan's Bluff on Gamey's Conspiracy.

The Crossin Piano Factory Conversation—The Counterfeit Ontario Bank Deposit Slip—Conclusion of Mr. Johnston's Argument Before the Commissioners.

Below will be found the conclusion of E. F. B. Johnston's argument before the Royal Commission:

"THIS WAS ALL BLOW."

Sullivan put it perhaps properly. "This was all blow, boast on my part, in order to show Gamey the power I had, and in order to enable me to work Gamey more successfully than I could otherwise have done." That is manifest, because if Sullivan was a mere clerk in a department, and couldn't convince Gamey in some way or another that he was really the Minister, and that Mr. Stratton was only a figure-head, moved about as Frank Sullivan directed, Mr. Frank Sullivan's influence with Gamey would amount to very little. But he kept insisting upon it, and dealing with Mr. Gamey along these lines, and Mr. Gamey himself believing that apparently, did certain things which he would not otherwise have done; but in addition to that there is the fact that Mr. Gamey himself, although he was at the Minister again and again, excepting upon the occasion of which he tells us, twice, Sullivan went with him, never had Sullivan's companionship or power.

LEAVES COMMENT TO COURT.

Then I desire to point out to your Lordships exactly what deals were discussed, leaving the matter of comment entirely with the court if it is necessary. Gamey had known Capt. Sullivan for 15 years; he knew Frank Sullivan for five years. He won't deny at pages 167 and 168 of Vol. 1 that he may have had several deals with Frank Sullivan during the past four or five years. He was the only man he knew in any department in Toronto. Gamey was looking for deals with Bristol as well as with Sullivan. They began with McGregor Island and the fishing and mining deals were discussed. He said from the 7th to the 12th of August that he had deals with Frank Sullivan. There was a pulpwood deal of which we were able fortunately to produce some evidence; the Webbwood deal, the Clemow deal, Kagawong deal, the Bristol and Island deals, and there was also a western man with $1,000 they turned over because the amount was not sufficient for these enterprising financiers. Then there was the Bristol deal off about November. It was on about the beginning of September, as you will see by referring to page 2,976, Vol. 8, on with Mr. Gamey, and in order to carry out an option which had only about a week to run, he writes to Mr. Stratton on the 4th day of November asking for a loan of $2,000—the man whom he held up for money, and wants to get a loan. The option expired in about a week, and he is anxious to see if he will lend him the money. Mr. Stratton, the man who was then in Mr. Gamey's power, does not even design to answer that letter, and Mr. Crossin says that he told him that that money was got from a deal. Crossin says that he told him that that money was got from a deal.

MAN OF MANY DEALS.

This man was a man of many deals. Then Capt. Sullivan is said to have gone to Gore Bay for the sole purpose of seeing Gamey. Capt. Sullivan is a man, apparently from the evidence, of many deals. Jones, Sullivan, Frank, all looking to Gamey as the man of deals and the man to help them to carry through their scheme. Gamey lending a willing ear, Gamey willing to enter into thee negotiations, as shown by his evidence.

I want just for the moment to call your Lordship's attention to the extreme significance of that statement and I just read it without further comment.

"Q.—When was the money to be paid back to Sullivan? A.—It was to be paid back to Sullivan whenever we complete the deal and arrangements, timber, mineral and everything that was talked about; we were to have this timber and everything; when that was cleaned up he was to get his $1,200 back." For twelve or thirteen hours this man stood in that witness box swearing deliberately that these deals, that these transactions were mere bluffs.

THE PIANO FACTORY.

One word with reference to the Crossin Piano Factory. The conversation there is not pretended to have been given in sequence; the connection between the different parties is not shown; the story that Mr. Gamey told in the House that he had this taken down by shorthand writers, the only inference that can be drawn from that statement is shown to be absolutely untrue. The statement that is produced is a memorandum which was drawn up by on eof these men some time later an dthat statement is not in accord with the statements that they make in the box. In that case they differ.

SOME DIFFERENCES.

One swore that $1000 was not mentioned, another says it was; Gamey denies absolutely "the Minister of Mines," two on three of these witnesses swear that it was. Must get stories to agree in case of further trouble, corroborates Frank Sullivan that that was what they were there for, in the most important part, which Mr. Gamey had taken the trouble to correct and which is shown to be absolutely untrue as far as Chase and Myers are concerned. The three Norths discussed at the piano factory. Not true because Sullivan was not in the election at all and says he knew nothing about it. The $100,000 deal talked of there, utterly without foundation; the power over the Ministers, utterly false; the man to see McMillan, utterly false; Chase and Myers contradicted by these men. No word of truth. Ministers all knew; No evidence that any Minister knew a single thing of the transaction.

EVIDENCE ON THE CONTRARY.

that the Ministers did not know as shown by Frank Sullivan and Mr. Stratton. Sullivan there every day reading letters to Mr. Stratton, absolutely untrue. Their statement about the method in which the money was delivered in the smoking room, absolutely untrue. The whole story as told at the piano factory instead of making against the defence is the story that shows the utter falseness of the fabric which Mr. Gamey is the master hand in building. There was no mistake, my Lords, no mistake whatever about the man whose hand took the money to the smoking room, according to Mr. Gamey, because in that very factory witness after witness has sworn to this fact that Mr. Gamey stated that when that fellow Myers took the money from Stratton he didn't like the look of his face, showing that he was not mistaken in the man, showing that he knew who the man was, and whose hand it was that delivered it.

AGAINST THE DESPOILER.

Then let me say one word with reference to Mr. Gamey's own position, most salevant. Every fact shall be taken most strongly against the despoiler. The man whose books of record contain the entries of his financial transactions after great difficulty were produced. Day after day Mr. Crossin is called and he comes sometimes without the books and sometimes with the wrong ones. Finally he is put in the box. At that particular time on the Saturday or on the Friday it is known that the episode at the Ontario Bank has taken place and Mr. Gamey has retired to the rest cure at Buffalo. Then comes the crucial moment, then comes the evidence standing up in front of that man that he only got $1500 from Frank Sullivan, and he has to account for $900 and $300 more according to his story at Gore Bay. Then he is confronted with facts that cannot lie that cannot be perverted, excepting in the hand of the spoiler. Then it is that he goes down to the Ontario Bank and takes from the teller a deposit slip containing the entry of the nine one hundred dollar bills and signed by the initials of the teller; he takes it to a desk and he prepares—I shall not use a strong word at the time — prepares another statement; he passes that back not as an innocent mistake, but as the original deposit slip, and the importance of that is that the deposit slip which he prepared he thinks gets over the fact that these bills he deposited on that day were one hundred dollar bills of the same denomination as the $1500. He leaves the bank, he is followed up, searches in his pockets, he says, "I must have lost it," comes back to the bank, has an interview there, goes back again, and in the afternoon, when the matter comes out, finding the position he is in, goes to the bank with a crumpled deposit slip, and crumpled for the purpose of showing that it was an old slip, newly made out again with the signature, the initial of somebody to it, not the genuine initial. Again, a deposit slip, which is not the real slip, and passes that in with the lie upon his lips, and says "I have found the original; there it is." Not only so, but with falsehood in his heart, because he knew the purpose with which that was done.

AT THE CROSSIN OFFICE.

Then, in order to cover up his evidence in that respect, he goes to Mr. Crossin's office; he has to account for $1500 and $900 and $300, according to his story, of which we have no record for as against Mr. Stratton. On the one hand we have that position of affairs; on the other hand we have the books of a company, with the keys in the possession of Mr. Crossin and Mr. Gamey—the only man who has access to the office except Mr. Crossin is Mr. Gamey, and we have Mr. Gamey, according to Crossin's testimony, being there alone upon the Friday and Saturday, and being there alone for a considerable time, and when the books are produced we find them mutilated, and the leaves covering the financial transactions of Mr. Gamey from the 1st July, 1902, to the 13th February, 1903, are gone in the company, and with a man's credibility forever lost. That is Mr. Gamey's position and that is the kind of man upon which my learned friend is basing his case in the interests of the public.

WANTS THEM FOUND.

Find, find me the deposit slip of the $900 and the deposit receipt of the $1500, and find me the missing leaves from the life of Mr. Gamey, and I have a short step to take to ascertain where the money came from.

One word more, my Lords. I have I have not been too emphatic in dealing with this, but I feel that where the life and reputation of a government are at stake upon the evidence of a man of this kind that I have the right to use emphatic language to deal with a question of this sort.

MR. HAMMOND'S EVIDENCE.

Then let me deal last of all with the evidence of Mr. Hammond, the one bright ray of consolation that has reached the camp of the prosecution, the one twinkling little star that has guided them to say something very bitter and very severe against a Minister of the Crown. Let me say here that if what Mr. Hammond stated be true, and I am not saying that he is telling an untruth, but if it be true in suggestion, true in impression, then Mr. Hammond is as great a moral delinquent as the Hon. J. R. Stratton. Why? And in saying this far be it from me to cast any imputation upon Mr. Hammond or upon his honesty—Mr. Hammond's proposition is this, as put by my learned friend, and which I respectfully submit is not the position which Mr. Hammond placed himself in by his evidence—Mr. Hammond's position is this, as viewed through the glass of the prosecution: — "Mr. Stratton said to me, 'Can you forget some of these things?'" Said with a sinister motive, said with an improper purpose, said with a wrong intention to induce a man to do wrong, and yet that is the very thing that Mr. Hammond assents to, and says, "I might if I was not asked about them. In other words, an immoral suggestion made to Mr. Hammond, and Mr. Hammond accepts the immoral inuendo and says, "I might if I was not asked about them." If the proposition was a dishonest proposition the answer given by Mr. Hammond is a dishonest answer. If there was corruption in the proposition there is corruption in the acceptance of it, because Mr. Hammond should not, might not, ought not to forget things material to the issue whether he was asked or not.

"CAN'T YOU FORGET?"

Let us see what Mr. Hammond says. "We walked along the corridor together, and he asked me if I could not forget some of the thinks. I think I said I might forget things that I was not asked about. If it was an honest question, the answer was honest. If it was a matter of his forgetting or remembering as a matter of fact, then the answer was a perfectly honest answer. If there was an insinuation in the question there was moral turpitude in the answer. "Did he say anything else then? I think he repeated the remark that I gave you previously, can't you forget some of that, or something like that." Here we have a statement written out, according to Mr. Hammond's own story, dealing amongst other things with the Carnegie Library, dealing with extraneous matters. We have a paper matter in which Mr. Hammond had set out apparently at great detail a number of things; a man might reasonably say; these matters are not relevant to the issue; "can't you forget a lot of these things"—matters that took place between the Minister and Mr. Hammond—matters perhaps, told in consequence of the position at that time, when it was a matter of public record that the Globe newspaper and the Government were in a state of considerable friction—matters which Mr. Stratton may reasonably have spoken to Mr. Hammond about and which would not be relevant to this issue, and which would be perhaps to some extent a betrayal of confidence if produced in open court.

NO PARTICULAR FACT.

That is evidenced by the fact that Mr. Hammond was not asked to forget one particular sentence, one particular fact; although, if the proposition was an unfair one, Mr. Hammond was willing to fall in with it and say, "If I am not asked about them I can forget them." And yet not one solitary circumstance, not one solitary fact, as asked by Mr. Stratton that Mr. Hammond should forget or should colour in the slightest degree. The same way with the change of the interview, he said, "Could you not strike that out," and here we have my learndd friend telling us by the half hour as to the terrible conduct of Mr. Stratton and yet omitting to tell your Lordships that it was said, "We will call Gamey back"—he had gone down the corridor—"and get him to correct that;" and then Mr. Stratton said, "Oh, never mind; Gamey has gone; let it go at that." That is the position of affairs on which my learned friend is endeavouring to fasten guilt upon the Minister with reference to his doings. Hammond's memory itself is defective. A man might have said, "Won't you forget a lot of these things? You have written out a lot of stuff, couldn't you forget?" But his memory was defective when he says he did not ask Mr. Gamey any questions the first time he was in the box. When Mr. Hammond returns to the box I comfront him with the Globe newspaper, and he has to admit that he asked Gamey many questions, and the interview which he prepared is twice as long as the part which is under discussion.

IN CONCLUSION.

Now, my Lords I have dealt with the e vidence as far as I possibly could and to the best of my ability. I have endeavoured as far as possible to keep away from making my address, at any rate, the text of a political campaign speech. I have, I hope addressed the court, and the court only. Only on this occasion do I refer to these matters, because these are matters of history, as showing that that which was pretended to have been done by Mr. Gamey, and in which my learned friend sees so much guilt and so much corruption on the part of the present government, is a thing in Canadian history that has been done again and again, and, let me say and hope, honestly done. The matters that I refer to are matters of history, and show that a man may leave his party, and yet no evidence of corruption, though charges of corruption are continually made.

PRECEDENTS OFFERED.

The Hon. John Sanfield Macdonald left his party, accounted a Liberal until he formed his Cabinet at Confederation. The Hon. E. B. Wood was the treasurer in John Sandfield's Cabinet. He voted against his government upon the Hon. Edward Blake's amendment to the address, which defeated the Sandfield government. He was then a Conservative, supporting John Sandfield Macdonald; and no less an eminent man, against whose character or reputation not even a breath of suspicion can be found, a man who has left of his life a blameless record; that man says to Mr. Wood at the critical moment "Speak now," and the record of it is found in the waste paper basket; and then it was alleged again and again that it was showing evidence of corruption on the part of the Hon. Edward Blake and the Hon. E. B. Wood—a monstrous thing to say.

The Hon. Stephen Richards entered political life as a Liberal, and is so described in the Parliamentary Companion. He joined Sanfield Macdonald's Government in 1867, as opposed to the Liberal opposition of Hon. Edward Blake and the late Hon. Mr. Mackenzie.

BEATTY OF PARRY SOUND.

Mr. Beatty, of Parry Sound, was elected as a Conservative in 1894, classed so by both the Conservative and Reform papers. He voted with the Opposition at first, as the records of the House will show, and subsequently generally voted with the Government.

The late and lamented D'Alton McCarthy, for many years a leading Conservative, became an Independent, and voted in sympathy very often with the Liberal party. The Hon. R. W. Scott, the same record. Sir William P. Howland, at first a Liberal, then in John Sandfield Macdonald's Cabinet, became Postmaster-General in the Government of Sir John A. Macdonald. Sir Richard Cartwright, for years and years a Conservative, became an honoured member of the Cabinet of Canada in a Liberal Administration. The Hon. Joseph Howe, another example. The Hon. D'Arcy McGee, another.

There are other examples that I might name—and I would name if it might not be considered too personal—in private life, of eminent citizens, men who have the right to be independent, men who have the right to change their politics if they so desire.

ALLEGIATION OF CORRUPTION.

On every occasion—in the case of the Hon. E. B. Wood, in the case of Mr. Beatty, in the case of Sir Richard Cartwright, and in one or two of the others—there was the continuous allegation that these men had been influenced by some corrupt or improper motive—the motive of gain, of power, of patronage, of high preferment and place; and yet it would be idle to say that, because a man chooses to leave his party and become a member of the Opposition. One might just as well say that the late Mr. Gladstone, because he happened to change his politics at the time when there was an opening for young, able and zealous Liberals, did it for an improper purpose.

And, in addition to the right which a man has, there are circumstances which I have pointed out to your Lordships, strong reasons, strong circumstances, why Mr. Gamey—if I may be pardoned for connecting Mr. Gamey with the eminent names that I have mentioned — strong circumstances which Mr. Gamey might have given for any change in his political creed.

GRAVITY OF THE POSITION.

Now, my Lords, it would be idle for me to prolong this discussion. I have said all that I have to say upon the facts. I desire to say one word, and one only with reference to the grave position which the finding in this case may mean. When we approach a grave crisis even judges hesitates to pronounce the word. Grave by reason of the consequences. The judge who tries the case of a civil dispute between neighbours does the very best he can and has no fear, no feeling as to consequence, because the consequences after all are very small, very insignificant in most cases; but where the consequences are inevitable and irrevocable, where once the thing has been done and there can be no recall, where once the word has been pronounced and the doom is sealed that nothing can remedy.

THEY GO SLOW.

Judges hesitate, judges pause, in weighing evidence in order that no wrong may be irretrievably done. May I hope that the consequences of whatever findings your Lordships may think proper to give shall be, if supported by the evidence, and if your Lordships should so think, such findings as will maintain the high honour and character of this province; the high honour and character of the men who have been entrusted not only with its present but its future destines in moulding and shaping the policy of the finest province of our Dominion. May I hope that that finding, if warranted by the evidence, will be sufficiently clear that whatever tarnish has been put upon the good name of Ontario by a man of the character and of the conduct of Mr. Gamey from Manitoulin, shall at once be brushed aside, and that Ontario shall remain, as she always has done, the foremost, the strongest, the best and the purest people within the broad Dominion. And may that finding declare that no Minister of the Crown has betrayed his trust. May it declare that no man can gain notoriety by any such conduct as that adopted by Mr. Gamey. May it declare that there is no room in this country for falsehood and treachery. And as a consequence of that finding, if your Lordships can and do find, it is a pleasure to know, and it will be a satisfaction to know that the Premier of this province the old man eloquent, a man who has no legacy to leave his children or his children's children except the good name of himself and his colleagues a man who has grown poor in the service of his country, that that man should not go down hiding his face in sorrow to the grave.

Slater Shoe Advertising

Art in Shoe Making

Short talks by the Slater Shoe ad man, No. 7.

Mere wear in a shoe is comparatively easy—plowman's hobnailed brogans to wit.

Foot comfort, as exemplified in your easy going house slippers, does not imply either beauty, shape retention or street-wear durability.

Yet wear in a brogan and comfort in a slipper are secured by a modicum of shoe making skill.

But to produce a shoe of wear, of comfort, of beauty and then to challenge public criticism under the limelight rays of advertising requires art, shoe making art—not the art which hides by cleverly concealing defects but the art which assembles in the shoe all the elements of wear, of foot comfort, of shape retention and shoe beauty.

Such shoe art the "Slater Shoe" makers are compelled, by advertising, to impart to the "Slater Shoe."

That's why the man or woman who buys and wears a "Slater Shoe" is assured of all he or she has right to expect in a high-grade shoe bearing upon it the stamp of the maker's responsibility as does

Watch Your Friends and Neighbours Who Use PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND.

Why Continue in Suffering While Others are Banishing Their Ailments and Weaknesses?

Our heartfelt desire at this time is to impress upon the minds of our women and girls the folly of trusting to time and nature to secure freedom from the ailments and weaknesses, the symptoms and warnings of disease that wreck the lives of so many. The entire female organism at this season demands attention. The delicate and complicated machinery cannot work with regularity and precision when you suffer from female irregularities, nervous prostration, headaches, backaches, sideaches, liver complaint and the effects of impure blood.

To-day your friends and neighbours are using woman's friend, Paine's Celery Compound, an dare getting rid of their burdens and troubles. If you are observant, you will note that your woman friends are putting on flesh, they are blessed with renewed vigour, elastic step, bright eyes and clear complexions, all of which are true indications of a new and better health. Why suffer, when you can secure the same blessings? Why deny yourself the happiness of true womanly life, when Paine's Celery Compound is able to make you as healthy and attractive as other women are? Mrs. George B. Griswold, Nanaimo, B. C., writing especially for women, says:

"The grand success of Paine's Celery Compound in my case, leads me to believe that it has no equal in the world for curing the ills of women. For three years female troubles, dyspepsia and nervousness, made me a shadow of my former self. I was treated by competent doctors and took a sea trip that lasted six weeks, but got home again feeling no better. After reading one of your books on Paine's Celery Compound, I bought a supply and used it faithfully. Three bottles were sufficient to convince me that I had found a friend and helper. Six bottles, thank God, banished all my complaints and made me a new woman. I am anxious that every suffering woman should know what Paine's Celery Compound has done for me."

THE RAILWAY BILL.

House Makes Little Progress in Appointing Commission.

MR. MACLEAN'S MOTION LOST

The Intercolonial Exemption from the Operation of the Bill Excites a Sharp Discussion—Mr. Blair's Answer is that the Public Has Its Own Road Under Its Control and Can Remedy Grievances.

Ottawa, May 30.—A bill introduced in the House yesterday by Hon. Mr. Bernier amends the Weights and Measures Act so as to permit the use of postal scales up to four pounds without departmental inspection, and parties using them for other purposes will be subject to the penalties of the act.

Another bill introduced, proposed by the Minister of Inland Revenue, provides that inland revenue duties shall be payable hereafter on the first day of the month instead of the sixth day.

A bill to amend the Electric Light Inspection Act provides that in the case of an offence under the act by a corporation penalties may be recoverable. Penalties may be made on the major or chief officers of the corporation.

The House went into committee on Hon. Mr. Blair's bill to appoint a railway commission.

Mr. Blair said that the commission would be in a position to regulate all merchandise carried by railways, whether by express or freight, but would not be in a position to regulate the charges for collection and delivery. The way to deal with the whole subject was by a separate act, and not to include it in this bill.

Mr. Maclean's amendment to include express companies was defeated.

Mr. Barker wanted the Intercolonial to come under the commission, and moved an amendment to that effect.

Mr. Blair said that the Intercolonial road was a Government road, and if all railways were controlled by the Government there would be no necessity for a commission, and if a necessity did arise, it would soon be remedied by the people who owned the railway.

Mr. Lancaster (Lincoln) contended that the commission should control the rates.

Mr. Borden said that people of the Maritime Provinces did not want any of the people of another province to pay any deficiency by reason of low rates.

Mr. Fraser said that confederation was made possible only by reason of the Intercolonial Railway. If the Railway Commission was composed of honest men it would raise the rates on the I. C. R. He would not entertain the suspicion that there is discrimination in rates on the Government road. The management of the I. C. R. should remember at all times that the road was designed to cement the provinces and that idea should never be lost sight of.

Mr. Hale of Carleton, N.B., argued that the I.C.R. should be brought under the control of the Railway Commission, then all parties would receive fair play.

Dr. Sproule said that it was never the intention that the Government railway should carry freight at less than cost.

Mr. Henderson of Halton said he could not see why the I.C.R. should not be brought under the authority.

Mr. Haggart said he was not anxious that the I. C. R. should be brought under the commission. He wanted the Minister of Railways to be responsible for the administration of the I. C. R., and he did not want to enable him to hedge behind a Railway Commission.

Mr. Clarke moved for the interim report of the commissioners appointed to investigate the recent appointment at the Windsor Junction on the I.C. R.

Mr. Blair handed in the report as soon as the motion was carried.

At 6 o'clock the further discussion of the bill was postponed until a later date. In the evening the House went into Committee of Supply on the militia estimates.

The House sat until nearly midnight. The estimates of the Minister of Militia were completed, with the exception of one item which was allowed to stand in order to allow of a general discussion of the affairs of the department at a later date. Some progress was also made with the estimates of the Minister of Customs.

Get Nothing From Government.

Ottawa, May 30.—James A. Smart was examined before the Agriculture Committee yesterday in regard to the immigration of the Barr colonists. He said he thought nine-tenths of them would probably have come out through the efforts of the Government agents, and the commission which was paid to Barr by the immigration agents would have gone to the regular agents who booked them. Mr. Barr spent the $12,000 he thus received on his London office and in advertising. He received nothing from the Government.

Will Guarantee Bonds.

Ottawa, May 30.—The Canadian Northern is to receive a Government guarantee of bonds upon a total distance of 720 miles. Of this mileage 620 are from Grand View to Edmonton. The remaining 100 are for the Prince Albert branch of the company's line.

By a Persistent Cough, but Permanently Cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

Mr. H. P. Burbage, a student at law in Greenville, S. C., has been troubled for four or five years with a continuous cough, which he says "greatly alarmed me, causing me to fear that I was in the first stages of consumption." Mr. Burbage, having seen Chamberlain's Cough Remedy advertised, concluded to try it. "I soon felt a remarkable change and after using two bottles of the 25 cent kind was permanently cured. Sold by all druggists.

Toronto Honors Lord Minto.

Toronto, May 29.—The city banquetted the vice-regal party at the King Edward last night, and there was a large and fashionable attendance. Mayor Urquhart proposed Their Excellencies' health, and Lord Minto made appropriate reply. Hon. G. W. Ross, in speaking to the toast of "The Empire," said that Canada must contribute to Imperial defence.

Sailed in the Clouds.

Paris, May 30.—During play on the Polo Grounds in the Bois de Boulogne, Santos-Dumont on his balloon, No. 9, appeared unexpectedly over the players and descended in front of the clubhouse. He re-ascended later, and after executing a number of manoeuvres at a height of 500 feet, he returned to the balloon shed at Neuilly.

GLORY WHALEN'S MURDER.

Authorities Have Made Absolutely No Progress in Securing Fiend.

Collingwood, May 30.—The authorities have made no progress in the search for the man who slew little Glory Whalen Wednesday morning. The exciting clews of the first few hours proved of no consequence. Circumstantial evidence pointed in several directions. The process of elimination rapidly wiped out these suspicions.

An Assyrian peddler is under arrest here. He was caught near Duntroon yesterday afternoon. An unknown man is detained at Beeton, and another at Thornbury. The man secured at Thornbury is an Assyrian, who passed through Collingwood Tuesday, and during an altercation drew a revolver and threatened Paddy Burnes. The Beeton suspect got himself into trouble by assuming to give all the details of the murder, and coming from this vicinity, while the Duntroon man is the Assyrian peddler who appeared at the Kendall home about noon of the day of the tragedy, offering notions for sale.

Provincial Detective Greer arrived at noon yesterday, and is working on the case. He said last night that it looks like a stern case, and a long one, with absolutely nothing to guide the officers in their search for the guilty man, as the situation stands at present.

THE KANSAS FLOOD.

North Topeka Surrounded by Water—10,000 People Homeless.

Topeka, Kan., May 30.—At 9.30 o'clock last night the water had surrounded the whole of North Topeka. More than 2,000 people are homeless. The river is rising fast, and it is estimated that by noon fully 10,000 will be homeless. The Union Pacific station is flooded.

Floods in the South.

Kansas City, Mo., May 30.—The rains and floods have caused enormous damage to railroads throughout this and neighboring states. The lowlands for miles around are submerged, and hundreds of families have been driven from their homes. The train service is in a deplorable condition. At Des Moines, Iowa, the river reached the highest point in the Government records, when it touched 21 feet and 3-10 above low water mark. In the city alone the flood loss will be fully $500,000. A break in the levee Friday morning inundated two hundred fine residences in North Des Moines. At Abilene, Kansas, the water swept through the streets Friday night, doing $100,000 damage.

Ontario Man Robbed.

Montreal, May 30.—Ulrich Borgua, a telegraph operator at Exchange Hotel, is under arrest, charged with stealing one thousand dollars from John Tinkers, a well-known cattle dealer from Lunenburg, Ont. Borgua and Tinkers had been making merry, and the latter had gone to the former's house for the night. When he awoke Thursday morning his money was gone. Borgua is held for trial.

Senator O'Brien Dead.

Montreal, May 30.—After an illness of eleven months, Hon. Joseph O'Brien died yesterday about 1 o'clock. Senator O'Brien was born at Aughnagar, Ireland, in 1836, and amassed a very large fortune as a wholesale clothier. In fact, his estate is valued at over a million dollars. He was called to the Senate in 1895 and was a very close friend of Sir Mackenzie Bowell.

For a Certainty I am Cured.

Mr. Jas. Treneman, 536 Adelaide street, London, writes that for two years he was laid up with kidney disease and urinary troubles. He became dropsical and his legs would swell so that he could hardly walk around. He never used any medicine that did him so much good as Dr. Chase's Kidney Liver Pills, and knows for a certainty that this treatment cured him. One pill a dose; 25c. a box.

Barges on the Rocks.

Oswego, N. Y., May 30.—Captain Alexander McDonald of the steamer Marshal, which arrived here yesterday, reports that the barges Argo, Carney and Buckley are on the rocks at Grenadier Island, at the entrance of the St. Lawrence River. The crews are safe.

New York City.—A gang of 300 Italian strikers attacked the negroes working on the subway and a fierce fight ensued. Several arrests were made.

Nervous Depression.

Summer months are peculiarly the months of nervous diseases, especially nervous prostration and other depressed states of the nervous system. People who are not at all inclined to be nervous or suffer from weak nerves find this time especially trying. Sultry heat and electrical disturbances of the atmosphere are probably the cause of this.

Invalids need to be particularly careful to fortify the nervous system by the use of Peruna.

Miss Helen Bolof, Kaukauna, Wis., writes:—"Several times during the past two years or more my system has been greatly in need of a tonic, and at those times Peruna has been of great help in building up the system, restoring my appetite and securing restful sleep. I know a great number of women who are using it for the troubles peculiar to the sex, and with the best results."—Helen Bolof.

Miss Louise Bertsel, 191½ Second street, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:—"My health was excellent until about six months ago, when I seemed to have a collapse from overdoing socially, and the doctor ordered an entire change of scene and climate. As this was an absolute impossibility at the time, I had to try and regain my health in another way and was induced by a friend, who gave Peruna such a good recommend, to try Peruna. I cannot tell you the condition of my nerves when I began to use it. The least noise irritated me, and I felt that life was not worth living, but Peruna soon changed me into a well woman, and now I do not know I have nerves."—Louise Bertsel.

Miss Jennie Finley, 79 Madison Street, Memphis, Tenn., a popular young society lady of that place, writes:—"Three years ago I had very poor health, and while I was only sick abed occasionally, I was unable to enjoy life, and lacked vitality and strength. I was an easy subject to cold and malaria. Four bottles of Peruna changed my entire physical condition. My head stopped aching, my strength returned, and the poison was driven out of my blood till I felt like a new and well woman once more. It is a truly great medicine and well worthy the good things its friends say about it, and it will always have my indorsement."—Jennie Finley.

Miss Lucy M. Riley, 23 Davenport street, Cleveland, Ohio, writes:—"I wish to add my indorsement to thousands of other women who have been cured through the use of Peruna. I suffered for five years with severe backache, and when weary or worried in the least I had prolonged headache. This fall I caught a bad cold and was advised to take Peruna for it. Imagine my astonishment and pleasure to find that after taking two bottles not only was my cough gone, but I had no more backache or headache. I am now in perfect health, enjoy life and have neither an ache or pain, thanks to Peruna."—Lucy M. Riley.

A newspaper contributor was lately admitted into the extensive suite of offices which constitute the headquarters of Dr. Hartman, who treats catarrh patients by the thousand. Among the busy swarm of assistant doctors, clerks, stenographers and bookkeepers, Dr. Hartman stopped long enough to say a few words.

"A large number of female patients visit me every year, but the number who are entered on my books as regular patients and are treated by correspondence is very much larger. Hundreds of letters are received and answered free every day. A yet greater multitude take my catarrh remedy, Peruna, and are cured, of whom I never hear. Some of this latter class write me years after their cure.

"I never allow a name published except by the written consent of the patient. We make no charge at any time. The medicine only is obtained by each patient at her own drug store. Those desiring to become regular patients have only to send address, duration of disease and treatment previously received, and directions for the first month's treatment will be sent at once."

Over half the women have catarrh in some form or another. And yet, probably not a tenth of the women know that their disease is catarrh. To distinguish catarrh of various organs it has been named very differently.

One woman has dyspepsia, another bronchitis, another Bright's disease, another liver complaint, another consumption, another female complaint. These women would be very much surprised to hear that they are all suffering with chronic catarrh. But it is so, nevertheless.

Each one of these troubles and a great many more are simply catarrh—that is, chronic inflammation of the mucous lining, of which organ is affected. Any internal remedy that will cure catarrh in one location will cure it in any other location. This is why Peruna has become so justly famous in the cure of female diseases. It cures catarrh wherever located. Its cures remain. Peruna does not palliate, it cures.

ONTARIO ASSEMBLY.

Several Important Bills Receive Their Second Reading on Friday.

Toronto, May 30.—Mr. Harcourt's bill to amalgamate the educational boards of Toronto passed the committee stage of the Legislature yesterday and the principle of the bill was accepted without opposition.

The bill respecting the assessment of the property of James Playfair in the town of Midland was considered in committee, but it will come up again.

Col. Matheson moved the second reading of his bill respecting wages weekly instead of fortnightly or monthly, and applied only to companies. Lumbermen on the drive or in the woods are not included. There were cries of "lost" from both sides of the House and Col. Matheson did not press it.

Mr. Pense's bill to amend the General Road Companies' Act was read a second time.

Second readings were also given the following bills: The Statute Law Amendment Act, 1903 (Gibson); to amend the Municipal Act (Gibson).

The following bills were read a third time: To amend the High School Act (Harcourt); to amend the Children's Protection Act (Gibson); respecting the Hamilton and Caledonian Railway Company (Holmes); to incorporate the Stratford Radial Railway Company (Brown); respecting the International Transit Company (Conmee); providing for the construction of works of improvement along the bank of the Upper Niagara River (Ross); respecting the Township of Pelee (Auld).

Dr. Nesbitt was granted an order for correspondence, papers, etc., appertaining to road grants on Warren and Markstey roads.

The Commissioner of Crown Lands has decided on the names of 56 of the new townships to be surveyed this summer. The townships are named after prominent legislators, clergymen and business men.

The Bruce mines and Algoma Railway is applying for a land grant of 7,400 acres a mile for 100 miles of road.

A deputation from Kingsmill waited on the Provincial Secretary, and asked for an order-in-council to enable the town to expend $10,000 in extending its water works system without submitting a bylaw to the people. The order-in-council will be passed.

Conmee Act Remains.

Toronto, May 30.—In the Municipal Committee yesterday, Mr. Joseph Downey's bill to repeal the Conmee sections of the Municipal Act was thrown out by a vote of 21 to 6. Nineteen members of the committee were absent. All who voted for the bill were Conservatives, and one Conservative only, Mr. Hoyle, voted against the bill. All the absentees were Conservatives. Mr. Downey made a strong fight for his bill.

Medicine For Him.

"His wife has treasured all the letters he wrote her when he was courting her; keeps them by her all the time."

"Gracious! She doesn't read them over, does she?"

"No, but she threatens to read them to him whenever he gets obstreperous."

Ozone Sold for $100,000

Yet We Give You a 50c. Bottle Free

The Liquid Ozone Co. of Chicago paid us $100,000 for the rights to Powley's Liquified Ozone for the United States. That is the highest price ever paid for the rights in one country on any scientific discovery.

We tell you this fact to indicate the wonderful merit of Ozone. When men of high ability pay a price like that—after testing Ozone for two years in the most difficult germ diseases—you can rely on the fact that it does what we claim.

Not Medicine

Powley's Liquified Ozone is nothing but oxygen—no drugs, no alcohol in it. It is simply the vital part of air in fixed and staple form.

All its effects come from getting an excess of oxygen in staple form into the blood, to go wherever the blood goes. It charges the blood with a germicide, and no germ in the body can escape it—none can resist it.

Oxygen is a tonic to you—the very source of vitality. Its effects are exhilarating, purifying, vitalizing. In this liquid form it stimulates to the utmost every process of nature.

But germs are vegetables, and an excess of oxygen—the very life of an animal—is deadly to vegetable matter.

$1,000 for a Germ

The results from Ozone are so certain—so inevitable—that we publish in our pamphlets an offer of $1,000 for a disease germ that it cannot kill.

And there is no other way to kill germs in the body without killing the tissues too. Any drug that kills germs is a poison to you and it cannot be taken internally. All that medicine can do for a germ disease is to aid nature to overcome the germs—and those results are too indirect, too uncertain. Success depends on the patient's condition, and there are some of these diseases which medicine never cures.

Germ Diseases

These are some of the known germ diseases. The cause of each of these troubles is germs, and germs only; and the germs must be killed before the trouble is cured.

Ozone directly destroys the cause of these troubles, and the results are certain. The best physicians, and the largest hospitals all over Canada employ it. The results from Ozone are so well proved—so inevitable—that we are willing to guarantee it in any stage or condition of any disease in this list.

A Serious Offence.

On Monday last a fight took place on board the Water Lily between two young men well known in town, and the affair created considerable excitement while it lasted. The parties in question were said to be under the influence of liquor, and the captain of the boat has placed the matter in the hands of the authorities. The case will probably come up for hearing in the County Police Court next week.

NEW YORK WEDDING OF LOCAL INTEREST.

A Lakefield Lady Becomes an Editor's Bride.

A despatch to the Toronto World says:—

"William Fayal Clarke, associate editor of St. Nicholas, and Miss Clementina Katherine Strickland, of Lakefield, Ontario, Canada, were married yesterday in Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge's apartments in the Osborne, Seventh-avenue and West Fifty-seventh street, where for a week Mr. Clarke has been flat on his back with fever. It had been intended to have a large wedding on June 2 at the bride's Canadian home, but this plan was upset by the bridegroom's illness.

"Mr. Clarke was taken ill last Friday while making a business call on Mrs. Dodge, who is the editor of St. Nicholas, and who has herself been kept to the house for two weeks by a strained knee.

"Dr. David H. Greer performed the ceremony. C. V. Mapes, Mrs. Dodge's brother, gave the bride away; Kern Dodge of Philadelphia was best man, and Miss Helen Boucher, of Peterborough, Ontario, was bridesmaid. The bride is a grandniece of Agnes Strickland, author of "The Queens of England and Scotland."

It is understood that a pretty home wedding of an elaborate nature was in course of preparation at the home of the bride's father, Mr. R. C. Strickland, Lakefield, and that a large number of the friends and relatives of the contracting parties would be in attendance. However, through the unexpected illness of the groom, (who by the way, is one of the foremost journalists in New York,) the preparations were upset by the bridegroom's illness.

THE LOCAL BEET SUGAR COMPANY.

Notes of This Rapidly Flourishing Industry.

All work in connection with the sugar factory is being pushed on vigorously and successfully. The excavations for all the buildings but the beet-sheds were completed a week ago, and this week a considerable portion of the concrete foundation work has been done.

Mr. Bogue has agreed to do the crushing of the stone on the Company's grounds, and will move his crusher there on Monday.

As all the crushing has to be done in June, 800 cords of stone, suitable for the crusher, are wanted immediately, for which the large price of $3.50 a cord will be paid.

The G. T. R. sidings into the factory have been staked out and the grading of the road-bed will soon begin.

The local stock-holders of the Company, consisting mostly of prominent citizens and farmers, now number 75, many of whom are taking quite large blocks of stock, each share $100 par value. It is now very probable that most of the stock will be applied for in the town and county.

LAKEFIELD RESIDENT DIED ON SATURDAY.

The Late Mr. Thomas Hendren.

The funeral took place in Lakefield on Monday last of Mr. Thomas Hendren who was well and favourably known all through this district. The The deceased who was fifty years of age, succumbed to an illness of only a few weeks' duration.

About twenty-five years ago he established a furniture business in Lakefield, which is now carried on by his son George. A few years ago he started a branch in Warsaw, at which place he spent most of his time and resided there up to the time that he contracted his fatal illness. He leaves a widow and eight children to mourn his loss. The children are Mrs. B Hunter, Mrs. James Hunter, Miss Emma, and John, George, James, Abel and Reggie, all of whom reside at Lakefield.

57TH CHURCH PARADE TO-MORROW AFTERNOON.

A Large Turn out of Men is Urgently Requested.

The officers of the 57th Regiment expect to have a large turn-out of men to-morrow afternoon to the church parade to St. John's church. Men are asked to be at the drill shed as soon after 3.30 o'clock as possible as helmets will have to be issued. The "fall-in" will sound at 3.45 o'clock, but the regiment will not march till 4 o'clock, as children in the Sunday Schools might be anxious to hear the band and see the soldiers. Each Company office requests a large turn-out of his respective command, and all who possibly can are urgently requested to do so. As it will be broad daylight men are asked to give the buttons an extra bright polish as well as rubbing the boots over.

Officers of sister corps are invited to be present in uniform. It is understood that the musical part of the service will be led by the band.

Citizens generally are invited, as far as the seating capacity of St. John's church will allow.

A SHIPMENT OF PICKEREL.

A Million Young Fry Deposited in Peterborough and Clear Lake Waters.

There arrived on the C.P.R. noon train, Friday, a shipment of one million pickerel fry from the Government hatchery at Sandwich, Ont. It is understood the fry is to be distributed in the waters of the vicinity, and are at present in charge of a Government overseer who had them conveyed in ten tanks containing 10,000 fry each.

It is further understood that the contents of several tanks were deposited in Little Lake, four tanks below the locks, one above Nassau and three in Clear Lake above Young's Point.

Mr. John Ballantyne, an enthusiastic fisherman, applied to the Government for the pickerel, and it is through his efforts that the consignment of fry was secured for these waters.

THE NEW DAM.

Contractor John O'Toole Making Great Headway.

Mr. John O'Toole, contractor in charge of the Cereal Company's new dam, is certainly making great progress with this undertaking.

Although active work on the dam proper is temporarily suspended awaiting the arrival of the steel work in connection with the same, it is surprising the rapidity with which the excavation work in connection with the raceway has been carried on.

A large staff of men is employed on this undertaking and six derricks are kept busy removing the earth and piling it on the old saw mill property where, it is understood, it will afterwards be used for levelling up the grounds.

The excavation work in connection with the raceway, it is thought, will be finished to-day, and a staff of men have already commenced to rip-rapp the embankments. The labourers are at present delving into the solid rock and will penetrate the same to a depth of several feet.

The foundation for the new power house has been completed for some time, and this is certainly a fine piece of construction work.

Operations on the different sections of the work are going on satisfactorily, and Mr. O'Toole is certainly to be congratulated on the success he has achieved in an undertaking which is attracting a large number of citizens every day, who watch with interest the progress of the work.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

Miss Wilhelmine Gumphricht, of town, who has been attending the Ontario Ladies College, Whitby, being a pupil of Mr. J. W. F. Harrison, gave a very interesting recital on Tuesday evening at Whitby. The recital was given upon Miss Gumphricht's graduation from the Toronto Conservatory of Music, and was attended by a large number of her friends. Miss Gumphricht was assisted by Miss Florence Dewey, violiniste, a pupil of Mr. Heinrich Klingfeld, by Miss Hattie Neal Austin, violiniste, a pupil of Miss Beatrice Wilson, and by Miss Elda Flett, also a violiniste, and a pupil of Mr. Richard Tandy.

The recital took place in the Ontario Ladies' College, Whitby, and was a singular success. Among other items on the programme were Carnival Pranks in Vienna, Nos. 2 and 3, Schuman, Chopin, Ballade in A flat, Sioiseau J'etais, Henselt, Polonaise Opus No. 2, Chopin, and Polka dela Polka dela Reine, Raff.

ST. JOHN'S CHOIR BOY'S EXCELLENT CONCERT

Held in the Sunday School Last Evening

Was a Triumphant Success—Under Supervision of Mr. Jas. Halpany—A Large Audience.

The concert which the Choir Boys of St. John's Church gave in the Sunday School last evening, under the careful direction of Mr. Jos. Halpany, was in every particular a gratifying success. It must be admitted that the choir sang excellently and in such manner as reflected great credit both upon themselves and their director, Mr. Halpany, who in his turn showed good judgment in the music which he set before the boys. The chorus singing was enthusiastically applauded as well it deserved, for every note was distinctly heard all over the room. The boys were greeted by a filled auditorium who seemed to be thoroughly pleased with both the programme and the singing and left apparently highly delighted with the concert and the manner in which it was conducted.

Among the features was the excellence of the orchestra, which played overture, "Danse D'Amour," Clark; poem, "Sunbeams and Shadows," Keiser, and march, "Whistling John," by Asher. Their selections had never been heard in Peterborough before and for that reason, combined with the excellence of the playing, were heartily applauded.

The programme was opened by a chorus, "When the Band Begins to Play," sung by Charlie Dean, Freddy Seymour, Gordon Campbell, Frank Halpany, Gordon Cumming, Frank Sawers, Jack Seymour, Karl Halpany, Claude Bartlett, Arthur Sawers, Charlie Kingscote, Harold Wallace, Charlie Ray, Erle Weller, Vernon Morphet. Their singing throughout was uniformly musical in regard to tone quality and the rendering was very well received. Mrs Halpany ably accompanied. Freddy Seymour's solo "In the Golden Summer Time" was nicely sung and highly delighted the audience. Frank and Karl Halpany gave a humorous selection entitled "I Love to Live, Love, with You," which was followed by a solo from Vernon Morphet, entitled "Under Southern Skies," which evoked considerable applause. The quartette, "When Ruben Comes to Town," was funny in the extreme, and literally "brought down the house." It was sung by Harold Wallis, Charlie Dean, Arthur Sawers and Freddy Seymour.

Karl Halpany seemed rather timid of the commencement of his solo, "Please Let Me Sleep." However, he gained courage and gave it a good rendering. A very humorous sextette ,"Blooming Lize," followed, and the pun which can be made on the second word seemed to amuse the audience. This selection was given by Gordon Campbell, Charlie Dean, Frank Halpany, Freddy Seymour, Claude Bartlett and Karl Halpany.

A chorus entitled "Boys will be Boys," the solo part of which was sung by Mr Chas. Seymour, was heartily appreciated by the choir, which showed that "Boys will be boys." Mr. Hague Sawers' solo, "My Sunny Sue," was well received.

The programme was brought to a close with a chorus entitled, "When a Lady Leads the Band," which was heartily applauded. What added charm to attraction was that the different items were given in costume. The delightful concert was then concluded; and the audience left highly pleased, while the orchestra played their last selection, "Whistling Joe."

AT THE POLICE COURT THIS MORNING

Four Cases disposed of by the Magistrate.

At the police court this morning before Police Magistrate Dumble, a lady was charged with neglecting to pay her dog tax. She was fined 85 cents.

Alex. Webber was charged with obtaining money under false pretences. The Magistrate dismissed the case.

M. Daly was charged with neglecting to pay his dog tax. A fine of $1 and costs was imposed, the latter amounting to $2.30, to be paid in 10 days.

Mary Knapp was charged with removing a scarlet fever placard. She was fined $1, to be paid in ten days. The court then adjourned.

VERY REMARKABLE FAMILY CURIOSITY.

The Last Stage of the Bread Worse Than the First.

Mr. Thomas Young of Smith, showed the Examiner to-day a curiosity in the shape of a piece of rye bread, baked in Northumberland, England, in the year 1832. Of course it has become as hard as stone, and as porous as a sponge, and, it is needless to say, wouldn't be very appetizing after having been kept for so many years. However, like everything else it has a history. Mr. Young's grandmother took this piece of bread from the plate of Mr. Young's father when he was taking his last meal before leaving for America in March of that year, nearly three quarters of a century ago. This souvenir has been handed down through the family, and judging from its firmness and solidity, if not lost, will last for generations yet to come. This piece of bread would literally fill the expression which is sometimes used, "He asked for bread and was given a stone," at the same time bread would be given. It is cherished by the family on account of it being the piece left by the father of the Young family of Smith, on his plate when leaving to take up his home in Canada.

DOWN THE RIVER.

An Enjoyable Excursion Party Yesterday afternoon.

A very enjoyable excursion took place yesterday afternoon to Highland Park, Otonabee River. The affair was attended by about 75 or 80 young people, who left the Wolfe street wharf at five o'clock, per steamer Water-Lily. A band was on board and altogether the trip down the river was very enjoyable. Highland Park was reached in due time, and refreshments were served. The Rob Roy arrived a little later on with a number of those who were unable to leave at five o'clock. The trip up the river was much enjoyed, notwithstanding the cool state of the atmosphere. Much credit is due to Mr. J. McPherson, of the Bank of Montreal, for the success of the excursion. Mrs (Dr.) Bradd kindly chaperoned the party.

WOODMEN OF THE WORLD.

Executive Committee Meets Here on Wednesday, June 10th.

The Executive Committee of the Woodmen of the World will convene in Peterborough on Wednesday, June 10th, and the session will probably last two or three days. Prominent officials of the Order will be present from Toronto, London, Brantford, Niagara and Lindsay for the occasion.

The members of the local camp will entertain visitors while in town.

STOLEN HORSE RECOVERED.

An Item in the Examiner has the Desired Effect.

Chief Roszel this morning received a communication from Mr. D. N. Wright of Campbellford, in which he stated that he read an item in the Examiner of May 20th in reference to the depredations of a gang of horse thieves, which also stated that Rev. C. H. Marsh, of Lindsay, had lost a horse, buggy and set of harness.

Mr. Wright in his communication states that he found a horse, buggy and set of harness at the Centre street church sheds, Campbellford, on May 29th, and gave a complete description of his find. He enquired of the Chief if it was the property of Rev. Mr. Marsh, and a telephone message to Lindsay elicited the fact that the description forwarded tallied exactly with the missing horse and outfit of the Lindsay gentleman, with the exception of the harness, which Mr. Marsh says, was nearly new. In all probability the thief has made a trade as Mr. Wright states that the harness found was an old set and considerably worn.

Rev. Mr. Marsh arrived in town on the noon train and proceeded to Campbellford to claim his outfit.

The T.A.S. seniors play their first game on July 1st. It will be a home game with Oshawa II.

* * * *

At Monday's game on T. A. S. grounds it was surprising the number of cheap sports who viewed the game from the outside of the grounds. The management has decided to procure the services of Mr. R. M. Roy for future games in order to secure photos of the bunch, so that the public may be in a position to know who they really are.

* * * *

A bout a dozen lacrosse enthusiasts drove down to Port Hope to-day to see the Port Hope-Tecumseh match.

* * * *

Lindsay is organizing a junior club, and the Post states they have good material to select from.

VILLAGE CONSTABLE HAS PASSED AWAY.

Death of one of the Oldest Residents of the County.

On Wednesday, May 20th, the death occurred at Lakefield of Mr. Isaac Watson, one of the oldest and most respected residents of the village.

The deceased was born in Carlisle, County Cumberland, England, in 1820, and was married about 1843 to Miss Rebecca Coulthard. The couple emigrated to Canada in 1853, settling first in North Monaghan, and afterwards removing to Douro, where they occupied the farm now occupied by Mr. Grieve. Moving thence into Lakefield Mr. Watson was appointed village constable, a position which he occupied however for a few years. In conjunction with this he had been appointed caretaker of the public school and sexton of St. John's church and for 25 years he was actively engaged in the duties pertaining to these positions.

Besides his widow, he leaves surviving him the following sons and daughters:—John, of Peterborough; Isaac, William, James, Thomas, Joseph, Robert, Mrs. J. Jackman, and Mrs. J. W. Madill, of Lakefield.

NEWS NUGGETS.

Mr. Alex. Paton, of Lindsay, was in town to-day.

—The 57th Regiment will parade to-morrow afternoon.

—It being Decoration Day to-day in the States, the Wall street market was closed.

—Mr. M. L. Henry's grocery and liquor stores were closed to-day for stock-taking.

—Piano tuning promptly attended to. Satisfaction guaranteed. A. F. Hoover. 'Phone 199.

—Life is sweet; death is sure. Why not see DeVine and be secured? Office 408 1-2 George street.

—The Czar of Russia has recovered his lost violin. He may not be in such a "violint" mood in the future.

—The Auburn Sunday School will run their annual excursion on July 1st (Dominion Day,) to Stony Lake per steamer "Majestic." Kindly bear this date in mind.

—Bert Downing, employed by the Peterborough Light and Power Company, was severely burned on Wednesday by grasping a live wire on the Auburn circuit of 2,000 volts.

—There was a very small market this morning and the following are the prices that prevailed:—Eggs, 12c; butter, 19 and 20c; turkeys, $1 to $1.50; ducks, 60 to 90; and chickens 60 to 70c.

Mr. W. H. Hunter, of New Bedford, Mass., will preach in the Gospel Hall, corner George and Brock streets, on Sunday at 7 p.m., and on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights, at 8 o'clock. All heartily welcome.

—St. Paul's senior Bible class meets to-morrow as usual at 3 o'clock. A mixed quartette will furnish special music. To-morrow's lesson is found in Rom. 8; 1-4. "The Life-giving Spirit." Everybody is welcome.

—On former occasions of church parades, damage to shrubbery has been carelessly done on St. John's grounds. To-morrow police protection has been secured to prevent this. It is to the interest of the citizens to see that no harm comes to this beauty spot of Peterborough.

The Mothers Need a Spring Restorative.

To Tone Up the System After the Trying Indoor Life of Winter—To Enrich and Purify the Blood—To Revitalize the Nerves and to Give Strength to the Body.

Many mothers find themselves in a run-down condition in the spring, and it is little wonder when you think of how they are usually confined to indoor life during the winter, and not infrequently have children or grown persons to nurse through long spells of sickness.

Irritability, sleeplessness, nervousness, tired, languid feelings, headaches, backaches, dizzy spells, discouragement and despondency are among the annoying symptoms. Later developments are nervous prostration, paralysis or some form of weakness or irregularities which bring endless troubles.

MRS. PEACOCK AND BABY.

Mrs. Thomas Peacock, 93 Hiawatha street, St. Thomas, Ont., and whose husband is conductor on the Wabash Railway, states :—

"I was quite run down in health, was very nervous, did not sleep well and had frequent dizzy spells. Believing this to be the result of an exhausted nervous system, I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and can say that this medicine did me a world of good. It entirely freed me of the symptoms stated above, built up my health generally so that to-day I feel that I am quite well again."

Mrs. Symons, 42 St. Clair street, Belleville, Ont., states :—

"Some weeks ago I began a course of treatment with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and found it a very satisfactory medicine. I was formerly troubled with nervous exhaustion and a weak, fluttering heart. Whenever my heart bothered me I would have spells of weakness and dizziness, which were very distressing. By means of this treatment my nerves have become strong and healthy, and the action of my heart seems to be regular. I can recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food as an excellent medicine."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Because of its marvellous blood-building qualities and excellent revitalizing influence on the nervous system this great food cure is the most satisfactory treatment for a run-down condition of the system that science has ever devised. By noting your increase in weight while using it you can prove for a certainty that new, firm flesh and tissue are being added to the body.

50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50; at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.
To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box of his remedies.

OCEAN CATASTROPHES.

Only Some of the Passengers and Crew of Oakland Saved.

Cooktown, Queensland, May 30.—The overdue German steamer Watjen has been towed into port at Hall Sound, New Guinea, with the loss of her foremast, mainmast and rudder. About 15,000 packages of her cargo were jettisoned. The Watjen saved eight of the crew of the barque Pirie, Puget Sound to Port Pirie, which was totally wrecked on the Nereus shoals. The captain of the Edith and ten of the crew are missing.

Sydney, N. S. W.—The British steamer Oakland foundered yesterday. Some of the passengers and crew were saved.

Cherbourg, France.—The body of a sailor belonging to the coasting steamer Ville de Cherbourg has been washed ashore, and all hope of the vessel has been given up.

Houghton, Mich. — Capt. Patrick Gordon of the barge Maxwell was washed overboard and drowned. He was a lake sailor for 40 years.

PRACTICALLY SLAVERY.

Negress Held in Servitude, Horribly Ill-Used, and Dies.

Chicago, May 30.—A despatch from Montgomery, Ala., says: Witnesses before the federal grand jury testified that death resulted from the punishment accorded a negro woman who was held in servitude on one of the farms. This woman, accused of being rebellious, and because she could not pile for burning the brush cut by a dozen men, was laid across a log and given 100 lashes. Still showing a rebellious spirit, her hands were tied and the rope thrown over a limb of a tree and pulled up so as to leave it barely possible for her toes to touch the ground. The woman died two days later.

F. M. Pruett, a liveryman of Good Water, was arrested, charged with conspiracy to sell Edward Moody, a negro, to J. W. Pace.

KIDNEY TROUBLE EIGHT YEARS.

Lumbago and Tired, Worn out Feelings Were the Portion of a Toronto Machinist.

He is Well now—Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets Have Cured him.

Mr. Jas. J. Walsh, a machinist in the employ of the Kemp Manufacturing Company, and whose home is 391 Adelaide street west, Toronto, told the story of his cure as follows:

"For eight or nine years I have been troubled with my kidneys. I first had a severe attack of lumbago, then was troubled with intermittent pains in my back, and felt tired and worn out all the time. I used a number of remedies, but did not get much benefit from them. I heard of Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets, and decided to try them. I have taken in all three boxes, and can positively state the Tablets have completely cured me. I recommended them to my brother and they have cured him already. They are certainly splendid."

Every form of kidney trouble, from backache to Bright's disease, is cured by Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets, and the cure is permanent. Price 50 cents a bottle or three for $1.25 at druggists. The Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto. 11

Scores of Uses.

While Dr. Chase's Ointment is best known on account of its wonderful control over eczema, salt rheum and piles, it is found to be in almost daily demand in many homes as a sure for chilblains, chaffing, pimples, sunburn, burns, scalds, and each and every form of itching irritated or inflamed skin. It is invaluable in every home and as a soothing and healing application, knows no equal.

LATE SIR OLIVER MOWAT.

M. A. P. Voices London the Great's Regret at His Falling Out.

Many in London felt a twinge of keen regret the other day when the news came that Sir Oliver Mowat, after a long and sturdy struggle with the grim enemy, had fallen out at last. The persuasive and searching eloquence of the little Ontario lawyer had often graced important gatherings and functions in London, and there is a general and deep sorrow for his loss among those who were privileged to make his acquaintance on this side of the Atlantic. He had dropped in his harness at his eighty-third milestone, although this is no extraordinary feat for a Canadian. Dwellers in the great Prairieland seem to have a knack of sticking to hard work till they are eighty or so, and then retiring for a well-earned rest from their labors. Some hold on longer, as for example the gay and lively Lord Strathcona, now going on for eighty-four, who still attends to the business of his various bank and railway directorates and the Canadian High Commissionership, and may be expected to knock off for a holiday in five years' time or thereabouts.

Sir Oliver Mowat's public career began long before the federation of the Canadian provinces, and he was thus familiar with the various courts of the succeeding Governors-General—Monck, Lisgar, Dufferin, Lorne, Lansdowne, Stanley of Preston, Aberdeen, and Minto. An interesting period it has been since 1867 in the history of Canada, and the Vice-Regal sojourners in the Dominion have enjoyed the life as well as the Canadians themselves. Things are more prim about Rideau Hall now perhaps than they were thirty years ago, when there was much freedom and fun at official headquarters. The Marchioness of Dufferin tells a story of 1873: "Two men dined with us; one, the Speaker of the Legislature in Manitoba, who has lately been tarred and feathered by the people, and who came to relate his experiences of that operation."

The gifted Marchioness shared to the full her husband's popularity in Canada, and her homeliness won the hearts of everybody. A baby girl came to Rideau Hall in 1873, and as the Queen volunteered for godmother, the new "Canadian immigrant" became Lady Victoria Blackwood, with Sir John Macdonald as her godfather. Lady Dufferin had the whole of her six children at the christening ceremony, and Lord Basil Blackwood—not then four—got himself into a scrape by climbing over a pew at an important juncture in the proceedings and knocking down a pile of prayer-books. Lord Basil has been busy in South Africa for the last three years, and Lady Victoria, the Ottawa baby, has for the last eight years been the wife of the brilliant young Lord Plunket.—From M. A. P.

Curious Facts About Shad.

In Canadian rivers the schools of shad come in from the sea about the middle of May, says Prof. Prince, the Canadian Commissioner of Customs, and continue during June; but in the United States rivers they are often very much earlier. Dr. Percy speaks of them as appearing in January at Charleston, N.C., on the coast off New York they come inshore in March and early April, and at Boston in the latter part of April. An old Massachusetts fisherman, in 1881, when he was nearly 90 years of age, stated that about April 1, the shad in millions ascended the Atlantic coast rivers, and continued during April and May. He added the statement—a very remarkable one, which exact scientific observations have confirmed, that the first schools coming in, in early spring, were males, no females ever accompanying them. The females follow eight or ten days later, and the later schools are larger female fish with enlarged roes containing eggs in a more advanced condition. In such a river as the St. John, New Brunswick, they ascend 50 or 60 miles up the main channel and turn up the tributaries on both sides. They frequently wander over the fields submerged during the spring freshets, and deposit immense quantities of spawn of which much is inevitably lost when the water recedes. The choice of spawning grounds appears to be most erratic, as tributaries, which present every apparent favorable feature are passed by, and others uniformly chosen which possess no superior advantage, so far as can be judged. Some shad fishermen assert the same erratic choice in the selection of the spawning sites in the rivers frequented by the shad. Thus one fisherman quoted in The American Angler, July, 1897, declared that on the eastern side of the Delaware River, at Marcus Hook and Tinicum, he always caught fine, large shad, that were full of solid roe, while directly opposite on the western side, the shad were not in such fine condition, and seemed to be in a spawning state: that is, the spawn of the female and the milt of the male oozed constantly from the fish.

A GUARANTEED CURE For all Forms of Kidney Disease.

We the undersigned druggists are fully prepared to give the following guarantee with every 50 cent bottle of Dr. Pettingill's Kidney-Wort Tablets, the only remedy in the world that positively cures all troubles arising from weak or diseased kidneys.

"Money cheerfully returned if the sufferer is not relieved and improved after the use of one bottle. Three to six bottles effect astonishing cures. If not relieved and cured, you waste no money."

Robbed Father of $11,000.

Halifax, N.S., May 29.—Guy M. McCallum, clerk in the Royal Bank here, induced his father to place $11,000 in the bank on deposit. The son drew the cash and has gone to the States. He is supposed to have "blown in" the money, as he was always flush of cash.

A NEW SCOTT ANECDOTE.

How the Novelist Found a Word and How a Boy Read "Waverley."

There is a new Scott anecdote remembered as coming from the lips of a long dead Scotchman. When a boy, he was one day watching some building operations, "probably near Abbotsford," when a lame man, bareheaded and with a pen behind his ear, came up. Taking hold of a pail, the lame man turned it over quickly and asked the workman what he was doing with it. "Whamblin' it over," one of them replied. "Thank you, thank you, my man. That's the very word I've been trying to get all the morning!" cried Sir Walter gratefully and straightway returned to his desk. "It was the teller of this story," says The London Morning Post, "who, when some years younger, saw in a shop window as he was going to school the new romance of 'Waverley' lying open at the first page. The schoolboy stopped to read it through the glass, and his eager absorption so took the fancy of the bookseller that each day as he passed the pages were turned for him in the shop, and he was thus enabled to read the whole story without touching a leaf of the book."

COLLINGWOOD IS WITH THE REST.

Valentine Fisher's Terrible Sciatic Pains Speedily Vanished Before the Great Kidney Remedy.

Collingwood, May 25. (Special.)—Every city, town and village in Canada is reporting remarkable cures by Dodd's Kidney Pills, and Collingwood is not behind the rest. There are scores of people here who have used the great kidney remedy and who are not slow to tell of the good results. Valentine Fisher, well known in the town and surrounding country, is one of them.

"I was troubled with kidney disease for thirteen years," says Mr. Fisher in telling of his cure. "It developed into Sciatica, which located in my side so that I could not walk without a cane. I had to use hypodermic injections to morphine to ease the pain.

"I tried different medical men and medicines, with no good results till I was persuaded to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. Three boxes effected a perfect cure. I can recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to all who are suffering from rheumatism or any other form of Kidney disease".

Peculiarities of Great Men.

The Iron Duke (and it may be remarked in passing that Lord Roberts of our own day has a similar aversion) would grow quite uneasy if shut up in the same room with a mad dog.

Dr. Abernethy, a man proverbially intolerant of mere fads and crotchets, had yet a strong personal objection to sleeping in damp sheets.

Schiller would never, if he could avoid it, write with a broken nib.

Carlyle never liked being alluded to as a "blithering idiot."

Faraday, the great chemist, disliked the sensation of nitric acid on his hands.

Macready had a great disrelish for either the flavor or perfume of bad eggs.

Mendelssohn did not like the sound of a finger-nail being drawn across a slate. A thumb-nail caused him similar disquiet.

Disraeli would walk about or stand rather than sit upon a freshly-painted bench.

Dr. Johnson hated to have anyone run and butt him in the waistcoat.

Sir Walter Raleigh had a marked objection to prison life, and Lord Burleigh, his great contemporary, never liked to slip off a curbstone with his tongue between his teeth.—London Punch.

During the Warm Weather.

Even during the warmest weather Angier's Petroleum Emulsion is pleasant to take, and agreeable to the stomach. For this reason it is the ideal remedy for consumption. Made of odorless and tasteless petroleum, glycerine, and hypophosphites, it is better in every way than emulsions made of fish oils or other fats.

A Golden Heart

BY BERTHA M. CLAY

"'My dear Lola,' he said, 'you should not have done this.' 'I wanted to see you,' I cried to him. 'How can you be so hard and cruel to me? I have been longing for a glimpse of you. How can you scold me? My very life was fading because I could not see you.' 'My dear Lola, you must not speak to me in that fashion,' he said. 'You must remember your own self-respect, also that I am married to the woman I love.' 'The poor man who begged the crumbs from the rich man's table asked only for the crumbs, not for the loaves. I am the same. I ask only for what you have to give—your friendship and kindness; I cannot live without them,' I replied.

"'You are cruel—cruel!' I cried at last. 'I came to you in deep distress, and you tell me only of your own happiness!' He stopped abruptly. 'You are right, Lola,' he said, 'I am selfish—horribly selfish.' Then he tried to console me. All I next remember is that we walked away from the light of day, and that my heart was full of burning hate towards Dolores.

"We walked where great boughs shaded us; but I did not notice the place. I told him that the one desire of my heart was to come back here and live near him, where I could sometimes see him, talk to him, make him what he was once, my best friend and adviser. Ah, me! He was not willing; he who was all the world to me refused me this small crumb of comfort. Where we were walking the grass was thick and long and the branches of the trees drooped low; he pushed them aside with careless hands. 'It would not do, Lola,' he said. 'I would do anything to please you or help you; but the step proposed would not be prudent. Your best plan would be to go far away, my dear child. I have done you evil enough; Heaven forbid that I should do any more! Try and forget me, and fill your life with new interests. I am grateful for your love—I could not be otherwise; but you must, if you wish to be happy, overcome it. Even were what you contemplate acceptable as far as you and I are concerned, it would not please Dolores. Dolores would not like it; Dolores would not—' I interrupted him with a fierce cry—'How cruel you are! Will you think of no one but Dolores! You stab me over and over again with that name 'Dolores.' 'I must think of her,' he said; and what followed was my fault. My words startled him; he seemed suddenly to remember that we were out together alone, that it was late, and that he was distant from home. I saw him give a quick, startled glance around him; he seemed to be considering which was the shortest path across the wood. 'Come this way, Lola,' he said. And we left the long, straight path on which we had been walking and crossed the green. I saw that I had distressed him, and my hatred of Dolores increased. 'Think of me at least, with a little kindness!' I cried. 'It is all Dolores, nothing but Dolores.' I must think of her first, last and always,' he said. 'Dolores is my—' No other words followed. There was a terrible crash, a great cry, and he was gone. I stood in the long grass alone!

"I tried to rise and hurry on; but I had hurt my foot so seriously that I could not move, and for many long minutes I lay on the ground suffering intense physical pain. At last I managed to struggle to my feet, and then I remembered that I had once before been in this place with Sir Karl. We had been in the neighborhood of the Black Pool, far back in past happy days, before any other had come between us. One day I had wandered with him through the grounds, and we had come to this very part. He had stopped and told me about the Black Pool, and had said that many people believed there was a subterranean communication between the pool and the river. That conversation recurred to my mind now with terrible force.

"But he had not fallen into the Black Pool. I could see it now, far away under the trees, smooth and dark. Then I remembered how Sir Karl had also talked of an old coal-mine, with its long-disused, open shafts—pitfalls of danger, he had called them—and, more than that, he had declared his intention to me of making the place safe when he had time to attend to it.

"I began to understand now. We had both been unconscious of our whereabouts. I had no idea that we were near the Black Pool, and he had evidently forgotten it also, and, it was plain, he had fallen down the deep, long-disused shaft. I speak quickly now; but, as I lay there with wildly beating heart, thinking deeply, these ideas were some time shaping themselves clearly in my mind. I had had a terrible shock, and my thoughts moved slowly. A moment before Sir Karl had been walking by my side, strong and healthy, the next he had vanished from sight; and I knew that for him there was nothing but death in the deep dark pit, and a terrible death too. Stronger nerves than mine would have given way. I crawled round to the pit. The whole of its wide mouth was covered with rank, interlacing creepers. To all appearance there was no difference between it and the ground contiguous to it. There was a gap on one side. I knelt down and peered through it, but I could see nothing. I called aloud; no answer came. Then I took a stone and dropped it into the pit, with the idea of discovering if it were deep. It seemed to me an age before I distinguished a faint splash; the stone had fallen into water. Of course Sir Karl was dead by this time. No help could reach him; I knew that, even as I knelt there, looking into that most horrible chasm. And then I must have fainted.

When I came to myself the air was cold; all the summer's warmth and beauty had departed, the wind was wailing cheerlessly through the trees, and the moon was shining. As the recollection of all that had occurred came back to my mind, my whole frame trembled. I tore up the grass, I cried aloud, and more than once I went to the mouth of that terrible pit with the intention of throwing myself into it after him; but my courage failed me. I would have gone down to save him; but I dared not die. So far, except in asking for an interview with him, I had done no wrong.

"Now came my temptation. He was dead whom I loved better than all the world; but my hatred and jealousy of Dolores still lived. But for her, he would have been mine As I lay writhing with pain of body and anguish of mind, an idea—I grant that it was a diabolical one—came into my mind. It was this—that I would never reveal the truth of Sir Karl's terrible death, but would lead this woman whom I hated to believe that he had abandoned her and gone away with me. I felt sure that the old Squire, whom I had met driving home, had recognized me. I felt equally sure that the groom had also recognized me, so that in all probability every one would know that Sir Karl had come out to meet me.

If I could but get away, and then from a distance write to Dolores and say that my revenge was complete, that she would never see her husband again! I would not say that he had gone away with me. I would leave it to her woman's keen instinct, quickened by jealousy, to form what conclusion she might, feeling sure she would put but one construction on my letter.

"I bent over the pit and bade him who lay there a last farewell. Then, under the cover of darkness and in the silence of night, I limped from the park and reached the high-road. I walked during the whole of the following day. Several times horsemen passed me. I well knew that they were in search of Sir Karl. They little guessed that the woman they passed on the road, who seemed to them, lame and old, could have solved the mystery with a few words.

"I hid myself in Paris. From there I wrote that letter to Dolores which made her believe in her husband's guilt. Ten thousand such letters would not have destroyed my faith in Sir Karl. I read in the English newspapers that Sir Karl was supposed to have eloped with me; and my revenge, I felt, was accomplished. The sneers and satire that this rumor provoked only amused me. I can declare one thing most solemnly, I never thought of his children, or how the scandal might affect them. I never thought that their name would be sullied.

"Life was over for me then. I went to the south of France, where I spent some time with an old friend of my mother's who was dying. I remained with her for some weeks, and then took her name. I called myself Madame St. Ange. After that I rented the Chateau Fleuris; and there I have spent such years of solitude and anguish as fall to the lot of few women.

"I have been dead in life; but that which sustained and cheered me was the knowledge that Dolores suffered more even than I had. I should never have emerged from my seclusion had I not chanced to see some of the advertisements for me, which aroused my curiosity and brought me hither. I meant simply to come over well disguised to England, and ascertain why I was wanted. In doing so I can see I have acted imprudently."

CHAPTER XXXVII.

During the relation of Lola de Ferras' terrible story Lady Fielden had grown white and faint. She looked with amazement and horror at the dark, beautiful face.

"I can scarcely realize," she said, "that you who knew the sad secret of Sir Karl's death could leave him branded in the eyes of the world as a man of no faith or honor, disgraced by a foul sin. Were I Dolores, his wife, or Gertrude, his daughter, I would neither forget nor forgive."

"I make no excuse for myself," replied Lola; "but just this much let me say—that I thought little of the consequences either to his name or mine, but solely and entirely of my revenge."

"I repeat that I should never forgive you," said Lady Fielden, with calm contempt. "Treachery to the living is bad enough; but treachery to the dead is ten thousand times worse. You are no heroine in my eyes—only a mean, dishonorable woman. I decline to have anything more to do with you. Perhaps Sir Karl's daughter may have more patience." And, with a face full of indignation, Lady Fielden quitted the room.

"It is of no use to irritate her," thought Lord Fielden. "We are still somewhat in her power. We must be calm."

"My mother speaks as she feels—strongly," he said, aloud.

"Your mother speaks truly, though it seems cruel to trample on a fallen foe," Lola answered. Then she turned with a gesture of appeal to Gertrude. "Child," she said, "let the whole world rave against me; I deserve it. Let them say what they will; let them insult, sneer, scoff at me; but do not you. I could not bear it from you. Let others punish me for my sin if they will; but you will be kind to me as your father was and would have been. Will you promise me this?"

Gertrude was sorely divided in heart. With the memory of her father's death and her mother's lifelong suffering, how could she promise? Yet the miserable woman who appealed to her had had but one dream in life, and that was love for her own father. For his sake she must befriend her.

She bent gently over the worn face.

"I will never hurt you by one word," she said. "Now you will show me where my father lies?"

"Yes; you—no one but you, Gertrude; you and I will go together at once and alone."

Harry looked up in alarm. Was it safe to trust a slender girl to the hands of such a woman? But the clear eyes looked at him undauntedly.

"I have no fear, Harry," she said; "Miss de Ferras and I will go and return quickly together. In the meantime will you send a telegram to my mother at the Villa Baira, Florence? Say just this—'The mystery is solved. Come at once.'"

"I will do just what you wish," replied Lord Fielden, "but, for Heaven's sake, do take care of yourself, Gertrude!"

Lola turned to him with a proud, disdainful gesture.

"You trapped me," she said; "you made me a prisoner; but I will not submit to anything you choose to impose on me. I will not look on the face of the woman I have hated and wronged."

"I will not ask you to do so," he replied, "You shall do as you will."

"My dear," said Lady Fielden to Gertrude, when the latter joined her a few minutes later, "I will go home. Your heart will dictate best what is to be done with that wretched creature. When I think of the misery she has brought on your mother's fair head, I—well, I forget that I am a Christian. Do as you will with her; but do not let my old eyes rest on her face again."

Meanwhile Lord Fielden hastened to despatch the telegram to Florence. Dolores would receive it that day, and in forty hours after she would be at Fielden Manor.

Never did Gertrude forget that walk to the lonely corner of the wood where the Black Pool lay open to the sky. If her nerves had been less strong she would have died of fright, for the beautiful woman by her side was like one distraught. Her dark eyes blazed with a strange fire, her face quivered with emotion.

"Look?" she cried. "You see that tree? We passed underneath it on that night. You see that bank? He sat down there and rested. He leaned over that white gate. You see that mass of wild clematis? He gathered some that was growing there. Oh, Heaven, if I could but see him for one moment as I saw him then! He came from his home well, strong, healthy, handsome, with his kindly blue eyes so bright and clear; he never went back; and I—I alone have had the weight of the most intolerable secret that woman ever bore."

So through the coppice, where the birds were singing, through the woodlands and the narrow paths, lamenting, wailing, mourning, with low bitter cries, with passionate prayers, Lola walked on, with Gertrude by her side.

"I loved him better than all the world," she wailed, "and I am going to see his grave! Oh, Gertrude, how many years has he been lying there!"

They passed from the golden sunlight into the cold, cheerless corner of the wood where the Black Pool lay. When Lola saw it again, with the familiar trees and reeds which grew on its margin, she gave a great cry and sunk upon her knees. Her face grew deadly pale, and she grasped Gertrude's hand convulsively.

"I am afraid," she cried— "I am afraid! Oh, Gertrude, help me!"

The brave-hearted girl knelt by her side; her heart went out to the stricken woman.

"Miss de Ferras," she whispered gently, "try to rouse yourself, for my father's sake. Without you we cannot give him Christian burial. Do not fail us at the last."

And for his sake whom she loved so madly and so well, she did rouse herself, and with a desperate effort went on toward the fatal spot. The wind murmured through the trees, and stirred gently the dark waters of the pool. It was a lonely, cheerless spot. Gertrude shuddered as they drew nearer. A group of tall poplars stood on one side, and to the right, just where one stepped from the path, as Sir Karl had done, lay the mouth of the treacherous pit.

It looked like a square patch of solid ground, different from that around it by being somewhat elevated. No one could possibly guess that under the tangled mass of dry wood, grass, and leaves lay a depth of darkness of which it was even terrible to think.

J. P. MORGAN, THE FALSE PROPHET.

J. P. Morgan's famous bullish interview appeared March 31. Since then the stock market has been declining almost without any interruption. On the day when Mr. Morgan took the public into his confidence and told them that stocks were exceptionally cheap St. Paul was selling above 161. It has since sold below 148, a decline of over 13 points. Pennsylvania, which was then selling above 136, has since declined to 126 1-4. From this decline of 10 points, however, there must be deducted the dividend and rights. Reading has declined over 10 points, and practically every other active issue, including what are known as the Morgan stocks, have declined from 4 to 8 points. The losses in the stock market, as indicated by the market value have been enormous. Western Union for instance, has declined over 5 points, Southern Railway over 4 points, Rock Island, over 6 points, New York Central, ever 6 points, and Atchison over 7 points. Mr. Morgan's reputation as a prophet has been somewhat damaged.

ERIE.

A Very Satisfactory Showing for April

The Erie statement for the month of April must be considered a very satisfactory showing when it is considered that comparison is made with what was considered a phenomenally good month a year ago. In April 1902, the road showed an increase in gross of $339,239, a decrease in operating expenses of $230,836, an increase in net of $570,115. This was clearly the turning point for Erie, although the next couple of months did not show up so well on account of the anthracite strike, and the fact that the month just heard from shows a further gain in gross of upwards of $500,000 and of nearly $100,000 in net indicates the substantial character of the results which are being achieved by the present management.

In the road's latest statement operating expenses consumed a larger proportion of the increase in gross than was the cause in preceeding months, but this does not mean a relatively lower state of efficiency since expenses per ton mile are being steadily reduced. Ton mile cost furnishes the best measure of efficiency and judged by this standard Erie is making good progress.

For the month of April operating expenses, were charged with a good deal of improvement work, particularly replacement and strengthening of bridges. This has been necessary to provide for the increase in train load. In the monthly statements the full expenditures incurred during the month in work of this kind are included under the head of operating expense, without regard to whether they cower actual betterments, but in the annual report this matter is adjusted so that the actual cost of maintenance may be shown separately. Thus in the annual report the proportion of operating expenses to earnings will be lower than in the monthly statements, an appropriation being made out of surplus instead of income to cover the betterment work included in operating expenses as shown from month to month.

Other causes contributing to the increase in operating expense were the increased volume of business handled and increases in wages but the latter was a small item. The whole question of wages has now been settled on Erie and no further increase of consequence need be looked for in this item.

The street sentiment towards Erie is now favourable. When the April statement was published a year ago there were many sceptics who argued that the good showing was the result of the stimulation of the coal business on account of the impending strike and that such results could not continue. Not only have they continued but there has been marked improvement since that time. Now there is beginning to be recognition of the fact that Erie has been in a measure an undeveloped property and that the work of developing its possibilities has fallen into capable hands.—Wall Street Journal.

THE WONDERFUL TELECHIROGRAPH.

Transmits Written Messages Over the Telephone.

Not Merely the Message but the Actual Handwriting of the Sender—Another Startling Discovery.

Not since the first message was flashed over the first telegraph wire or the first greeting exchanged over the first telephone, has Uncle Sam issued letters patent for an invention which promises so much for the business world as that granted to Herr Ernest Karl Gruhn, for an instrument which he calls a "Telechirograph." The telechirograph is exactly what its name implies, a device which transmits over an ordinary telephone wire the written message, as well as the spoken, and which transmits not merely the message, but the handwriting of the sender, even as a good telephone transmits not merely the words, but the voice, speaker.

The telechirograph is to the telephone what the telautograph promised to be to the telegraph when it startled the world with its possibilities. But it is what the telautograph merely promised to be. While the latter has so far proved of little practical value, because it has not as yet conquered distance, at least not any distance worth the conquering, the telechirograph has been used successfully over a two hundred mile circuit, and there seems no logical reason why it should not be used with equal success over a two thousand mile circuit, when such an one comes into general commercial use.

It is a wonderful thing that the contents of a little wooden box about the size of an ordinary office typewriter, should be able to do all this, but they are. The invention consists of a transmitting and receiving apparatus united in a single instrument. It reproduces the handwriting of the individual down to its minutest idiosyncrasy. By its use a man in Montreal can draw his check on a bank in Toronto and have it cashed within a few minutes of signing it. It carries the written word wherever the telephone carries the spoken word. If "Mr. Jones is out," Mr. Brown can write his message, as suret hat Jones will get it when he returns as if he stood at Jones' door, and written it on a slate left for that purpose—in fact more secure, for the slate is exposed to any mischievous passer by, while the telechirograph message is not.

The transmitter is enough on the principle of the telephone to be easily understood by the people. It consists of a metallic pencil holder, to which are connected two wires, each being part of an independent closed electric circuit. When not in use the pencil lies in a rest which opens a switch breaking both circuits—very much as the "receiver" hangs in a rest on the ordinary telephone, and by its weight opens a switch and breaks the current. When taken out of the rest the switch is closed and the currant thus set in motion lights a small incandescent lamp in the receiving instrument and the apparatus is then ready for use.

In the end of the metallic pencil is placed an ordinary piece of pencil lead which plays slightly in and out. The writing may be done on any pad or piece of paper that is handy. The pressure of the pencil on it in writing closes an electriot circuit in the metallic interior of the pencil holder. For convenience there is an arrangement such as tradesmen use in writing purchase slips, which shows a square of paper in a tablet of slate on which the desired message may be written. The up and down motion of the pencil in writing sets in motion what the electricians call the ordinate current, and the left to right motion starts the so-called abscissa or horizontal motion current.

In the ordinary motions of the hand in writing both currents are called into play in a greater or less degree. If the pencil is placed at the extreme top of the pad the minimum degree of intensity in the ordinate current is produced, and if placed at the bottom of the pad the maximum degree of intensity. Similarly if the pencil be pressed on the extreme left of the pad, the minimum degree of intensity in the abscissa current, and the maximum if pressed on the extreme right of the pad. The currents thus affected are what are known as closed or continuous, being the same used in the telephone, as distinguished from the open circuits used in the Morse telegraph.

The same amount of amperage and the same intensity of voltage, of current as is used in the telephone will serve for the telechirograph. Any current which will transmit the sound waves of the voice in speaking will equally transmit the muscular pressure of the hand in writing or drawing. A third or return wire is necessary to complete the circuit for the vertical and horizontal motion currents.

So much for the transmitter. In the receiver there is a small mirror supported on three points, two of which are movable, so that the mirror can be turned at any angle. In the back of the mirror are two magnets controlled respectively by the horizontal and verdical motion currents above described. The light from the lamp passed through a concentrating lens produces a compact bundle or pencil of light rays, which fall on the mirror. The mirror, in response to the magnets, moves in exact correspondence with the movements of the pencil at the other end. The ray of light deflected upon a sensitized photographic paper, follows the movements of the writer's hand and produces on the sensitized film an exact fac simile of the pencil markings at the transmitting instrument.

When the message is completed the metallic pencil is put back in its rest at the transmitting instrument and the circuit is broken. In the receiving instrument the light goes out and an electric motor operated by an independent battery in the reveiving instrument is set in motion. This motor oporates a train of wheels or rollers which draw the portion of the film written upon by the light ray through a developing bath and out again through a pair of rubber drying rolls so that the completed message is delivered about thirty-five seconds after the sender replaces the metallic pencil in its rest. The entire apparatus is contained in a polished hard wood box 13x13x15 inches.

Also it does not confine itself to reproducing writing. It reproduces drawing as well. One sees in fancy some Sherlock Holmes of the future, desiring to advise his lieutenant to watch for a certain criminal, sitting down in front of the transmitter and drawing a picture of said criminal, that his lieutenant may know at once the appearance of the man for whom he is to watch. Particularly one sees the energetic newspaper artist, who knows that the mail will not deliver his sketch "in time for the first edition," or who even knows that he cannot himself reach the office in time, sitting down before a telechirograph and telephoning in his picture—"By our artist on the spot." Of course, it needs development, but it seems to be capable of almost unlimited development.

The man who has made this thing? He is young; he is German. Thirty-two years ago he was born in Silesia. He studied at and graduated from the technical high school at Charlottenberg. For three years he devoted himself day and night, to solving the problem of a recording telephone. Many times the solution seemed almost within his grasp, when some unexpected difficulty arose. Finally it was done, and, like everything else, it seemed so amazingly simple once one knew how!

About a year ago the German patents were secured. But Herr Gruhn was poor—poor as Job's turkey, or as the traditional inventor. He succeeded, however, in interesting Otto F. Herzka, a manufacturing chemist of Dresden, with whose aid the Kopier Telegraph Gesellschaft was organized; to make and sell the telechirograph on that side of the mill pond.

Mr. Herzka put the matter in the hands of his brother, Max Herzka, of 190 Broadway, Brooklyn, for exploitation in America, and arrangements have been made to have the thing made and put on the market in the United States.

A company has been set on foot. Capitalists want to buy the American rights outright, and Messrs. Gruhn, Herzka and Lee are by no means certain that they care to relinquish their interest in what promises to be a gold mine. But whoever developes it and places it on the market, and in time, improves it, as it doubtless will be improved, it is going to be a big thing for business men to be able to record telephone conversations, and it is going to add tremendously to the already tremendous utility of the telephone in business.

Trading on the Niger.

A recent traveler on the Niger writes: "I was anxious to buy some fruit from a native woman who came down to the ship, and to this end I produced a handful of coppers which I had brought out from England. I first showed her five, then six, seven and eight, but she pushed them all aside in a most unceremonious manner. More by way of a joke than anything else, I then produced a three penny piece, which she at once accepted, giving me in return just twice as much as I had asked for my eight coppers. I also discovered that she had a great partiality for white glass bottles. I happened to have about half a dozen empty soda water bottles, for which she gave me the same number of eggs. I afterward found that any white glass bottle had this purchasing power all over Nigeria. The natives send them to Bida, where they are melted and made into rings about three or four inches in diameter, to be worn either as armlets or anklets."

Found Dead in Woods.

Montreal, May 30.—A man about 60 years of age was found dead in the woods yesterday at Black River. He had his throat cut and a razor in his hand. As there were $20 in his pocket, the unknown evidently committed suicide.

Private Kills Himself.

Fredericton, N.B., May 30.—Private Morash of the R.R.C.I., a Halifax soldier, who shot himself here Tuesday, died at 10.30 o'clock last night.

A Family Necessity

Owing to artificial modern life, almost everybody suffers more or less from constipation, torpid liver, and sluggish kidneys, and as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are the most prompt and thorough cure for this derangement, they have come to be considered a family necessity. Heads of families would not think of being without them. One pill a dose; 25c a box.

BY FLOOD AND FIRE.

Close Upon Two Hundred and Fifty People Were Drowned.

OTHERS BURNED TO DEATH.

Four States, Kansas, Missouri, Iowa and Nebraska, the Sufferers—Many Sections Completely Covered With Water—All of North Topeka Burned Down — Thousands of People Without Homes.

Kansas City, Mo., June 1.—A section of the Western States two hundred miles square has been flooded and more than two hundred people have perished. The property loss has exceeded two hundred million dollars. Many more lives and vast property interests continue to be threatened. The appalling flood covers that section of Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa, radiating from the corner, where the four States join. Railroad traffic is paralyzed. The Missouri and its tributaries are out of bounds and sweeping everything in their path. The weather indications are for continued rain all over the district. The deluge continues over that watershed drained by the streams now contributing to the ruin. The heaviest loss in both life and property is at Topeka, the capital of Kansas, and Des Moines, the capital of Iowa. At the former place more than 150 lives have been lost, while hundreds are cooped up in public buildings around which the flood rages. At Kansas City fifteen have perished, and at Des Moines seven are known to have been drowned All of Topeka is inundated, and from surrounding sections special railroad trains are rushing to the scene with flat cars filled with boats, steam launches and other life saving contrivances.

Lumber Yards on Fire.

To add to the horror here big lumber yards have taken fire, and the burning piles have drifted in every direction, communicating the blaze to many residences Last night eight distinct fires were burning in the flooded district. All of North Topeka is burned The capital buildings have thus far escaped. The national guard is out at Kansas City to prevent looting and rescue people. The lower part of the city, in the heart of the jobbing district, and along the packing houses is fifteen feet under water. Big steam boats are plying around the Union Depot, where thousands of frantic passengers were rescued from the trains they had occupied since the flood suddenly surrounded them. The calamity is threatening to reach national proportions, and fears are entertained that the worst is yet to come. That section, except the upper part of Kansas City is a great plain swept by the Missouri, Des Moines, the two Plattes, Kansas, Grand and smaller rivers now covering the whole country.

The greatest flood in the history of Kansas City, Kansas, and the bottoms of Kansas City, Mo., prevailed here yesterday, and 15 lives and millions of dollars have been lost.

The entire stock yards, situated on the state line, are submerged, many of the pens being five feet deep in water.

All trolley lines in both cities have been shut down.

Saving People's Lives.

At 12.30. the water in Union avenue was three feet deep, and people were being taken out of the Blossom House and adjacent buildings in wagons, which were soon forced to quit. Three-fourths of Armourdale was submerged under an ocean of water. The Kansas City police spent all night rescuing persons. The police had 85 boats in service.

A steady rain has fallen here and West all night, and still continues and all streams in the stricken territory are rising at an alarming rate.

Shortly after noon, the Third Regiment Missouri National Guard, 800 strong, was ordered out, both as a precautionary measure and to stop looting.

RUIN IN TOPEKA.

Loss of Life Exceeds 150 and Many Others Are Missing.

Topeka, Kans., June 1.—There is ground for hope that the worst of the flood situation has passed. The treacherous Kansas River, which rose during the day, was last night slowly receding, and the five mile wide stream is settling back into its rightful channel. With 175 or 200 lives lost, millions of dollars of property destroyed, the capital city has passed the most memorable Sabbath day of its existence.

The arduous work of the heroic officers was not abandoned in the least by the conditions which confronted them. For long dreary hours, knee deep in water, and sometimes up to their necks, they worked with might and main. Last night they can point to 200 or more rescued persons who otherwise might have been swept away in the current.

Briefly stated the present condition of the flood is this:

Seventy to two hundred people drowned; 8,000 people without homes.

Loss of property $64,000,000.

Identified dead—5.

Floating bodies seen—20.

People missing 200.

Houses burned, result of fire in lumber from slacking lime, probably 200.

Banks collapsed—two.

Wholesale grocery stores flooded—two.

Big business blocks almost ready to crumble—50.

Wholesale commission houses deserted—six.

Leading men have made a careful examination of the flood, and all its conditions, and as a result of their investigation they give 250 as the probable number of lives lost. A more conservative estimate places the number of dead at 175. It will be at least three days before the correct number of dead will be known. Work of rescuing the victims of the flood is being pushed with vigor.

About four hundred houses in North Topeka were destroyed by fire last week, and several people are reported to have been burned to death, but this report cannot be substantiated.

Refugees in Iowa's Capital.

Des Moines, Iowa, June 1.—Once more hope has been inspired in the breasts of the 6,000 flood refugees by the report that the river has begun to slowly recede. After rising all night, yesterday a fall of two inches was noted between 8 o'clock and noon. Not a wheel is turning in the factory district, and no efforts is being made to open any business houses. Boats are the only means of communication between North, South and East Des Moines and the main part of the city. This is extremely perilous.

So far as is known but seven authenticated fatalities have occurred here.

A Leg and Both Arms Off.

London, Ont., June 1.—Mr. Christopher Smallman of York street met with a terrible accident Saturday night from which it is doubtful whether he will recover. While crossing the Grand Trunk tracks shortly after 11 o'clock he was struck by a train and had both arms and his right leg so badly crushed that the three limbs had to be amputated. He is bookkeeper at the Canadian Chemical Manufacturing Company, and was returning from work

PATHETIC SERVICES.

At the Funeral of Murdered Glory Whalen at Collingwood.

LARGE NUMBERS ATTENDED.

The Services Were Held in St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church—The Priest's Strong Words—The Hunt For the Murderer of the Schoolgirl Goes on But Early Suspicions Are Abandoned.

Collingwood, June 1.—There is as yet no light thrown on the mystery surrounding the death of little Glory Whalen. Saturday afternoon Detective Greer, after visiting the Whalen homestead with Chief Wilde, made a hurried trip to the station and caught the 4.10 train for Toronto. He vouchsafed no information to the local authorities as to his destination, save that he was "going down the line" and might be back Sunday afternoon. He had not returned last night.

On Saturday Chief Wilde received word from Chief Constable Calverley at Whitby, that a young negro had passed through there who was wearing only one sock. Chief Wilde at once got into communication with the local authorities at Oshawa, Bowmanville and Port Hope to look out for the man, but he has heard nothing in reply. The negro was said to be traveling fast and to have come from the north.

As the days pass on, with the affair becoming all the time deeper and more hideous in its perplexity, there is beginning to be a belief that time alone and conscience will bring retribution to the slayer of the young girl. Suspicions at first entertained by the investigating authorities have been thrown aside now as past belief.

Funeral of Glory Whalen.

In the little Roman Catholic cemetery, which Glory Whalen passed every day as she walked to school, her poor disfigured body was laid to rest on Saturday morning. The procession was a mile and a half long, and it was composed of the country folk for miles around. The funeral proceeded from the Whalen home to St. Mary's R.C. Church, where the impressive funeral service ritual was observed before a congregation which crowded the edifice to the doors. As the coffin was carried forward along the aisle, the sobbing of the women and the tear-bedimmed eyes and trembling demeanor of the men showed how strongly affected the people are over the pitiful tragedy.

Father O'Leary delivered a simple but impressive sermon. It was not an ordinary case, where the child had been taken from a sick bed, but the angel of death had summoned her from the roadside by the blood-stained hands of a murderer.

"The angels of heaven must have wept as the inhuman assailant rushed down upon her. The spirits of heaven must have veiled their eyes and closed their ears to the cruel blow and the ringing shot. But for one thing we are thankful that divine Providence defended her body from insult. The innocent girl, fresh in the bloom of her girlhood, was protected by her Maker. Justice required that the perpetrator of the crime be sought out and punished for the preservation of society."

The pall-bearers were Glory's three cousins, Thomas and James Connery, and Herbert Smith and Laurence Allen, John Cowie and Russell Kendall.

Three Men in a Boat.

Montreal, June 1.—Three men in a boat left Point Aux Trembles on Saturday night to row to Isle Gros Bois. The boat capsized, two of them, one named Dubois, were drowned. The other's name has not been learned. The third man, named Langlois, was saved.

IMPERIAL SERVICE ORDER.

Whom the King Delights to Honor With His Favor.

London, June 1.—The names of those in the Civil Service who have been honored by being appointed Companions of the Imperial Service Order appeared Saturday. Mr. Kivas Tully, the well-known consulting engineer of the Ontario Government, S. W. McMichael, chief inspector of Customs for Toronto, are two of the few so honored. James Barnes, a local letter carrier, is granted a medal:

The other names are: J. M. Courtnay, the Deputy Minister of Finance; Charles Jerome Jones, clerk in Governor-General's office; Col. Macdonald, superintendent of stores; Martin Murphy, Provincial Engineer of Nova Scotia; J. S. Beck, Auditor-General of New Brunswick; S. Power, K. C., Chief Clerk in the Department of Justice; F. Montizambert, M.D., F. R.C.S., Director-General of Public Health.

The following are granted medals: R. B. Winter, Jean Gauthier, Robt. Rivers, light-house keepers in the Department of Marine and Fisheries. Patrick Dennecy, lockman, in the Department of Railways and Canals.

TOOK THEIR OWN LIVES.

Komtajis Choose Death Rather Than Defeat and Capture.

Salonica, June 1.—A letter from Monastir, written by an agent of the British and Foreign Bible Society, who was an eyewitness of the fight at the Bulgarian village of Bozil, six miles north of Monastir, on March 6, between the Imperial forces and insurgent bands, says 17 Komtajis were in the village when it was attacked, and, seeing that resistance was useless, killed themselves.

A NEW ELECTION.

Col. Prior's Government Granted Dissolution in British Columbia.

Victoria, B. C., June 1.—A report was widely circulated last night that the Lieutenant-Governor has given Premier Prior a dissolution and that an immediate appeal will be made to the country on party lines. Col. Prior will not confirm or deny the report.

Farmer Cuts His Throat.

Listowel, June 1.—J. Knox, a well-to-do farmer, about 60 years of age, living near Britton, and about eight miles from here, was found by one of his family near his barn about 8 o'clock yesterday morning dead, with his throat cut from ear to ear. He did the deed with an old table knife. He leaves a widow and several of a family.

Suicide of Capt. Sir Edward Hulse.

Johannesburg, Transvaal, June 1.—Captain Sir Edward Henry Hulse, who was press censor during the latter part of the South African war, was found shot dead in the bedroom of his residence here Saturday morning.

Deafness Threatens Queen.

London, June 1.—Queen Alexandra's increasing deafness is causing much anxiety to the royal physicians. She is threatened with complete deafness, for the ailment is not proving amenable to treatment.

AWAITING THE FINDING.

A finding is expected from the Royal Commission appointed to investigate the Gamey charges. The instructions to the judges warrant a finding on the evidence. The highest interests of politics and of public morality would be served by a just judgment on the vast mass of conflicting testimony, and no judgment could equal in value that of the two eminent and impartial jurists to whom this high responsibility has been committed, and whose opportunities to study the whole evidence have been unique. It may be taken for granted that the Judges will not only report the evidence to the Legislature, but will also return a verdict such as the evidence will sustain and intelligent public opinion approve.

The lofty tone of a few superior persons who affect to disparage the Royal Commission and to make light of any judgment it may pass, and the eagerness of a few fearful persons who protest that no verdict should be found by the Judges, that the country is the court which must pass judgment, betray, each in its own way, the conviction that the charges are false, and the fear that the rebound of public indignation may be fraught with party damage.

It is quite true that the country is the court of final appeal. Discussion of one or two important points may be settled by the finding of the judges, but accuser and accused must be justified or condemned at the bar of public opinion before the case is ended. In order, however, to a just public judgment, the whole evidence, ungarbled and uncoloured, is necessary. The whole evidence has not been placed before the whole country. Those electors who depended on the Conservative newspapers for the evidence are not in a position to express a just opinion. Not one Conservative newspaper in Canada published one half of the evidence. Incriminating admissions by Mr. Gamey and explanatory statements by Mr. Hammond were alike either omitted altogether or garbled out of all recognition. It ill becomes the Opposition advocates, after withholding the evidence from the public, to decry a finding by the judges and to demand with mock heroics a verdict from the country. Those who heard the debate in the Legislature and who attended the investigation before the Royal Commission, have nothing to fear from that section of the electorate which read and considered the whole evidence.—Globe.

OUR ROOT CROP SEEDS.

How and Where They are Grown, and Why They Frequently Fail to Produce Satisfactory Crops.

Every careful stockman recognizes the fact that fresh pasture is the ideal feed for keeping all classes of live stock in a hearty thriving condition, but in most parts of this country it is necessary to provide large stores of succulent feed for the long winter months when pastures are not available. The various sorts of roots go a long way toward supplying a cheap and satisfactory substitute for grass, and in consequence many million bushels are grown annually. Large quantities of seed of turnips, swedes, mangolds and carrots are used each year on Canadian farms, but the crops produced are frequently disappointing. As a rule our farmers have hitherto been entirely in the dark regarding the sources of supply of such seeds, and the methods of growing them. The Seed Division of the Dominion Department of Agriculture has been investigating these questions, and is able to offer suggestions that cannot fail to be of value to growers of root crops. According to Chief G. H. Clark of the Seed Division, a few farmers in Canada make a specialty of growing root crop seed, but practically the whole amount of such seed offered in the trade is imported from Europe and is grown in France, Germany and England. A favourable climate and cheap labour have made these countries the seed gardens of the world. A few notes on the way in which seeds are grown there, will help to explain why farmers often fail to get roots showing good type and uniform excellence all over a field.

Turnips, swedes, mangolds and carrots are all biennal plants, that is they store up nourishment in the root during the whole of the first year, and use that store of food for the production of seed during the the second and final year of their life. Most of our domesticated plants have been evolved from wild types through long years of selection, cultivation and cross-fertilization. The original wild types were usually annuals, producing seeds the first year, and there is a tendency among all improved plants to revert rapidly to the old unimproved types, whenever they are deprived of that careful attention to selection and cultivation which has brought them up to their present high standing.

Canadian farmers have not fully recognized that the value of root crop seed is far from depending on their vitality alone. It is even more important that they be taken from carefully grown and selected seed. We seldom see a field of roots that are uniformly true to type and free from abnoral growth of top, large necks and ill shaped prongy roots. This undesirable state of affairs is largely due to the sowing of seed taken from stocks of a similar quality and character.

The best quality of seed is produced from selected and transplanted roots. Seed of turnips and Swedes is produced in quantity in this manner in the north of Scotland. The climate of Scotland, like that of Canada is such that root crop seeds can only be successfully produced by harvesting the roots before winter and transplanting them the following spring. The bulk of the seed of these crops, which is imported for the Canadian trade, is grown in France and the South of England, where the climate is such that the roots may remain unharvested through the winter and produce seed the following year. Some of the more reliable seed growers in these countries exercise a great deal of care in the production of their stocks. They supply seeds from their own selected stocks to small farmers who grow quantities of seed for them under contract. The best quality of seed offered in the Canadian trade is grown in this way. There is however, evidence to show that a great deal of the seed of these crops offered in Canada is of much inferior quality. The increased labour required to grow seed from selected and transplanted roots, raises their price much above the range of American seed firms. For this the seedsman is not to blame. Our farmers have demanded cheap seeds, without any guarantee as to quality, and the seedsmen have simply tried to meet the demand. A great deal of the root crop seed used in Canada is grown by small irresponsible European farmers whose chief object is to obtain a maximum yield of seed, independent of its quality. In the growing of these stocks it is a common practice to sow late in the season after an early crop has been harvested from the land. Young plants thus produced are in many cases not thinned, and do not grow to a reasonable size during the first season. From a crop of this sort a very large amount of top is produced, and a large quantity of seed obtained per acre at a minimum cost.

It would be unreasonable to expect our farmers to grow root crop seeds for the Canadian trade and compete in the matter of price with the seeds produced by the above methods in countries where labour is so cheap, and climatic conditions so favourable. Until the consumers of these seeds learn that it pays to use only seed that is taken from selected and transplanted roots, grown in a climate similar to that where the seed is wanted for use, the quantity of home-grown stock offered in the trade will be extremely limited. It therefore appears that growers of root crops will find it to their advantage to purchase only seeds from extra selected stocks, no matter what the price may be, or better still, grow their own seed from the best and most typical roots raised on their own farms.

A Familiar Name.

In the homes of Canada and the United States there are few names more familiar and none more reverently spoken than that of Dr. A.W. Chase, the great physician and receipt book author. He is blessed for the suffering he has relieved and the diseases he has cured; his remedies are used and endorsed by the best people in the land; they are popular because they cure when others fail.

JUMPED TO HIS DEATH.

Sad End of Abbe Soly of St. Hyacinthe College.

Montreal, June 1.—The Rev. Abbe F. X. T. Soly died at St. Hyacinthe under very painful circumstances. The rev gentleman, who was 71 years old, had retired from the ministry some years ago and taken up his abode in the St. Hyacinthe College. He was a very studious man, and as a result of his long hours of brain work had become subject to severe headaches. He was discovered to be raving, and at a moment when those attending him suspected least opened a window on the third flat and jumped into the open space. He fell on the lawn below and was unconscious when taken up by his confreres, who rushed to his assistance. Death followed after a few moments.

Sour Stomach.

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, sour stomach is likely to follow, and especially so if the digestion has been weakened by constipation. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food thoroughly. Let five hours elapse between meals, and when you feel a fullness and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, indicating that you have eaten too much, take two of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the sour stomach may be avoided.

DID NOT STAMPEDE.

Government's Reply to Bureau Printers' Demands.

WILL NOT RECOGNIZE UNION.

Active Spirits of the Ottawa Typographical Union Nonplussed by the Government's Position — King's Printer Read the Government's Reply to the Men—No Strike Likely —Premier Ross at Ottawa.

Ottawa, June 1.—The attempt of the printers at the Government Bureau to stampede the authorities into granting an increase of wages has failed, and the strike which was to have taken place to-day will probably not now be witnessed. The firm stand adopted by the Government and their refusal to let the Ottawa Typographical Union fix the scale of wages at the bureau have nonplussed the active spirits who proposed to take the law into their hands, and the likelihood is that the two hundred odd Government employes will be at their machines as usual this morning.

Meeting of the Union.

Saturday night a meeting of the Ottawa Typographical Union was held to consider the situation. About 300 printers were present, including employes from private offices as well as the bureau. There was some excited talk indulged in, but the sentiment seemed to be greatly against a strike, so that no vote was taken. It was resolved, however, that the bureau employes should go back to work to-day, and further action would depend upon their reception and treatment. It seems safe to conclude that there will be no strike, as the Government are not disposed to declare any lockout if the printers remain at work. The increase asked for was at the rate of $1 50 a week for bureau peinters and about $2 a week for the printers in other offices.

Notice Read to the Men.

In view of the demand made upon the Government, an official notice embodying the Government's views was read to the men by Dr. Dawson, King's Printer. This notice declared the Government's refusal to recognize the Ottawa union's right to fix the wages in the bureau, and pointed out that the rate paid in the bureau was higher than in the leading cities of the Dominion. The men were informed that the present was a very inopportune time to strike, as Parliament was in session and the public interests required that the proceedings of both Houses and the public documents should be printed. If the printing could not be done at the bureau, it must be done elsewhere. Acting on the assumption that the printers were bent upon striking, those men who desired to remain at work were asked to register their names with the King's Printer between 1 and 6 o'clock. Proceeding on the same assumption, that a strike was imminent, the statement read by Dr. Dawson in effect provided that applications for positions in the bureau would be considered on their merits, irrespective of whether the men belonged to the union or not. The employes of the bureau quitted work at noon, but none registered their names with the King's Printer as willing to work.

Premier Ross at the Capital.

The Premier of Ontario and Hon. J. M. Gibson paid a flying visit to the city on Saturday. They had breakfast before 8 o'clock at the Russell and afterwards called on Sir Wilfrid at 11.30. They left again by C. P.R. for Toronto. Mr. Ross said he had no information for publication as to the object of the trip.

FATAL WHEEL BURST.

Albert Holden of Toronto Meets With Sad Death Saturday.

Toronto, June 1.—Albert Holden, mill hand at the Gutta Percha and Rubber Co.'s factory in Parkdale, was thrown about 25 feet against a brick wall, by the force of the bricks dislodged by the flying part of a burst 15-ft., 20-ton fly wheel of the reclaiming factory. This happened at 11.45 Saturday morning and as soon as possible Drs. Hunter, Burns and Rowe were summoned to give the necessary assistance. They immediately sent for the ambulance, but it was of no avail, as Holden died on his way to the Western Hospital. His skull was fractured and several ribs broken, besides he sustained severe internal injuries. Holden was the only man who received any practical injury, though several small bruises and cuts have been reported from others resulting from flying bricks and stones. Holden was 25 years of age and came from Nobleton. Holden's brother and sister work at the factory. His two cousins were killed in an accident six years ago in the same factory.

CHINESE STUDENTS FOR WAR.

Russia Will Keep 30,000 in Manchuria as Railway Guards.

Victoria, B. C., June 1.—The Department of War at Pekin has given instructions to the Governor-General of Sinking to go to Pekin to report the existing conditions of the Russian military movement in Manchuria, and also to decide upon a future administrative policy.

Several mass meetings of Chinese students have been held at Shanghai. Telegrams were sent to Pekin and Viceroy Yuan Shih Kai, urging that China declare war against Russia to protect her rights.

Nikolas Kolossoff of the Russian Legation at Pekin, in an interview there, says that Russia intends to keep 30,000 troops in Manchuria as railway guards, towns being built along the railway military centres established. He says the Russification of Manchuria will soon make progress, hampered though it is by Japan.

Scores of Uses.

While Dr. Chase's Ointment is best known on account of its wonderful control over eczema, salt rheum and piles, it is found to be in almost daily demand in many homes as a cure for chilblains, chaffing, pimples, sunburn, burns, scalds, and each and every form of itching irritated or inflamed skin. It is invaluable in every home and as a soothing and healing application, knows no equal.

CREED REVISION.

Amendments by the U. S. Presbyterian General Assembly.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 1.—In the Presbyterian General Assembly Saturday a motion made by Dr. W. N. Page, for the adoption of the report of the Creed Revision Committee as a whole, prevailed by unanimous vote

In the new confession the doctrine of predestination is disposed of in the words, "no man is condemned except on the ground of his sin" from accepting the offer of free salvation.

In the estimation of churchmen one of the most important of the changes in the confession is that which deals with chapter 10, section 3, this statement being adopted:

"That it is not to be regarded as teaching that any who die in infancy are lost. We believe that all dying in infancy are included in the election of grace, and are regenerated and saved by Christ, through the Spirit, who works when and where and how He pleases."

Another important change is the omission of thr appelation "Antichrist," as applied to the Pope, the following section being substituted for section 6, in chapter XXV., of the old Confession:

"The Lord Jesus Christ is the only head of the church, and the claim of any man to be the vicar of Christ and the head of the church is unscriptural without warrant in fact, and is a usurption dishonoring to the Lord Jesus Christ."

In the old Confession the section reads:

"There is no head of the church but the Lord Jesus Christ, nor can the Pope of Rome in any sense be the head thereof, but is the Antichrist, that man of sin and son of perdition, that exalteth himself in the church against Christ and all that is called God."

Another statement in the new Confession declares that "works done by unregenerate men, although for the matter of them they may be things which God commands, and in themselves praiseworthy and useful . . . they come short of what God requires and do not make any man meet to receive the grace of God."

CANADA'S IMPORTANCE.

Chamberlain Wants Proposals Discussed and Colonies Attitude Made Clear.

London, June 1.—It is understood that Mr. Chamberlain has expressed the hope that his proposals will be freely discussed and that the attitude of the colonies will be made clear at the Congress of the Chamber of Commerce of the Empire to be held at Montreal in August.

Lord Brassey (Liberal, former Governor of Victoria), who has had considerable colonial experience, raises the question as to whence comes the demand for a preferential policy and concludes: "The only demand comes from Canada, where, in spite of the preference given to Great Britain, the tariffs remain almost prohibitive."

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the Liberal leader in the House of Commons, is apparently reserving public expression of his views on Colonial Secretary Chamberlain's Imperial reciprocity scheme until the reassembling of Parliament, when the Finance Bill will come up. In the meantime Sir Henry's first lieutenant, Herbert Gladstone, the chief Liberal whip, in an open letter to his constituents, warns the Liberals that no time must be lost in putting their house in order.

"The Government is hopelessly discredited," writes Mr. Gladstone, "and it is impossible to assume that a general election will be long delayed."

This impression, however, is not supported in Unionist circles, where it is said that the Government has no intention of precipitating a dissolution of Parliament until the whole subject of preferential trade is thoroughly threshed out.

Mrs. Richard Stethen.

"I have been troubled with Rheumatism for two years in my arms. The pains would commence in the elbow joints and work down to the hands. My hands would swell so that I could not close them. One vial of Munyon's Rheumatism Cure has relieved me so much that I hardly ever have any pain, and I can now close my hands in a perfectly natural manner."—Mrs. Richard Stethen, 35 Besser street, Ottawa.

The Earnings of Acrobats.

The old fable that the work of the circus and music hall artists is paid for by "starvation wages" holds good no longer, as may be seen by the following statistics recently collected: The monthly earnings of a lady circus rider vary from £75 to £100, while those of the haut ecole often earn £150. A clown's earnings average from £85 and £40 to £75 to £100. No performer on the tight rope "works" for less than from £50 to £70 a month. Engagements of this sort, it seems, are always made and wages paid by the month. Carpet acrobats earn from £100 to £110. Even second rate performers on the horizontal bar receive £125 to £150, while masters of the art earn as much as £250, and jugglers on the tight rope or on horseback are the best paid of all, earning often as much as £300 a month. Unfortunately the majority of these artists spend their money far more rapidly than they acquire their by no means easy art.—Westminster Gazette.

Sir George White's Elevation.

The elevation of Sir George White to the rank of Field Marshal puts Ireland in the position of furnishing three Field Marshals to the British army, or four if the Duke of Connaught is included. This is probably unparalleled in the annals of the army. Then Sir T. Kelly-Kenny, an Irishman, is Adjutant-General; Sir Ian Hamilton, a Scotsman, is Quartermaster-General, and Sir Edward Ward, Permanent Under Secretary of the War Office, is also a north countryman. And Lord Kitchener, the Indian Commander-in-Chief, is of Irish birth. When one takes stock of the Cabinet, with its four Scotsmen and three Irishmen, the Archbishops, both Scotsmen, and so on it must be admitted that Lord Salisbury's "Celtic fringe" looks as if it intended to become the entire mantle of State. The navy has been purely English up to very recently, but even in that chosen domain an Irishman is now head of the fleet which defends the Channel.

A Foible of the King.

Even Kings are not exempt from the foibles of ordinary mankind, and here is an interesting sidelight of a little weakness of our own good King Edward VII., writes the London correspondent of The New York Commercial. A certain royal lady was at an afternoon tea-party, and one of the guests told a decidedly amusing story.

"Oh!" cried the lady in question, clapping her hands, "that is capital! I must tell it to the King.

"No," she added, after a moment's reflection, "I won't, for if one tells the King a good story, he forgets in a day or two that it was told to him, and goes about repeating it to everyone as his own."

OLD BOYS' GAMES.

Some of Them Are Dying Out in England—"Ring Taw," About Two Centuries Old, Replaced.

Many of the old-fashioned boys' games are in danger of being elbowed out of existence. The development of bicycling and the extraordinary absorption of the modern boy—not to speak of his elders—in football and, in lesser degree, in cricket, are killing many simple old pastimes. Tops, hoops, marbles, buttons, and the like are not the playthings nowadays of boys of all classes, as they used to be until well past the middle of the last century. Such toys are still played with in the villages, and in the towns to a less extent, but their use has become increasingly limited to the poorer folk. This is somewhat to be regretted, for simple as are such implements, the games in which they are used call for no inconsiderable degree of skill on the part of the players. Each kind of game has always had its appointed season, and marbles come in with the spring. In many parts of Sussex, by the way, boys and men of every age used to make a special point of playing marbles on Good Friday, but no one has yet been able to give a satisfactory reason for this particular custom.

Games with marbles have quite a nomenclature of their own. Every one remembers the moving address of Sergt. Buzfuz to the jury in the famous case of Bardell versus Pickwick, in which the learned counsel, enlarging upon the villainy of the designing Pickwick, pictured the desolation of Mrs. Bardell's once happy home: "Even the voice of the child is hushed; his infant sports are disregarded when his mother weeps; his 'alley tors' and his 'commoneys' are alike neglected; he forgets the long familiar cry of 'knuckle down,' and at tip-cheese, or odd and even, his hand is out." It is a pathetic picture! The names of "alley" and "commoney" may perhaps touch a chord in the memories of middle-aged readers. The latter, as the name suggests, was the designation of the commonest kind of marble, usually made of burned clay, while the "alley" was the white, superior article, turned from real marble or alabaster, whence was derived the name. Both were used in the most popular game with marbles.

The "commoneys" were placed in a ring and the players shot with the "alley tors," or "taws," from an agreed distance, the object being to knock as many as possible out of the circle. The "taw" was consequently larger size than the others, as likely to do the more execution. If the "taw," after striking one or more "commoneys" out of the ring, remained itself within that magic circle, it was technically "dead," and its owner was out of the game unless his "taw" was accidentally (or designedly by a partner) knocked out of the circle again. Boys usually had a recognized table of exchange. One "alley" was worth six or more "commoneys." The latter had different names in different places, such as "stoneys" and "potteys"—the names usually denoting some slight difference in quality. One "stoney" was worth two or three "potteys." Other names for common varieties were "crockeries" and "clayeys"—terms which explain themselves. The "alleys," again, the cherished shooters, were not all of equal value. The choicest specimens were known as "blood alleys," because they were marked with spots or streaks of red.

This game of "taw," or "ring taw," is at least two centuries old. In The Tatler of Dec. 27, 1709, Steele speaks of one who "passed many of his hours with the little Moorish boys at a game of marbles not unlike our modern taw." Later, Churchill, in The Candidate, wrote: "To whip a top, to knuckle down at taw;" and Cowper, in his "Tirocinium," described the return of a man to his old school, where his heart is touched to find on—

"The wall on which we tried our graving skill,
The very name we carved subsisting still;
The bench on which we sat while deep employed,
Though mangled, hacked, and hewed, not yet destroyed;
The little ones, unbuttoned, glowing hot,
Playing out games, and on the very spot,
As happy as we once, to kneel and draw
The chalky ring, and knuckle down at taw."

The "taw" seems to have been originally the name for the marked line from which the players shot at the marbles in the ring; then the name was given to the game itself, and lastly, in the shape of "alley taw," or "alley tor," to the large marbles which play so important a part in the game in the hands (or, rather, on the knuckles) of a dexterous shot. An expert player shoots his "taw" so that describing a curve it falls directly on to the marble aimed at, driving it and possibly others out of the ring itself rebounding or cannoning from it with sufficient force to be also carried without the ring.

Another game which seems almost to have died out in the neighborhood of London is "hole and taw", or "three holes" or "knucks." The holes, three in a line, are about six or eight feet apart, and either twice or three times up and down is the game. Whoever completes it first is the winner, the players having power to drive one another way as in croquet, which game "knucks" resembles in several respects. This three-hole game is still highly popular in the North of Ireland. Loafing "corner boys" and carmen waiting for a fare can be seen playing it any day in Belfast. Another game with marbles is "chuck-taw," in which one boy throws his marble or "taw" a yard or two in front of him; the next "chucks" his marble at the one thrown down, and if he hits it he has another turn, but if he misses, the first player picks up his marble and "chucks" it in turn at his opponent's, and so the game carries the players along the road. A guessing game is played with marbles as with many other things. One boy dives into his pocket and brings out as many marbles as he likes, and, holding out his closed fist, palm downward, challenges his opponent to guess how many. In Cornwall they call this "ship sail," because the boy holding out his hand has to repeat the formula, "Ship sail, sail fast. How many men on board?"

But Cornish folk seem to have a marble vocabulary of their own. Miss Courtney, a diligent collector of lore from the land of Lyonesse, says that the young fishermen in West Cornwall play a game called "Towns," and "Boys who hit their nails are looked on with just contempt, and are said to "fife Kibby." When two are partners and one in playing accidentally hits the other's marble, he cries out. 'No custance,' meaning that he has a right to put back the marble struck; should he fail to do so, it would be out of the game. To steal marbles is to 'strakey.'" Other parts of the country, no doubt, have their own technical terms.—London Globe.

A Political Dramatist.

Mr. Justin Huntly McCarthy, who scored a great success as a dramatist with his "If I were King," has devoted his energies so exclusively to the stage during recent years, says an English exchange, that his political career of a decade seems a long time ago, although he is still in years a comparatively young man, and in appearance an absolute youth. He had only recently emerged from his legal minority when he joined his father in the House of Commons. Although he spoke but seldom, he wrote a good deal at Westminster. He also engaged in controversy, and crossed swords with the late Sir Charles Gavan Duffy over the delicate question as to whether the escape of John Mitchel from his island prison of Tasmania was honorable or otherwise. Mitchel and Duffy, fellow-leaders of the '48 rebellion in Ireland, subsequently became violent opponents and made furious literary assaults upon each other. Mr. McCarthy championed the integrity of Mitchel. It was as the writer of a political light comedy "The Candidate," in which Sir Charles Wyndham made a notable hit, that Mr. McCarthy made his debut as a dramatist.

An Australian Author.

The Rev. Dr. Fitchett, who has just retired from the presidency of the United Methodist Church of Australia, is the author of several popular books on British battles on land and sea, as well as editor of The Australian Review of Reviews. But he has never shouldered a gun himself. His successor in the presidential chair, the Rev. E. S. Bickford, can make that boast. A native of Devonshire, and educated at Blundell's Grammar School, he joined the local volunteers, and actually started to fight under Garibaldi for the liberation of Italy, but was overtaken and dissuaded by relatives. He has labored as a Methodist minister in various parts of Australia since 1867. Apparently, the Methodists of the Commonwealth like to have as their presidents ministers who do not disguise their affection for military renown and Imperial greatness.

Lord Derby's Home.

Knowsley, which the King was lately visiting, has welcomed many of the English Sovereigns, and the house retains some interesting proofs of Royal gratitude; but there is also a striking commemoration of a King's ingratitude. It is carved on the colonnade end of the house, and the inscription runs: "James, Earl of Derby, Lord of Man and the Isles, grandson of James, Earl of Derby, and of Charlotte, daughter of Claude, Duke de la Tremouille, whose husband, James, was beheaded at Bolton, xv. Oct. mdciii., for strenuously adhering to Charles II., who refused a bill passed unanimously by both Houses of Parliament for restoring to the family the estate lost by his loyalty to him." Coats of paint have failed to obliterate the record on the stone, though time has effaced Charles II's ingratitude from the memory of the family.

A Battle of Wits.

Mr. L——, the foreman at a certain factory in Liverpool, the other day lost a cuff-link whilst going round the workshop. After some time had elapsed, and the cuff-link had not turned up, he caused the following notice to be put up in a conspicuous position in the workshop:—"Mr. L——, having lost a gold cuff-link, would be very glad if the finder would return it as soon as possible to the owner." Imagine his feelings when a few hours later on passing the notice he found the following appended:

"The finder of the above cuff-link would be very much obliged if Mr. L—— would lose the other one."

SOME MOWAT ANECDOTES.

Telling Sallies Made by Sir Oliver on Public Occasions.

The authorized biographer of Sir Oliver Mowat, Mr. C. R. W. Biggar, K.C., when seen recently, kindly related, from the extensive manuscript and collected material at his hand, several incidents not widely known. "Sir Oliver," he said, "was able to write at five years old, and many Kingstonians have told me of the picture, still fresh in their mind, of the little, curly-headed boy, sitting on the counter of his father's shop and reading with a Scottish accent and much dramatic expression the letters of the Rev. Wm. Dunlop, published under the pen name of "Backwoodsman" in The Edinburgh Scotsman, recounting the early experiences of a Presbyterian in the backwoods of Canada.

"In 1836, at the age of sixteen, a Highland Scotch company was formed in Kingston, and Sir Oliver was one of its members, and, I think, one of its officers. His Highland uniform of that date is still preserved by the family, but it was soon discarded for the scarlet coat of a Lieutenant in the 1st Frontenac Battalion, formed in 1837, and in 1840, when the monument of Sir Isaac Brock and Lieut.-Col. Macdonnell was restored, Sir Oliver carried the colors in the battalion in which he had just received his commission.

"North Oxford is full of stories about Sir Oliver's readiness and wit. In spite of his blindness, he seldom failed to recognize a friend, and if he did so, could turn it off with a compliment which always went home. The strongest Conservatives in the riding have been among his warmest friends, and have always regarded him as one of their own party. Mr. Wm. Gray, now 92, and for many years Mayor of Woodstock, is among the Conservatives who always supported and esteemed Sir Oliver, and he has a number of good political stories which it would be a misfortune to lose.

"At the nomination meeting in 1872, when he was opposed by McKellar, also a Liberal, he made sallies on the members of the Sanfield Macdonald Cabinet, and one of his telling shots was that as they had one Reformer in the Cabinet of five, and they had had pretty good legislation, what would they expect if they multiplied that by four, and got five straight Grits? The arithmetical problem was so simple and effective that it brought a hearty response.

"On the occasion of the famous interview in April, 1893, between the Prohibitionists and Sir Oliver, when the latter promised prohibitory legislation to the extent of the ascertained powers of the Province, the Premier read a carefully prepared statement in reply to fervent speeches by Mrs. May Thornley, Rev. Dr. Mackay and others. At the conclusion Dr. Mackay rose and requested permission to ask a question. 'Yes,' replied Sir Oliver, 'ask me something out of the Shorter Catechism, for I know that by heart.' The laughter which followed broke the strain of the occasion and disarmed the critics."

FOUNDERS OF ONTARIO

Mr. C. C. James Tells an Interesting Story of Early Upper Canada.

Mr. C. C. James, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, recently drew in a recent lecture he delivered in Toronto an interesting picture of the origin and methods of the founders of Ontario and the conditions under which they laid the foundations of the social and economic organization of to-day. In those days the women were married in homespun gowns, deerskin petticoats, and squirrelskin bonnets. Preachers were scarce, and Magistrates performed the ceremony, and so inadequate were the records kept that it was deemed wise in 1793 by act of Parliament to legalize all marriages made previous thereto. Despite the plainness and severity of the life those old people looked back with regret to the time when there were no doctors, no lawyers and very few preachers, when people "said prayers at home and trusted in Providence." He also told of the great emigration to Canada from Great Britain, extending from 1815 to 1860, and to the interest in live stock of those British settlers he attributed in great part the present prosperity of Ontario.

Fine Fruits in the Yukon.

In an entertaining address before the Committee on Agriculture and Colonization at Ottawa recently, Professor John Macoun, naturalist of the Geological Survey, dealt with the agricultural possibilities of the Yukon. Ripe wheat, oats and barley, gathered near Dawson, had produced vigorous growth when germinated at the Experimental Farm. The professor had also found fine timber far up on the mountain side. Horses thrived and grew fat upon the native grass, which was three and four feet long. Samples of fine red currants were produced. Blueberries and raspberries also ripened, and flowers bloomed about the same time as the same species did in Ontario, owing to the influence of the mountain chain between Dawson and the coast, which precipitated the moisture and produced a perpetual summer chinook in the villages of the Yukon.

Strong, Safe Cars.

The wreck on the Intercolonial Railway near Windsor Junction demonstrated the life-saving qualities of steel-framed passenger cars. Four cars of the express train are said to have jumped over or ricocheted past the engines and turned over on the embankment 200 feet further on. Less strongly built cars would undoubtedly have telescoped as the result of such an impact, and the loss of life would have been great. As it was, not a passenger was injured. Telescopable passenger coaches should be legislated against. Sea passengers are protected against coffin ships, and land passengers should be protected against death trap cars.—Ottawa Citizen.

THE PRIVILEGED CLASS.

(A cart is held by law not to be a public place, and a driver, so long as he stays in his seat, may be intoxicated with impunity.)

Some people envy dukes and lords
Or multi-millionaires,
Or think that life upon the boards
Is free from carking cares.
Some love a quiet country cot
(Three acres, cows and hay),
Mine seems to be the happier lot,
When seated in my shay.

If dukes attack the flowing bowl
With injudicious zest,
If millionaires, when walking, roll,
They have to pass a test.
Perhaps their feet, perchance their lips
Their shocking state betray,
In me the law condones these slips,
When seated in my shay.

I'm blithe and gay both night and morn,
Nor envy clown nor peer,
I never treat a friend with scorn
Who's treating me with beer.
Whene'er, the moments to beguile,
I wet my thirsty clay,
The law regards me with a smile—
I'm seated in my shay.

For me the line of whitest chalk
No keen officials draw,
No searching eyes regard my walk;
I fear no liquor law.
For me no "lifted thistles" wait
(A ticklish thing to say),
I have no fears, whate'er my state,
When seated in my shay.

PRESIDENT OF THE GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY.

Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson was in Town To-day.

He is Accompanied by Lady Wilson—Several Officials of the Company on Board.

An "official special" train of the Grand Trunk Railway arrived at the Peterborough station at one o'clock p.m., to-day from Toronto, bringing a number of distinguished officials of the company. Among these were, Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson, President of the Grand Trunk Railway; F. H. Guigan, Manager, and W. R. Tiffin, Superintendent. Lady Wilson was on board.

The officials were passing over the road on a tour of inspection, and arrived in Peterborough quietly and unannounced. Only a very few citizens were at the station during their stay. The train was made up of the company's two handsome official coaches, "Violet" and "St. Lawrence," a baggage car and engine.

The yleft again at two o'clock for Montreal, via Belleville.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

KILLIN-KEOUGH STUDENTS.

Mr. and Mrs. Killin-Keough are arranging a series of four recitals for the purpose of affording their pupils an opportunity to study public performance. A large number of excellent voices are under their training and the recitals will be of unusual interest. The first recital will be given in the Y.M.C.A. Hall on Tuesday evening, June 23rd, at which Mr. Keough will give a "short talk" on "The Singing Tone," an extract from his lecture on that topic delivered in New York City. There will be solo, ensemble and concerted singing. The public is invited to these recitals and a small admission fee will be charged. 1d

THE PADDLE FOUND.

It was Picked up Friday by Crew of Majestic.

The paddle which was missing at the time the upturned canoe belonging to Mr. W. A. Sanderson was found near Breeze's bay on the morning of Tuesday, May 26th, was found on Friday by the crew of the steamer Majestic entangled in the bushes at the eastern shore of Buck Island, which is said to be about half a mile from Mr. Sanderson's cottage, and nearly a mile from where the canoe was found.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

Two Little Children Run Down by a Horse Saturday Evening.

A little girl's scream and an upturned baby carriage created considerable excitement on Saturday evening at the corner of Hunter and George streets, and it was thought at first that a serious accident had occurred.

Shortly after nine o'clock a little girl was crossing George street near Oak Hall corner, wheeling a baby carriage containing a little tot, when a horse and buggy came bearing down upon them with the result that the little girl was knocked down and run over, the carriage overturned and the little tot thrown out on the hard road. A large crowd gathered on the spot, attracted by the little girl's screams, and expecting to find the little ones badly injured, but strange to say the children escaped unhurt but badly frightened as a result of their experience.

Too much care cannot be exercised by persons driving on George street Saturday evening. It seems to be the tendency of a great many unthinking people to pick Saturday evenings for a trial of speed, and George street is converted into a race track. Reckless drivers swing around corners regardless of pedestrians, and Saturday night's narrow escape should prove a warning to all who are guilty in this respect.

A NEW OPERA HOUSE.

Will a New Structure be Erected Before Fall.

On Saturday a rumour gained circulation to the effect that several Toronto gentlemen were in town during the day, who were said to be interested in the erection of a new opera house.

Enquiries were made concerning the report, and although no information could be gathered or gleaned concerning the truthfulness of the same, still it was learned from good authority that a well-known Toronto theatrical man was considering the scheme, and would build a first class modern opera house in town, if he could secure the assistance and co-operation of local capitalists, and would endeavour to have the new structure ready for business in the fall.

It is sincerely to be hoped that these rumours have some foundation. Peterborough is considered to be the banner town of the Dominion, and every other town of any importance, can boast of a first class opera house. It is understood the management of the local opera house closed its doors last spring, and we are now face to face with the question of a new one. The old one has certainly served its purpose, and is not in keeping with the dignity and importance of a town like Peterborough.

What the town needs, and needs badly, is a modern opera house, centrally located, and capable of seating a good sized audience, with stage space large enough for the best companies on the road.

MIDLAND FOOTBALL ASSOCIATION CUP.

A Prize Cup Presented by Hon. J. R. Stratton.

Mr. Horace E. Ayers, Secretary-Treasurer of the Midland League Football Club, has received a communication from the Hon. J. R. Stratton, Provincial Secretary, in which he states that he has presented a silver cup to be annually competed for by clubs comprising the Midland League.

This League, it might be stated, is progressing with every success, and the very best of feeling seems to exist between the competing teams. There has not been a single protest lodged up to the present time.

A CONTRACT COMPLETED.

Mr. James Bogue Finishes his Lindsay Contract.

Mr. James Bogue arrived home from Lindsay Saturday evening, having finished his granolithic sidewalk contract in Lindsay on Russell and Lindsay streets.

Mr. Bogue will this week commence an extensive contract for the C.P.R. at Havelock where he will first commence work on a turn table in the railway yards.

It is also understood that Mr. Bogue has the contract for supplying the crushed stone for the new Beet Root Sugar Factory.

THE SHOOTING AFFRAY.

Miss Lizzie Stewart Said to be Progressing Favourably.

Joseph Fram who is charged with an attempt to murder Miss Lizzie Stewart, on Saturday, May 23rd, was to come up for trial to-morrow before County Police Magistrate Edmison, but the hearing has been postponed on account of the fact that Miss Stewart is not in a position to attend court. Her physician states that she is progressing satisfactorily and is resting easier. Some fifteen grains of shot it is understood, have been removed from her body.

THE WATER LILY FRACAS.

Two Young Men Concerned to Appear on Saturday.

Mr. Hugh Anson Cartwright, captain of the Water Lily, has laid information against two young men, Geo. Wheeler, Jr., and Joseph Sullivan, charging them with raising a disturbance on the Water Lily on May 25th.

The case will come up for hearing on Saturday before County Police Magistrate Edmison.

CHURCH PARADE OF THE 57TH REGIMENT.

Divine Service Held in St. John's Church.

Lt.-Col. Miller in Command—A Large Turn out of Men—Officers of Other Corps Present in Uniform.

There was a large attendance of both officers and men yesterday afternoon at the church parade of the 57th Regiment and the companies were all well represented. The men wore serges and sun helmets, and carried side arms. The "fall in" was not sounded until 4 o'clock, when the regiment took up its position outside the drill shed prior to the march to St. John's church where Rev. J. C. Davidson, the chaplain, conducted the service. A large crowd of persons watched the troops pass in sections while the band played "Onward Christian Soldiers." The men marched into the church by twos and and occupied the pews in the two middle aisles, the two outside ones being occupied by civilians. There is something unique in a military service, the red coats of the soldiers seem to lend fascination and give the service an even more interesting tone than usual. Lieut.-Col. Miller, who was in command, read the lesson while the chaplain gave the address, immediately before which he made a few complimentary remarks to the men and also to the retired commander. He said that during his regime as chaplain he had never known the tone of the regiment to be as high as it was to-day. Rev. J. C. Davidson took his text from II Thessalonians 2, verse 15:—"Stand fast and hold the traditions which ye have been taught."

CHAPLAIN'S ADDRESS.

The preacher said that the first duty of every soldier was to learn to stand and in doing that to stand firmly and not anyhow, which, he said, required effort and spirit. When we stand, said the chaplain, we must stand erect and ready for action and added that all must do this for, he said, that a few men could, by not standing fast by their characters, disgrace a whole regiment. He said that outward appearances would help a man vastly, for the man who stands erect and can look anyone straightly in the face will be trusted and will stick to a post which others would leave.

Rev. Mr. Davidson remarked that we are all tempted and that if we do not stand fast and resist, the temptation will gradually grow into the spirit of wickedness. He added that it was the tradition of British soldiers to stand fast, and hold their position, against all foes, and he said there were traditions in the church which came down to all men, especially those who wear the King's uniform. One of these, he said, was to be honourable, honourable in word, in spirit, in thought, and in action—honourable in everything. Then another tradition was to honour and observe the Sabbath Day and keep it holy, for it is God's day, and not man's, therefore, he said, it is to be devoted to the worship of God. It was the duty of all men, especially soldiers, to obey that command, and to hold on to the grand old traditions which have been handed down for generations, which only could be done by standing fast and defeating all temptations.

During the service the following ing hymns were sung, "All people that on earth do dwell," "Holy, Holy, Holy, Lord, God Almighty," "Stand up, Stand up, for Jesus," and "Fight the Good Fight with all Thy Might." The band took an active part in the musical portion of the service.

It might be mentioned that the regiment was organized May 3rd, 1867, was reorganized as a city battalion in 1885; increased from six to eight companies in 1903. It served through the Fenian Raid in 1866. One company served with the Midland Battalion in the Northwest Rebellion in 1885. The Regiment was well represented in the Boer war of 1899-02. The regiment is badly in need of colours, the present stand of colours having been presented by the ladies of Peterborough in 1868.

There were present in uniform, besides Lieut.-Col. R. Z. Rogers and Lt.-Colonel E. B. Edwards, several officers of other regiments.

AT THE POLICE COURT THIS MORNING.

Three Cases Came up Before the Police Magistrate.

At the Police Court this morning before Police Magistrate D. W. Dumble, the case of Hester Boyd, who was chraged with stealing from Dr. Pigeon's house, was again enlarged, this time till Saturday morning.

A man was fined for not having paid his dog tax. He was fined $1.00 and costs, amounting in all to $3.35. He pleaded guilty.

Samuel Wind pleaded guilty to the charge of depositing night soil into the Otonabee river. The charge is one which is always dealt seriously with by the magistrate, who, on this occasion imposed a fine of $10 to be paid in 10 days.

NEW RAILWAY GATES

At the C. P. R. Crossing on George Street.

For the past few days a staff of men has been busily engaged placing in position the new gates at the C. P.R. crossing on George street, and they were in use to-day.

The new gates are locked automatically, and are operated by means of a compressed air pump. When lowered and locked a gong is sounded in order to notify the public that the crossing is closed for traffic.

BANDMASTER OF ST. PETER'S T. A. S. BAND.

Mr. R. P. Brodrick of Montreal, Will Wield the Baton.

The committee in charge of the organization of St. Peter's T. A. S. band has been advertising for a competent bandmaster to take charge of the new organization, and have received a large number of applications for the position.

The committee met recently and decided to engage the services of Mr. R. P. Brodrick at present leader of St. Anne's Band, Montreal. Mr. Brodrick is said to be a musician of considerable experience, and plays either claronet, cornet or piccalo. He has been handling a baton since the seventies and has been instructor for several bands in Ireland. He was also identified with a military band for seven years and in 1884 was instructor in brass, reed, drum and fife at a school in Phillipstown, Ireland. He carries with him excellent testimonials as to his ability as an instructor.

The new instruments which have been ordered from the best makers in France are expected here in a week's time. The management is introducing French horns instead of the altos, and it is understood very few of the French horns are being used by Canadian musical organizations.

The T. A. S. members are becoming quite enthusiastic over their new musical organization and are determined to make it the most successful feature in connection with the society.

GREAT PROGRESS MADE.

New Ontario, as Seen now is Prosperous.

Prospects for Future, Bright—Timber, Agriculture and Mineral Wealth is Wonderful.

The new member of the Examiner staff was asked to make a few notes notes on the rise and progress of that vast heritage of our province, New Ontario, on information gleaned while on his trip from sault Ste. Marie, the Iron City of the north, to her equally progressive sister city, Peterborough.

To the unbeliever who affirms that the suggested wealth of New Ontario exists to a great extent in the minds of enthusiastic and over zealous residents of that District, we would say, "Go and see." Although, of course, the great industry in that district is lumbering, the hitherto almost unrealized fertility of the soil is becoming apparent, and, as a result, agriculture is gradually being introduced, in fact, in some sections it has already reached a satisfactory stage of development.

The action of the Ontario Crown Lands Department is to a great extent responsible for this pleasing development.

Every facility is offered intending settlers to explore the most promising sections of land, and the result cannot but be very gratifying to all who have an interest in building up these newer parts of our province.

At present North Bay seems to be the scene of unusual activity, occasioned, of course, by the construction of the Government Railway from that point, and it promises to become a railroad centre of considerable importance. At the Soo preparations are being made to resume the manufacture of steel rails at an early date, on the completion and equipment of the blast furnaces. Mr. Shields has infused new life into the industries, the benefit resultant to the business life of the Soo being to a corresponding extent increased.

We might mention, if it were necessary, the mineral wealth of these districts, and to one on the spot there are visions of a gigantic development along this line in the not distant future. Already there are being brought to notice numbers of most valuable discoveries of mineral deposits, in great variety. Capital is becoming interested in these discoveries, and this cannot but lead to the development of a mighty industry.

THE PETERBOROUGH BOARD OF HEALTH

Met This Morning—The Action That was Taken.

A meeting of the local Board of Health was held this morning in the Town Clerk's office. There were present Mr. Robt. Neill, Chairman, and Messrs. Wm. Eyres, A. Parker, G. Schneider, Dr. McNulty and Dr. Bingham and Chief Roszel, Sanitary Inspector. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

It was moved by Mr. Eyres, seconded by Mr. Parker, that the following accounts be paid:

L. Maud Davis	$90 85
Ormond & Walsh	41 95
J. J. Turner	21 75
Nicholls Hospital	29 02

On motion of Mr. Eyres, seconded by Mr. Schneider, it was resolved that this Board of Health under section 668, sub-section 4, of the Municipal Act, recommend the Council to construct a sewer on Hunter street between Aylmer street and Stewart street for the purpose of draining that locality for sanitary purposes as a local improvement.—Carried.

It was moved by Mr. Parker, seconded by Mr. Schneider, that the owner of the McComb property on Simcoe street be notified to connect the premises with the sewer and that the Central Canada Loan and Savings Company be also notified.—Carried.

The Board then adjourned until Monday, June 8th, at 11 o'clock.

PROVINCIAL COURT OF CATHOLIC FORESTERS

Will Convene in Peterborough on June 9th and 10th.

The Provincial High Court of Catholic Order of Foresters will meet in Peterborough on June 9th and 10th and the local Court (St. Peter) is making elaborate preparations for their reception.

It is expected that nearly 125 delegates will be in attendance during the two days' session, which will be held in the Foresters' Hall, Hunter street.

On the morning of June 9th a Solemn High Mass will be celebrated in St. Peter's Cathedral, at which His Grace Archbishop Duhamel, of Ottawa, Chaplain of High Court, will pontificate, assisted by His Lordship Bishop O'Connor and local and visiting clergy. The sermon on this occasion will be preached by Rev. Father Collins, of Bracebridge, who was at one time chaplain of the local Court.

In the evening a grand banquet will be tendered the delegates in the T.A.S rooms and this promises to be of an elaborate nature. It is understood that Hon. F. R. Latchford, Minister of Public Works, and Senator McHugh, of Lindsay, as well as other prominent men will be present on this occasion.

During the two days' session the delegates will be taken in hand by Court St. Peter and entertained in a manner that will make their visit to Peterborough a thoroughly enjoyable one in every respect.

The Ottawa Free Press in referring to the coming convention says:—

"Great preparations are being made by the Catholic Foresters for the convention to be held in Peterborough this month. Among the prelates who will be in attendance are Archbishop Duhamel, Archbishop O'Connor, of Toronto, Archbishop Gauthier, of Kingston, Bishop Lorrain of Pembroke and Bishop O'Connor of Peterborough. Archbishop Duhamel will be the celebrant of pontifical high mass. Mr. C. S. O. Boudreault, chief ranger, is out for the office again."

The Lakefield Picnic.

At the picnic held on Victoria Day at Lakefield, a prize consisting of a $5 gold piece, which was drawn for and won by Miss Olive Reid, of Young's Point, has been presented to her. The picnic was a great success, the proceeds being in the neighbourhood of $1,100.

THE LATEST NEWS OF LOCAL SPORT.

Y. M. C. A. Defeated Millbrook 3 to 0.

Saturday's Baseball Matches—Victory for the Junior Colts C. C.—Other Sports.

FOOTBALL.

The Y.M.C.A. football team journeyed to Millbrook on Saturday, and took the team of that village into camp to the tune of 3—0 in a Midland League game. The contest is characterized as being a very rough one, the Millbrook players having a tendency to devote too much time to a man and not enough to the ball, and indulge altogether in too much body checking. Gordon Lee was rendered hors de combat at the beginning of the struggle. Rev. Mr. White of Millbrook, refereed the game.

The locals lined up as follows:—Goal, McFadden, backs, Simpson and Burnham; halfs, Moore, McPherson and McDonald; centre, Schneider; left wing Crough and Campbell; right Shortell and Campbell.

Out of respect to the late goalkeeper of the Cordova team, who was in the recent mining accident in that place, the Norwood and Cordova teams did not meet on Saturday.

LACROSSE.

The Port Hope seniors are coming to town on Saturday evening to have a friendly game with the T.A.S. team, and the ball will be faced at 7 o'clock sharp. This will be an excellent work out for both clubs, and Port Hope intends bringing up their best twelve. With such men as "Tony" Roach, Jack White, "Buck" McGibney, Miles McDonough and others on the line up, the T.A.S. twelve may expect to get some first class pointers during the evening. It is expected that a bumper crowd will witness the game.

Hastings and Belleville are billed to clash in a few days in their first game in the Junior C.L.A. Series, and the result will be watched with interest. Belleville has been trotting out the dark horse racket for several and their line up remains an unsolved mystery. They will have to labour to triumph over the Hastings bunch, who are all brewed from the home vintage. They battle on the grounds near the Grand Trunk station, the scene of many a hard fought struggle.

Uxbridge has dropped out of District No. 11, on account of not being able to get a team together. This leaves only two teams in the district, Lindsay and Markham-Stouffville who, we understand will play double home-and-home games, the first to take place in Lindsay on June 11th. Apart from this, the Post says, the local management will endeavour to arrange for exhibition games with the Athletics of Peterborough, and the Victorias of Port Hope.

The first game of the senior C.L.A. lacrosse ever played in Port Hope took place Saturday before about 1,500 people. It was the best exhibition of the game seen here for some time, and although the home team showed lack of practice it was victorious by a score of 5 to 3. The game started at three o'clock, and in just one minute after Port Hope scored. Only one more goal was scored in the first period, and that was scored by the Tecumsehs, just half a minute before the quarter ended. Port Hope scored the next goal in half a minute, and the next in 16 1-2 minutes, and at half-time the score stood 3 to 1. In the third quarter the Tecumsehs scored one, while Ontarios failed to tally, but in the last period Port Hope scored two, while Tecumsehs only scored one. This left the score 5 to 3. The Port Hopes' defence proved invincible, but the home showed lack of practice in its shooting and passing, especially near the flags. The Tecumsehs were without Kyle and Bond, and claim this was a great drawback to them.

GOLF.

The competition for the President's prize must be completed by June 6th. The draws and handicaps for this competition are posted in Club House. This competition consists of one round only, of 18 holes and the best card handed in wins prize. The handicaps will be revised after this match.

The competition for the Neill trophy will take place immediately after completion of President's competition. The draws and revised handicaps will be posted in Club House next week.

BASEBALL.

Auburns, 12.
Pullmans, 0.

The Pullmans proved to be pie for the clever Auburn nine on Saturday in the City League series, and it was with heavy hearts, and a stinging sensation in the region of the neck, that the Pullmans and their supporters bid themselves off the field in order to figure out how it really happened.

The Auburns did the trick, and did it well. At first gaze, when one would study the line up of both nines, and watch the preliminary antics of the players, the Pullmans would undoubtedly be the favourites, as the aggregation is made up of battle-scarred heroes—veterans of a hundred fights. However, their showing in the first two games has demonstrated that their glory has departed, and it is now up to them to take to the bleachers, and to tell the rising generation—the great unwashed—how fields were lost and won "in the good old summer time."

The Pullmans have certainly seen better days, as far as baseball is concerned, and many of the nine have lost that cunning which distinguished them in Midland League days, but they have not improved, like wine, as time advances, and were not in it with their opponents on Saturday at any stage. They fought it out to the finish, however, and it was not until the last innings, when Earls made a loop-the-loop effort to save them from a calcimining, did their hearts fail them — and, oh, it was pitiful, for each man died in his padded suit, with his mits on.

Fred Whitcroft refereed the game, and he was a happy boy at the end of the ninth innings, for his lot was certainly a hard one. Fred did not frame the rules governing baseball, and certainly did his best to please both teams, but some grumbled, and pawed mother earth, and quoted the revised Spaulding by the page, but Fred was running the show, and held his position like a hero.

The Auburns stepped out on the diamond, in a natty uniform of grey over a Jersey of red and black, with stockings of the same colour. The Pullmans had a catchy uniform of red and blue, and presented a gay appearance, but the uniform could not win the game.

The style of baseball dished up to the spectators, was of a richer quality than the burlesque of the preceding Saturday—and that is saying a great deal. McCorry, the twirler for Auburn, pitched a fine game, and the work of the whole team was of an excellent quality. They possessed the faculty of placing their hits where they would count the most, and the team work on the whole showed great improvement.

The Pullmans were certainly not in their class. There seemed to be no vim introduced in their playing, and their fielding and throwing was decidedly ragged, to say the least. They will have to improve wonderfully if they wish to have even a "peep in" in the League series. The following is the summary:—

In the Intermediate Baseball League on Saturday, the Y.M.C.A. defeated the Orioles by a score of 24 to 12, and the Shamrocks worsted the Victorias to the tune of 18-7.

Three well played games were run off in the Intermediate League on Saturday. The first game at the oval was an excellent exhibition except in the third innings, when Pedlar of the Orioles, was batted freely. With that exception both pitchers were in good shape and did effective work.

In the second game the little Victorias met their Waterloo in the Shamrocks. Quinlan, for the latter team, pitched in great form especially when he wished to extend himself. Mulhern did well except in the first two periods; for the last six innings he pitched an excellent game, and kept the heavy hitting Shamrocks well in hand.

Victorias	1	4	1	1	1	0	0	0	0	—7

The Parkdale-Quaker game at the old P.A.A.A. grounds was close and exciting up to the 6th innings. The batteries were in good form, Quinlan and Heaslip of the Quakers being particularly strong.

THE CHURCHES.

ALL SAINT'S CHURCH.

Rev. F. J. Lynch, who is in town collecting on behalf of Wycliffe College, preached very acceptably in all Saints church last evening. During the offertory the choir sang the anthem, "Lift up Your Heads, O ye Gates," Mr. Legg taking the solo.

GEORGE STREET METHODIST.

The pulpit of the George street Methodist church, was occupied on Sunday morning by the pastor, Rev. J. P. Wilson. The evening sermon was delivered by Rev. J. T. Morris, of Toronto, who was visiting in town, on behalf of the Free Hospital for Consumptives, at Gravenhurst.

The morning anthem was "Hail, Mighty Victor," and during collection the solo, "The Hall of the Feast" was sung by Mr. Mulligan. In the evening the choir sang the anthem, "Seek ye the Lord," Mr. Miller taking the solo, and the offertory selection was a male quartette, "Drifting," sung by Messrs. Miller, Maguire, Turner and Mulligan.

KING A GREAT RULER

ENGLAND IS NOW REALIZING HOW STRONG HE HAS BECOME.

Edward VII.'s Wide Knowledge of Men—Deliberate Ministerial Act Kept Him Ignorant of State Secrets While He Was Prince of Wales—Reign Promises to Be Memorable If Plans Are Carried Out.

T. P. O'Connor, writing to The Chicago Tribune, says:—

The world is beginning to realize the King. It took some time to do so. There were plenty of people who had grown so accustomed to the self-effacement which the King had practised so long as Prince of Wales during the lifetime of his mother as to have come to the conclusion that in all the serious affairs of his kingdom the King would count for little.

It is not generally known that this self-effacement was the result not merely of the Prince's own act and respect for his mother, but also of deliberate Ministerial act. Some time in the '70s the question was raised whether, as the Prince was practically performing all the ceremonial duties of Royalty, he should not also share in some of its political responsibilities. One of the first things to be done if this question were decided in the affirmative was to entrust to the Prince a large amount of secret official knowledge—important Foreign Office despatches, for example—which up to that time were submitted to the eyes of the Queen alone.

Ignorant of State Secrets.

It is scarcely credible, but I have every reason to believe it is true, that the Cabinet, after they had debated the question seriously and thoroughly, came to the conclusion that it would be a violation of Constitutional usage to give the Prince of Wales this information. The King accepted the decision with the good sense which he always displays—a good sense typical of the nation to which he so thoroughly belongs — and went on his way, content to be a spectator of the great drama going an immediately around him, and to be left to his own resources for the gaining of knowledge of the secret springs and unavowed motives of great political events.

The decision may have been disappointing, and yet it had its compensation; just as the long delay which occurred between his birth and his accension to the throne had also its compensations. The King, as Prince of Wales, had a freedom which he could never have enjoyed if he had come to the throne at an early age. Indeed, many of the qualities which he has exhibited since he came to the throne have been made possible only by the fact that he was so long Prince of Wales. In that position, exalted and yet private, the King had the right to go among all sorts and conditions of men. And thus it came to pass that when the Prince of Wales became King he had had an experience wider, more instructive, and, in a sense, more democratic than if he had, like many other monarchs, been brought up solely in the stiff, enervating, and narrow atmosphere of courts.

Acquainted With Europe.

Another great advantage of the freedom of the King as Prince of Wales is that he has been able to travel so much, and when on his travels to mingle so freely with men of all parties and creeds. It is well known, for instance, that he was a warm personal friend of Gambetta.

As King he could not have been so familiar with the combative leader of one of the Great French parties without making himself obnoxious to all the other political parties by which France is divided. But as Prince of Wales he was accountable to nobody for the company he kept, and so he was able to be a friend of even a militant political chieftain. Just think what all this must have meant during the thirty to forty years the King was prominent as Prince of Wales. It meant that he had the opportunity of making the personal acquaintance of every political and social personage of every country on the Continent.

Was a Stupendous Task.

Here is a knowledge of a most useful kind, and especially to an English King. We are constantly coming into contact, and we are constantly threatened with collision, with same one of the many powers and principalities of the world. A world-wide Empire, governing black men and yellow men, as well as white men; ruling great civilized dependencies of men of our own blood, and with our own institutions, and, at the same time, ruling peoples in all degrees of civilization, from the rudimentary savagery of West Africa to the ancient and venerable system of caste and creed that reigns in India, it is impossible to name a power with which Britain is not in some way or other brought into relations which may be friendly or hostile.

To watch that mighty chess board which has all the world for its gaming table and all mankind for its pawns, is the most stupendous task in governing that ever a nation undertook; and it is the more necessary that such a task should be in the hands of thoroughly competent and thoroughly well informed men.

There are some other things about the King which make me think that his will be a memorable reign. He has a desire, it might also be said a passion, for composing difficulties. I attribute the position which he is said to have taken up with regard both to the Transvaal War and the Irish Land question to this desire to find a means of reconciliation where other men would be too careless or too cynical to interfere.

Kings Are Busy Men.

Probably the most hard worked men in the world to-day are some of its rulers. The Emperor of Austria gets up in the dark hours of the morning, when most of even the toilers among his own subjects are still nestling in the warmth of their blankets. The light in the study of the Emperor of Germany is seen in the small hours, long after even a pleasure-loving city like Berlin has gone to sleep; and he is in the saddle in the morning after even a late night when the artisans are turning, surly, hungry and cold, to their daily drudgery. The King of Italy is up with the sun, and works all day long, except for the brief intervals he gives to playing with his little daughter.

But apart from this strenuousness, which is the mark of his caste and his time, the King himself is a man of restlessly active temperament and of keen ambitions. It is more than probable that he will do many great and memorable things, then, during his reign. Already, in settling a difficulty as great as the Transvaal War, in laying the foundations at least of a peaceful and reconstructed Ireland, he has done much.

A Self-Possessed Witness.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle told at the literary dinner recently given to him in London of his experience as a juror in his youth.

"I once served on a jury out of curiosity," he said, "and what most impressed me in that business was the highhanded manner of the cross-examinations. There was one witness, though, a dentist, whom no browbeating cross-examiner could disturb.

"This dentist was being questioned about a certain woman.

"'Did you ever have any difference with the lady?' the opposing lawyer asked.

"'No, sir,' replied the dentist.

"'Now, attend. Didn't you make her a set of teeth once?'

"'Yes, sir.'

"'Didn't she return them?'

"'No sir.'

"The lawyer glared. Then he resumed:

"'But you admit, don't you, that later on she had another set made by another dentist?'

"'Oh, yes, I admit that,' said the witness.

"'Ah! You admit that. And the lady is wearing that other set now, is she not?'

"'Yes, she is wearing it.'

"'And she has discarded your set?'

"'No.'

"'What? Do you mean to tell me she is wearing both sets at the same time?'

"'Yes, I do.'

"'Pooh! Nonsense! How can that possibly be?'

"'Why, one is a lower and the other is an upper set,' said the dentist."

WELL EARNED POPULARITY.

J. J. Burns Says Dodd's Kidney Pills Saved His Life.

Could Scarcely Sit, Sleep or Walk when he Started to Use Them—His Trouble Gone for Good.

Darnley, P.E.I., June 1.—(Special.)—The popularity of Dodd's Kidney Pills in Prince Edward Island has earned by cures complete and permanent. John J. Burns, lot 18, Darnley, is one of the cured, and his story is a splendid example of the work Dodd's Kidney Pills are doing.

"For over eight years," says Mr. Burns, "I suffered from what the doctors pronounced Chronic Inflammation of the Loins and Kidneys. In the year 1896 it got so bad that I could scarcely walk, sit or sleep, I was about to give up when an advertisement led me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills and they did a wonderful work for me.

"Dodd's Kidney Pills saved my life and though years have elapsed since my cure I have had no trouble since I used them.

"I belong to the I.O.F. and any member can vouch for my condition and that Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me."

Dodd's Kidney Pills never fail to cure any form of Kidney Disease once and for all.

Soapstone Griddles.

A soapstone griddle should be heated slowly and be allowed to get very hot. Before using rub thoroughly with dry salt; then wipe. Never grease it. The advantage of a soapstone griddle is that the cakes are baked on it instead of being fried in fat, as on the ordinary iron one.

Heating Pans.

Oblong heating pans of tin or nickel, with small alcohol lamps underneath, are a decided convenience for the household. There is room for a small place inside on which food may be placed to keep warm for folks too late for regular meals.

When doing drawn thread work, frequently the threads are rather difficult to draw. This can be overcome by rubbing hard, dry, yellow soap on the threads to be drawn.

Shabby curtain rods can be made to look well by painting with a coat of enamel of the color which predominates in the color scheme of the apartment.

Salt and vinegar will remove the worst spots of verdigris on brass or copper. Wash off with soap and water and polish with whiting wet with alcohol.

When storing tumblers, invert them; otherwise they will crack round their bases.

Wash greasy dishes, pots or pans with Lever's Dry Soap a powder. It will remove the grease with the greatest ease. 35

WOMAN'S WORLD

ALIX OF HESSE.

The Czarina Is Constantly Seeking to Help Her People.

The czarina, Alix of Hesse, is a strong factor in the methods of advancement in Russia and is constantly seeking means to ameliorate the condition of the peasants of her country. The czarina has a singularly charming and thoughtful face and owes very little of her attractiveness to the accessories of dress and coiffure. In fact, she cares little about chiffons and would, if the exigencies of court life prevailed, go about in a tailor made from morn to dewy eve. She has plenty of dark brown hair simply arranged at the back of her head in a knot. She has usually a very serious expression, but is by no means dull. As an unmarried girl she was merry and lively enough to amuse silent, melancholy

THE CZARINA, ALIX OF HESSE.

Nicholas and make him fall desperately in love. She is not very musical, but excels as an artist, and her caricatures of great personages, which more than once in her youthful days got her into tremendous scrapes, are intensely amusing and clever.

A lady at the Russian court, writing to a contemporary, describes the czarina as a woman in every way to be admired. "An excellent mother, she nevertheless does not give herself over entirely to domestic felicity. The welfare of the Russian people is her constant thought. The sufferings of the outcasts in Siberia really wound her tender heart. As a companion she pleases everybody. You think her face looks mournful? Ah, but you should see it light up! There is no one who enjoys a heartier laugh than she. The amusing caricatures she perpetrates, and of which you have heard, are the suggestions of her humorous fancy. Like many people with a strong sense of humor, she knows not what real frivolity means. I can say that the czarina cares more truly for essentials than any other woman I could name."

How Savarin Fried Fish.

In Savarin's "Physiologie du Gout," which was, according to Balzac, a veritable decalogue irrefragable as the laws of Kepler, is thus set down the way to fry fish: "The beauty of a good fry is in carbonizing or browning the surface by sudden immersion—the process known as the surprise. It forms a sort of vault to inclose all that is valuable, prevents the fat from reaching it and concentrates the juices so as to best develop the alimentary qualities. Don't forget when you have any of those trout weighing scarcely more than a quarter of a pound and fetched from streams that murmur far from the capital—don't forget, I say, to fry them in the very finest olive oil you have. This simple dish, properly served with slices of lemon, is worthy of a cardinal. In exactly the same way you should treat smelts, of which adepts think so much."

Have you, my dear housewife—have you ever tried to fry your fish this way? Have you ever cooked small fish in deep boiling oil or lard in the way you would a doughnut or a cruller? Did you ever fry your meat croquettes this way, or are they generally soft and greasy out of a shallow pan?—Deshler Welch in Good Housekeeping.

Noses and Hats.

The prescription of Mme. Hunt, milliner, for crooked, pug and aquiline noses is not of the "kill or cure" type. It is accompanied by none of the dangers confronting the surgeon's knife or the electric needle, and yet Mme. Hunt declares it is a most effective remedy. Here it is:

"Women with flat or pug noses and a medium round face should wear a large, round hat, short in the back and uniform in proportion in the front and side. It should be tilted well forward so as to cast a shadow over the shortcomings of the pug nose. Women with pronounced Roman noses are hard to fit in headgear. They should never wear a hat back from the face, but neither should it project too far over the face, as this will make the nose too prominent. Women with Grecian or slightly upturned noses may wear "jaunty effects." This may be done by those who have even passed the ages of girlhood. They may properly and becomingly wear any extreme style. The hats may be worn well over the face, and the band should be well raised from side and side front."—Chicago Tribune.

Scientific Housekeeping.

It is no credit to a woman to undertake the care of a home ignorant of how to do it. College girls come home to relieve mothers of household management, and women are making a beginning toward organizing household affairs. Heretofore each woman has organized her own household, but the next step is to co-operate and to let some other industries follow spinning and weaving. Household affairs must constantly readjust themselves to changing economic and industrial conditions. The lifting of cooking and housekeeping from drudgery and unpleasant necessities to the plane of sanitary and scientific accomplishment is a step toward further reorganization which touches the vital spot in the household and the always with us question of domestic service. Women show much more disposition to take a hand in this organization than they ever have before in the larger matters of the household. Are the women doing all they can to get manual training and domestic science into our public schools? Have they a conception of the educational value of the industrial arts?

Value of Moderation.

When we endeavor to include within our lives too many pleasures, they become as irksome as cares, and when we would take the responsibility of too many duties none of them is thoroughly accomplished. A great writer tells us that "moderation is the inseparable companion of wisdom," and another writer says, "Moderation is the silken string running through the pearl chain of all virtues." When we try to do too many things at once, we are unfitting ourselves for that practical usefulness which holds no overcrowded state of affairs. She is a wise woman who regulates her life to take upon herself no more duties than what she can attend to properly and successfully. She not only saves her health and her strength, but her work is satisfactory and her pleasures, though few, are thoroughly enjoyed. Indeed there is no greater blessing than a well regulated life.

For the Writing Table.

Many people indulge in the unhealthy habit of applying their tongues to moisten the gum on envelopes, etc. Although one is now getting used to seeing little vessels in the post office on which to wet postage stamps, they are not used as much as they ought to be in private households, and an article of this sort should be found on every writing table. An old glass saltcellar or any small china vessel, even an egg cup, can be used if a small piece of sponge freely saturated with water is slipped into the receptacle. When the sponge becomes impregnated with the gum, take it out and wash thoroughly with warm water and soap; then put back again soaked with clean water.

Sun Baths.

All sufferers from sleeplessness should try sunshine as a cure for their woes. It is the very best soporific that there is. Many women are martyrs to sleeplessness, and yet they avoid the sunshine as if it were an evil thing. They wear veils, carry parasols, seek the shady side of the road and do everything to keep off the influence of kindly old King Sol, whose kisses may sometimes bring an unbecoming amount of color to their faces, but who gives them the beauty of health and cheerfulness. Pale and sickly looking women may be blooming and strong if they will but seek the sunshine.

Brushes.

The care of good brushes—and by this is not meant simply those with costly backs, but first those of good bristles—is not always understood. When the brushes are kept in an open tray, it is a good plan to provide a little case made of water color paper to slip over the bristles of each brush. A similar one of common wrapping paper is useful to cover a silver backed brush when the metal needs polishing. —Harper's Bazar.

Feeding the Baby.

When a baby cannot be nursed by the mother, the next best is cow's milk—two-thirds milk, one-third water. After three months once a day a little orange or prune juice; at six months, a zwieback rolled fine, wet with boiling water, a little warm milk, half a teaspoonful of milk, sugar and beef juice; at nine months, a little clear soup may be added to the daily menu, and at one year a soft boiled egg.

Pneumonia More Fatal Than Smallpox.

Statistics Show a Rapid Increase of Deaths from Pneumonia — Prevention and Cure Found in

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

Ten times as many people die of pneumonia as of smallpox and yet the fear of smallpox is so great that many people almost forget that there is such a disease as pneumonia.

Health authorities are spending hundreds of thousands of dollars to stamp out smallpox and ignore the conditions that cause pneumonia. Damp, unventilated houses, dirty alleys and streets, stagnant pools of water, insufficient food and clothing —all these things cause pneumonia.

Any one who is in a weak and run down condition and contracts a cold is liable to have pneumonia, and, therefore, the object of every person should be to keep their health at high water mark by the use of such a blood builder and nerve restorative as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Should you find yourself the victim of a cold that has fastened itself on the bronchial tubes causing difficult breathing, pain in the chest or lungs when coughing or other indications of approaching pneumonia, there is no preparation that will help you so promptly as Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

No offhand prescription from a doctor, hastily written and hastily compounded in a drug store, can be compared to this great treatment which has so firmly established itself in the homes of this land.

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is mother's favourite remedy for croup, bronchitis, whooping cough, coughs and colds, and is wonderfully effective in relieving and curing asthma. Twenty-five cents a bottle, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. 9

BY BERTHA M. CLAY

Silently and with swift steps Lola went up to the shaft, and then stood shuddering, with an expression of despair on her face. After a pause she turned to Gertrude and laid her hand on hers.

"He lies there," she said, "where he has lain silent and still all these years. Do you see where the wood is broken—where that black gap is? That is where he fell so many years ago. Come with me."

They went together to the very edge; Lola drew aside some of the tangled creepers.

"Look," she cried in a loud voice—"look, Gertrude. This is your father's grave."

"Forgive me," she sobbed, and her burning tears fell upon Gertrude's hands—"forgive me! I have blighted your father's fair name and shadowed the spring-tide of your life. I have been cruel to him whom I loved and cruel to you. Will you forgive me? Ah, Gertrude, I am the most forlorn, the most miserable creature on the face of the earth—none so wretched! I am going out to utter desolation and misery. On earth I have no comfort, in Heaven no hope. Let me take with me the memory of a few kind words."

Did ever woman weep so bitterly, so hopelessly? Gertrude could not help it. She threw her arms round the trembling figure, and, stooping, kissed the tear-stained and worn, yet beautiful face.

"Tell me," she said, "where are you going and what you mean to do with your life."

"I hope to spend it repenting of my sin," she said. "Never mind my life, Gertrude. It ends here, my dear, by the side of this grave, when I leave you. Perhaps I shall not go far away. I should like sometimes to kiss the ground on which your shadow falls. Oh, Gertrude, if he had only loved me! Good-bye, my dearest, once again. Just look at me once more with your father's eyes; once more kiss me, wicked and worthless as I am; speak to me once more with your father's voice. Oh, Karl, Karl, how I loved you!"

Gertrude did what she asked her. She kissed the quivering lips and tried to soothe the terrible grief that seemed beyond all human remedy. Then she said slowly—

"I think what you say is best. It will be well for you to leave me now. Good-bye. I wish, before you go—for we shall never meet again—that you would say one kind word of my dear mother.

"I cannot," replied Lola with a shudder—"I cannot. You, Sir Karl's daughter, have my blessing, my love; for Dolores, who took my love from me, I have no good wish. Good-bye. If the gates of Heaven are ever opened to me, I pray that I may meet you there."

She was gone, even as the last words sounded, leaving Gertrude alone by her father's resting-place. When, later on, she returned to the Manor House, every one was relieved to find that Lola de Ferras had disappeared.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

Forty-eight hours later Dolores, with her eldest daughter, Kathleen, reached the Manor House.

"Let me see Gertrude first," she said, when they came forward to welcome her. "Gertrude, come to me!"

"Gertrude," whispered Dolores—"I do not wish any one to hear me—tell me—is he living or dead?"

Oh, what an agony of hope and fear was there in the sweet, sad, violet eyes! In what a wistful way she seemed to hang on the words that came from Gertrude's lips!

"Dead, mamma," was the reply—"dead, my dearest. He died on the very night when people said he had left you."

Well might she shrink away in bitter wonder and sorrow. All this time while the world had judged him guilty, while people had sneered at him, while his nearest friends, and even his own wife, had believed the accusations against him, he had been perfectly innocent and lying dead.

"Let us retire somewhere, Gertrude," she moaned, "where you can tell me all, and no one can witness my remorse."

So Gertrude led her mother into Lady Fielden's boudoir. She made her lie down to rest and take some refreshment before she told her the story. Dolores listened with dazed senses until Gertrude clearly proved her father's innocence. It seemed almost incredible that Sir Karl had been lying dead all these years—lying so near his old home—while she had believed him to be guilty and alive.

It was some hours before Dolores recovered herself, or was able to calm her quivering nerves and fairly realize the truth. Then, when she fully grasped and had grown accustomed to it, her thoughts reverted to Lola. She asked innumerable questions concerning her, and by turns pitied and blamed her.

"What a revenge to take upon me," she said, wonderingly, "when I had never injured her! But she, I am sure, has suffered most. How wretched she must have been!"

When Gertrude described how Miss de Ferras had knelt on the ground to ask her forgiveness, and how she had craved for a kiss and a kindly good-by, Dolores wept; yet, at the same time, she felt slightly jealous. Why should this woman who had wrought such terrible mischief love Sir Karl's daughter?

"You do not know then where she has gone?" asked Dolores.

"No, mamma, dearest. She has gone out of our lives forever. Let her rest in peace."

"Dead all the time," murmured Dolores—"dead—and I believed him happy with her! Oh, my true and faithful love, how I have misjudged you! How foolish I was not to think of that old shaft! Oh, Gertrude, if I could undo the past, if I could live my life over again, I would act very differently! I was too quick in my judgment. I allowed my jealousy, and not my reason, to influence me. Oh, Karl, forgive me—forgive me, my dear lost love, for I shall never forgive myself!"

Presently she grew calmer. Kathleen, Lady Fielden, and Harry, came to see her, and they talked until nightfall of what had happened.

"Gertrude," said Lady Allanmore, "I shall always call you 'Golden Heart'; but for you, your father's memory would never have been cleared."

It was a day full of emotion for Lady Allanmore. It became known, although they tried hard to keep it secret, that she had returned, and old friends flocked to see her. They would see her; they crowded round her with warm and glad greeting. At Deeping the church bells pleaded merrily. Everybody rejoiced that Lady Allanmore had returned; but as yet the terrible story concerning Sir Karl was unknown. There was no sleep that night either for Dolores or her daughters; over and over again the young girl had to repeat every detail, and Lady Allanmore never wearied of asking about the treacherous pit.

She had an eager desire to see it, but Gertrude said she must not. It would haunt her in her dreams for evermore. The whole place was to undergo alteration. Lady Fielden would attend to it, and then she might visit the spot, but not until then.

"Why should you add even one more dismal recollection to the sad memories of your life?" Gertrude asked; and Dolores gave up the wish.

They did not know, either mother or daughter, of the sad work that was being done that night. It was as though half the town of Deeping were awake. Lord Fielden had given orders that every preparation for a funeral should be made at Fielden Manor. He asked Gertrude to promise that Lady Allanmore should not leave her room until the next day, when he would ask to see her. Never did man work with such energy—indeed he worked so hard that he almost lost sight of the reward in view.

When the shadows of evening fell he went with a picked body of brave men. They had ropes and ladders, and a litter, in case their search was successful. Three of the men had volunteered to descend the disused shaft.

They formed a weird group—the little crowd of men standing round the long-forgotten pit. The first thing that Lord Fielden ordered was that the mass of dead wood and creepers should be removed, and the mouth of the pit laid bare. It took some time to do this, and when it was effected, the men cried out in horror. A great, gaping chasm, black as night, yawned before them.

"It was neither more nor less than a death-trap," said Lord Fielden. "Covered in that treacherous manner, I wonder that many others did not fall into it. It ought to have been railed round."

They soon discovered that there was no water in the pit; and then amidst breathless silence, two men were gently lowered. The lookers-on stood round in grim silence, waiting for the signal their comrades were to give to be drawn up again. At last it came, and the men began slowly and carefully to draw up the ropes. When those from below reached the surface, the pallor of their faces showed weirdly in the torch-light. The head, Mr. Robert Simmons, went straight to Lord Fielden. "My lord," he said, "it is there."

"What is there?" asked Harry, hardly able to control his emotion.

"The skeleton, my lord, of what was once Sir Karl Allanmore."

A solemn hush fell on them all. Found at last—he who had been lost and believed guilty all these years!

"I will go down with you," said Lord Fielden; and, in spite of all remonstrance, he carried out his resolution.

It was a terrible place, but not so horrible as he had imagined. The pit was very deep, and dark as night; but, to all appearance, there was nothing living in it—no rats, no creeping reptiles. The walls were dry and hard; if ever there had been water, it had long since dried up. Lord Fielden shuddered as he glanced around.

The three men standing by looked at each other in horror. Who was to be the first to touch what remained of the baronet? It lay a few inches from the spot, immediately under the opening.

"He must have been dead, I should think, when he reached the ground," remarked Lord Fielden.

With reverent hands he examined what had once been the body of one of the handsomest and kindliest of men. There was nothing repulsive about it. It was but a white and perfect skeleton. The clothes Sir Karl had worn were unveiled, and fell to pieces at a touch, the gold watch and chain were not broken, and one of the men noticed that the former had stopped at twenty minutes past nine.

"That must have been the time at which he met with the accident," said Lord Fielden.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

It was noon of the day following when Gertrude asked her mother if she would go down-stairs. Dolores, worn out with her sorrows, had slept the sound sleep of exhaustion; but Gertrude, lying by her side, had heard the solemn tramp of the burden-bearers, and knew what had been brought home.

"They have found him, mamma," she said, gently, "just where he fell; and Harry says he must have died before he reached the ground, so that he could not have suffered much. It was only the intense agony of one moment, and then all was over."

Dolores grasped her daughter's arm.

"What is that?" she cried, trembling from head to foot, "What is it, Gertrude?"

Through the open window came the peal of muffled bells—clear, distinct.

"It is for papa," replied the girl. "All these years they have believed him guilty, and now they are endeavoring to outvie each other in doing him honor. All the church bells bells around will ring muffled peals for him; but, ah, mamma, no Christian in those churches stood up and said, 'Think twice before you pronounce judgment on an absent man!'"

And she did not. It was a terrible vigil that Lady Allanmore kept by her husband's coffin; for, though there were times when she felt half fainting by it, she would not leave it until it was borne away.

His kindly face would never bend over her again, his arms would never more infold her, his lips never be pressed to hers; she would never rest again with her head on his breast, feeling that her sure refuge was there; but she would rather have knelt by his coffin than have sat by another on a throne. Lady Fielden came to her at last on the day appointed for the funeral.

Nearly the whole country had been to do him homage; men, women and children had crowded round the bier, and people had wept as much to see the fair-haired wife beside the coffin as they had wept for him who lay within it.

"My dearest Dolores," asked Lady Fielden gently, "will you come away? I have not asked you before. I have felt that if you liked to spend these hours with your beloved dead, you had a right to do so, but now the day is come when he is to be laid to rest at last, and you must come away."

Dolores raised her white, worn face to that of her old friend.

"Where will they lay him?" she asked.

"By Gertrude's desire he will be buried at Scarsdale. There is an open space of ground in the park, and she says that it will be your wish to have a mausoleum erected there. She thinks to have him buried so near to you, where you can go every day and strew some flowers on his grave, will be like some little atonement for letting him lie all those years unburied."

Again Dolores bent her head over the velvet pall; and Lady Fielden heard her murmur—

"I did not know, my darling, I did not know!"

"You will like that, will you not, Dolores?" said Lady Fielden.

And she answered meekly, "Yes."

"You will come with me, my dear?" continued her friend. "Gertrude come and help me—come and persuade your mother to go away."

The white, worn face from which all light had gone, and the quivering lips were piteous to see. Lady Allanmore kissed the velvet pall.

"If I must go," she said, "good-by, dear love, good-by."

As she bent over the coffin, she saw the ring for the first time; a low cry came from her lips.

"Who brought this here, Gertrude?" she cried, clinging to her daughter.

"We found it on his finger," said Lord Fielden; "and, thinking you might like it, I laid it here."

Gertrude took the ring from the coffin and kissed it. Dolores looked at it with weeping eyes.

"The last time I saw it," she said, "it was shining on my husband's finger, and it sparkled in the sunlight just as he was leaving me. I kissed it then, Gertrude, I shall wear it until I die."

The book-keeper's occupation renders him specially liable to stomach trouble. The hasty breakfast, the "quick lunch," the long hours spent in stooping over journal and ledger, with lack of exercise, all tend to the derangement of the stomach.

When the stomach is in a healthy condition the feeling after a meal is one of satisfaction and comfort. Whenever there is discomfort after eating it is a sign of stomach derangement or disease.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition perfectly and permanently. The cures effected by this medicine are almost countless.

"I have taken one bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for indigestion and liver complaint," writes Mr. C. M. Wilson, of Yadkin College, Davidson Co., N. C. "Have had no bad spells since I commenced taking your medicine—in fact have not felt like the same man. Before I took the 'Golden Medical Discovery' I could not eat anything without awful distress, but now I can eat anything I wish without having unpleasant feelings."

Don't be fooled into trading a substance for a shadow. Any substitute offered as "just as good" as "Golden Medical Discovery" is a shadow of that medicine. There are cures behind every claim made for the "Discovery," which no "just as good" medicine can show.

QUOTATIONS ON THE WALL STREET MARKET

The Quotations of the Leading Stocks —Market Letters.

The feature of the Wall street market to-day was the continued onslaught that was made on C. P. R. and other Canadian stocks by the bears across the line. The fact that there was no London market helped out the Wall street operations and they hammered C.P.R. as low as 121 1-8. It closed at 121 7-8. Twin City was pounded to par and Sloss fell to 43. The depression in the American stocks was not so marked.

There was no Chicago grain market today.

AT ST. JOHN'S CHURCH.

A Unique Feature in the Musical Service Yesterday.

Those who accompanied the 57th Regiment to divine service yesterday afternoon in St. John's church were treated to a delightful innovation introduced in connection with the excellent musical service.

The services of the organ was dispensed with and the music was rendered to the accompaniment of the regimental band of some thirty strong.

The band, it is needless to say, acquitted itself in a highly creditable manner, and came in for a warm share of praise in connection with a really excellent musical service.

CARIGNAN SALIERES.

French Fighting Men Sent Over to Canada in 1665.

Mr. F. D. Monk, K. C., M. P., recently delivered the closing lecture of this year's series of the Lindsay Collegiate Institute lecture course. His subject was "A Page of Old French-Canadian History," the story of the regiment of Carignan Salieres. After a graphic description of the Champlain and Richelieu valley, Mr. Monk sketched the origin of the regiment of Carignan Salieres in France about 1650, noted their many deeds of daring and their last fight in Europe against the Turks in 1664. The dangor of the French colony from the Iroquois was so great that Louis XIV. sent out a regiment of regulars for protection in 1665, and the Carignan Salieres were chosen. Their work was to fortify the Richelieu valley, drive back the hated Iroquois and hunt them away from the borders of New France. This they did at great cost to themselves. Their work done, the regiment was disbanded, and the majority of surviving officers and men settled in the Richelieu. Their descendants are there and throughout Quebec still, farmers most of them, but with a military spirit that flamed out on the Plains of Abraham and has since 1763 shown itself many times in Britain's cause.

A Very Old Staff.

A large employer of labor in this city, says The Montreal Star, who has in his service many hands past the age of usefulness told this joke to a circle of amused friends.

A gentleman from Chicago or somewhere else came to one of my deputies and said, "I can save you from a strike if you will get me $500."

I said: "That seems a very business-like proposition," and I led him on. Finally I said: "I will tell you what I will do—I will give——"

"It's no use," said the visitor; "I will not take a cent less than $500."

"Wait a minute, my good friend," said I, "I will make it easier for you. I will give you $500 to get up a strike." The delegate or whatever he was saw the point and left.

Costly Books.

When Colonel Robert G. Ingersoll was living in Peoria he was called upon one day by General John A. Logan, says the New York Times. The colonel was upstairs at the time, and General Logan was ushered into the library, where on a table were three volumes of Voltaire's works, an edition de luxe representing all that was best in the bookbinder's art. General Logan picked them up one at a time, absorbed in his admiration of their beauties. While so engaged Colonel Ingersoll entered the room.

"Colonel," said the general, holding one of the volumes in his hands, "this is the most magnificent volume I have ever seen. I do not want to seem impertinent, but would you mind telling me what these books cost you?"

"Those books," began the colonel, the twinkle in his eye growing brighter at each word, "cost me—the governorship of Illinois."

Morally Certain of It.

The prosecuting witness, who had a lump over one eye, a black and blue spot under the other, a nose that pointed decidedly awry and various strips of courtplaster on his face evidently arranged without any regard to their artistic effect, testified that the defendant had knocked him senseless and then kicked him in the head and face for several minutes.

"If he knocked you senseless," asked the police justice, "how do you know he kicked you after you were down?"

The witness scratched his jaw and reflected.

"I know it, jedge," he replied, "'cause that's what I'd 'a' done to him if I'd got him down. You can bet on that!"

For Body and Soul.

Here is a curious advertisement, republished in the Cornhill Magazine from an eighteenth century paper: "Wanted—For a family who have bad health, a sober, steady person, in the capacity of a doctor, surgeon and apothecary. He must occasionally act in the capacity of butler and dress hair and wigs. He will be required to read prayers occasionally and to preach a sermon every Sunday. The reason of this advertisement is that the family cannot any longer afford the expense of the physical tribe and wish to be at a certain expense for their bodies and souls. A good salary will be given."

"BORN A MAN, "DIED A GROCER."

LUCUBRATION OVER A WELL-KNOWN PHRASE RECENTLY REVAMPED.

Man's Life of More Value Than the Things of Life—Life Robbed of Dignity When It Loses and Wastes Itself in the Over-Absorbing Effort at Making a Living.

A correspondent, who describes himself as "one of the unfortunates that make a living by selling groceries," enquires as to the meaning of the sentence in a recent editorial in The Globe: "Over too many men the epitaph, mutatis mutandis, might be inscribed, 'Born a man, died a grocer.'" That paper answers as follows: The meaning is made plain by the related sentence: "They devote themselves to their trade, or business, or profession so selfishly or so sordidly that many of their faculties suffer atrophy." That is to say, a man's life is of more value than the things of life, and he robs life of its dignity and misses its mark who wastes and loses life itself in the over-absorbing effort at making a living.

Ruthless Altar of Trade.

Business circles are crowded with men who are sacrificing the essential elements of their manhood on the ruthless altar of their trade. It is not that the stress and tension of their life is increasing. Every man who has anything to do with modern city life feels the strain of it. The burden becomes a curse when a man shuts out of his life all else and gives himself unreservedly to the devouring routine of his crade. To care for nothing else in life, to shut out all large human interests, to feel no oneness with mankind, to cherish no hopes for one's self or one's fellows or one's country, to be content in being only a bit of machinery in the great grinding mill of trade—that is at once a crime against himself. A man cannot do the best for his occupation, dignifying it, improving it, enriching it with new ideas and better methods, unless he keeps his own manhood independent of and nobler than the things he does. Not to know his manhood's worth is to belittle that worth, and, changing the terms to suit the individual, the old-time epitaph would serve: Born a man, died a grocer.

The Professional's Greater Crime.

Professional men are in the same danger as business men, and their surrender to the gross and material in life is the greater crime. Their educational career in school and university, if it were truly educative, should safeguard them against narrowness, and even their professional training should make for breadth of culture. But in everyday life too many teachers and physicians and lawyers and preachers have little interest in the throb and passion of life outside their own little professional sphere. The books they read are not to feed their own life, but to supply the needs of their profession. Their interest in literature dies, and they stand aloof from the social and intellectual life of men. Their professional service suffers because of their loss of vitality, and the epitaph is theirs, too: Born a man, died a—teacher, or physician, or lawyer, or preacher.

Nowhere is this atrophy more general or more hurtful than in politics and public service. Not a few politicians are blinded by partyism, and their views of life are narrowed by self-interest and superficial study. They deal with the problems of government, but they have never considered the first principles of government. Externally they touch world-wide issues, but they are without understanding. They know nothing of what Rosebery meant when he spoke of "statesmen of the imagination"; they are politicians of the ward, and the polling-booth, and the patronage. Manhood dies out of their politics, and with it dies patriotism, and their epitaph runs: Born a man, died a politician.

Keep Life From Being Warped.

And all this suggests to the individual himself, to the home, to the Church, and to the State, the high and pressing duty of keeping life from being warped and desolated and undone by the too close and too constant touch of the things of life. A man may make money, and build a great house, and buy all the apparatus of culture, the paintings, the statuary, the books, the music, but if his emotions are wasted, if his faculties are benumbed, if his power of appreciating the true and the beautiful is atrophied, in trying to gain the things of life he lost life itself. This is the tragedy of everyday life. And to save us from that fate we have schools and universities for our youth, and for after years we have literature, and history, and philosophy, and the greater sciences, and travel, and the great study of life itself, by which, even in narrowest lives and most sordid environment, we have "glimpses that will make us less forlorn." To know how to do life's commonest duties without losing life's wonder and its bloom—that is the true philosophy of life.

KIDNAPPED BY INDIANS.

Discovered Years Afterwards in the Wilds —Strange Story From the Soo Regarding Identity of a White Child.

From information recently received in the Soo it is believed that Maud Gillespie, who as a girl thirteen years of age mysteriously disappeared from her home near Thessalon thirteen years ago this coming summer, has been found living with the Indians at Green Lake.

Fourteen years ago Maud Gillespie, at that time a girl thirteen years of age, lived with her parents about three miles out of Thessalon. One morning in the summer she started to go into the little village and has never been seen nor heard from since. Thessalon at that time was a little place of perhaps 500 or 600 inhabitants, who earned their living in a couple of little sawmills established in what was then little more than a wilderness. Late in the evening after the parents of the girl had become alarmed at her absence the entire population turned out to search for her, but no trace was found that night nor the following day. Excitement became intense, and the mills were shut down and all kinds of business ceased while the people hunted for the girl. For two weeks this kept up without avail, and the neighboring towns of the two Sioos were searched because of rumors that the girl had been seen in them, but no trace of any sort or description could be found, and at last she was given up for dead and the search abandoned.

The years passed and her father died, her mother marrying again a man named Dunphy and now lives in the Canadian Soo on Gore street. Maud Gillespie had been forgotten by all but her mother, who has never given up the hope of seeing her daughter again.

A short time ago an old resident of Thessalon named White while traveling on the Soo branch of the C. P. R. overheard two prospectors who had been exploring the almost unknown regions back of Thessalon telling of a white woman whom they had found living with the Indians there. These Indians live in the most primitive manner, in tents, and few of them can speak a word of English. Mr. White was interested in the story and soon called to mind the strange disappearance of Maud Gillespie fourteen years ago. He inquired of the prospectors regarding the woman, and upon his return communicated with Mrs. Dunphy, who has seen the Indian agent and taken the matter to the Government, asking that steps be taken to recover the girl, which will undoubtedly be done. The story told by the prospectors is an interesting one. They had been exploring the regions back of Thessalon in the search for mineral wealth and had seen no human being for weeks. Suddenly they came upon this village of Indians on Green Lake, near the Missisauga River, about 100 miles back of Thessalon. While trying to talk with the Indians they were startled to see a white woman who appeared delighted when she heard them speak in English. They talked with her, and she told them that years ago when she was a small girl she had been stolen by the Indians and had lived with them ever since, never seeing a white man except the French trappers, with whom she was unable to talk. She was anxious to get away from the Indians and implored the prospectors to aid her. They promised to do so. The girl speaks English in the manner of one who has not had occasion to use it for years, and is as uncouth as most of the Indians themselves. The prospectors found it necessary to use the simplest sort of language in order to make themselves understood, and said that they are in doubt whether or not the sight of the girl will be welcome to her mother, if, indeed, she is the one whom Mr. White and others now believe she is.

SPREAD BY THE HIGH WIND.

Farm Buildings Two Miles Away Burned —Eleven Stores and Twelve Residences Consumed by the Flames—As Many More Considerably Damaged— Fire Started by Children Playing With Matches.

Tillsonburg, June 2.—The worst conflagration in the history of Tillsonburg occurred yesterday, when eleven business places and twelve residences were razed to the ground and as many more considerably damaged. The fire started about noon at the rear of Buckberrough's large blacksmith shop, it is supposed, by some children playing with matches. The fire then spread to Darrow's foundry, and then to the barns of W. Parker and E. J. House.

In a very short time the flames had crept to the residences of ex-Mayor Sinclair, Mrs. R. H. Armstrong, and to four residences owned by William Parker, and occupied by C. H. Denton, Mr. Fowlk, Mrs. W. Harris, J. Hillman, and one new house, just completed.

By this time the rear of Mr. Parker's own residence and butcher shop, and the stores of J. M. Clark, J. E. Weston, P. P. Newell, residence and store of Thomas Fero, office of W. Brady, V.S., and Town Clerk Raynes were in flames. Inside of two hours the fine brick block of Dr. Sinclair and buildings covering over three acres were all burned to the ground.

The high wind was carrying great flakes of cinders to the west, and many dwellings were ignited. Four fine residences on Washington avenue caught, and were also destroyed. They belonged to J. E. House, S. H. Betts, J. I. McMehan and A. H. Robertson. Heroic work of the citizens saved the homes of Rev. Mr. Bosworth and G. T. R. Agent Stinson. In the block west of this, J. E. Devlin's barn and George Carle's stable were also consumed.

The cinders were carried for miles into the country, and caused great havoc on the farm of F. Sanders, at least two miles away. His barns and sheds were destroyed, and his house was only saved by hard work. The wide street, Broadway, saved the west side of the town from being wiped out also. Several places were on fire at different times. McDonald's and Law's blocks had a close call. The plate glass windows in the stores on the West Side were nearly all ruined by the heat, J. McIntyre's being the only one to escape.

The roofs of houses on the West Side all suffered considerably, but the bucket brigades kept the fire under control.

DEATH IN THE CYCLONE.

Two Hundred Reported Killed at Gainesville, Ga.—Cotton Mills Blown Down and Eighty People Buried.

Gainesville, Ga., June 2.—A tornado of terrific force struck this city yesterday afternoon, causing fearful loss of life in this city and New Holland and White Sulphur. As near as can be calculated, the results are 85 men, women and children dead, and perhaps 40 more fatally injured, with a property loss of something like $300,000. The death list is yet imperfect, not all the bodies having been recovered and identified. Many of them were mangled beyond recognition.

The storm appeared suddenly a little before 1 o'clock, and, within two minutes it had killed nearly 100 persons, torn two stories from the five-floor brick factory of the Gainesville Cotton Mills, demolished almost 200 cottages, raised two brick stores to the ground, and blown down innumerable outbuildings.

The list of the dead is confined mainly to operatives of the Gainesville Cotton Mills and the Pacolt Cotton Mills, and two-thirds of them were women and children. The tornado did its appalling work in such an incredibly short time that it is difficult to obtain a coherent description of its character. It appears to have swept down from the northwest, striking the Gainesville Mills with a roar like the report of artillery. After lifting two storeys from this structure, it swept on to the northward, leaving a trail of destruction along Summit street, which is inhabited almost exclusively by negroes. Nearly 100 cottages of colored people on this spot were levelled to the ground, but, by a fortunate circumstance, the tenants were mostly absent, having left the city in the morning to take part in a picnic.

Says 200 Are Dead.

Atlanta, Ga., June 2.— Governor Torrell last night issued a proclamation, saying about 200 were dead at Gainesville and 1,000 in need of aid. He calls on Georgians to send relief.

Government Issues Bulletin.

Washington, June 2.—Although the crests of the floods in Northeastern Kansas and Northwestern Missouri were apparently reached yesterday, yet the extreme gravity of the situation cannot be over estimated. The stage of the water at Kansas City yesterday morning was 35 feet, but 2 feet lower than the great high water stage of June 20, 1844. At 6 p.m. the water was stationary, 34.9 feet, with light rain still falling.

Alexander Fraser Dead.

Ottawa, June 2.—Mr. Alexander Fraser, one of the pioneer lumbermen of the Ottawa Valley, died yesterday at the age of 74 years. Mr. Fraser was one of Ottawa's millionaires, and was connected with many large enterprises. The late Mr. Fraser was a Highland Scotchman, his parents having emigrated to Canada in the nineteenth century. His sons, John B. and W. H. B., are known as the Fraser Lumber Company of Ottawa.

Whole Family Held Up.

St. Thomas, June 2.—With big revolvers cocked and ready for use two masked burglars held up the Sutton family in their Southwald home early Sunday morning. In approved western style the desperadoes robbed the inmates one after another. The family consists of Mrs. A. Sutton, Mrs. A. Wallace, three Sutton girls, and the hired man, Fred Osborne. The robbers forced the family to chat with them for an hour and then departed, Frontenac Crops Spoiled.

Kingston, June 2.—No amount of rain will save the hay crop in this section, grain crops having been practically laid waste by the ground being rent assunder by huge fissures. The fruit crops will be a failure. Plums and pears will be particularly scarce, as these are dropping from trees for lack of moisture to sustain life. Berries will also be a light crop.

Three Men Killed.

Elmira, N. Y., June 2.—An explosion yesterday afternoon at 5.30 destroyed the plant where jovite, a high explosive, was manufactured. Three men were killed and several injured.

Killed by a Fall.

Ottawa, June 2.—Thomas Dorsey of Manotick, aged 70 years, met a tragic death yesterday. He was driving into Manotick Village, and was thrown from his buggy. Death was almost instantaneous.

PRIOR'S DISMISSAL.

Followed by Lieut.-Governor Calling Upon Mr. McBride.

TO FORM A NEW CABINET.

Chimney Creek Tender Revelation Was Too Strong For the Lieutenant-Governor—The Question of Party Lines Still Undecided—Probable Colleagues of the New Premier —Another Election.

1 PRIOR GRIT

Victoria, B.C., June 2.—The Prior Ministry has been routed, horse, foot and artillery, by the action of the Governor yesterday in asking for the resignation of Premier Prior, and calling on Mr. McBride to form a Ministry. The latter was sworn in at 1 o'clock, and when the House met was not in his place, as he cannot sit till re-elected.

Mr. R. F. Green, Opposition whip, announced that Mr. McBride had been called on to form a Government and had undertaken the task, and asked for an adjournment until today to enable him to complete the task. This was debated, and when the motion put it was carried by 19 to 14, Messrs. Eberts, Wells and Clifford voting aye.

The Probable Cabinet.

If a Cabinet is formed of the present Opposition it will likely consist of Messrs. McBride, Premier and Attorney-General; Green, Minister of Mines; Tatlow, Finance Minister; Petterson, Provincial Secretary; Oliver, Chief Commissioner of Lands and Works, and McPhillips, President of Council.

The real test of Mr. McBride's strength will come to-day, when, if he fails to organize on party lines, some of the Conservatives declare they will vote against him. Mr. McBride, however, declares he will be guided by the caucus, which met last night to determine whether the Opposition will remain a composite organization or resolve itself into original elements of Liberals and Conservatives, and will announce the line on which he proposes to proceed this morning.

Reason For Dismissal.

The Governor, in his letter of dismissal, says the late Premier's conception of the Independence of Parliament Act is such that he can no longer give him his confidence.

May Be a Murder.

Belleville, June 2.—On Saturday afternoon some boys discovered the dead body of a man named Peene under a bush on Long Point. In the neck was a large hole, made by some kind of sharp instrument. The affair is being investigated by the authorities, but from the meagre details at present obtainable it is impossible to state whether he committed suicide or not. The unfortunate man was about 45 years of age, and leaves a wife and family. He left home about two weeks ago to look for employment.

Winter Wheat in Manitoba.

Winnipeg, Man., June 2.—The question of the successful growing of winter wheat in Manitoba has been solved by William Martin, owner of Rope farm, Saint Jean Baptiste. It is a short distance from Winnipeg. Mr. Martin has a field of Kansas red winter wheat, which was sown in Aug. 1, 1902, which is now 22 inches high, is just beginning to head, and will be ready for the binders in another six weeks. The plant is strong and gives every evidence of an abundant crop.

Fast Atlantic Service.

Ottawa, June 2.—The time expired yesterday for the receipt of tenders for the fast Atlantic service. The Trade and Commerce Department admits the receipt of several tenders.

STRIKE OF 90,000 PEOPLE.

Great Strike of Textile Workers Affecting 600 Firms — Wage Loss Daily of $125,000.

Philadelphia, June 2.—A general strike of textile workers, involving 90,000 operatives, was inaugurated here yesterday. Of the 600 firms engaged in the textile industry here 47 have granted the demands of the union, and their plants, employing about 15,000 hands, are in operation. All of the sixty-three ingrain carpet mills are idle, affecting directly 13,000 hands. All of the dyers, who are said to control the situation, are on strike, with the exception of those of the Berkshire mills. Thirty-nine branches of the textile trade are affected by the strike, and the interests affected are worth $100,000,000. The daily loss in wages will amount to $125,000. While the dyers continue on strike, the mills must remain idle, no matter what the other textile workers may do.

THE GOVERNMENT PRINTERS.

Did Not Stand to Their Intention to Strike at Ottawa.

Ottawa, June 2.—(Globe Special.)—The printers at the Bureau were at work yesterday morning, and appeared to have abandoned the idea of a strike. Such being the case, the question of converting the Bureau from a union into an open office will not arise. The Government had contemplated the acceptance of the service of printers who did not hold union cards, providing a strike had taken place, but the Bureau employes appear to have regarded discretion as the better part of valor, and hence the question of employing union or non-union men will not, it is thought, arise. The decision of the printers is, from the point of view of self-interest, an admirable one. Neither the Government nor Parliament are in the temper to brook any dictation from the Ottawa Typographical Union, and it would not take much to bring about a determination to close the Bureau altogether, and have the printing done by outside firms.

Sir Thomas Intervenes.

Montreal, June 2.—Through the intervention of Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, the differences between the Montreal longshoremen and the shippers have been settled, and there will not be any further trouble on the wharf as threatened.

To Give Europe the Plague.

London, June 2.—A lurid story from Sofia is to the effect that revolutionary leaders there have in their possession a large quantity of Indian plague bacillus, with which they threaten to infect Constantinople, Salonica and even Berlin, if, within eight days from time of warning the powers do not agree to the execution of the Berlin treaty. "We shall not die alone," they say, "for there shall follow us into the grave myriads of people in Europe which robbed us of our liberty."

Nearly Killed.

Windsor, June 2.—W. H. Naylor, an insurance man, was nearly killed by inhaling escaping gas in the International Hotel last week.

Mrs. Fairbanks tells how neglect of warning symptoms will soon prostrate a woman. She thinks woman's safeguard is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Ignorance and neglect are the cause of untold female suffering, not only with the laws of health but with the chance of a cure. I did not heed the warnings of headaches, organic pains, and general weariness, until I was well nigh prostrated. I knew I had to do something. Happily I did the right thing. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound faithfully, according to directions, and was rewarded in a few weeks to find that my aches and pains disappeared, and I again felt the glow of health through my body. Since I have been well I have been more careful, I have also advised a number of my sick friends to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and they have never had reason to be sorry. Yours very truly, MRS. MAY FAIRBANKS, 216 South 7th St., Minneapolis, Minn." (Mrs. Fairbanks is one of the most successful and highest salaried travelling saleswomen in the West.)

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhœa, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, bloating (or flatulence), general debility, indigestion, and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all-gone" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, blues, and hopelessness, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles. Refuse to buy any other medicine, for you need the best.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—For over two years I suffered more than tongue can express with kidney and bladder trouble. My physician pronounced my trouble catarrh of the bladder, caused by displacement of the womb. I had a frequent desire to urinate, and it was very painful, and lumps of blood would pass with the urine. Also had backache very often.

"After writing to you, and receiving your reply to my letter, I followed your advice, and feel that you and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have cured me. The medicine drew my womb into its proper place, and then I was well. I never feel any pain now, and can do my housework with ease."—MRS. ALICE LAMON, Kincaid, Miss.

No other medicine for female ills in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

$5000 FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of above testimonials, which will prove their absolute genuineness.

TUESDAY, JUNE 2, 1903.

THE RAILWAY BILL.

Good Progress Made With Mr. Blair's Bill in the House.

FRUIT MARKS ACT UPHELD.

Two Proposed Amendments Lost on Division—Unearned Railway Land Grants—Rebates on Agricultural Implements—Mr. Borden Gives Notice of Motion of Proposed Increase of Iron and Steel Duties.

Ottawa, June 2.—Sir Frederick Borden's bill to amend the Militia Act was dropped in the House yesterday. The bill was quite comprehensive, providing among other things for a Canadian general officer commanding, an increase in the permanent corps and the creation of a cadet corps.

Sugar Imported Into Canada.

A return was brought down showing that during the year 1902, 58,742,863 pounds of refined sugar were imported into Canada. Raw sugar to the amount of 363,543,022 pounds was imported during the same period. Of the raw sugar Great Britain furnished 210,371 pounds, B.W. Indies 48,711,899 pounds, British Guiana 18,066,649, Hong Kong 3,197, Belgium 3,492,653, China 9,813, Danish East Indies 34,891,284, Fiji 11,051,600, France 59,350,276, Germany 172,641,163, Peru 4,246,815, Porto Rico 2,988, United States 1,868,182.

The Fruit Marks Act.

On the second reading of his bill to amend the Fruit Marks Act, providing that the onus of inspecting and brading fruit should be placed on inspectors to be paid by those asking for such inspector's services, and that No. 2 apples should be defined, being called, Mr. Smith (Wentworth) spoke strongly of the grievances under which fruit growers labor.

Hon. Sydney Fisher said the packer should bear the onus of marking the goods honestly. It would require an army of inspectors to accomplish the same ends as those of the Fruit Marks Act, the protection of the buyer. The act had worked uniformly well, and had enabled shippers to build up good reputations for themselves.

Mr. Lancaster (Lincoln) supported the amendment, and said that shippers did not build his own reputation but that of the place he ships from by sending first-class fruit. A shipper should not be required to wait for years to build up a reputation before receiving the maximum price for his fruit. Fraud was possible under the present act, and the blame unfortunately came upon the honest shipper.

Mr. Wade (Annapolis) said the Fruit Marks Act had operated satisfactorily throughout the country.

Mr. Simmons (Middlesex) said the Fruit Marks Act should not have gone further than to require that the quality should be uniform throughout the barrel.

The motion to read the bill a second time was lost.

Mr. Henderson's (Halton) bill to amend the Fruit Marks Act, by providing for the abolition of grades in marking and leaving the act as it was in 1901, was also lost on the second reading being called.

The Railway Commission.

The evening session of the House was devoted to consideration of Mr. Blair's Railway Commission Bill.

It was decided that three members should constitute the commission.

An amendment proposing that the commissioners may be dismissed by the Governor-in-Council for cause, was passed. The original clause made dismissal possible only by the action of Parliament.

Unearned Railway Lands.

Canada has 12,835,136 acres of her fair domain voted to the railways which have not been earned within the time specified for the earning thereof. The charters may, of course, be extended, otherwise the following areas represent lands earned for which the time specified for earning has lapsed, Mr. Scott was informed:

Alberta Railway Company, 384,000 acres.

Alberta and Arthabasca, 1,920,000 acres.

Brandon and South Western, 108,000 acres.

Calgary and Edmonton, 287,552 acres.

Lac Seul Railway, 115,200 acres.

G.N.W. Central, 2,560,000 acres.

Medicine Hat Railway, 51,200 acres.

Manitoba and North Western, 1,417,024 acres.

Manitoba and South Western, 36,800 acres.

Manitoba and South Western, 36,800 acres.

N. W. Railway of Canada, 3,350,000 acres.

Long Lake and Saskatchewan, 582,560 acres.

Rock Mountain Railway and Coal Company, 384,000 acres.

Wood Mountain and Qu'Appelle, 1,536,000 acres.

Lands voted to railways, and which may yet be earned under existing legislation, amount to 582,624 acres.

Binder Twine Prices.

Mr. Blain was informed that fifty-nine buyers purchased binder twine since the issue of the circular in May, 1903, at the following prices: Pure Manila, 14,975 pounds, at 11¼c and 11½c; 48,290 lbs. at 10½c and 10¾c; King special, 5,150 lbs. at 9 1-3c and 9¼c.

The numerical strength of the Royal Canadian Regiment of Infantry Mr. Smith (Wentworth) was informed was 359 men of all ranks. Sergt.-Majors are paid $1.25 per day; after four years, $1.50; after eight years, $1.75. Quartermaster-sergeants, after eight years, $1.50; sergeant-instructors, after three years, $1.15, after six years $1.25; sergeants 80c. bugler 80c, bugler under 16 30c. Officers of the permanent corps Royal Canadian Regiment who hold a first-class long course certificate will have to pass an examination for substantive captain.

Mr. Lancaster was informed that for the lease of 700 cubic feet on water per second from the old Welland Canal, the Hamilton Electric Light and Cataract Power Company pays $21.000 per year.

Large sums were paid in rebates on agricultural implements exported from Canada during the years 1901-2. The largest rebates were: Massey-Harris, $49,781, in 1901; $89,696, in 1902. Verity Plow Company, Brantford, $3,165, in 1901; $1,231, in 1902. The other rebates were trivial.

Iron and Steel Duties.

Before the House rose last night, Mr. Borden moved that, when the House next went into Committee of Supply, he would move the following resolution:

"This House is of the opinion that the tariff of customs duties should give such protection to iron and steel industries as will not only secure to our own products and manufacturers the Canadian market in articles now produced or manufactured in this country, but will also develop and sustain the manufactures in Canada of other iron and steel products, which, at present, are imported in large quantities from other countries. And that the present tariff of customs duties should be now readjusted on this principle."

Killed in Bicycle Race.

Cambridge, Mass., June 1.—Harry D. Elkes of Glen's Falls, N. Y., the premier motor pace follower of the United States, was killed; Will Stinson, another well-known follower, and F. A. Gateley, a motor steersman, were seriously injured in an accident at the bicycle meeting on the new Charles River Park track Saturday afternoon. The accident was due to the bursting of the rear tire on Elkes' wheel.

Found Dead Body.

Stratford, June 1.—Saturday morning while out shooting crows in Leonard Shaefer's bush, near Tavistock Junction, some boys found the dead body of a man, hanging. It proved to be that of Henry Hahn, about 70 years of age, who had lately been employed at the Commercial Hotel in Tavistock, but who formerly farmed in South Easthope. Deceased disappeared on Wednesday last.

Killed at Barn Raising.

Chatham, June 1.—Saturday afternoon John O'Neil, of Orford Township, a young man about 26 years old, was instantly killed. O'Neill was assisting at a barn-raising and while on the top of the barn he accidentally slipped and fell headlong to the ground, with fatal results.

If You Fail to Remove Your Burden of Disease in June, Your Life is not Secure.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Will Do For You What It Did For Mr. J. B. Butts.

There never was a remedy so highly recommended for making sick people well in summer time as Paine's Celery Compound. It successfully grapples with all the ailments common in summer time and never fails to remove long standing and chronic diseases that have baffled the skill of physicians. When Paine's Celery Compound is used there is no long waiting for result. It tones the stomach, improves the appetite, assists digestion, gives sweet sleep, excites the bowels to healthy action, expels all foul humors from the blood and braces the nerve system. Mr. J. B. Butts, Spadina avenue, Toronto, Ont., says:—

"I had a very bad attack of la grippe, which left me with a nervous and broken down system; I also suffered from indigestion, and sleeplessness added to my misery. I was troubled with horrible nightmares and dreams; indeed my sleeping hours were to me times of terror and fear. I commenced to use patent medicines for my trouble, but derived little benefit from them. I happened to get one of your books at my house, and after reading of the wonderful cures effected by Paine's Celery Compound I decided to give it a trial. In three months I found myself fully and perfectly restored to health and had gained fifteen pounds in weight. I am satisfied that Paine's Celery Compound saved my life, and without it I would not be alive. It is, without doubt, the best remedy in the world."

SALARIES OF CIVIL SERVANTS.

Mr. Lucas' Bill to Provide For Their Garnishment Read a Second Time in the Legislature.

Toronto, June 2.—In the Assembly yesterday a number of petitions were read praying the Government to put the Liquor Act of 1902 in force.

Mr. Whitney presented a petition from the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry, asking the Legislature to extend the tenure of office of municipal councils from one to two years.

Several private bills were read a third time and some were considered in committee.

Among the second readings was Mr. Lucas' bill to provide for the garnishment of the salaries of civil servants.

The Attorney-General asked that it be withdrawn.

Short speeches in its favor were made by Messrs. Lucas, Gross, Smyth, Whitney, Hoyle and Jessop.

Mr. Gibson finally agreed to allow the bill to go to committee, and put on the Opposition the onus of making the bill work.

WOULDN'T TALK ON G. T. P. R.

Manager Charles M. Hays and Leighton McCarthy Interview Ministers.

After the session of the House, which lasted only an hour, the Premier and his colleagues devoted most of the time up to 6 o'clock to receiving the promoters of the proposed Grand Trunk subsidy, among whom were Charles M. Hays, general manager of the company, and Leighton McCarthy, M.P. After the conference, it was announced that there was nothing to give out.

Mr. Hays also had a short interview with Mr. Whitney. What the talk was about the leader of the Opposition would not say. He did say, however, that he would not be in a position to discuss the matter until the Premier announced what the Government intended to do.

MR. HOYLE AND CONMEE ACT.

Capt. Sullivan Arrives to Give Evidence re. Shannon Deal.

Capt. John Sullivan arrived here last night from Ashtabula, O., and will appear to give evidence before the Public Accounts Committee of the Legislature re. the Shannon deal this morning.

Through error last week it was stated that Mr. Hoyle was the only Conservative who voted against Mr. Downey's bill to do away with the Conmee Act in the committee. The fact is Mr. Hoyle was not present, and he says that if he had been he would not only support Mr. Downey's bill but would have moved an amendment in favor of public ownership.

SHORTAGE MADE GOOD.

There Will Be No Prosecution in Henderson Case at Georgetown.

Georgetown, June 2.—Short in his accounts and hard-pressed by numerous creditors, Postmaster Herbert V. Henderson, son of Mr. David Henderson, M. P. for Halton, has left the country. In addition to several hundred dollars of Government funds squandered, many personal friends claim to be out on borrowed money, in sums ranging from $25 to $200. The Government shortage, something less than $400, has been made good by friends. Therefore, there will be no prosecution.

Explosives Captured.

Vienna, June 2.—The Neue Freie Press correspondent at Uskub says the authorities at Koepruelue, Province of Salonica, have captured nine kilograms of dynamite and quantities of other explosives in the houses of two men named Alexo Minoro and G. Orguentschiew, both of whom have been arrested on suspicion of complicity in the recent dynamite outrages at Salonica.

Victim of Shunting Cars.

Toronto, June 2.—Last evening Charles Irvine was struck by a train of shunting cars at the foot of Yonge street. He was fatally injured and died shortly after reaching the hospital.

Boiler Bursting Killed One.

Montreal, June 2.—Napoleon Marren, engineer, was killed yesterday by the explosion of a boiler at Montreal Light, Heat and Power Co. station. Another workman was badly injured.

Do not Take Pills.

Constipation is caused by a lack of water in the system. Most cathartic pills cause a further depletion and make a bad matter worse. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are more mild and gentle in their action and leave the bowels in a natural condition. Their use is not followed by constipation. They also improve the appetite, cleanse and invigorate the stomach and give you a relish for your food. Price 25 cents; all druggists.

O.J.C. Spring Races.

Toronto, June 2.—Eighth Day, Monday, the weather was clear and track fast.

First Race—4½ furlongs, Maiden 2-year-old fillies, Poppy Leaf 1, Sky Blue 2, Lillianette 3.

Second Race—1 mile, 3-year-olds and up, Lapidus 1, Animosity 2, Molly Peyton 3.

Third Race—5½ furlongs, 3-year-olds and up, Messina 1, Stella W. 2, Hallucination 3.

Fourth Race—1 1-16 miles, 3-year-olds and up, Wire In 1, Andy Williams 2, Chamblee 3.

Sixth Race—1 mile, 3-year-olds and up, Flora 1, Tommy Hill 2, Caithness 3.

Seventh Race—5½ furlongs, 3-year-olds and up, Golden Cottage 1, Andrattus 2, Hie Away 3.

The Glow of Health.

When the blood is rich and pure there is a healthful glow to the complexion, which speaks of the vigour and vitality of the system. There is no more certain way for pale weak people to attain the glow of health than by the persistent use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great food cure, which forms new, rich, red blood and creates new nerve force.

Dr. Pitcher's Backache-Kidney Tablets.

THERE is no remedy equal to these Tablets for removing all poisons and impurities from the blood, and giving health, strength and vitality.

They cure blood humors, skin eruptions, headache, backache, sideache, dragging pain in the loins, feeling of weariness and depression, torpid liver and all dangerous and distressing kidney troubles.

They are small, chocolate coated and easily taken.

MRS. L. J. BEAVER, Chalmers Street, Galt, Ont., says: "I think I have always had backache more or less ever since I was a child, until I used Dr. Pitcher's Backache-Kidney Tablets. They have cured me, not only of that constant pain in the small of my back, but of that depressing weariness that the slightest exertion seemed to produce. I sleep well nights, the languor has disappeared, and I am not easily fatigued as formerly. These Tablets have given me the greatest relief. I have not had headaches or backache since I used them. I feel buoyant and vigorous, and consider these tablets a truly valuable remedy."

The price of the Tablets is 50c. a bottle, at druggist or by mail. The Dr. Elias Pitcher Co., Toronto.

REV. DR. RAINSFORD.

The Experiences of One of New York's Greatest Clerics When He Was a Curate in Toronto, Ont.

It was a new experience for the Torontonian of a quarter century back to go to St. James's, and hear the straight, clear-cut addresses of William S. Rainsford, who is now one of the greatest clerics in New York with a great parish and many clergy under him. He talked business, for his business was to bring men and women into the church. He had no mannerism—who could have mannerism at twenty-six and be aught else but a fool? And a fool Rainsford was not. He had come to Canada from England unacquainted and unknown. He had preached a mission in London, Ont., and had been invited to Toronto. Here Dean Grasett, the rector of the Cathedral, talked with him, says The Toronto News' Day by Day man. Much impressed by his sincerity, originality and irresistible earnestness, the good dean invited the young Englishman to remain for a time. Rainsford became a guest at the rectory, and there were prepared the clear-cut sermons that went like arrows to men's consciences. He was no born orator; in fact, he was no orator. His addresses, he confesses, and people who were intimate with him, knew at the time, were the product of ceaseless labor. There are some to whom every swan is an ordinary goose, and these took umbrage at the young preacher's methods of preparation. One of his customs was to wander out into the churchyard, and, climbing one of the old trees, to ensconce himself on a comfortable branch. There, with the volumes that he had stowed in his pockets, and his notebook, he would make ready the address that was to electrify his congregation that night. Certain good folk thought it was undignified for a clergyman to climb trees, but Rainsford, if he ever heard of the objecions, took no pains to reply to them. He might have found a fine argument in the case of Zaccheus, but he refrained. He was full of animal spirits, and he wanted fresh air. He got it in the tree tops.

The mission lasted four months, and for those four months the Anglican churches in Toronto—and some other churches—were awakened as they never had been before. Thousands were turned away every night. Even the chancel was invaded by the auditors; often four hundred persons were crowded within the chancel rail. There are men in Toronto to-day who will never forget those sermons. They were burned into the mind, not by rant, or mordant reasoning, but by clear-cut Gospel interpretation. One of the men who heard had been a good fellow, a viveur. He changed his ways, and he made no parade about it. Before he died, the citizens of Toronto elected him to the highest office in their gift. When the mission was ended Rainsford returned to England, but the parishioners of St. James' were determined to have him permanently with them, and he came back to be their curate. His four years of work in the parish were full of success. He did much that needed to be done, for the town was growing away from the Cathedral; there were no Sunday cars to bring worshippers to church, and the long walk was not popular. But the congregation began to fill up when Rainsford resumed work.

His wife gave him valuable assistance. She was a breezy, good-natured, enthusiastic Englishwoman, whose father, a Mr. Green, was one of the proprietors of the famous Green line of steamships plying between Australia and the Mother Country. Mr. Green was able to give his daughter all the help that money brings, and the poor of the parish felt that help many a time. In the summers Mr. and Mrs. Rainsford lived on the Island, and the stalwart curate never missed his morning spin in a lapstreak rowboat. At college in England he had been an oarsman of renown. His taste he brought with him to Canada, and on Sunday mornings it was whispered that the curate of the Cathedral, on his way over to morning service, had no objection to giving the ferry boat a good race—and beating her, too. Another of his fancies was for dogs—jet black cocker spaniels, that accompanied him on many a tramp over the heights to the north of the city. Many a farmer coming into town was amazed at the spectacle of a six-foot-two clergyman taking a dog-trot along the country road attended by three or four yelping cockers. The man needed plenty of exercise to blow off his superfluous steam. Sprinting and rowing helped him to achieve his end.

But, although Rainsford saw nothing evil in the exercise, he frowned down upon some things that were dear to his hearers. He told them that it was wrong to dance—not because there was anything inherently wicked in the figures—but because the time that might have been spent on good works was wasted. His people ceased to dance. He told them that they should not go to the theatres; and he gave them some reason for his admonition. They stayed away from the playhouses. The congregation became filled with all sorts of parish organizations for good, and grew and prospered. Many hoped that some day the young clergyman would be rector of the parish, but fate decreed otherwise.

Barr, the Colonizer.

An old acquaintance of Rev. J. M. Barr tells The Winnipeg Tribune that Mr. Barr was born at Hornby, in Trafalgar Township, Halton County, Ontario. His father was a Presbyterian minister, who moved from Ireland to Hornby. Rev. J. M. Barr and his brother studied for the Presbyterian ministry, but afterwards joined the Anglican Church. This is not Rev. Mr. Barr's first experience in the West. Over twenty years ago he established a church in the Saskatchewan country. He took a good outfit with him, but returned to Ontario in a year or so.

Three Anarchists Caught.

Paris, June 1.—A despatch to The Patrie from Marseilles says three Anarchists have been arrested at Mentone on suspicion of being engaged in a plot against King Victor Emmanuel on the occasion of his approaching visit to Paris. Five other suspects escaped. The police found incriminating papers on the arrested men.

CHARLEY ROSS' LUCK

HAD TO SKIP TO DELAGOA BAY TO ESCAPE BRITISH JUSTICE.

Commander of the Canadian Scouts As He Really Is—Has Old Berserker Blood in Him and Never Quailed—His Needescript Command—His Methods Utterly Heartless, So As to Make War, Which Is Hell, More Hellish Still.

Charley Ross, the commander of the Canadian Scouts, seems to be in hard luck. But he has been in hard luck before. The plainsman has had a chequered history, but he usually has come out on top. Word comes from Cape Town that Ross has skipped to Portuguese territory, for the very good reason that he has perpetrated crimes that are liable to land him in the Cape Colony penitentiary; but the scout's friends in Toronto—and they are not few—assert that he will never serve a term. He will, in all probability, be allowed to stay in Delagoa Bay, if he so elects. But the probability is that he will take ship for the United States, and he will doubtless bob up in Montana before many months are over.

Ross never put on any frills as being a particularly moral man, says Day by Day, in The News, Toronto. His talk was not the kind of talk that is current in the best circles; but as a scout he was unrivalled. That is the reason for his securing the post that he held before disaster overtook him. When war was declared Ross was in Montana, where he had a sheep ranch. He is a born fighter, a born scout and a born leader of men—if the men are of the kind that he would himself select. Early in November, of 1899, Ross heard that fighting was on in South Africa, and he pulled up stakes and headed for Ottawa. There he had a valuable friend in Lord Minto. In 1885 the Governor-General, as everybody knows, was one of General Middleton's most trusted aides in the Northwest rebellion, and he met Charley Ross at Battleford. Ross was to the Lord Melgund of those days a new type. He could ride, shoot and fight as well as any man between Winnipeg and the coast, and he was also a crack scout. Ross and the present Governor-General struck up a great friendship, and when the war in South Africa began the famous scout sold his sheep ranch in Montana and took the first train for Ottawa. In addition to the Governor-General he had an excellent friend in Frank Newby, who was a member of the Ottawa Sharpshooters' corps in the rebellion year. Mr. Newby was, and is, practically intimate with Lord Minto, and when Ross arrived in the Capital he accompanied him to Rideau Hall. Ross was anxious to join the second contingent as an officer, but nominees for commissions in the corps were falling over each other. Pretty nearly every member of Parliament from all the Provinces except Quebec was anxious to get some constituent a commission, and even the Governor-General was unable to give Ross an officer's post. The best that he could do was to secure for him passage on one of the troopships that took to Table Bay Canada's second contribution of men. But "Gat" Howard was on that boat, and Gat was a great friend of Charley Ross. It was not long before the pair framed up a plan whereby Ross was to be attached to the second contingent as a scout. His worth was undeniable, and the Colonel was glad to have his services. There was, however, one strong objection. Ross was not a British subject, and he did not conceal the fact. He declared his antagonism to all monarchial forms of government, and he announced that he would not take the oath. The Colonel rejoined by stating that he would not take Ross on the strength unless he would swear allegiance. Ross swore allegiance, but, to his own satisfaction, got even by immediately announcing that he would become an American citizen again as soon as the war should end.

His career in Africa was the talk of pretty nearly the entire army. As a looter he was unrivalled by even the Germans, Russians and Americans who played havoc in Pekin. He frankly acknowledged that he had a houseful of looted goods in Pretoria, and, when protest was made, he informed his interlocutors that their best plan was to go to Gehenna.

When Gat Howard was murdered by the Boers Ross became commandant of the Canadian Scouts. There are in Toronto some men who fought under him, and their stories of his methods are far from being reassuring. He had all of the American's hatred of the negro, and it is on record that in one instance he killed a Kaffir who was slow in obeying him. Ross had a curious idea of warfare; an idea which he had contracted in his many years of Indian fighting. His plan was to make things as uncomfortable as possible for the enemy. There is in Toronto more than one man who fought under him, and who is ready to make oath and say that he has been instructed by Charley Ross to take no prisoners, "because," as Ross announced, "the corps will have to share rations if we take prisoners." The result was that many a Boer, who would have been brought into the British lines by a British regiment, was shot down by Ross' men. It is unfair to refer to them as "the Canadian Scouts." Not ten per cent. of them were Canadians. They were all sorts. Ross himself is authority for the statement that nine different languages were spoken in the alleged Canadian Scouts. But it is undeniable that they were good fighters. "War is hell" has become a trite remark. The Canadian Scouts made it particularly hellish.

There are, and will be, things said of Ross that are not strictly true. It is charged against him that he was a libertine. That is not the fact. His inclinations did not run in that form of vice. He was, and is, tough; horribly tough. He never put on any side; he never attempted to be an associate of the officers of other corps. He knew his limitations as well as any other man could. He had the old Berserker blood in him. He never quailed. He was utterly heartless in his methods. His Indian fighting had taught him this, and he made no concealment of his methods. When he stole, or winked at the stealing of, the horses of other British corps, he made the explanation that he was assured that his men could make better use of them than could the rightful proprietors. He would not have a man in his corps who could not shoot or ride or scout. He gathered together a heterogeneous collection of soldiers of fortune, but they were first-rate fighting men. They were ready to fight for pretty nearly everybody, and, doubtless, some of them are now in the Balkans, looking for trouble. Ross, however, seems to have done something that was not held to be characteristic of him. He has gone in for money-making. That never has been one of his failings, and his overstepping the rule of life seems to have been attended by disastrous consequences.

Teeth of a Shark.

In respect to its dentition the shark is a very remarkable creature. The white shark has seven rows of teeth, while other species vary in the number of rows they possess. It must be understood, however, that the shark only uses one row at a time. The other rows lie down inside the mouth behind the edge of the jaw, erecting themselves when it is time for them to take successively the place of the first row. When one observes how keen edged these incisors are it seems no wonder that they can bite off a big rope as readily as if it were pack thread.

An Occasion.

In the early housekeeping days of a lady now prominent in social circles a guest of some distinction arrived, and the modest dinner was hastily supplemented by a neighboring caterer. Three-year-old Mary sat quietly through the opening acts, but when the climax of fancy cakes and ices was reached her eyes widened with delight as she cried out in a clear tone, "Whose birthday is this, mother?"—Judge.

Sure to Win.

"You have had some experience with the fair sex," said the inexperienced youth who had been jilted. "How is the best way to get around a girl?"

"With your arms," tersely replied the old timer.

Adam and the Tailor.

"This," said the guide, "is the grave of Adam."

Historic spot! With reverential awe—nay, with a feeling of deep thankfulness—the wealthy merchant tailor on his first trip to the orient drew near and cast a flower on the tomb. "Erring ancestor," he murmured, "I should be the last man on earth to revile your memory. To your I owe my prosperity."

Modest.

The Landlady—Which part of the chicken do you prefer, Mr. Lanks?

The Boarder—Either half will do, thank you, Mrs. Hungerford.

It is not what he has or even what he does which expresses the worth of a man, but what he is.—Amiel.

Politeness is a locksmith and opens many difficult doors.—Schoolmaster.

MISS HETTIE BURNHAM MARRIED THIS MORNING

At St. Luke's Church by Rev. E. A. Langfeldt.

There was a large number of persons present at the wedding of Miss Hetty Amelia Burnham to Mr. Charles Henry Gale of Toronto, which took place at 9.30 o'clock this morning in St. Luke's church, Ashburnham.

Mr. Herbert Gale, brother of the groom, supported him, while Miss Helen Burnham, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid.

The service was conducted by Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, M. A., rector of St. Luke's. He was assisted by Rev. W. Baynes Reed. Mr. Harold Burnham, brother to the bride, gave her away.

Miss Hettie Burnham is the second daughter of the late Mr. John Burnham, M.P.

At the conclusion of the ceremony in the church, a reception was given at the residence of the bride's mother, Lake street, Ashburnham.

The happy couple left by the noon train for Montreal. There was a very beautiful array of handsome presents.

PRETTY WEDDING.

A Pleasing Event at St. Peter's This Morning.

At St. Peter's Cathedral this morning at eight o'clock, a pleasing wedding ceremony was witnessed. Mr. Dan Coughlin, of New York, was wedded to Miss Annie McCauley of the same city. Rev. Father McColl officiated.

The bride, who is a charming lady, was exquisitely gowned in a dress of white silk, beautifully trimmed with Valenciennes lace, and wearing a white embroidered hat trimmed with orange blossoms. She carried a handsome bouquet of American Beauty roses. The bridesmaid, who was Miss Agnes McCauley, sister of the bride, looked pleasing in a stylish dress of white organdie, trimmed with lace insertion. Mr. John O'Connell, of Peterborough, ably supported the groom.

A great many friends of the contracting parties were present, those from a distance being Mr. and Mrs. Kopeland of New York. Congratulatory telegrams were also received from numerous out-of-town friends. They are at present guests of Mrs. J. Guerin, James street, Ashburnham, from whose residence the wedding party left for the church. They expect to enjoy a few weeks' honeymoon on the upper lakes.

The presents, of which there were many, were very handsome, and spoke eloquently of the esteem in which the bride was held by her friends.

ASHBURNHAM COUNCIL IN REGULAR SESSION.

Business Transacted at Last Night's Meeting.

The Ashburnham Village Council met last evening with Reeve Adams in the chair and all the council present.

A communication from the Otonabee Power Company was referred to a committee of the whole council. The communication asked permission to erect poles on certain streets in the village, coupled with a proposition re street lighting.

Messrs. Frank Hamilton and Kerr, merchants, asked for electric lighting in stores occupied by them.—Granted.

A proposed sidewalk to Downer's Corners, came up for consideration, but on motion of Messrs. Scott and Faint no action was taken. It is understood that council will try and obtain permission to use the old Grand Junction roadway for a walk.

The question of a sewerage system for the village will come up at the next meeting of the council together with the question of municipal union.

Accounts amounting to $307.75 were presented during the evening and ordered to be paid on motion of Messrs Scott and Faint.

REPORTED FAILURE OF A. E. AMES COMPANY.

Many Peterborough People Said to Hold Stock in Company.

Much excitement was occasioned in financial circles this morning in Toronto, and in fact throughout the province, by the reported failure of A. E. Ames & Co., the well known bankers and brokers. The news was received in Peterborough by the local brokers, and it is stated was confirmed by telephone messages from a member of the Ames firm to some of their clients here.

As a result there was a violent break in Canadian issues listed on the New York and Boston exchanges. It was known of course, that A. E. Ames & Co. held large blocks of Canadian securities, such as Dominion Coal and Steel, C. P. R., Twin City, Sloss and "Soo" stocks. These stocks dropped downward in some instances of 10 points at a time, and great excitement prevailed on the exchanges.

It is stated that in Toronto the situation was extremely grave to say the least. The Ames Co. have assigned to the Bank of Montreal, so the report states. It is believed that many Peterborough people hold stock with the embarrased brokers.

A DISTRESSING ACCIDENT.

Further Particulars Concerning the Mishap of Monday.

Robert Hagerman, the unfortunate 16-year-old lad who met with such a distressin accident yesterday afternoon at Mann's box factory, is resting as well as could be expected to-day.

It appears that he was sent to bring some material away from the slash knife, which is six or eight feet in length. The machine was in motion at the time and the youth proceeded to check it. In some unaccountable manner his hand came in contact with the knife and the four fingers were severed close to the palm of the hand.

Young Hagerman displayed wonderful grit after the accident occurred. He ran to his fellow workmen and exhibited his mangled hand, and the men immediately tied up the bleeding member and hurried him to Dr. Brown's surgery, who attended to his injuries and had him afterwards removed to Nicholls Hospital.

His parents live on London street and formerly resided in Port Hope.

GORGEOUS WEDDING CEREMONY PERFORMED.

Nuptials of Miss Catharine Hall and Mr. W. E. Burns

At Residence of Bride's Father Mr. Adam Hall—The Dresses and Guests—Officiating Clergymen.

"The Roselands," the beautiful home of Mr. Adam Hall, No. 300 London street, was the scene of a very interesting event at three o'clock this afternoon, it being the occasion of the marriage of his eldest daughter, Miss Catharine Mary, to Mr. William Ernest Burns, barrister, Victoria, B. C. The ceremony was performed in the beautifully decorated drawing room ,in the presence of a large number of immediate relatives and friends of the contracting parties. The officiating clergyman was Rev. Dr. Torrance, pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian church. He was assisted by Rev. J. A. Wilson, assistant pastor.

The bride was handsomely gowned in white embroidered chiffon over white satin. She wore a veil and orange blossoms, and carried a handsome shower bouquet of roses. Very conspicuous was the beautiful pearl and turquoise necklace, the gift of the groom.

The bridesmaids were Miss Lillian Burns, sister of the groom, and Miss Agnes Hall, sister of the bride. They wore beautiful dresses of silk pleated white crepe de chine, and also picture hats of white tulle, adorned with pink roses. The groom was supported by Dr. W. D. Keith, of Victoria, B .C. The groom's gifts to the bridesmaids were nugget brooches.

The travelling gown of the bride was a tailor made one of blue cloth with a white waist of tussore silk, and Maltese lace. She wore a chapeau of blue with green foliage.

The happy newly-married couple will go to the Coast, stopping at Winnipeg, Banff and Glacier.

The array of presents was magnificent, being most beautiful and costly.

The bride is one of Peterborough's most charming young ladies, being prominent in social and literary circles, and she has the best wishes of a host of friends for a long and happy wedded life.

The groom is a rising young barrister in British Columbia, and is well known in Toronto and Peterborough.

The guests from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. Burns, and the Misses Burns, Miss Margaret Keith, Mrs. Foxley, Mr. B. A. Craig, Mr. C. E. Bunting, Mr. C. A. Partridge, of Toronto; Dr. and Mrs. Kneely, of Ottawa; Miss Gibson, and Mr. P. Alexander of Hamilton, and Mrs. McLaglan.

THE MARRIAGE HAS BEEN POSTPONED

Owing to Sudden and Unexpected Illness of the Bridegroom.

This morning an announcement was made which brought forth expressions of sympathy and regret, it was to the effect that the wedding of Miss Helen Rogers and Mr. Harold Bruce Robertson, which was to have taken place to-morrow, had been postponed owing to the illness of the bridegroom. It is learned that Mr. Robertson, who arrived in Peterborough on Saturday night from Victoria, British Columbia, where he is practising law, complained of having a slight sore throat on Sunday. The same evening Dr. Young was called in and at first thought there was nothing serious the matter with his patient, whom he, however, again visited in the morning, when he became somewhat suspicious of the true character of Mr. Robertson's illness. Dr. Young immediately called in Dr. Burnham and the two physicians decided that their patient's condition showed diphtheretic symptoms. In consequence of the decision Mr. Robertson was immediately removed to St. Joseph's Hospital, where he is at the time of writing; not as one would imagine in bed feeling very ill, but up and dressed feeling quite his own self.

So far no immediate action of a decisive kind relating to the marriage has been taken although it has been reported to the contrary.

At this point in Mr. Robertson's life restriction or even isolation will indeed be very distasteful to him, but in the meantime it is hoped that his reported illness will not be as serious as has been stated.

VICE REGAL VISIT.

Let Citizens Decorate in Honor of Lord and Lady Minto.

On Friday next from 12 noon to 2 o'clock in the afternoon the people of Peterborough will entertain the representatives of Royalty in Canada, and it is hoped that for that occasion the loyal citizens will make fitting preparations. In the programme as outlined by Mayor Roger at last night's Council meeting, the Vice-Regal party will drive for an hour ,during which the many beauties and advantages of Peterborough will be displayed.

The suggestion that the residences and business places be decorated in honour of this visit is one which should be readily responded to. Let us show our appreciation of the honour thus given us, in the most elaborate manner possible. This, though it will not necessitate any considerable expense, will require some time and thought, but this should be cheerfully given.

OBITUARY.

An Ennismore Resident has Passed Away.

Mr. William Scollard of Ennismore township, died yesterday afternoon at St. Joseph's Hospital. The deceased, who was unmarried, was aged 60 years, and leaves two brothers, who will feel his death very acutely. They are Jas. and John Scollard, and both reside in Ennismore. The late Mr. Scollard was well known in this district, where he has resided for some time.

The funeral will take place tomorrow morning at nine o'clock from the family residence in Ennismore to the Ennismore cemetery, where the interment will take place.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.

Wilson Blewitt Badly Injured by Stone Crusher.

What is in some respects, probably the most distressing accident it has ever been the lot of the Examinner to chronicle, occurred on Saturday in the Township of Smith, near Selwyn, when a young man whose life was full of bright promise for future usefulness, was very severely injured while at his work as engineer of the county stone crusher. The unfortunate young man is Wilson Blewitt, whose family is very well known to residents of the town.

In some, at present unexplained manner, his knee came in contact with the fly wheel of the crusher, and was drawn in by the powerful machine, which was driven by a sixteen horse power steam engine, and became so badly broken and crushed that it was necessary to have the leg amputated above the knee. He is at present in the Nicholls Hospital, and to-day was reported as doing nicely.

Mr. E. M. Elliott, reave of Smith, has taken a very deep interest in the young man, and he, with all the numerous friends of the family, feel great sympathy for the unfortunate young fellow, who has shown a particular aptitude for his chosen line of work, that of engineering, and who has thus been so rudely interrupted in a profession in which he was bound to rise.

CORNER STONE OF A NEW SABBATH SCHOOL

Laid Yesterday by Mrs. Hugh Waddell.

Hon. J. R. Stratton and Mayor Roger Spoke—A Large Number of Persons Present.

A ceremony of special moment was the laying of the foundation stone of the Sabbath school building of the Centreville Presbyterian church, in Cavan township, which took place yesterday afternoon, and at which there was a large number of persons present. The stone was laid by Mrs. Hugh Waddell, of town, formerly of Centreville.

Rev. Mr. McIntosh, minister of the Centreville congregation, presided over the ceremony, at which a large number of clergy of all denominations were present, representing Port Hope, Millbrook, Peterborough, Bensfort, and other towns in this district.

The main speakers were Rev. J. G. Potter, Hon. J. R. Stratton, Mr. G. M. Roger, Mayor of Peterborough, Rev. Dr. Torrance, Mr. Hugh Waddell, and Mr. Robert Fair, all of Peterborough.

The ceremony commenced with devotional exercises, after which Mrs. Waddell was called upon to lay the corner stone. She was provided with the necessary implements and performed her duties with due ceremony.

In addressing the gathering, Hon. J. R. Stratton congratulated the congregation of the Presbyterian church on their progress, which was evidenced in the erection of the building which adjoined the church. He said that he was particularly interested in the matter, which afforded him more than usual pleasure, as Cavan was not only his own birth place, but also the birthplace of his mother, and continued by saying that he personally knew nearly all those interested in the erection of the Sabbath school. As his time was somewhat limited his speech was not of a lengthy character, and he concluded by making a "Carnegie" offer. He said that on the completion of the building he would make a gift of a library to the value of $200, or if it was preferable to the authorities he would place that sum at their own disposal for the benefit of the school.

Mayor Roger also spoke, and said it afforded him great pleasure to be present as his father had often preached in that church, and as he had also participated in the Presbytery which established them as a distinct and independent congregation.

After several other speeches had been delivered the ceremony was brought to a close with a short service of song and praise.

Are You Fond of Tomatoes?

Most people are—and if you like them early, smooth, hard and almost seedless, plant "Spark's Earliana,"—earliest and most prolific tomato that comes on the Bostoff market. I am selling these famous seedlings, well started, at the rate of three boxes for a quarter. Cabbage plants—Henderson's Reliable, and other high bred garden plants—the most for your money at my greenhouses. Flowering plants, ready for transplanting, cheapest anywhere. Sample Cobb's Asters, a special variety, the best that grows. Jos. H. Cobb, Aylmer street greenhouses; phone 132.

VICE-REGALITE'S VISIT TO PETERBOROUGH

Arrangements Made at the Council Meeting.

NEW FIRE HALL DISCUSSED.

Long Report From the Public Works Committee.

The Communications Received and Other Business Transacted—Street Delivery of Mails Was Discussed.

The regular meeting of the Town Council was held on Monday evening with the following members present: His Worship Mayor Roger, and Aldermen Best, Corkery, Clinkscale, Rush, Batten, McWilliams, Edgcumb, Finney, Shortly, Morrison.

COMMUNICATIONS

were read as follows:—

From the Otonabee Power Company, asking permission to erect poles and string wires to fill their contracts with citizens for light, as follows: 2 poles on George street, 2 on Hunter, 1 on Simcoe, 10 on Water, 5 on Antrim, 2 on Lake, 3 on Bethune, and on Wescott, from Bethune to George street.—Referred to the Board of Works with instruction to engineer to report.

From D. H. Kerneghan and others asking that a granolithic sidewalk be constructed on west side Aylmer street, between Murray and McDonnel streets.—Referred to Board of Works.

From S. R. Armstrong, secretary local Board of Health, to the effect that the above Board recommends the Council to construct a sewer or Hunter street, between Aylmer and Stewart street.—Referred to Board of Works.

From John Williams and others, asking for a sidewalk on Reid street between Charlotte and King street.—Referred to Board of Works.

From J. J. Turner & Sons, asking that they be given the contract to decorate the town on the occasion of the visit of their Excellencies Lord and Lady Minto.—Received.

From Hon. J. R. Stratton, enclosing copy of a Bill respecting the town of Peterborough. This Act is one empowering the Corporation of the Town to develop and transmit electric power, to sell the same to companies and individuals.—Received.

Justis Dunn wants to erect a small addition to his house on Charlotte street, and wrote to ask that he be allowed to construct the same using a nine-inch wall instead of one 14 inches thick as the regulations requires.—Referred to Engineer with power to give permission if satisfactory.

W. Aldridge, Thos. McKee, Thos. B. McGrath and John Kincaid, wrote applying for the positions of assessors for the current year, and also ask that on account of extra work caused by changes in ownership, they be paid an increased salary. — Referred to Committee on Appointments and Finance Committee with power to act.

From Canadian Rubber Company, of Montreal, notifying the trade that by reason of increased cost in manufacturing and raw material, the prices quoted in last price list are withdrawn.—Received.

M. A. Woods wrote to say that he was owner of properties on Alfred street, which had been assessed to John McMartin for the benefit of Separate Schools. Mr. Woods says he supports Public Schools and wishes the assessment changed to his name. —Referred to Court of Revision.

John Mann asks that a crossing be placed at the intersection of George and Edinburgh street.—Referred to Board of Works.

Lady Minto, through the official Secretary, wrote enclosing an appeal for a subscription to the Canadian South African Memorial Association, of which Lady Minto is President. The object of this Association is to perpetuate the memory of Canadian soldiers who died while on service for the Empire in South Africa by erecting a monument over each grave. 252 Canadian soldiers are buried in that country and of these the resting place of 152 have been located. The monuments, a cut of which was also enclosed with the communication, are of a very appropriate design, and $6,000 more is required to complete the work already in hand. — The communication was received.

On motion of Aldermen Rush and Morrison the report was adopted.

LICENSE COMMITTEE.

Alderman Finnie presented the following report:—

Your License Committee beg leave to report that:—

As the Bradburn estate have removed the scenery from the opera house and it cannot onger be used as a theatre, the license fee for it be fixed at $40 a year.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

The report was adopted.

PROPERTY AND HEALTH.

Alderman Batten presented the following report:—

Your Property, Building and Health Committee beg leave to report and recommend: —

1. That this committee be authorized to have the police station papered and the police court room calsomined and painted.

2. That the chairman be authorized to have coils put in the ice box in the Central Park and the fountain repaired provided the cost does not exceed $30.

3. That the tender of T. A. Rehill to supply ice for the drinking fountain near the police station at $33 for the season be accepted and that his tender to supply ice for the fountain at Central Park at $15 for the season be accepted providing it is decided to use ice there.

4. That Alderman Clinkscale be authorized to arrange with the Horticultural Society and the caretaker of Victoria Park for the removal of the old open bandstand in the Park.

5. That the Mayor be authorized to procure a new typewriter for the town office.

6. That the Town Engineer be authorized to ask for tenders for the construction of a band stand on Victoria Park, and that this committee be authorized to let the contract.

Alderman Batten in speaking to the report referred to the fountain in Central Park and characterized it as a disgrace to the town that it was not in working order. It was useless to place ice in the fountain at present as the waste water flowed back on it. There was no sewer connection.

The report was adopted as read and Property Committee given power to act in reference to fountain.

BOARD OF WORKS REPORT.

Ald. Best presented the following report.

Gentlemen,—Your Board of Works beg leave to report as follows: —

1. We recommend that the Engineer's report and recommendations as to the lines on the streets upon which the sidewalks should be built be adopted.

2. We examined the petition of W. A. Sanderson and others for the construction of the granolithic sidewalk on the south side of Brock street from Reid to Park streets as a local improvement and find it sufficiently signed. We recommend that it be granted.

3. That having examined the petition of Wolstenholme and Wm. Yelland for the construction of a granolithic sidewalk on the east side of Murray street from Aylmer to Bethune streets as a local improvement and find it sufficiently signed, we recommend that it be granted.

4. That having examined the petition of S. Clegg and others for the construction of a granolithic sidewalk on the west side of Stewart street between Charlotte and King streets, as a local improvement and found it sufficiently signed, we recommend that it be granted.

5. That having examined the petition of W. H. Roberts and others for the construction of a granolithic sidewalk on the east side of Stewart street between McDonel and Murray streets, as a local improvement and found it sufficiently signed, we recommend that it be granted.

6. We recommend that the Engineer advertise for tenders for the construction of the sewers of which notice had been given except on Hunter street from Aylmer to Bethune streets and on Reid street from McDonel to London streets.

7. That having examined a petition from Adam Hall and others for the construction of a sewer on Simcoe street from Aylmer to Bethune streets as a local improvement and found it sufficient, signed, we recommend that it be granted.

8. That having examined a petition from W. H. Hill and others for the construction of sewer on Bethune street from Smith to Edinburgh streets, on Edinburgh street from Bethune to Aylmer streets and on Aylmer street to connect with the sewer to Dublin street as al ocal improvement, and found it sufficiently signed, we recommend that it be granted.

9. We recommend that in future all petitions for local improvement properly signed be referred to the Engineer for report immediately upon receipt.

10. That having examined the petition of W. Croft and others for the construction of a sewer on Dalhousie street from Bethune to Stewart streets, as a local improvement and found it sufficiently signed, we recommend that it be granted, subject to receiving a favourable report from the Engineer.

11. We recommend that the request of F. W. Doane, local manager of the Bell Telephone Co., for permission to place eight poles on Sherbrooke street and two on Park street be granted provided the Engineer is satisfied that they are required to fulfil existing contracts.

12. Your Board advertised for tenders for crushing and delivering stone and received the following tenders:— Henry and Gibson, $2.60 per cord; Samuel Kennedy, $2.65 per cord; E. J. Hicky, $3.95 per cord. We recommend that the tender of Henry and Gibson be accepted.

13. We recommend that the Clerk write to the Clerk of the village of Stouffville and call the attention of the council of the village to the fact that they were allowed to have the road roller for 6 weeks for $50 and inform them that they will be charged for the roller for the time they have kept it this spring at the same rate and will be charged at that rate until it is returned.

14. We recommend that the Street Commissioner be authorized to engage a team when necessary to assist the town team in street watering.

15. We recommend that the Street Commissioner be authorized to buy a carload of soft coal.

16. We recommend that the Engineer be instructed to advertise for tenders for the construction of the sewers that the council is in a position to build except that on Bethune street.

17. Your Board returns to the Council for action the recommendation of the Board of Health that a sewer be constructed on Rubidge street from Charlotte street to Rink street, as a local improvement and we recommend that the petition for a sewer on Bethune street and the Engineer's report thereon be referred to the Board of Health.

18. That having examined the petition from R. H. Wood and others for a granolithic sidewalk on the north side of Gilmour street from Park street to the Monaghan Boundary, as a local improvement and found it sufficiently signed, we recommend that it be granted.

COMMITTEE ON APPOINTMENTS

Alderman Corkery presented the following report:—

Your committee on Appointments beg leave to report and recommend as follows:—

1. That the tender of W. H. Meredith for summer suits for the police force at $30 a suit, including two pairs of trousers, be accepted.

2. That Aldermen McWilliams and Rush be appointed with the Mayor to represent the Council on the Board of Management of the Victoria Museum.

On motion of Aldermen Corkery and Rest the report was adopted.

BYLAWS PASSED.

A bylaw authorizing the granting of $450 to the 57th Regiment Band, passed its several readings.

A Bylaw to authorize the execution of an agreement with Wm. Henry, and John Gibson, re stone crushing also received its several readings.

A bylaw received its several readings authorizing the expenditure of $5000 by the Water Commissioners for the extension of water works.

Concussion

Feet strike the ground six thousand times per hour in walking.

This means six thousand shocks to nerve and spine on city pavements.

From physician's knowledge of the result sprang an immense market for rubber heels.

But solid rubber heels take up only a small proportion of the jar.

The RESILIA cushion centre-sole extends from toe to heel, between the leather insole and outsole.

It has twice the spring of a solid rubber heel, with half its weight, and no "sneaker" disadvantage.

It is springy as a bicycle tire, distributes pressure over the foot sole, wear over the shoe sole, is water-proof and ventilating.

A PRECOCIOUS BOY.

The Essay on Man That Was Written by a Child of Eight Years.

I remember, writes a correspondent of a London paper, hearing Lord Dufferin tell the following story of the late Sheridan Le Fanu: Sheridan's father—the archbishop of Meath, I think—was a great stickler for punctuality, a regard his son did not share. One morning young Sheridan, then about eight years old, descended unusually late for breakfast and was met at the door by his father, watch in hand. "Is this right, sir; is this right?" demanded the prelate in stern tones. "I don't know, sir," replied Sheridan, looking at the watch and pretending to think the question applied to it and not to his conduct, "but I rather think it's fast."

For this impertinence young Sheridan was condemned to write an essay on "The Three Ages of Man." Here is what he wrote:

"There are three ages of man.

"First.—When he is engaged in planning every conceivable mode of wickedness. This is known as the age of innocence.

"Second.—When he is putting his nefarious plans into operation. This is called the prime of manhood.

"Third.—When he becomes anxious about his soul and turns to religion. This is dotage."

And this from a child of eight!

WELL EARNED POPULARITY.

J. J. Burns Says Dodd's Kidney Pills Saved His Life.

Could Scarcely Sit, Sleep or Walk when he Started to Use Them—His Trouble Gone for Good.

Darnley, P.E.I., June 1.—(Special.)—The popularity of Dodd's Kidney Pills in Prince Edward Island has been earned by cures complete and permanent. John J. Burns, lot 18, Darnley, is one of the cured, and his story is a splendid example of the work Dodd's Kidney Pills are doing.

"For over eight years," says Mr. Burns, "I suffered from what the doctors pronounced Chronic Inflammation of the Loins and Kidneys. In the year 1896 it got so bad that I could scarcely walk, sit or sleep, I was about to give up when an advertisement led me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills and they did a wonderful work for me.

"Dodd's Kidney Pills saved my life and though years have elapsed since my cure I have had no trouble since I used them.

"I belong to the I.O.F. and any member can vouch for my condition and that Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me."

Dodd's Kidney Pills never fail to cure any form of Kidney Disease once and for all.

Nature's Toilet.

The West Indian negro need not buy soap. He picks a bulb from the "soap tree" in the jungle, which makes a beautiful lather.

If he wants a shave, he uses a piece of sharp cocoanut shell or broken glass and it answers as well as a razor.

To clean his teeth he picks a twig of "chewstick," which is better than the best camel's hair brush and dentifrice.

The Correct Reply.

At an examination held at the agricultural college the question was put, "When is the best time to sow barley?" The "examinate," a sharp country lad from the district of Altenburg, promptly replied:

"Three days before a gentle rain, sir."

THE SCARLET TANAGER.

Of a Dutch superstition in my boyhood days I heard,
That whenever war was coming might be seen,
A spectre in the forest like a blood-red colored bird,
Darting in and out among the leaves of green.

So when Spring came fresh with flowers and the earth was filled with glee,
I almost feared to walk the woodland ways
Like a startled thing I scampered if I heard a crackling tree,
Or saw a brilliant bird uplift a spray.

I thought of crimson tunics, martial music in the air,
The gleams of swords, of battles, of the dead;
I began to read the Bible, crept away for private prayer,
While incarnadine filled my mind with dread.

Every omen rage I pondered in perplexity and fear,
Till at last from fear I found release;
For my pretty scarlet tanager came back from year to year,
Not a war-bird, but a messenger of peace.

Alas for poor humanity! How oft we make mistakes!
How we spoil our beauty-blessings by our dread!
For what could be less warlike when the Spring in gladness wakes
Than the plumage of a tanager in red?

O, this blythe and happy herald! How we watch his sportive flight,
As he threads his course amid the tangled sprays;
He's a glowing apparition, he's a blush of rosy light
He's a ruddy spangle in the timber'd maze.

Let the superstitious augur by our scarlet-coated fay,
Till their signs and wonders set them ill at ease;
To us he is a symbol of a coming golden day—
Just a sparkle of the thousand years of peace.

—Charles Harold Barltrop, in The Globe.

A Canadian Colony of Nestorians.

A small colony of Nestorians, herdsmen from the mountains of Persia, olive-skinned, dark-eyed, nervous little people with quick, active gestures, clad in bright, variegated costumes, were recently seen in Winnipeg station. Members of the oldest Christian sect in the world these, a religion which has withstood the persecution of the Turk and the Kurd for centuries, and which is just now to flourish in the western hemisphere. For all their lives members of Persian communities, but speaking not the Persian tongue, born on Persian soil but acknowledging no loyalty to the Shah, these strange people, who, after suffering in common with the Armenians, have decided to transplant their ancient religion and customs, old almost as time, to the new and to them almost unknown land. Theirs is the language which priests claim was that used in the earliest period of human history, the language in which Adam spake to Shem and Lamech, and by Shem to Abraham and Isaac. The words "Talitha cumi," spoken by the Saviour, have exactly the same meaning in the speech of these people to-day, and they firmly believe that they have the very language spoken by Adam, written by the angel on the wall at Belshazzar's feast, and spoken by Christ during His sojourn on earth. They, too, have land selected near the site of the Barr colony, in the Saskatchewan district. Twenty of them were sent ahead last winter to spy out the land, and these, after a hard season's work, were found to have endured the climate so well that a large emigration has begun. The men who brought this lot on are returning to Europe and expect to have a party of four hundred ready to come next spring. The leader hopes in time to secure homes for one thousand of his people near Battleford. The Nestorians are cleanly, intensely religious and hard-working, and will make excellent settlers. A number of the younger boys in the party have already been engaged as household servants, beginning at once to solve one of the problems of the country.

A Painting by Murillo.

Mr. J. F. Thompson of Toronto tells the following story of his painting by Murillo, so far as he knew its history: "The painting came to this country in 1832. It was brought to America by a colonel in the British army by the name of Johnston. The painting was sent back twice to find out who painted it. Each time it was sent back with the statement that it was the work of an amateur. When Col. Johnston died, the paintings which he had were sold. This painting was sent to an artist's studio in Canada. There it remained for years. When the art taste of Canada was somewhat advanced, the painting was displayed at an art exhibition. The first day that it was exhibited the artist was ordered to remove it from the exhibition. It remained in the artist's studio until the gentleman I bought it from saw it." Mr. Thompson refuses to give the name of the man he bought it from.

A Rembrandt in Canada.

The News of St. John's, Quebec, is authority for the statement, of considerable interest to art lovers that the Rev. Edward Smiley of Waterloo is the fortunate possessor of a genuine Rembrandt. It was painted about 1630-40, and represents Judith holding a sword in the right hand and the head of the Assyrian General Holofernes in the other. The paiuting came to the reverend gentleman by inheritance from his mother, whose family were possessors of it for many years.

Won Journalistic Prize.

Sir Sandford Fleming's prize of $250 for the best essay on "What can the Universities do for Journalism" has been won by Mr. A. H. U. Colquhoun, of The Toronto News, and Mr. William Houston wins second prize. It is gratifying to see that the winner is a working journalist, whose ideas on the subject are informed by practical experience. As a graduate of McGill Mr. Colquhoun is posted both in newspaper and university work.

The Only Disagreeable Part.

Keep your Stomach Healthy.

When you get up in the morning with a bad taste in your mouth that the tooth brush will not remove, a coating on your tongue, and a general "out of sorts" feeling, don't blame it on what you had to eat the night before. A healthy stomach would be able to look after that. It's poor digestion that makes you feel so badly. A teaspoonful of Abbey's Effervescent Salt in half a tumbler of water at rising will make you feel better—will cure you if you follow directions. Abbey's revitilizes every organ of the body—it clears away fermenting matter and refreshes and cleanses the stomach. It prevents the suffering that often follows a pleasant evening.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt

is a pleasant, palatable and effective medicine for all stomach ills.

PRESENCE OF MIND.

The Duke of Wellington's Experience With a Murderous Maniac.

One day as the Duke of Wellington sat writing at his library table quite alone his door was suddenly opened without a knock or announcement of any sort, and in stalked a gaunt man, who stood before the commander in chief with his hat on and a savage expression of countenance. The duke was of course a little annoyed at such an unceremonious interruption, and, looking up, he asked, "Who are you?" "I am Dionysius," was the singular answer. "Well, what do you want?" "Your life." "My life?" "Yes; I am sent to kill you." "Very odd," said the duke, sitting back and calmly gazing at the intruder. "Not at all, for I am Dionysius," said the stranger, "and I must put you to death." "Are you obliged to perform this duty today?" asked the commander in chief. "I am very busy just now and have a large number of letters to write. It would be very inconvenient today." The visitor looked hard during a moment's pause. "Call again," continued the duke, "or write and make an appointment." "You'll be ready?" "Without fail," was the reply. The maniac, awed doubtless by the stern old soldier, backed out of the room without further words and half an hour later was safe in bedlam.

Taking Life Too Seriously.

Taking life too seriously is said to be an especially American failing. This may be true; but, judging from appearances, it would seem to be world-wide, for, go where you may, you will find the proportion of serious, not to say anxious, faces ten to one as compared with the merry or happy ones. If "the outer is always the form and shadow of the inner" and if "the present is the fullness of the past and the herald of the future" (and how can we doubt it?), how many sad histories can be read in the faces of those we meet every day! The pity of it is, too, that the sadness is a self woven garment, even as is the joy with which it might be replaced. Ruskin says: "Girls should be sunbeams not only to members of their own circle, but to everybody with whom they come in contact. Every room they enter should be brighter for their presence." Why shouldn't all of us be sunbeams, boys as well as girls, all along the way from twenty-five years and under to eighty-five years and over?

A Cheerful Expression.

"I wish I could always look as cheerful as you do," said the sweet young thing as she dropped down beside the attractive widow.

"There are times when it is embarrassing, that cheerful expression of mine," said the widow. "Let me tell you. When my husband died, I was journeying alone to his home, where he was to be buried. I was much annoyed at the persistency with which the man across the aisle attempted to flirt with me. Finally he took a seat in front of me and said, 'I beg pardon, but I thought I'd like to talk with you awhile because you have such a cheerful expression.'

"And there I'd been weeping my eyes out for two days. So don't cultivate that cheerful look too much or you'll find some one accusing you of looking happy at a funeral."

A Mediæval Survival.

It may interest some of your readers to know that the archaic method of reckoning by tallies is still in vogue in Peru. While there I saw a bundle of tally sticks (there called tallies) suspended in a baker's shop, and on inquiry I found that most of the poorer country people thus registered their purchases until they were able to pay. The tally stick is cut down the center, the baker and purchaser each retaining a half, and when a loaf is sold the two halves are fitted together, and a notch is made across them, the purchaser thus keeping an exact check upon the baker's score. Upon any payment being made a corresponding number of notches are shaved off.

The New Field Marshal.

Sir Evelyn Wood, V.C., G.C.B., G.C.M.G., the newly-appointed Field Marshal, is sixty-five years old, having been born on the 9th of February, 1838. He entered the Royal Navy in 1852, and served with the Naval Brigade in the Crimean War from the 1st of October, 1854, to the 18th of June, 1855, when he was severely wounded while carrying a scaling ladder to the Redan. In the same year he left the navy for the army, joining the 13th Light Dragoons, and being transferred three years later to the 17th Lancers, with which regiment he served in the Indian Mutiny campaign, where he won the Victoria Cross. He served in the Ashanti, Kaffir, Zulu and first Transvaal wars, commanded the 2nd Brigade (2nd Division) in the expedition to Egypt of 1882, raised the Egyptian army in 1883, and served in the Nile expedition of 1894-95. He has at different times commanded the Chatham and Eastern districts and the Aldershot division, and then Adjutant-General and Quartermaster-General, and now commands the 2nd Army Corps, stationed on Salisbury Plain. Sir Evelyn Wood was called to the Bar at the Middle Temple in 1874.

He Fell Asleep.

The post of clerk was vacant in a certain parish church, the old clerk having died, so a railway porter, who was a member of the church, was asked by the vicar to fill the vacancy.

He refused, saying he had a habit of going to sleep.

But the vicar would take no excuse, so at last the man consented.

The first Sunday he performed the duties very well, but on the second he went to sleep.

A friend behind him, seeing he was asleep, shook him.

Waking up suddenly, the new clerk called out:

"Keep your seats, please. All tickets ready!" amid the laughter of the congregation

What to eat at Breakfast and How to eat it.

Malt Breakfast Food the original and only Malt-Wheat cereal is the result of years of successful scientific experiment. It is an honest health food that satisfies the taste and meets the needs of young and old. Malt Breakfast Food is the great morning invigorating dish.

Malt Breakfast Food requires cooking before eating. It is a mistake to imagine that the cold fad foods with which the country is deluged, can impart health or strength. Malt Breakfast Food brought to the table steaming and hot, gives to young and old in fullest measure all its deliciousness and health virtues. Any cereal food worthy of a place in the home, should be cooked and eaten while hot. Here is the difference: Cold fad foods produce colic and stomach troubles; Malt Breakfast Food eaten hot, imparts life and vim. All grocers.

Scholarly Men and the Pulpit.

If scholarly men more and more reject the church as the means by which they will influence opinion and conduct and replace it by educational, editorial and administrative agencies, the next century may be altogether guided in its intellectual decisions and in those of its actions which depend on intellectual judgments by forces outside the church. Our grandfathers looked to the minister for advice not only upon religious beliefs and moral practice, but also upon most matters outside their own direct acquaintance. The minister prescribed for the education of sons, solved social problems and acted as the source and judge of truth in matters of general knowledge. Our sons seem likely to regard the ministry as a body of men fitted to deal with men's religious welfare, but less fitted to be generous mentors in others. The direction of the people in other than purely religious activities may pass wholly out of the hands of the church.—Professor E. L. Thorndike in Century.

The Broken Health of School Life.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

So many school girls and school boys, too, are pale, languid and run down in health, subject to weak spells and nervous headache, and victims of sleeplessness, that we no longer realize the folly of developing the mind at the expense of the body.

It is on the mothers and fathers that falls the responsibility of looking after the health of their children, and to them we suggest the wisdom of having the health of their children kept at the high water-mark by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

This great food cure is so gentle and natural in action as to be admirably suited to the requirements of children. The benefits to be derived from its use are certain and lasting, as it goes to form new red corpuscles in the blood, and create new nerve force.

Mrs. R. Wareham, 267 Sherbrooke street Peterborough, Ont., states:—"One of my children has suffered a great deal with nervous headaches, dizziness and sleeplessness, and, in fact, was all run down, pale and languid. These troubles were attributed to over-study and confinement at school. She began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and I can say that we have found this treatment exceedingly helpful. It has relieved her of headache, steadied her nerves, and built up her system wonderfully. We can see a great change in her, as the colour is returning to the face, and she is gaining in flesh and weight."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

CHAPTER XL.

Gertrude had just been singing, and the words puzzled her. Quite unconsciously something had become a matter of life and death with her. She had grown so accustomed to Lord Fielden's homage and love that she did not appreciate either until he was away from her; then quite suddenly her life grew cold and dim. Harry had learned some wisdom from his mother.

"My dear boy," she had said to him, "you have been too lavish of your love; believe me, there is nothing like a little wholesome neglect. For the last two years you thought only of Gertrude, and devoted yourself to her. She accepts your homage as a matter of course. Now take my advice and leave her for a short time."

Sixteen months had passed since the funeral of Sir Karl Allanmore, and the old wrong had been righted. Lady Allanmore, with her two daughters, had gone back to Scarsdale, and something like a gleam of happiness had come to Dolores.

As much happiness as could fall to her lot was Lady Allanmore's now. Her husband's memory had been cleared; he had always loved her; he had never deserted her. It had been she who had sinned against him, not he against her. He had been true to her in life and death; he was waiting for her in heaven. She longed in a calm, gentle fashion for death, that she might see his beloved face again. She was living surrounded by her old friends, and her children were all that a mother's heart could desire. She had regained her health and her beauty; she had never dreamed of being so happy again.

The family had spent some few weeks at Deerhurst Manor, and Lady Allanmore would have been willing to allow Kathleen Rhysworth to live there, but she preferred to be with her mother and Gertrude. During the last month or two the deep mourning had been laid aside, and something like old times had come again to Scarsdale.

The first thing that startled them from their settled ways was the arrival of the Neapolitan Prince, Colonna, who had seemed so devoted to Kathleen when they had been living in Florence. The sudden departure of Dolores and her daughter had been a great blow to him, but he was determined to find them. They had gone away hurriedly, and had left no address; but, after a time, he had heard the story about Sir Karl, and had understood.

He had come to London first; and from there he wrote to ask if he had permission to visit Lady Allanmore at Scarsdale. Of course the answer was "Yes," and the end it was not difficult to forecast, Kathleen loved him, and promised to marry him. With something like despair in his heart, Harry watched the more fortunate lover; but he comforted himself with the idea that Gertrude was worth a thousand Kathleens and consequently worth so much trouble to win.

Kathleen was very happy. It was agreed that the Prince and Princess Colonna should pass six months of the year at the prince's palace in Naples, and the other six in Kathleen's home, the beautiful old Manor of Deerhurst. The news of Kathleen's engagement caused a great sensation in the countryside; people said that they did not see the marriage of a prince every day.

"If it be not love, what can it be?" sung Gertrude to herself, on this bright morning in autumn. There seemed to be a certain magic in the words. Just as they died upon her lips Lord Fielden came in. She rose quickly; of late Miss Gertrude had avoided meeting him alone.

If not love, what was it? She rose and in a half embarrassed manner said—"Mamma is at home, and she wants to see you."

"Nay, Gertrude, but I want to see you," he replied; and there was that in his face which told her that the time had come when she must listen. "I want to see you, and you only," he went on. "Why do you avoid me? You must know that I love you with all the strength of my heart. I do not think that since the world began any man has ever loved a woman so well as I love you."

She, who was so quick of speech and ready of wit, had no answer for him.

"I must remind you of one thing, Gertrude," he said, after a few moments—"the reward you promised to give to the person who was the first to bring you information concerning that unfortunate woman, Lola de Ferras. Do you remember?"

"Yes," she said.

"You have never paid it; but I have not forgotten it. Do you know what I think you ought to give me, Gertrude? You ought to give me five hundred kisses."

"You have never paid it; but I "Oh, Harry, how wrong of you!" she cried, her beautiful face flushing. "How can you say such a thing?"

"You made another promise, which also you appear to have forgotten, Gertrude. It was this—that, if the man who brought you certain and reliable news about your father was in any way eligible, you would marry him, if he asked you, as his reward. Now be fair, be just to me, Gertrude. I am the medium through which such news was obtained—I am an eligible man. Give me my reward. Marry me!"

"What a way in which to ask me, Harry! What can you expect me to say? You have not mentioned the word 'love.'"

"Yes, I have," said Harry. "I have been thinking of nothing else since I saw you on that day in the Pitti Palace—it is you who will not listen. I have been your faithful friend, your devoted slave, your true lover, all these years; now I ask boldly for my reward. Marry me; and marry me on the same day that your sister becomes Princess Colonna. Will you?"

"You do not deserve that I should say 'Yes.' You are so—so masterful about it, Harry."

"You see, my dearest, I am compelled to be so," he rejoined. "You would, I believe, let me live in suspense for twenty years longer, Gertrude. Does it ever occur to you how completely I have given to you the last three years of my life?"

"You have been very good to me," she faltered.

"Good to you! That is a weak expression. I have worshiped you—simply worshiped you. Ah, my darling, do not be coy with me—do be kind to me! I love you, my Gertrude, with all my heart. You will not send me away?"

"No," she said gently, "you know that I will not."

Then his arms were suddenly clasped round her, and her fair face was hidden upon his breast; so that it was love after all.

* * * * *

The two weddings took place on the same day, amid the rejoicings of the whole county. Kathleen Rhysworth became Princess Colonna. Such perfect content, such complete happiness as these young people enjoyed, is rarely known. Gertrude always liked to remember her mother's farewell. She had held her tightly clasped in her arms.

"I owe the entire happiness of my life to you," she whispered. "Goodby, my golden heart!"

CHAPTER XLI.

Five years had elapsed since the marriage of Dolores' fair daughters; and to her they had been years of perfect peace.

The Prince and Princess Colonna divided their time between Italy and England; they had one son and one daughter. At Fielden Manor the family was more numerous; two sturdy little sons and one fair-haired little daughter made the grand old place bright with mirth and amusement.

Lady Allanmore had made one stipulations with her daughters.

"Call your children what you will," she said: "but promise me that you will never name one of them after me. Dolores means 'burden of sorrow,' and I have had to carry mine.

But Gertrude would call her eldest son Carlos after her father, not Karl, lest that should make her mother sad every time she heard it, but Carlos; and he, because of the name he bore, was always her best-loved child. Then Harry came and little Blythe. They were three beautiful children, and Gertrude was one of the happiest of wives. There was no London season for her. Once after her marriage, she made her bow before Her Majesty; after that she had no time for London. Her husband, her children, her mother, her household, her friends, the poor on her estate, completely occupied her time. If she went away for a few days, it seemed as if the whole county had lost its light.

Lady Allanmore continued to live at Scarsdale, but she was seldom without one or other of her grandchildren, and in their youth, seemed to grow young herself.

One fine, summer evening, Lord Fielden, who was visiting at Scarsdale, lighted a cigar and went out with some newspapers; Gertrude took a book and the two boys. A nurse followed with little Blythe, without whom the party would have appeared incomplete. They chose a shady avenue, where they seated themselves not far from the large, white monument which had already grown to be a landmark amongst them. Lord Fielden was soon engrossed in some Eastern news, Lady Fielden in her novels; the boys played at their will. Baby Blythe grew tired, and lay quietly in her nurse's arms. The boys, finding themselves more completely at liberty, began to run races. They were so long absent on one occasion that Gertrude looked up from her book. Presently the elder, Carlos, came up slowly to his mother, and looked at her with great, wondering eyes.

"What is the matter, Carlos?" she asked.

"Mamma," he said, "there is a woman lying there by the white marble."

"A woman, darling! Are you sure?" cried Gertrude.

"Yes, a woman. She did not speak to me, though I pulled her dress."

"Harry," cried Gertrude, "do you hear what Carlos says?—there is a woman lying by the monument!"

"Nonsense!" cried Harry, engrossed in his paper. "That boy loves to make a sensation. It is only the nurse."

With an air of injured dignity, Carlos returned—

"Nurse is there—look, papa— and the woman lying by the marble does not speak."

It was the terror of the boy's face that attracted Gertrude. Lord Fielden did not see it.

"Do go, Harry, and see what it is," she said.

Lord Fielden rose somewhat unwillingly.

"If you have been drawing on your imagination, Carlos," he said, "we will have a private interview."

"Mamma," said the little fellow, "indeed she is there, lying quite still, and she did not speak!"

The boy's terror was so evident that Gertrude rose hastily and followed her husband. As they drew near the monument they saw that he was right. There lay something which they could not distinguish at first; afterward, they saw that it was the body of a woman.

"Keep away, Gertrude!" cried Lord Fielden.

But it was too late, she had rushed on before him and raised the fallen head. One look was enough. It was Lola de Ferras, and she was quite dead. How long she had been there of course no one knew; but, in the hour of her extremity and desolation, she had gone to the grave of the man she had loved so dearly, to die. It was a pitiful face, with its lips closed forever, and the long, dark hair, streaked with gray. How gently they raised her! And Gertrude loved her own mother none the less because she kissed the poor wanderer's face in loving pity.

They never told any one where they had found her, for Dolores' sake; and they concealed her identity with some difficulty and buried her in the pretty churchyard at Deeping. There her grave is distinct from all others, because it is generally surrounded by rich, red roses; and there the passionate, guilty, loving heart is at last at rest.

THE END.

Tortured with Pain.

Too Weak to Work.

ULCERS, BOILS AND PIMPLES ALL OVER HER BODY

Such was the condition of Mrs. Samuel Deitz, Zurich, Ont.

She happily found relief from her terrible suffering by using

Burdock Blood Bitters.

A remedy without a rival for the cure of all diseases and troubles arising from bad blood. A record extending over a quarter of a century and thousands of testimonials will prove this. Mrs. Deitz writes: "Too weak to work, tortured with the pain of ulcers, boils and pimples all over my body, especially on my face. I had almost made up my mind to give up trying to have them cured. I was ashamed to have any person come to see me, my face was in such a terrible state. I tried everything I could think of but got worse and worse. I was then led to try Burdock Blood Bitters and was surprised at the wonderful change the first bottle made. Altogether I took seven bottles and am now completely cured and am in perfect health again. I feel that B.B.B. saved my life."

Quail.

The proposal to restock the western counties of Ontario with quail, as set forth in the report of the Game Commissioners, recalls some local efforts that have been made in this direction. A couple of years ago the Woodstock Gun Club secured quite a number of birds and turned them loose in this neighborhood. Since then scarcely a trace of the birds has been seen. A few reports reached town about the success of some pot-hunter; but that was all. It is considered probable that most of the birds perished during the first winter, and the rest dispersed. It is said that none of the birds were ever seen in the section in which they were liberated.—Woodstock Express.

Magic of London.

All those who love life know something of the magic of a great city. Paris, Rome, St. Petersburg, London—these are the names to set the heart beating. Low though we profess to rate it in deference to cosmopolitan opinion, we have, all of us, a shame-faced pride in our grimy British capital. Yes, it is a glorious thing to be a cockney; there is no harmony like the roar of Piccadilly, no melody like the chimes of Big Ben. The Englishman returning from his travels alights at Victoria with a long sigh of contentment.—The Speaker.

PUZZLES IN SPELLING.

They Are Liable to Catch You In a Most Mysterious Way.

What queer quirks a good and obedient mind will sometimes take! A clergyman of exceptional scholarly attainments tells me that he once wrote what he at the moment conceived to be the word "righteous." The nature of his calling ought to suggest that of all words this one should be among the most familiar to him, and indeed it was. Yet when he had written it it did not look right. After pussling over it for some time he concluded that it must end with "ious" instead of "eous," as he had written it. Finally in a mental muddle he went to his unabridged dictionary, but was amazed at finding no such word there. Deferring further search for the nonce, he completed his letter and then opened the dictionary again. This time he found the word all right and in its proper place, a fact which, he said, would have been a warning to him if he had been a drinking man.

The explanation of it was that by some unaccountable freak he had got it into his noddle that it was spelled "ritcheous." He had spelled it so in his letter and had of course looked on the wrong page of the dictionary for it in the first instance. By the time he looked again the crotchet was out of his mind, and he knew how to spell the word as well as Webster did.

Modern Medicine.

Cod-liver oil is good. Purified petroleum is better. Angier's Emulsion is made of odorless and tasteless petroleum, glycerine and hypophosphites. It does all,—and more,—than cod-liver oil and similar preparations. It is pleasant to take, and agreeable to the stomach. 7a

Stamps and Lovers.

Most English people have noticed a development in the obliteration of the stamps upon their envelopes; for the Postoffice is adopting a new machine which swallows letters by the 450 a minute; sets its teeth into them and marks them and disgorges them with the evidence of time and place. Some interesting specimens of the marks are given in The Sphere. But the public must cooperate by sticking the stamp on the right-hand top corner. Lovers have invented a language of postage stamps which has been embarrassing to the hand stamper; the machine does not recognize it, and cannot at present follow the emotions round the envelope. Lovers should in future contain their feelings within the envelope, and put the stamp at the business corner.

A Jovial Don.

Among the masters of Balliol College, Oxford, in the eighteenth century, was Dr. Theophilus Leigh, whose talk was a perennial stream of jests and retorts. When he was told that in a dispute among the Privy Councillors the Lord Chancellor struck the table so violently that he split it, Dr. Leigh replied: "No, no; I can hardly believe he split the table, although I believe he divided the board." Being told in his last illness that a friend who had recovered from a long illness by eating eggs had been egged on to matrimony, the wit at once replied: "Then may the yoke sit easy on him."

A Land Bill Love Feast.

When Secretary Wyndham met the representatives of the Irish landlords and tenants and laid before them his land purchase schome, William O'Brien pushed his chair back from the table and exclaimed, "For the first time in my life I say 'God save the King!'" Lord Clanricarde, the most unpopular and most unmerciful of Irish landlords, capped this utterance with the words, "For the first time in my life I say 'God save Ireland!'"

LACROSSE.

Lacrosse match to-night.

• • • •

Alphonse Shannon will play between the flags for T.A.S. this evening.

• • • •

The Ontarios will go out to Peterborough to-morrow (Tuesday) evening on the 4.20 train to play a practice match with the T.A.S. team of that town. It is plain to be seen that the Ontarios are out to win this year and they should meet with every encouragement from the townspeople.—Port Hope Guide.

• • • •

Charley Shannon of Marmora, has signed with Hastings.

• • • •

By a typographical error it was made to rea din Monday's issue that the Port Hope-T.A.S. game would be on Saturday evening. The game takes place this evening at 7 o'clock sharp, and Port Hope is bringing up its best team. The T.A.S. will put the same team in the field as was pitted against Lindsay, and a good game is looked for.

A Triumph in Medicine.

Dr. Pettingill's Kidney-Wort Tablets

A Non-Alcoholic Remedy and a Positive Cure for all Forms of Kidney Disease.

The use of liquid kidney medicines containing alcohol is suicidal, and must quickly come to an end. A deadly poison like alcohol aggravates and assists troubles like Bright's disease and Diabetes.

Kidney-Wort Tablets are a triumph of medical science—a boon to victims of a disease that cuts off tens of thousands every year. Kidney-Wort Tablets are, to-day, curing well-developed and established cases of kidney diseases, urinary and bladder troubles; no other remedy has ever given such marvellous and assuring results.

Kidney-Wort Tablets are now prescribed and recommended by eminent medical men in Canada and the United States. Do not fail to give them a trial if you experience the slightest symptoms of deranged or weak kidneys. If you are making use of liquid medicines, throw them aside at once, the alcohol in them will hasten your destruction and death. Ask your Druggist for the positive cure, Kidney-Wort Tablets.

VICE-REGALITE'S VISIT TO PETERBOROUGH.

A bylaw authorizing the expenditure of $500 for park purposes received its several readings.

A bylaw re the transferring of exemption of taxation of the late Stanley Piano Company, to the new firm, the Martin & Stanley Piano Company, Limited, of Toronto, passed its several readings. It is understood from the bylaw that exemption is cancelled should the company fail to operate the factory for three months in any one year.

DEFECTIVE SIDEWALKS.

County Police Magistrate Edmison addresse dthe council in reference to the disgraceful condition of the sidewalk on the east side of Rubidge street, froom Murray street to Brock street.

Alderman Morrison also referred to the condition of the walk on the north side of Brock street, near St. Andrew's church.

The Board of Works was instructed to advertise the fact that tenders would be asked for the construction of a granolithic pavement along that portions of the streets referred to.

THE VICE-REGAL VISIT.

His Worship Mayor Roger next addressed the council in reference to the visit of Lord and Lady Minto on Friday. He had received a communication from Major Maude a few days ago in which he intimated that His Excellency and Lady Minto would visit Peterborough for a few hours. His Worship then conferred with the leading citizens of the town and a meeting was held in the council chamber on Saturday evening when a programme was arranged. The Vice-Regal party would arrive in town at 12 o'clock on Friday, and His Worship stated that a small deputation would meet them at the station, and take them for a drive around the town until one o'clock. A formal reception would then be held in front of the Court House, when an address of welcome would be read, and the prominent citizens of the town and county would be presented to the distinguished visitors, after which the general public would be given an opportunity to meet the distinguished party. He further stated that a guard of honour from the 57th Regiment would meet the visitors at the station, and a cavalry escort would also accompany them on their tour of the town. His Worship felt confident that the citizens would recognize the honour done the town by the visit of the Governor-General and his estimable wife, and that everyone would decorate their premises for the occasion, and turn out in large numbers in order to show that we are loyal subjects of the Empire.

Alderman Morrison then introduced the following resolution, which was seconded by Ald. Shortly, and carried unanimously:

"That this council has learned with pleasure of the intended visit of His Excellency, the Governor-General, and Lady Minto, to Peterborough, on Friday next; that the suggested programme for their reception, which has been mentioned to the council, be approved, provided it meets the wishes of His Excellency; that a committee be appointed to make the arrangements pertaining to the reception, consisting of the Mayor, Ald. Best, McWilliams, O'Connell, and Rush, ex-Mayor Denne, Col. H. C. Rogers, Col. Edwards, Major Dennistoun, Mr. J. Hughes-Charlas, President of the Board of Trade, and Mr. E. H .D. Hall, with power to add to their number, and that the treasurer be instructed to pay any expenses incidental to the reception upon the certificate of the Mayor, or such person as he may appoint.

EXEMPTION OF SCHOOL TAXES.

The Courto f Revision referred back to the council the question of the exemption of the school tax on the Y.W.C.A.

The report was submitted by Ald. Morrison, who referred to the good work the institution was doing, and moved that the council exempt the school taxes.

Ald. Corbery thought that the T.A.S., which was doing a good work, should be included in the motion.

Ald. Morrison was agreeable and the motion was carried.

FREE POSTAL DELIVERY.

Ald. Morrison moved as follows:

That in view of the fact that the Government recognizes the inadequacy of the present post office, and are about to spend four or five thousand dollars in improvements, the Postmaster-General be memorialized to give the town a free delivery, which will avoid the necessity of enlarging the present premises.

In speaking to the resolution Ald. Morrison contended that the size and importance of Peterborough called for free postal delivery. This growth was recognized in view of the fact that the Postmaster-General intended making alterations and additions to the local post office. The revenue from the town post office last year amounted to $21,470, and he felt that it would reach $25,000 this year. There is an old rule, he continued, which states that when an office pays $20,000 annually it is entitled to free postal delivery. The expenses in connection with the local post office amounted to about $5,000 and he argued that it would not cost much higher for a postal delivery. He cited Brantford, which has a postal delivery, in which eight carriers are engaged and it only costs $3,637.

Mayor Roger stated that a memorial had been forwarded by the council to the Postmaster-General last year in reference to a postal delivery, but no action had been taken at Ottawa. It was felt by some that as soon as a postal delivery was installed the local rate of postage would be doubled. Personally he was in favour of a postal delivery, but he thought it would be wise to get the views of the citizens on the matter.

Alderman Morrison acquiesced and the matter will stand over till next meeting.

THE FIRE HALL.

Alderman Clinkscale moved, seconded by Alderman McWilliams, that the bill re Babcock Extinguishers be paid; that the Canada Rubber Company be communicated with in reference to orders for supplies with which they were favoured, and that the Fire, Water and Light Committee be authorized to ascertain the cost in connection with a site and erection of a new fire hall. Alderman McWilliams urged the Council to take immediate action regarding the erection of a new fire hall. The town was not in a position to meet the expenditure involved in the erection of new municipal buildings in keeping with the dignity and importance of a town like Peterborough. The only way out of the difficulty at present, he thought, was the erection of a new fire hall and the fitting up of the present hall into municipal offices.

His Worship Mayor Rogers stated that the town certainly required new municipal buildings, and that fact came upon him very forcibly during the past few days in connection with the visit of the Vice-Regal party. We had no buildings to bring him to—in fact, he declared, they were not fit to receive a tramp. It would be unwise at present to discuss a fire hall until the question of municipal union with Ashburnham was dispensed with.

Alderman Shortly was of the opinion that it was too late in the year to consider the erection of a fire hall, as it would only entail expense.

The motion, however, was adopted on the understanding that no expense would be incurred in gleaning information re proposed fire hall.

On motion of Aldermen Batten and Clinkscale, the Board of Works was instructed to improve street in front of Mr. Samuel Appleby's property on Reid street.

The Council then adjourned.

IMPRESSIONS.

It has never been our privilege to attend a council meeting where business was dispatched with such promptitude and careful thought withal, as characterized the meeting of the council last night. Mayor Roger is a splendid presiding officer, and has the valuable faculty of holding the members down to business, although in truth it must be said that the aldermen to a man evidenced the same earnest desire to transact the business of the town in a business-like manner, and their deliberations gave ample proof that the affairs of this progressive little city are safe in their hands.

Mayor Roger in referring to the visit which Peterborough is to receive from Lord and Lady Minto with their party, expressed the hope that the citizens recognizing the honour thus shown them, would, as far as possible, decorate their homes and business places in a fitting manner. Peterborough has the reputation of being the home of citizens who are of a decidedly public spirited nature, and, as on this occasion, the town is being shown an honour which is bestowed upon few, it should manifest in every possible way that the honour is appreciated.

• • •

Peterborough Aldermen never talk unless they have something to say; that is, they do not speak for the sake of hearing themselves, (as some men do) and we mention as an example of this straightforward business talk, the remarks of Ald. Morrison with reference to a free mail delivery to the residents of the town. His speech gave evidence of a study of the subject, and we predict that next month when this question comes up for further discussion the claims of the town upon the Government for an improved mail service will be safe with Alderman Morrison as its champion.

• • •

For the expeditious dispatch of business noted above considerable credit must be given City Clerk Armstrong. He has the business of the town at his finger ends and by his prompt and energetic manner assists materially in the judicious despatch of the affairs having to do with the welfare of the town.

If You Don't "Yacht" Perhaps You "Auto"

This is no joke, but we just wish to say that if you want the correct style in a

Straw Hat this season, it is the "Yacht"—low crown, wide brim, in either Plain Split Straw or Sennit Braids.

Of course, we have the other styles as well. There is "that something" about our Straw Hats that make them fittingly crown the handsomest summer costumes.

You "auto" have one. We can suit you.

A FINANCIAL CRASH.

A. E. Ames & Co. Suspend Payment in Toronto Tuesday.

FORESEEN BY FINANCIERS.

Heavy Slump in Stocks and Securities Held by Them Given as the Cause of the Failure—Liabilities Will Run Into Millions—Mr. Ames Resigns Presidency of Metropolitan Bank.

Toronto, June 3.—The following notice was posted on the street door of the office of A. E. Ames & Co., the well-known brokers, at ten o'clock yesterday morning:

"Owing to the continuous severe decline in the securities market, we have found it necessary to suspend payment, and would ask the indulgence of our friends for a few days till we can prepare a statement of our affairs, and consider what is best to be done. A. E. Ames & Co."

The suspension came as a surprise to the general public, and in a less degree to financial circles. A crowd gathered, the news spread, and soon it was known all over the city. Brokers and others interested in stocks took the intelligence more quietly than the uninitiated. The latter knew more of Mr. Ames' reputed wealth than of the fluctuations of the market, and so took longer to grasp the matter.

A. E. Ames & Company's difficulties are due to the slump in stocks, which even his personal capital could not withstand. Disquieting rumors had been afloat, but these were not widely credited. Of late, however, securities in which Ames & Co. were interested took a downward tendency, and continued till the present climax. Ames & Co. have been among the largest operators in C. P. R., Twin City, Dominion Coal, Dominion Steel, Sloss-Sheffield, and Lake Superior. Of these, there has been pronounced pressure on C.P.R., Twin City, and Dominion Coal. Continuing for some days, the declines were very heavy Monday, and yesterday morning brought no relief. In some instances, Ames & Co. took stocks off the market to save themselves, but the effort could not be maintained. Heavy margins drained their resources, with the above result.

Mr. A. E. Ames has always been regarded as a very wealthy man, and, undoubtedly was, until recently. Two or three years ago successful coups brought him handsome results. The tide of fortune may have turned a few months ago, when issues with which he was connected declined.

The suspension of the firm will have absolutely no financial effect upon the many business institutions with which Mr. Ames was connected. He was a member of the directorate of many companies, and his stock in these organizations, being paid up, is entirely unaffected by the suspension.

The members of the firm are, besides Mr. Ames, Messrs. Hilton, R. Tudhope, E. D. Fraser, and Alexander E. Wallace.

The liabilities are estimated in millions. These consist of: The money of the public on deposit, estimated by The Telegram last night as $200,000; amounts held by the firm for their customers who were speculating in stocks, which will be very large; what the firm owed the banks and other financial institutions for advances on stocks that they carried for their customers, one bank alone has loaned the Ames firm a quarter of a million dollars, but has good securities, as have the other banks.

Mr. Ames' personal fortune, estimated 18 months ago at $1,000,000, is also likely swallowed up.

The depositors are not preferred as in a chartered bank and rank as ordinary creditors.

Mr. Ames was President of the Metropolitan Bank, but he yesterday resigned that office and Dr. R. Warden has been elected in his stead, with Mr. S. J. Moore as vice-president. The directors issue a statement that the firm is only indebted to this bank for $50,000, amply secured. The bank says the failure will not affect it.

The financial world is truly sorry for A. E. Ames & Co., and the best opinion does not expect their failure to affect other monetary institutions.

Mr. Ames was born in Lambeth, Ont., in 1886, is the son of a Methodist minister, and is married to a daughter of Senator George A. Cox. Last year he was President of the Toronto Board of Trade.

THOMAS ATKINS' WEEKLY PARADE.

57th Will Provide a Guard of Honour From the Vice-Regal Party.

The weekly drill of the 57th Regiment took place yesterday evening, and was attended by a large number of the men. The several companies went out on the Central Park, where they went through company drill. No. 4 company was put through some skirmishing drill to the delight of the men. Capt. Hounsell was absent and Lieut. J. Hamilton took command.

At the conclusion of drill the battalion was formed up in the drill shed and the following orders read:

Headquarters, Peterborough.
June 2nd, 1903.

Orders by Lieut.-Col. J. W. Miller, commanding 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers.

No. 1. Detail of duty for the week ending June 9th, 1903:—Officer for the week, Lieut. McWilliams; next for duty, Capt. Clugston.

No. 3. The following are taken on the strength of the Regiment:—B Co., Pte. Wanlan, Arnot and Corbman.

No. 3. Leave of absence from parade is hereby granted to Capt. Walker and to Lieut. McLean until the 15th inst.

No. 4. A Guard of Honour will be formed to receive His Excellency, the Governor-General on Friday the 5th, inst. Detail of Guard will be as follows:—Capt. of the Guard, Capt. Bennett; Subalterns of the Guard, Capt. Hounsell and Lieut. Matthews; Officer on the Colours, Lieut. Smith, Sergts. Brown, A Co., Batten, E. Co., Miller, G Co., Henderson, H Co.; Corpls. Robertson, A Co., Haws, B Co., Plummer, E Co., Asseltine, H Co. and 96 men. The Guard will parade on Wednesday and Thursday evenings at 8 p. m. for instruction.

No. 5. Markers will be in attendance at the rifle range on Saturday at 2.30 p. m. Rifle and ammunition may be had from the Sergt.-Major.

No. 6. It has been decided to hold our annual trip this year to Picton on July 1st. The hour of departure and return will be announced next Tuesday evening. Officers, Non-Commissioned Officers and men are expected to do their utmost to make this trip a success by attending all remaining parades.

No. 7. The detail of men from the several companies is as follows:—A Co., 11; B Co., 13; C Co., 10; D Co., 13; E Co., 27; F Co., 7; G Co., 7; H Co., 15.

By order,
GEO. S. MATTHEWS, Lieut.
Acting Adjutant.

Lieut.-Colonel Miller addressed the battalion and exhorted them to turn out in large numbers to greet His Excellency Lord Minto. He moreover asked all those who could turn out on the guard of honour to attend drill both this evening and to-morrow evening, as it would be of a difficult nature.

Wedded in All Saints.

A quiet wedding took place last evening at All Saints church, the contracting parties being Alonzo Heaslip and Miss Hattie Andrews, youngest daughter of Mr. Edwin Andrews, of Paterson street. The ceremony, which was performed by Rev. W. L. Armitage, was witnessed by the immediate friends of the bride and groom, who join in wishing them many years of happy married life. They will make their future home in Peterborough.

TORONTO UNIVERSITY JUNE CONVOCATION.

A Three Day's Programme Being Arranged—Special Anniversary Ceremonies.

The June convocation and conferring of degrees at the University of Toronto will be of unusual interest this year. This is the sixtieth anniversary of the establishment of the University, King's College having having been opened in 1843. It is also just fifty years since University College opened its doors to students. An elaborate programme is being prepared, covering three days, commencing June 10th, and continuing during the two following days. The visiting graduates will observe the progress made in the equipment of the various faculties, inspect the new buildings and discuss the development of the University. Among the distinguished speakers who will be present, are:—Sir William Meredith, Chief Justice Moss, President Loudon, Dr. Gillmon, ex-President of John Hopkins' University, and the Rev. J. Munro Gibson, of London, England.

For those wishing to attend these ceremonies, special reduced rates have been secured on all railways.

ATLAS LOAN CO. HAVE NOW FAILED.

St. Thomas Financial Institution Temporarily Embarrassed as Result of A. E. Ames Co. Difficulties.

(Special to the Examiner.)

St. Thomas, Ont., June 3. — The Atlas Loan Company, of this city, closed its doors this morning and posted the following notice:—"Owing to the financial difficulties of A. E. Ames & Co., the directors of the Atlas Loan Company, have decided in the interests of the shareholders and depositors to close their doors for the present." It is believed that all creditors of the Loan Company will be paid in full if patience is exercised and the directors given time to realize upon their securities. None of the other Loan Companies or banks of the city are effected in any way by the closing of the Atlas' doors.

About Iron

In this twentieth century eight people out of ten require more iron in the system than nature has supplied; and of those who require iron, about eight out of ten have found it impossible to assimilate it in the form in which it is ordinarily administered. Consequently thousands of people are suffering for the want of iron. They need not suffer a day longer, because in

FERROL

(The Iron-Oil Food)

they will find the iron they need combined with Cod Liver Oil in a scientifically perfect emulsion, as palatable as cream, and in which the iron causes no gastric disturbance.

INJURIOUS ABUSE OF OVERHEAD CHECK.

Humane Society Makes Appeal to Horsemen.

To Animals Standing in Harness for Long Periods it is Little Short of Torture.

The Toronto Humane Society has received so many communications regarding the cruelty of the use of the overhead check-rein on horses that it is desirous of inviting a discussion of the question through the daily press if possible, and thus reaching a wide field outside this city, as well as within its limits. The evil is perhaps less prevalent in Toronto than in other cities or towns, where there is less restrictive influence. The use here of an overhead check-rein on any put a high-spirited, hard-pulling, impatient steed, whose form and action would seem to warrant some little aid to restraint, is not perhaps so very prevalent, though frequent enough, it must be admitted, to call for attention and if possible remedy. While its use in Toronto on the hard-working, patient, sometimes bovine type of general utility horse is regarded here as evidencing rather a rural taste, not general; its abuse on such in country towns has too long been patent to all lovers of this most patient, kindly, useful companion of man. It is felt that fashion alone is responsible for all this cruelty and could those who follow it but be made to realize its results they would abandon it at once.

So much of the cruelty inflicted on the defenceless orders of creation is entirely unconscious and unintentional that a suggestive word is always productive of good results.

If the torture inflicted on horses by the overhead check-rein were known and understood it would speedily pass out of fashion and fall into disrepute. It is true that a horse addicted to kicking, pulling or seizing the bit in its teeth and bolting can be prevented by a check-rein. It is also true that a well-conditioned trotter taken from the stable for an hour's spin does not suffer from a reasonable use of the check. But these exceptions must not be allowed to obscure the infliction of a deplorable amount of torture through the use of the overhead check on horses driven under various conditions, kept on the road for many hours, left standing in harness for long intervals, and subjected to the general treatment of horses kept for utility.

Many prominent veterinary surgeons have testified to the cruelty and injury inflicted by the overhead check under such conditions. Prominent horse owners have given similar testimony, but their statements have not been accorded sufficient publicity. A sore mouth is a common result of the overhead check, and it greatly aggravates the suffering of the animal. In every case of sore mouth the check is a positive cruelty. The swelling of the veins of the n x is another sign of suffering, the unnatural strain having a tendency to stop the circulation and to produce a temporary paralysis of the muscles.

The torture inflicted when a horse's head and neck are kept tied in some cases for hours, in others for the whole day, in positions which produce such results, would surely, if understood, bring about relief for the faithful dumb animals, by the abolition of such methods and fashion.

HARVEY COUNCIL MEETING.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The council of Harvey met in the True Blue Hall on Saturday, May 23, pursuant to adjournment. Members present, Jas. Ingram, Esq., reeve, in the chair, and Councillors Flynn, Elliott, McKenty and Cairnduff. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

Communications were read from John Deck, Jas. Ward, Council of St. Mary's, the Farmer's Sun, J. M. Oliver and John Carew.

Moved by Mr. Flynn, seconded by Mr. Elliott, that this council do now form a court of revision.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Ingram, seconded by Mr. McKenty, that Mr. Flynn be the chairman.—Carried.

The members then took the prescribed oath.

Appeals were then read from A. L. Shearar, Archie Johnston, Samuel Jenkinson, Gilmour & Co., and Chas. Allen.

On motion Mr. Shearer's assessment was reduced $100, A. Johnston's $150, S. Jenkinson's $50, and Gilmour and Co's., $50.

Moved by Mr. McKenty, seconded by Mr. Cairnduff, that this court do now adjourn until the next meeting, and that this council do now resume in general business.—Carried.

On motion Mr. Albert Allen addressed the council in regard to opening a road across a marsh opposite lots 28 and 29, concession 9.

Moved by Mr. Cairnduff, seconded by Mr. Elliott, that the reeve and Mr. Flynn go and inspect said marsh and report to the next meeting of the council.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Elliott, seconded by Mr. Flynn, that the clerk notify Mr. Carew that the council can do nothing in respect to the lot assessed to Carew in years that are passed, as he will have to recover the taxes from the owner.—Carried.

On motion $100 was appropriated for roads, as follows: $33 in North Harvey, Mr. Cairnduff, commissioner; $33 in South Harvey, Mr. McKenty commissioner; and $34 in East Harvey, Mr. Flynn commissioner.

Moved by Mr. McKenty, seconded by Mr. Flynn, that orders be drawn on the treasurer as follows: Wm. Irwin, debenture No. 10, and coupon, $78.11; D. Weir, Clerk, postage for 1903, $8; Jas. Richmond, salary assessor, $50.—Carried.

On motion the following taxes and roadwork were struck off: T. Nicholls, 8 days; J. Ward, for trespass, $3; Nepear Bennett, 2 days; Mrs. Holt, $1.89.

Moved by Mr. Cairnduff, seconded by Mr. Elliott that this council do now adjourn to meet at the school house at Nogie's Creek, on Saturday, June 27th, 1903.

INDIAN RIVER NEWS.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Our respected townsman, Mr. Jas. Hall, together with Messrs. Jas. Shearer and Thos. Breckenridge, left on a visit to Temiscamink on Friday last.

Mr. Wm. Foster, one of last year's star football players, has already arrived at Temiscaming, and set up a home for himself near New Liskeard.

The Indian River football team are vigorously preparing for another season's series of victories. Although not in the league they may arrange for a game with the winners in the fall.

Mr. Thos. O'Grady left on Tuesday, the 26th, for a visit to the vicinity of the Rocky Mountains. We wish him a pleasant journey.

The Peterborough Association of the Baptist Church, will meet in the Murray street church, Peterborough, on June 17 to 19. The delegates from the Indian River church appointed were Messrs. Breckenridge, Duff and Nesbitt, and the pastor, Rev. Mr. Kelly.

We regret to say that our esteemed townsman, Mr. John E. Devlin, is at present in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, and has undergone an operation. He is still very low but we entertain hopes of his speedy recovery.

GOOD HEALTH.

How it can be Obtained and how it can be Preserved.

The health of the whole body depends upon the blood and nerves. The blood must be rich and pure, and the nerves vigorous and strong. Therefore a medicine that makes new blood and strengthens the nerves reaches the root of many serious diseases. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will do this, and this is the secret of their wonderful power to conquer disease. Thousands of cases—many of them in your own neighbourhood—have proved that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will cure rheumatism, sciatica, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, nervous and bilious headache, heart trouble, indigestion, neuralgia and the ailments that render the lives of so many women a source of misery. Mr. Jas. Adames, Brandon, Man., says: "Before I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills my health was much shattered with rheumatism, nervous depression and sleeplessness. For fully a year I rarely got a good night's sleep. I gave the pills a thorough trial and can now truthfully say I could not wish for better health."

What Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for others they will surely do for you, but you should be careful to get the genuine with the full name, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," on the wrapper round each box. Sold by all medicine dealers or sent by mail at 50c. per box or six boxes for $2.50, by writing to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

RUSH POINT.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Round Lake Sunday school is invited to attend a picnic given by Cordova Sunday school. They have accepted.

Misses Maggie and Jennie Balfour are guests of their uncle, H. Mann, Mount Julian, Stony Lake.

Miss Elmhurst last Sunday entertained her cousin, Miss Myrtle Buchanan, Havelock.

Round Lake was a popular resort on Victoria Day. Numbers enjoyed nature's beauties there that day.

An ice cream social will be held at the North school house on June 15th. A good time will be given.

EXCELSIORS VS. LINDSAY.

Peterborough Boys Played Superior Ball While Lindsay Scored the Runs.

Yesterday the Excelsior baseball team went to Lindsay to play an exhibition game and although it may be considered an "old song" for the defeated team to say that they were playing against hard luck, the facts in this case certainly warrant that assertion. That the Excelsiors put up a superior class of baseball is proven by the fact that Flaherty struck out no less than 17 Lindsay men, while Miller the twirler for that town, was only able to make 7 Excelsiors fan the air. The new foul strike rule was used and while to the unfamiliarity of the team with this rule may be attributed a partial cause for their defeat, the circumstances which gave the game to a manifestly inferior team were the decisions of an umpire to which great exception was taken by the Excelsior supporters. In the sixth innings when four Peterborough men crossed the plate, an attempt was made to end the innings with three runs only to their credit, but eventually when the manager of the team threatened to withdraw his men from the field, the fourth run was allowed.

A most cursory examination of the score which follows will be sufficient to demonstrate that by far the better exhibition of baseball was given by the Excelsiors:

The record of Flaherty in the game is indeed a creditable one, striking out 17 men, allowing but 7 hits, only one of which was a two-bagger, and giving but three men their base on balls. This is a performance which should have won him the game. The attendance was good.

WANTS DAMAGES FOR FALSE ARREST.

A Suit Against the Ottawa Bank has Arisen.

The Toronto News contains the following:—A heavy suit for damages against the Ottawa Bank has arisen out of some dealings with the Temiskaming Railway contracts at North Bay. W. J. Kearns, a merchant and contractor, doing business at Peterborough and the Soo, has commenced an action against the bank for $10,000 damages for "malicious prosecution and false arrest."

It seems that Kearns went to the North Bay branch of the defendant bank, and obtained from the manager, William Kingsmill, an advance of $50 on a note signed by the firm of Kearns & Pelangio. This money Kearns said was to be used for the purpose of purchasing supplies to carry out a contract he and his partner, James Pelangio, had on the railway. Before the note came due this contract was rescinded, and when it did become due Pelangio repudiated not only the note but also the partnership, and denied all knowledge of the $50. Acting on this statement, the manager of the bank had Kearns arrested, charged with "obtaining money under false pretences," but the magistrate immediately dismissed the case, whereupon Kearns brought the present action.

The matter came up to-day on a motion by the plaintiff to strike out of the bank's defence all references to the statements of Pelangio, which the plaintiff says are not relevant to the case.

TREADGOLD ENQUIRY

Judge Britton's Appointment is Criticized in the House.

AN INSINUATION OF BRIBERY.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Asks For a Definite Charge—The Railway Commission—Customs Estimates—Bill to Incorporate the Canadian Telephone and Telegraph Company—Mr. Harty's Bill.

Ottawa, June 3.—A bill was introduced by Mr. Harty in the House yesterday, respecting Queen's College, Kingston.

Mr. Taylor introduced a bill to incorporate the Canadian Telephone and Telegraph Company. The incorporators are nearly all Americans. The capital stock of the company is $1,000,000, and its headquarters is Ottawa.

The Treadgold Commission.

Mr. Casgrain called attention to the fact that the newspapers had announced Judge Britton's departure for the Yukon, and said he considered this a strange way to treat the House. The Government should first have informed the House of the commission and the terms of the commission. He said Judge Britton had only recently left the political arena, and had expressed strong opinions on the very questions he was now called upon to adjudicate. He would thus be severely tried to do his duty because of his political leanings.

"They are ugly rumors," said Mr. Casgrain, "as to the granting of the concessions in question. It is said, not on the streets, but in the corridors of the House, that sums of money passed between the grantees of concessions and men high in authority. The Government should wash its hands of these rumors."

Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier suggested that if Mr. Casgrain had exercised some of the judgment with which he was endowed he would not have spoken as he had done. He had been guided by rumor. As to Judge Britton, no communication had been made to him, except to ascertain from him whether or not he would act on the commission. As to the rumors mentioned by Mr. Casgrain, that large sums of money had been paid to members of the Government, the Government would not appoint a commission, as Mr. Casgrain had suggested, to investigate these rumors, but just so soon as a member of the Opposition would conform to Parliamentary usage, by making a formal charge in the House, they would have the fullest investigation. He had heard nothing of the rumor mentioned by Mr. Casgrain. As to Judge Britton, he said, if there was an honorable man on the Ontario Bench, and it was an honorable Bench, that man was Judge Britton. To say that because a man had had political leanings he would not be an upright man was a serious charge against the Bench of Canada. Men of strong party feeling had been appointed to the Bench by both sides, but he had never heard a charge of partisanship made against them. Judge Britton would be a most admirable man to perform the duties required. He had long experience as drainage commissioner in Ontario, and knew something of hydraulics, and these were some of the reasons he was selected for the position. It was true that Mr. Britton had voted against motions relating to maladministration in the Yukon, but Sir Wilfrid felt that these were the votes he would again have given, in view of subsequent developments. Everyone in Ontario was satisfied of Judge Britton's impartiality and fairness, and he had no doubt the duties would be performed fairly and well. The commission would have been laid on the table had it not been that one of the gentlemen whom the Government desired to act on the commission was not able to serve.

The debate was continued by Messrs. R. L. Borden, F. D. Monk, Hon. A. G. Blair and W. B. Northrup.

The Railway Commission.

The House again went into committee on Mr. Blair's railway bill. Electric railways carrying freight were brought under the authority of the Railway Commission. The Minister of Railways struck out the clause limiting the speed at crossings to six miles an hour. Objection was taken to this course by some oppositionists who claimed that it was desirable to control speed at crossings. Mr. Blair argued that the absence of a definite limit gave the commission fuller authority, and it could act as the circumstances seemed to warrant.

Customs estimates were taken up at the evening session of the House. E. F. Clarke and A. E. Kemp attacked the preferential tariff, which, they said, while affecting to be a British preference, was in reality more useful to other countries.

Hon. William Paterson replied that it was always open to the department to prosecute for fraud.

Senate and Provincial Grants.

There was a lengthy argument in the Senate on the question of provincial subsidies. Senator Macdonald of British Columbia brought the issue before the House, and asked if it was the intention of the Government to give this year to the request of the provincial Premiers for an increase in their present annual subsidies.

Hon. R. W. Scott said Mr. Macdonald assumed that the expenditure made by the Federal Government was not for the benefit of the provinces. It was a question of who should spend the money. It was a continual cry of "more, more." The provinces had gone into bonusing railways and iron and steel concerns, expenditures which were never contemplated for them at Confederation, and which belonged to the Federal power. Prince Edward Island alone, Mr. Scott claimed, was entitled to the increase. Quebec's water powers were to-day worth millions more than was ever expected at Confederation. He deprecated the granting of railway subsidies by provinces. There ought to be only one spending Government. The provinces' money came light and went lightly.

Senators from the various provinces took up the question from their particular standpoint. Hon. James McMullen said that in the States no State received a subsidy. He thought it a pity that direct taxation had not been resorted to, as it would have taught the people to be more careful. If any provinces had a grievance they were Ontario and Quebec. In view of the national debt the demands on the treasury, he thought, the provinces must provide for their own expenditure. If once the Government gave way there would be no end of it.

ROUTE OF G. T. P. R.

If Government Gives Aid the Question May Be Reopened.

Ottawa, June 3.—Some progress was made with the Grand Trunk Pacific bill in the Railway Committee yesterday, but the proposed route met with stubborn resistance. Many objections were made to Moncton as the eastern terminus.

Hon. W. S. Fielding made the important statement that the route approved by the committee was not final, and that if Government aid was given the Grand Trunk Pacific the question of route could be re-opened by the House.

A new clause was brought forward by the company, providing that if the construction of its line is not commenced and $3,000,000 is not expended within two years after the passage of this act, and if the railway is not finished and in operation within seven years after the passing of this act, the powers conferred upon the company by Parliament shall cease as regards the portion remaining uncompleted. This was accepted.

Mr. Casgrain expressed the belief that the company did not intend to build the line east of Winnipeg.

As the committee was about to adjourn. Hon. Mr. Emmerson moved an amendment requiring simultaneous construction of the sections east and west from Quebec.

SUFFERED 25 YEARS

With Catarrh of the Stomach—Pe-ru-na Cured.

Congressman Botkin, of Winfield, Kan.

In a recent letter to Dr. Hartman, Congressman Botkin says:

"My Dear Doctor—It gives me pleasure to certify to the excellent curative qualities of your medicines—Peruna and Manalin. I have been afflicted more or less for a quarter of a century with catarrh of the stomach and constipation. A residence in Washington has increased these troubles. A few bottles of your medicine have given me almost complete relief, and I am sure that a continuation of them will effect a permanent cure."—J. D. Botkin.

Mr. L. F. Verdery, a prominent real estate agent, of Augusta, Ga., writes:

"I have been a great sufferer from catarrhal dyspepsia. I tried many physicians, visited a good many springs, but I believe Peruna has done more for me than all of the above put together. I feel like a new person."—L. F. Verdery.

The most common form of summer catarrh is catarrh of the stomach. This is generally known as dyspepsia. Peruna cures these cases like magic.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advise gratis.

ATTEMPTS AT ARSON.

Policeman Saw Two Attempts But Failed to Catch Perpetrators.

Norwich, June 3.—At an early hour yesterday morning fire broke out in the barn owned by F. C. Avey and totally destroyed it. With it were burned five horses, a cow, a buggy, a wagon, a sleigh, and a valuable lot of lumber. About midnight Policeman Johnston discovered a man in the act of setting fire to a barn in the rear of the Brown House. The man made his escape when detected. Later the policeman found two incendiaries in the rear of the laundry, also engaged in the dastardly work of firing a building. The officer gave chase, but the parties succeeded in making good their escape.

Tillsonburg's Insurance Losses.

Tillsonburg, June 3.—Following is an approximate list of insurance companies and their losses, that are interested in Monday's fire: Royal Insurance Co., $700; Equity Insurance Co., $2,000; North British & Mercantile, $150; Norwich Union, $1,000; London Mutual, $1,200; Queen's Insurance Co., $5,000; Guardian, $2,500; Caledonian, $3,000; Economical, $4,000; London Mutual, $4,500; Waterloo Mutual, $5,000; Sun Insurance Office, $3,500; York Mutual, $1,500; Ottawa, $800; Manchester, $2,000; Anglo-American, $500; Phoenix, $500; Hartford Insurance Co., $1,000.

It is estimated that the loss by Monday's fire, which consumed 23 buildings in the heart of the town, will aggregate about $75,000.

Let Others Experiment.

There is always something new in the way of medical treatment and you are constantly invited to try newfangled, unproven remedies. Let others exepriment and so lose time and risk health. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have been tried in the crucible of time, won the approval of public opinion and demonstrated their right to a place in every home as a family medicine.

Killed by a Train.

Sundridge, June 3.—About seven o'clock yesterday as Mr. William Adams, a well-to-do and highly respected farmer was driving across the railway track here, a train, consisting of engine and one car, crashed into the wagon, breaking it into kindling wood and throwing Mr. Adams about sixty or seventy feet. When picked up Mr. Adams' life was extinct.

Fell Three Stories.

Hamilton, June 3.—John Atkinson, 122 North West Avenue, fell from the roof of the Traders' Bank last evening. Its is a three-storey building, and when his fellow workmen ran to pick him up they thought his neck was broken. Examination showed that no bones were broken, but he was badly bruised. That he got off with such slight injuries is a miracle.

Four Vessels Foundered.

Santiago de Chili, June 3.—A great storm occurred yesterday at Valparaiso. Four vessels foundered in the bay, the Esplandae was destroyed and great damage was done to the floating docks. There are some fears regarding the safety of the Pacific Steam Navigation Company's steamer Arequipa.

Two Towns Taken.

Hong Kong, June 3.—The French Consul reports that the insurgents in Yunnan Province have captured the Towns of Chepingthau and Homichau. Communication between Yunnanfu and Tonquin is cut.

Arriving Early at "Glenwood."

A party of seventeen American tourists are booked to arrive at "Glenwood" (Breeze's) summer resort, Stony Lake, on the 17th June. This is an early beginning.

Garden Party.

The ladies of All Saints Church will hold a garden party and strawberry festival on the lawn of Mr. D. J. Lundy, corner of Aylmer and Dalhousie streets, on Thursday, June 18th. Music for the occasion will be furnished by the band of the 57th Regiment.

"Monarch of all he Surveys."

Mr. H. LeBrun has purchased the handsome white brick residence recently occupied by Mr. E. B. Stone, on the corner of Park and Simcoe streets. This purchase completes Mr. LeBrun's ownership of the entire row of admirably situated terraced residences on Simcoe street, between Downie and Park streets.

Odd Lots at Odd Prices.

This is a store full of quick movement. To-morrow we commence a stirring Remnant Sale, and give you more for your money than you ever received at a wall paper store durthe month of June in all your life. There will be a great cutting loose from regular spring prices. Look over the list in our columns and come to the Peterborough Bookstore for your wants. A. H. Stratton & Co.

On Business for the "Majestic."

Mr. Frank Young, the business hustler of the steamer Majestic, was in town to-day, and booked several private excursions. One of these is the annual excursion of St. Andrew's Young Men's Guild, which comes off on the 25th June. The Majestic has also been engaged to take the Y.M.C.A. boys up to their camp on Clear Lake and back, this summer, instead of driving, as formerly.

Early Closing.

An announcement has been made by the J. C. Turnbull Company, Limited, which will be a welcome one to many whom it will benefit. During the hot summer months of July and August they will close their store at 5 p.m. This is certainly a step in the right direction and one which indicates a decidedly progressive policy, having been adopted by this Company, and one which cannot but prove beneficial to them. This firm has set an example which it is hoped others will follow. Shoppers might very easily attend to all their buying before 5 o'clock during these two months, and their action in so doing would allow the salespeople, whose lot is not always one of unalloyed pleasure, an extra hour of recreation, which would be highly appreciated.

OBITUARY.

The death of Sarah Milburn, wife of the late M. S. Dean of Bridgenorth, occurred yesterday evening at Bridgenorth. The deceased was 70 years of age.

The funeral will take place Thursday afternoon at two o'clock from her late residence, Bridgenorth, to the Little Lake Cemetery.

Some new views of the town, on glass, at 10c, 15c, 20c and 25c each, at Sailsbury's.

HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL MUSICAL REVIEW.

Miss McCabe's Pupils Acquit Themselves Admirably.

The concert hall of the Peterborough Music Store was crowded last evening with an appreciative audience, the occasion being the musical review of the pupils of Miss McCabe's class. The programme arranged for the evening was a delightful one and afforded an opportunity for the parents and friends of the performers to see the gratifying advancement being made under the direction of Miss McCabe, and one and all expressed themselves as delighted with the work of the evening.

The programme proper was pleasingly varied by the rendition of several sweetly sung vocal solos by Miss Nettie Lewis, Mrs. Geo. Ball and Mr. Jas. Browne. The following is the programme:—

REAL ESTATE SALES.

Business Good and Splendid Prospects for Continued Activity.

A. Brown & Co., the Hunter street real estate dealers, report the following recent sales: Harry LeBrun has purchased the Barnheart residence on the corner of Park and Simcoe streets, lately occupied by E. B. Stone. From P. W. Reynolds, Jas. Head has bought a four house terrace on St. Joseph and Gilmour streets. Mr. Reynolds also sold to William Campbell a five house terrace on Downey street.

A. Davidson will shortly erect a handsome residence on a lot which he has bought from Mr. VanEvery on Rubidge street. The real estate situation is improving, numerous enquiries being received for desirable locations in residential sections, and all signs point to a satisfactory year's business.

RECEPTION TO THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

Important Change in the Programme.

Their Excellencies Will Arrive Earlier—The Route—Address from the Corporation—Those who will be Presented.

"Toronto, June 3rd.—My letter dated June 1st, His Excellency's train will reach Peterborough at 11 a.m. ,and leave 1.30 p.m. June 5th, and not as previously stated."

Such was the telegram which Mayor Roger received this morning from Major Maude, the Governor-General's Private Secretary, whose first communication stated that Lord Minto would arrive at 12, noon, and leave at 2 p.m. the same afternoon. It might here be stated that His Excellency's train will arrive and leave respectively at and from the Grand Trunk station. Perhaps on the whole the new arrangement will be the better of the two, more especially as the Governor-General will spend half an hour longer in Peterborough than had been anticipated.

On the arrival of the train their Excellencies, Lord and Lady Minto will be met by the military and cordially welcomed by Mayor Roger, after which they will be driven round the town in carriages. The route will most probably be from Charlotte street to Park street, from Park to Hunter from Hunter to Aylmer, from Aylmer to Charlotte, from Charlotte to George, from George to Argyle, from Argyle to Water, from Water to Inverlea, from Inverlea to Donnistoun avenue, from Dennistoun avenue to Smith street, thence to the east of Nicholls Park, through Nicholls Park to Concession street, Ashburnham, thence to Stewart street, thence to the lift lock, from the lift lock to Maria street, thence to Lake street, from Lake street to Elizabeth street, from Elizabeth street to Hunter street, town, thence to Water, along Water street to Murray, thence to the Court House, which edifice they are expected to reach about 12 o'clock.

On their arrival at the Court House Their Excellencies will be presented with an address from the corporation, for which purpose a platform is in course of construction immediately in front of the main entrance. It is understood that invitations have been issued to representative citizens, and those holding official positions, to places on the platform, who will be presented to Their Excellencies, after Lord Minto's reply to the corporation's address.

It is stated that other citizen's who may desire the honour, will be presented so far as time will permit.

Invitations have already been sent to His Worship Mayor Roger, and the aldermen of the town, the Town Trust Commissioners, Water Commissioners, Warden and County Councillors, the Reeve and Councillors of Ashburnham, local Members of Parliament, ex-Mayors of the town, Chairmen of the Board of Education, Separate School Board, and Board of Health, the County Judge, town officers, officers of court, Government officers, Inspectors of Schools, Police Magistrates, Principal of Collegiate Institute, the officers of the 57th Regiment, the Cavalry and Field Battery, local clergy, President of the Children's Aid Society, Presidents of the Board of Trade, Merchants' Association, Public Library, and Law and Medical Associations.

After the functions outside the Court House are over, the Vice-Regal carriage will wend its way to the G. T. R. station via Brock, George, Simcoe, Aylmer and Charlotte streets.

It has been suggested that all persons going to the Court House in carriages alight from them at the corner of Brock and Sheridan streets, so that these ma lyeave by way of the latter street, and thus avoid any confusion, or crowding outside the Court House.

The visiting party will probably consist of six persons. Besides Their Excellencies there will be Lady Aileen and Lady Ruby Elliott, Captain Graham, A.D.C., and Capt. Bell, A.D.C.

In view of the honour conferred upon the town by the visit of Their Excellencies, all citizens are requested to make their respective places of residence or business as attractive as possible so that the visitors may look back on their flying visit to Peterborough with indelable satisfaction and pleasure.

T. A. S. AND ONTARIOS IN A PRACTICE GAME.

Good Work-out for Both of the Teams.

The Score was 4-2—A Large Crowd Sees the Game.

Several hundred people passed through the gate of the Murray street school grounds, last evening, to witness the game between the Ontarios of Port Hope and the T.A.S. team. As many more viewed the game from the fence and the roof of the drill shed; but this crowd was made up of people who can only be classed with those who jump a board bill or sponge on their parents for a livelihood. Members of other local sporting organizations were there too, and members of the visiting team in expressing their opinion of the fence-viewers were far from complimentary. The T.A.S. management desires to thank those who patronized the game, and regret that better seating accommodation could not be provided.

The Port Hope twelve arrived in town on the 5.30 G.T.R. train and were met by a committee from the local club and escorted to the Oriental. Conspicuous amongst the dozen was Jack White, the fleet-footed brave from Cornwall, and who by the way, is not a stranger in Peterborough; Mike Young was with them, too, as well as Grimes, "Tony" Roach, Mike McDonough, and others known to fame.

The night was an ideal one for lacrosse, and it was about 7.05 when Referee Fred Clark lined the teams up as follows:—

T. A. S.		Ontarios.
Shannon	Goal.	Young
Corbett	Point.	White
Crowley	Cover Point.	Marvin
Meagher	1st defence.	Grimes
Derocher	2nd defence.	Henderson
Muhloon	3rd defence.	Roach
McGrath	centre.	Roberts
F McCoy	3rd home.	Friar
McCabe	2nd home.	McLean
Parnell	1st home.	McDonough
Rappel	outside home.	Henderson
L McCoy	inside home.	Donaldson
James Anglesey	field captain.	Geo Brown
Sculthorpe	goal umpires	McFadden

It must be admitted that the local twelve felt somewhat timid in their first introduction to a team which has strong aspirations for senior championship honours, and which on Saturday triumphed over the Tecumseh braves in Port Hope. The boys showed their timidity, too at the beginning of the struggle, for it did not take Port Hope long to notch a goal; but the second game went to the T.A.S., who were settling down to that calm, cool and collected style that helps to win games. The game did not lag at any time, and was an excellent exhibition of lacrosse. Fred McGrath, though not feeling his best by any means, played a remarkably good game, and when he got steam up for a dash, it was all over but the shouting. Jack McCabe, who played against his old love, was in excellent trim last night and played fine lacrosse. He had the honour of scoring one of the goals. Joe Muldoon is indeed a clever stick handler and a good aggressive player, who can wiggle out of a scrimmage with the best of them. Frank McCoy, although suffering from the effects of the game with Lindsay, was able to turn out and he dished up an excellent variety of lacrosse, as did also Walter Parnell. Tommy Rappel and Lou McCoy were in good fast company last night as they had the big defence of the Ontarios to wiggle round. Rappel is a foxy player with the agility of a cat and found his opponent quite often last evening. Lou McCoy had a tough proposition in Jack White, but he played his position very well. It was Shannon's first game in goal, and the young player was somewhat nervous, but with a little more experience he will prove a strong man.

The Ontarios were very much struck (in more ways than one) with the husky defence of the T.A.S., and considered the team were fortunate in possessing such a quartette. Corbett, Crowley, Meagher and Derocher were kept busy last night, and certainly showed that they were worthy of their steel.

Individual reference to the Ontarios would be invidious. They have all won their laurels on many fields, and are brilliant lacrosse players, every one of them. The game was a snappy one from start to finish, and was characterized by close checking, which at times was too forcible, and necessitated a cessation of hostilities. It was an excellent work out for both teams, and the experience the local team gained by playing in such fast company is certainly worth a great deal to them. Captain McCabe and Manager Grady express themselves as perfectly satisfied with the showing the boys made. They know where the deficiencies are and are going to profit by last night's work out.

The T.A.S. management feel very grateful to the management of the Ontarios for the practice game. The Port Hope club have a league game on Saturday, and last night's match came in handy.

NOTES.

The score was 4—2. Not a bad showing.

What about that grand stand?

The Ontarios had supper at McCallum's with the T.A.S. team before leaving for home.

Jack White is the same gentlemanly player, and is as cool as ever. He enjoys the distinction of being one of the cleanest players that ever donned a jersey.

Billy Lapierre was unable to play last evening on account of an injured limb.

There is no truth in the rumour that the militia were asked to do sentinel work on the fence.

The sugar factory can't come too quick. The farmers are evidently depositing "beats" along the fence at Central Park. They were in bloom last night.

They are of a poor quality though. There is nothing in them.

Fred Clarke gave general satisfaction as referee and had the men well in hand.

BASEBALL.

The meeting last night of the Young Men's Guild of George street church developed into an informal discussion, the chief topic of which being the formation of a baseball club as a component in the baseball league, comprising the Guilds of St. Andrews, St. Pauls, Charlotte street and George street churches. An organization was effected of which the officers are:—

President—S. R. Armstrong.
Vice-President—J. J. Jeffries.
Team Manager and Secretary—Garnot Galley.

The first practice, which it is hoped will be attended by as many of the members as possible, will be held on Thursday night on grounds near Park street on Patterson, and close to the Edison Works. Ross Dobbin was appointed representative of the team to attend the meeting of the Guild League on Friday night in Y. M.C.A. parlours, when it is expected that a schedule will be drawn up.

* * * *

A very interesting baseball match took place on Monday night between the Junior and Senior Guilds of St. Andrew's church, on the Guild field, McDonel street. The seniors were short several of their best men which accounts for their being slightly behind in the score. Only three innings were played, and owing to the scarcity of score paper—the score standing 14 to 9 in favour of the juniors — the game was discontinued. Play will be resumed on each Monday and Wednesday night hereafter until the game is finished. Patterson pitched a good game for the juniors, McDonald holding him well, while Manager Elliott and Mr. L. Thornton played well for the seniors.

CURLING.

The two rinks who played the Scottish curlers on the occasion of their visit here last winter have received a letter asking that a group picture of each be sent to Scotland to be reproduced in the annual publication of the Scotch Curlers. The two rinks to whom this honour has been offered are those skipped by Messrs. G. E. Whiten and W. G. Ferguson.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Peterborough Turf Club are arranging for their Athletic Matinee on Friday next on the Driving Park. The programme, which is an attractive one, consists of half mile horse race, and foot races from 100 yards to half mile, also a tug of war with eight men on a side. Liberal prizes are offered for all these events and should be the means of inducing a full complement of entries. A. Rountree, is Secretary of the Club, and all desiring to enter any of the events may communicate with him.

ACT OF TREACHERY.

Say B. C. Liberals of Mr. McBride's Conservative Cabinet.

PREMIER'S LETTER OF EXCUSE

Five of Old Opposition Party and Five of Old Government Party Chosen to Select Legislation That Is Important to Complete and Also to Revise the Estimates—Election in Four Months.

Victoria, B.C., June 3.—To the great disappointment of many Liberals, who hoped he would remain true to the Opposition party, Mr. McBride since being called on to form a Government has decided to organize on Conservative lines. This decision was announced to the Opposition caucus Monday night, and to the House yesterday afternoon. Yesterday morning Mr. Tatlow was sworn in as President of the Executive Council, and spoke for Mr. McBride, asking for the appointment of a committee of ten, five of the old Opposition party and five of the old Government party, to revise the estimates and select legislation that is important to complete. This was strenuously opposed by Mr. Martin, who characterized it as a star chamber proceeding, but it was endorsed by the House unanimously, with the exception of Messrs. Martin, Gilmore, Neill and Rogers.

In his letter of explanation, Mr. McBride stated that after careful consideration and in view of the imminence of dissolution and an appeal to the country on party lines, he had decided to from a Government on a Conservative basis. He said he would prepare the voters' lists fairly and seek an honest expression of opinion from the electorate. He thanked his Liberal colleagues who had stood by him, and said that under other circumstances he would have been glad to give them representation in the Cabinet.

Mr. McBride, it is said by some, will drop out of Provincial politics, making way for Mr. Wilson, and will contest New Westminster against Mr. Aulay Morrison.

A near supporter, however, declares that Mr. Wilson will be Attorney General: Mr. Phillips, President of the Council; Mr. Fulton, Provincial Secretary, and Mr. McBride, Chief Commissioner.

The Conservatives are sulky at what they regard as a usurping of the leadership by Mr. McBride, while the Liberals who were in the old Opposition feel more or less bitter at what they regard as an act of treachery on the part of Mr. McBride.

An appeal to the country will be taken as soon as the lists are prepared, probably in about four months.

WELL EARNED POPULARITY.

J. J. Burns Says Dodd's Kidney Pills Saved His Life.

Could Scarcely Sit, Sleep or Walk when he Started to Use Them—His Trouble Gone for Good.

Darnley, P.E.I., June 1.—(Special.)—The popularity of Dodd's Kidney Pills in Prince Edward Island has been earned by cures complete and permanent. John J. Burns, lot 18, Darnley, is one of the cured, and his story is a splendid example of the work Dodd's Kidney Pills are doing.

"For over eight years," says Mr. Burns, "I suffered from what the doctors pronounced Chronic Inflammation of the Loins and Kidneys. In the year 1896 it got so bad, that I could scarcely walk, sit or sleep, I was about to give up when an advertisement led me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills and they did a wonderful work for me.

"Dodd's Kidney Pills saved my life and though years have elapsed since my cure I have had no trouble since I used them.

"I belong to the I.O.F. and any member can vouch for my condition and that Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me."

Dodd's Kidney Pills never fail to cure any form of Kidney Disease once and for all.

BRAVE CHINESE OFFICIAL.

Towns Looted by "Dagger Society"—Rioters Were Finally Dispersed.

Victoria, B. C., June 1.—News from Honan says the official at Hwai Ching prevented a massacre of foreigners, following the looting of the place by rioters of the Dagger Society. He advanced against the rioters, who were several thousand strong, alone and unarmed, and argued with them. They pelted him with stones, but soon desisted, and were for the time calmed.

At night the rioters burned part of the city gates, but next morning they were dispersed. They had posted placards, saying they intened to kill all foreigners.

A disaster, fraught with great loss of life, is reported from Canton. The Shiushing River boat, when being lined up the West River, swamped near Sam Shui. The Shui sunk, after the line broke, and, out of 300 passengers on board, but 75 or 80 were saved.

ANOTHER G. T. R. WRECK.

Passenger Crashes Into Freight Through an Open Switch.

Komoko, June 2.—The London local ran into an open switch and collided with an extra freight train yesterday morning, injuring four trainmen and giving a number of passengers severe bruises. Both locomotives were much damaged and several freight cars battered to pieces. Those injured seriously are:

Conductor Adam Douglas, London; Engineer Coote, London; the fireman of the local of London and Brakeman Carney, London. Coote and his fireman were the most seriously injured, from jumping to escape death from their rapidly moving engine. Dr. Drake of London was on the train and attended the injured.

The wreck was the result of a misplaced switch, left open, it is charged, by section men.

Deadly Barred Windows.

London, June 2.—Two boys, each 14 years old, were burned to death in a fire which gutted one of the master's houses at Eton College early yesterday morning. There were thirty-three students in the house, and the survivors, clad in their night clothes, had great difficulty in escaping, many scrambling from the windows down the ivy-covered walls on the house. The work of rescue was considerably delayed, owing to some of the windows of the house being barred. The incineration of the two students is attributed to this fact.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O, contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by Druggists, price 75c per bottle. Hall's Family Pills are the best.

Wrecked on Lake Huron.

Port Huron, June 1.—That the storm raging on Lake Huron Saturday wrought at least one marine tragedy, became known that night, when the Anchor Line steamer China reached Port Huron. Officers of the vessel reported having passed a three-masted schooner dismasted off Thunder Bay Island. The schooner's spars were hanging over her side, and there was no sign of life aboard. The sea was running too high for the China to attempt an investigation of the wreck, and the identity of the wrecked ship is not known.

The Broken Health of School Life.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

So many school girls and school boys, too, are pale, languid and run down in health, subject to weak spells and nervous headache, and victims of sleeplessness, that we no longer realize the folly of developing the mind at the expense of the body.

It is on the mothers and fathers that falls the responsibility of looking after the health of their children, and to them we suggest the wisdom of having the health of their children kept at the high water mark by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

This great food cure is so gentle and natural in action as to be admirably suited to the requirements of children. The benefits to be derived from its use are certain and lasting, as it goes to form new red corpuscles in the blood, and create new nerve force.

Mrs. R. Wareham, 267 Sherbrooke street Peterborough, Ont., states:—"One of my children has suffered a great deal with nervous headaches, dizziness and sleeplessness, and, in fact, was all run down, pale and languid. These troubles were attributed to over-study and confinement at school. She began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and I can say that we have found this treatment exceedingly helpful. It has relieved her of headache, steadied her nerves, and built up her system wonderfully. We can see a great change in her, as the colour is returning to the face, and she is gaining in flesh and weight."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

THE MODERN SALESMAN.

He Realizes the Necessity For Correct Dress in Business.

It has become the unwritten but none the less stringent law that young men shall dress well and neatly during business hours. In many of the largest banks and financial institutions none of the clerks is permitted to go coatless, and in the mercantile establishments where salesmen are employed "loud" attire is actually discouraged. The old time salesman gloried in his flamboyant cravats and shirts, his diamonds and his peculiar clothes. His capital in trade consisted of a flashy appearance, vulgar stories, a constitution that would stand intoxicating liquor and an unlimited amount of cheek. He did not have to know anything about the goods he sold, except in a general way. He slapped men on the back, took them out to dinner, got drunk with them and then booked their orders. The modern salesman is a well educated, neatly dressed gentleman who knows all about the goods he sells. He is never called upon to drink, he never needs to dine out, he trades on honor and brains, and his customers are men who only admire men who know as much as or more than they do about their business. Dress plays the most important part in the game of commerce, no less with the salesman than it does with the manufacturer, the mill man, the banker or the financial man. They all dress to impress their fellow men favorably. —C. M. Connolly in Success.

Got the Oysters.

A captain of a Massachusetts regiment, stationed in Washington at the time of the civil war, was noted for his love of good things to eat and one day dispatched one of his soldiers, a man named Bailey, to Alexandria to get some fresh oysters, giving him instructions not to return without them. The man started, and no more was seen of him for nine days. The Washington Times prints the story of his return:

After a lapse of nine days Bailey came into camp leading a train of four horse wagons, loaded with oysters. Approaching and respectfully saluting the amazed captain, Bailey said:

"Here are your oysters, captain. Couldn't find any in Alexandria, so I chartered a schooner and made a voyage to Fortress Monroe and Norfolk for them. There are about 200 bushels. Where do you want 'em?"

Bailey did really make the trip, hired his men and sold oysters enough in Georgetown before "reporting" to pay all expenses and leave him a profit of about $100. The 200 bushels were divided among the members of the regiment, and Bailey returned to his duty.

Paper Making and the Egyptians.

The art of paper making is almost prehistoric. It is believed that the Egyptians invented the first crude process. This is shown in the name itself, which is derived from the word papyrus, a reed which grows in Egypt and other warm countries.

The ancient Egyptians made their primitive paper from this plant by taking the smooth, fibrous layer between the rough outer bark and the inner flesh of the reed. This they dried and glued together in long rolls, which served as a means to convey their thoughts in hieroglyphics. This process has been so improved upon during the succeeding ages that today the most perfect paper can be made from the meanest substance.

Caged Birds Live Longest.

Many people declaim against the cruelty of keeping birds in cages, but it is a well proved truth that cage birds live about six times as long as a wild bird, and the bird invariably becomes so fond of its owner and its surroundings that when the cage is thrown open it will not fly away. It suffers so little from solitude that if a prospective mate is introduced it hits her on the head at first for her impudence in daring to intrude into a private apartment.

Bird Superstitions.

According to a superstition which holds sway in some parts of Ireland, the sedge warblers possess the souls of unbaptized babes and sing their sorrow at the midnight hour, while the linnet, yellow hammer and finch sing their plaintive and tender songs to remind us they are souls of departed friends not yet relieved from purgatorial pains. The bittern is their herald at night.—Irish Times.

A Sermon on Money.

"No, my son," said the Bilville parent; "money doesn't bring happiness. It only pays house rent and the grocery bill and makes the bailiff and the bill collector respect us six days in the week while the parson gives us the hallelula smile on Sunday."—Atlanta Constitution.

A Shocking Drinker.

The Girl—Does he drink so terribly?

The Guy—Yes, indeed; pours it out into his saucer.—Kansas City Independent.

Why She Stood.

"Madam," said the conductor to the plain and somewhat elderly woman standing up in the street car, "why don't you ask one of these men to give you a seat?"

"Because," she answered, grimly sarcastic, "I haven't the face to do it."

Costly to Admire.

"Why is it that wealthy people become so cold and cynical?"

"They don't necessarily," answered Mr. Cumrox. "They have their enthusiasms. The trouble is that a rich man can't admire anything without being solicited to buy it."

Postprandial Effulgence.

"He's quite a star as an after dinner speaker, isn't he?"

"Star? He's a regular moon. He becomes brighter the fuller he gets."—Philadelphia Press.

Could Not Lie On Her Left Side.

WAS TROUBLED WITH PAIN IN HER HEART FOR SIX YEARS.

Expected Her Friends Would Find Her Dead.

Mrs. C. Bondreau, Campbellton, N.B., was completely cured by

MILBURN'S Heart and Nerve Pills.

She tells of her experience in the following letter: "I was troubled with a pain in my heart and weakness for six years. Most of the time I could not lie on my left side. I consulted a doctor but got no relief and was completely discouraged. I did not think I would live long and expected my friends would find me dead. A friend brought me a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and I took them to please her, not thinking they would do me any good. I had not used half the box when I commenced to feel myself getting better and by the time I had taken two boxes I was completely cured and can recommend them to all sufferers from heart trouble."

"YE SHALL NOT DIE."

Be ye courageous, be ye strong,
In standing always for the right;
Be ready, valiant in the fight,
And fear not to oppose the wrong.

In ages after men are gone
Who struggle for the true, the good,
Though baffled oft—misunderstood,
Their thoughts, their deeds, shall still live on.

For here the conflict shall not cease
Between the evil and the good,
Through years of strife and years of blood,
Till perfect goodness brings us peace.
—Late Hon. David Mills.

Sweetness and Light.

The facts are at hand to show that there is much more "sweetness and light" in the world to-day than there was twenty-five or thirty years ago, although not, perhaps, in the form that Matthew Arnold would have most desired them to appear. For the increase of light we have the figures of the electrical illuminating companies showing how their business has reached out into every quarter of the civilized world, with a total capitalization of $2,000,000,000, and serving the needs of over 75,000,000 people. As for sweetness we have such reports as the one sent out by the bureau of statistics, showing that the people now consume eight times as much sugar per capita as they did in the first quarter of the last century, four times as much as the average per capita during the decade ending with 1850, and twice as much as they did in any year prior to 1870.

The Power of Thought.

Beware of what you think, for what you think quite as much as what you do molds your character. Wrong acts persisted in will wreck any life, but wrong thoughts have just as sure an effect. It not infrequently happens that people who live fairly good lives, so far as their actions go, do not feel it necessary to set so close a guard on their thoughts. These are hidden, and of what harm is it to occasionally cherish a vulgar thought if one does not allow it to escape in action? Of what harm to hate if one does not show it? To imagine oneself committing wrong acts if one does not actually commit them? But the laws of life say that every thought affects the whole being. As a man's heart is, so will he be. Evil thoughts gradually undermine the character, and some day these thoughts will burst into action which is irremediable.—Woman's Home Companion.

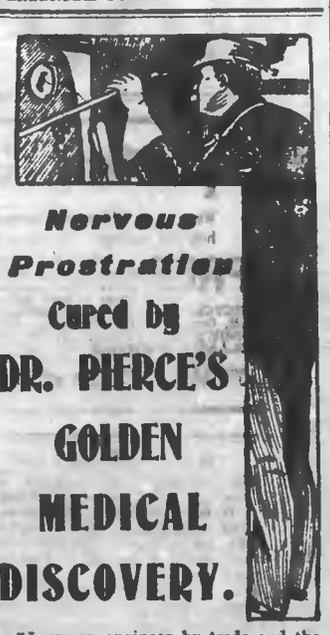
The Body and Soul.

It is an ever increasing pity that the average doctor who tries to heal the body cares nothing for the soul. On the other hand, the parson who tries to heal the soul cares nothing for the body. The body and soul cannot be separated in such a manner. The diseases that afflict the body also affect the soul, and vice versa. No one who is ignorant of the laws that govern either the soul or the body is fit to attempt to heal the diseases of either the one or the other.

A bad man may preach a good sermon. A bad man may prescribe a good medicine. But both the sermon and the medicine would have had a greatly increased efficacy had they been delivered by a good man.

How Birds Kill Snails.

Thrushes and other birds crush the shells of land snails and extract their juicy bodies, as do also raccoons and wood rats, but woodland birds will not eat naked snails because the slime on them sticks to their beaks and spoils their feathers.



Nervous Prostration Cured by DR. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY.

"I am an engineer by trade and the hard work and worry of running a large engine brought on nervous prostration," writes Mr. Chas. F. Dixon, of Arbuckle, Colusa Co., Calif. "A friend recommended Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery to me and I bought one bottle; thought that it helped me so continued the use of it until I had taken six bottles. I feel better than ever in my life. Am not a particle nervous, can work hard all day and sleep sound at night. I not only think so but I know that the 'Golden Medical Discovery' cured me and therefore I will recommend it to others."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate the bowels and stimulate the sluggish liver.

HIS PRIZE ROSES.

A Little Secret That Was Confided to the Wrong Man.

An amusing incident is reported in connection with a small flower show in the north of England. One of the classes—cut roses—was open only to cottage gardeners within a certain radius, and the winner turned up in a laborer whom we will call Sandy. The lucky individual was in high feather and hung about near his exhibit all the afternoon receiving the congratulations of his friends.

"Beautiful roses," remarked a well dressed stranger to Sandy. "They tell me, however, that if Briggs had been qualified to enter he would have beaten you."

Now, Briggs was the rose grower par excellence in the neighborhood; but, unfortunately for him, he was just outside the radius.

"Briggs be hanged!" ejaculated Sandy. "He ain't got no better roses than them!"

"That's nonsense!" retorted the stranger. "Briggs' roses are the talk of the district."

Sandy still stuck to his point and became quite confidential. "Between you and me," he whispered eventually, "Briggs ain't got no better roses than them, 'cos them's his! He couldn't enter himself, so he gave me the pick of his garden."

The stranger was satisfied, and it was only afterward that Sandy discovered to his cost that he had confided his secret to a member of the show committee.—London Tit-Bits.

A Woodland Echo.

As became the idle man having the time of his life in the primeval forests of the Temagamie reserve in Canada, the clerk of the New York court of special sessions was graciously inclined to instruct the workers in camp. These, says the New York Tribune, were two young, unknown men who, with a canoe and a camping outfit, were likewise seeking backwood experience.

He came upon one of them baking bread in a portable aluminium oven before a smoldering log fire.

"Ah," said the clerk, assuming a reclining position of graceful ease, "baking bread, I see."

"Yes. It doesn't come up for a cent."

"You see," continued the clerk, with rising wisdom, "the baking powder, which contains cream of tartar, liberates when heated a certain amount of carbonic acid gas, which"—

"Oh, don't talk shop!" interrupted the cook. "I hate it out here!"

"Oh, you do!" the clerk observed, astonished. "What business are you in, may I ask?"

"I'm an assistant professor of chemistry at Yale."

Throwing Rice at Weddings.

Like roast pig, the origin of throwing rice at weddings is Chinese, and the legend is scarcely less worthy of Charles Lamb: "A famous sorcerer named Chao became jealous of the power of another sorcerer, a woman, and, conceiving a plan to destroy her, he persuaded her parents to bestow her upon his supposed son. The crafty Chao chose the most unlucky day for the wedding, the day when the 'Golden Pheasant' was in the ascendant, so that when the bride entered the red chair the spirit bird would destroy her with his powerful beak. But Peachblossom gave directions to have rice thrown out at the door, and she passed out unharmed while the spirit bird was devouring it."

Crushing a Bore.

John G. Whittier, the Quaker poet, once in describing the usages of the Quakers in regard to "speaking in meetings" said that sometimes the voluntary remarks were not quite to the edification of the meeting. It once happened that a certain George C. grew rather wearisome in his exhortations, and his prudent brethren, after solemn consultation, passed the following resolution: "It is the sense of this meeting that George C. be advised to remain silent until such time as the Lord shall speak through him more to our satisfaction and profit."

New York, June 3rd, 9.45 a. m. — A generally better feeling prevails in Wall Street this morning and it is thought bad news is now out and been discounted and market is pretty well oversold by traders as well as commission houses. The Canadian failure seemed to clear the atmosphere. While crop situation, especially for corn, is grave, we think the feature is being exaggerated and with subsidence of floods and two or three weeks good weather, crops would pick up. The worst feature we see at the moment is continued large gold exports. Labour situation is more assuring with the exception of textile and anthracite and these may be cleared before many days.

DIAMOND HALL
PETERBOROUGH.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

Mr. Norman Campbell, of Seaforth, formerly with the Bank of Commerce here, is in town on his holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbett and Miss Gilbett, of Manhattan, Kansas, are in town. Mrs. Gilbett is a sister of the late Mrs. Everett.

Mrs. T. G. Ranton and Miss Lucy Ranton, Rochester, N.Y., are in town, and will be guests for several weeks of Mrs. Ranton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Sutherland.

Invitations are out for the marriage of Miss Audrey Blair, daughter of the Hon. A. G. Blair, to Dr. George S. MacArthy of Ottawa. The ceremony, which will be rather quiet, will take place at the residence of the bride's parents, on June 17th.

Rev. C. A. Campbell, of Lakefield, and Mr. A. Fairbairn, of Smith, having been appointed by the Peterborough Presbytery as commissioners to the General Assembly, to be held at Vancouver on June 9th, passed through town to-day on their way to the western city.

A pleasing event of special interest to prominent members of Peterborough society will take place to-night and those from outside points who are in town to participate in it are Mr. and Mrs. W. Dobie, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. E. Duncan, Cobourg; Major A. and Mrs. Williamson, York; and Mrs. D. T. Williamson, Brantford.

Lieut. O. E. Bradburn, of the 14th Field Battery, is the recipient from the War Office of his Royal Commission to a similar rank for his services while in Africa with the Sixth Regiment of Canadian Mounted Rifles. The commission, which is signed by His Majesty King Edward, and countersigned by Right Hon. St. John Broderick, Secretary of State for War, confers the rank of Lieutenant in His Majesty's land forces.

TRAGIC DEATH OF MICHAEL O'BRIEN.

Was the Victim to a Runaway Horse.

Death was Almost Instantaneous as a Result of a Blow on the Temple.

A shocking accident occurred about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, as a result of which Mr. Michael O'Brien, aged 68 years, a carter, residing at 777 George street, was almost instantaneously killed.

It transpires that the deceased was driving a spirited horse down Simcoe street. It is supposed that he had gone some 40 yards past the railway crossing when the animal took fright at a moving engine and bolted. The sudden jerk forward of the dray, which resulted from the unexpected movement of the horse must have thrown the old man from the box of the vehicle. He, was found on some sharp stones on the other side of the road to Mrs. G. W. Hall's house, 240 Simcoe street, exactly as he had fallen.

It is learned that Mrs. Hall hearing the runaway, ran to her door to see Mr. O'Brien huddled up on the other side of the road. She immediately called her daughter, who at once rushed to Dr. Greer's house, while she herself got the unfortunate man a glass of cold water which he drank. It is stated that the fataly injured man in answer to Mrs. Hall's question as to whether he was very much hurt, answered in the negative, and stated that he would be all right again in a very few minutes. Dr. Greer and Dr. Eastwood were soon on the scene ,but the man was dying when they arrived and they did not disturb him to ascertain what injuries he had received. Dr. McNulty, who was at St. Joseph's Hospital was also telephoned for, but the poor old man had died on the physicians arrival.

Rev. Dr. O'Brien, who is a nephew of the deceased, was informed and in turn broke the sad news to the family.

The body was taken charge of by Mr. McFadden, undertaker, Hunter street ,and after being dressed was removed to his home on George street.

The deceased came to this country when quite a boy and was in the employ of Judge Hall for many years.

For many years he conducted a very successful carting business, but last fall he sold his horse and rig and retired from the business; but about two weeks ago he purchased a horse, which was rather spirited for a man of his years, and which was the indirect cause of his death.

The deceased was a highly respected, law-abiding citizen, and was well know about town, and his tragic death came as a great blow to all who knew him. He is married and besides his wife leaves a bereaved family of six, five of whom are daughters. These are Fred, of Marcelles, N.Y., Elizabeth, Helen and Lillie of town, and Annie of Buffalo. He has two brothers, John and James, the former is a resident of Ennismore, while the latter lives in town.

The funeral will take place tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock from the residence, George street, to St. Peter's Cathedral thence to the Roman Catholic Cemetery.

CAMPBELL—WESTLAKE.

Popular Young Couple Married Last Night.

A very interesting wedding was witnessed last evening at the residence of W. Westlake, 501 Aylmer street, by a number of friends of the contracting parties. Mr. Westlake's daughter, Miss Isabella, was married to Mr. W. S. Campbell, of the local C. P. R. staff. The bridesmaid was Miss A. Westlake, sister of the bride, while Mr. Jas. Campbell, the groom's brother, performed the pleasing duties of groomsman. Rev. J. P. Wilson being the officiating clergyman.

They were the recipients of many valuable tokens of esteem, among which were a handsome mantle clock, given by the staff of the C.P.R. offices here; one dozen solid silver spoons from St. Andrew's Guild, of which society Mr. Campbell is the popular President; China tea set, the gift of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Might The members of J. C. Turnbull Co's millinery department presented the bride with a beautiful silver fern jar. Mr. and Mrs. Campbell will reside at 174 Aylmer street.

A NEW MANAGER.

Mr. A. L. Sykes Accepts Management of the Cordage Company.

Mr. Alexander L. Sykes, who has been appointed manager of the Canadian Cordage Manufacturing Company, arrived in town last evening, together with his family, and entered upon his duties to-day.

Mr. Sykes has been for several years, the manager of the Indianapolis and Cincinnati branches of the Standard Rope and Twine Company and the Union Selling Company. He managed the above branches with remarkable success and the management of the Cordage Company are to be congratulated upon securing the services of such a capable manager, one who is familiar with all the branches of that large industry.

FIRE ON CHEMONG ROAD.

Farmer Loses Valuable Barns and Stables.

A fire attended by serious consequences, occurred last evening on the Chemong Road, about a mile from the outskirts of the town, by which Mr. Metcalfe, a farmer, lost his barns, stables and other outbuildings, together with most of their contents. As to the origin of the fire it seems at present to be a profound mystery. Fortunately the residence was situated at some little distance from the burning buildings and was not injured.

OTTAWA IS AGAIN VISITED BY FIRE.

Quarter of a Million Dollar Loss in Business Section.

Number of Large Manufacturing and Other Industries Laid Low. Includ- Mortimer Litho. Co.

Special to Examiner.

Ottawa, June 4, — Fire broke out at 6.45 o'clock this morning, and swept a part of the business centre of Ottawa, laying in waste large portions of Sparks and Queen streets, between Bank and Kent. The burned places include the big mill, factory and lumber yard of Davidson & Thackery, the printing and lithographing establishment of the Mortimer Company, the clothing manufactory of R. J. Smith & Company, the paint works of Peter Stewart, and other smaller concerns on Sparks street, with half a dozen private residences. The loss is approximately estimated at a quarter of a million dollars.

OBITUARY.

Sad Death of Mrs. Angus McPherson Occurred Yesterday.

The sad death of Mrs. Angus McPherson, senior, of town, occurred on Wednesday afternoon, at one o'clock, at her residence, No. 73 Paterson street. The deceased, who was aged 50 years, was the wife of Mr. Angus McPherson, senior, of town. She leaves behind her six children, who will acutely feel her departure. They are Angus, junior, James J., F. R. J., W. J. and Katie and May. The funeral will take place on Friday morning next at nine o'clock, from the family residence to St. Peter's Cathedral, and thence to the Roman Catholic Cemetery.

T. A. S. CONCERT.

That Given Last Night was Very Successful.

A successful concert was held last night under the auspices of St. Peter's T.A.S., in their hall, at which the attendance was good and a splendid programme rendered.

The chairman of the evening was Mr. Jos. Bogley and among those who participated in the programme were: The Misses Clancy, who sang very pleasingly, accompanied by Mr. Norris, of Omemee, Miss Hallihan and Mr. Gilloghly, whose solos were also very much appreciated, their accompanist being Miss Doherty.

The T.A.S. have a reputation for providing entertainments which please, and this event fully sustained thi sreputation worthily earned.

A prominent Southern lady, Mrs. Blanchard, of Nashville, Tenn., tells how she was cured of backache, dizziness, painful and irregular periods by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"Gratitude compels me to acknowledge the great merit of your Vegetable Compound. I have suffered for four years with irregular and painful menstruation, also dizziness, pains in the back and lower limbs, and fitful sleep. I dreaded the time to come which would only mean suffering to me. Six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought me health and happiness in a few short months, and was worth more than months under the doctor's care, which really did not benefit me at all. I feel like another person now. My aches and pains have left me. I am satisfied there is no medicine so good for sick woman as your Vegetable Compound, and I advocate it to my lady friends in need of medical help."—MRS. B. A. THE CORDOVA ROAD.

Marmora Council Will Make a Substantial Grant.

The committee recently appointed to interview the Marmora council to ask for a grant to the Cordova road, the Herald says, waited upon the council at their session on Tuesday. The township council consider the matter very favourably and are taking a great interest in the matter. The road has become one of the most important in the municipality, and so generally used that the council feel it would be only right to spend as much as they can in putting it in good condition. The village will make a substantial contribution towards the work. Now that all hands are interested, the accomplishment of this good work seems in sight. Recently we were talking to one of the leading county councillors, who is thoroughly conversant with the whole state of affairs. He thinks the road should be put in good condition by those locally interested, and then the county should be asked to assume it in lieu of an equal number of miles of the north end of the county road to be given to the municipality. The county is anxious to have all its roads leading between important centres so as to be more beneficial to the general public. It certainly would be more beneficial to both the smaller township municipality and the county to make the trade. It is to be hoped those interested will deal liberally in the matter and be prepared to meet one another half way.

DIRECTIONS TO CAMPERS.

Valuable Pointers for Local Camping Parties.

A correspondent sends the following for publication:—

First, you pick out a pleasant spot, and clear it of weeds and brambles. Then you will find a snake, and go elsewhere.

There are always several ways to pitch a tent, but experienced campers consider the Noah method the best. Noah pitched his ark within and without; that is part of the time you will be on top, and part of the time underneath. At first the tent will pitch you, but you will soon get the hang of it. Some authorities advise using a tent pole. This is unnecessary. A tent has trouble enough holding itself up, and to ask it to hold up a tent pole, is adding insult to injury.

Campers this season should have their tents starched. This gives a tent character and stamina, that negligee tents lack.

When you have pitched your tent enough for one day, hunt for a farm house and rent a bed.

NORTH SMITH.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Victoria Day was duly celebrated here by a picnic under the auspices of the Methodist Sunday school, and an enjoyable time was spent in sports. A handsome sum was realised in aid of the school.

Dr. Metzler, pastor of Wesley Circuit is in Oshawa this week attending the Methodist Conference. His many friends will be pleased to have him return for another year.

The Best Ointment.

"I have derived great benefit from the use of Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism and lumbago," says Mrs. Anna Hagelgans, of Tuckahoe, N. J. "My husband used it for a sprained back and was also quickly relieved. In fact it is the best family liniment I have ever used. I would not think of being without it. I have recommended it to many and they always speak very highly of it and declare its merits are wonderful." For sale by all druggists.

NEW FACTOR IN TRANSPORTATION.

Canada at Last Taking Prominent Part.

Canal System Improvements Responsible for Increased Traffic.

One of the best indications of the welcome advance which Canada is making in industrial lines, may be found in the fact that it has recently been found necessary to make very material additions to the fleet of steamers which make a business of carrying the products of the West to the seaboard. It has long been a much lamented fact that while the products of the western plains were increasing at a most satisfactory rate, the great bulk of it found its way to the seaboard, and the European markets, through transportation facilities which belonged to a foreign country. But during the last few years, and more particularly since the beginning of the shipping season of 1902, there has been a steadily increasing number of grain and ore carrying boats flying the British flag. During last season the boats known as the Turret Fleet, were brought over from England, and have since been engaged in the grain transportation trade from Fort William to Montreal.

The Hamilton-Fort William Transportation Company is also a new factor in the trade, and there appears to be not only ample business offering to necessitate all the existing lines being kept in continuous operation, but there is apparently a surplus which these are not at present in a position to handle. In view of this fact, the following statement by Mr. William Petersen, of Petersen, Tate & Co., shippers and shipbuilders of Newcastle-on-Tyne, England, who is at present in Canada, will be of special interest:—

"My visit is for the purpose of judging how far we will be justified in expanding the fleet of the Canadian Ocean and Inland Navigation Company, of which Mr. Thos. Harling is the Montreal agent. I have brought over three vessels suitable for the lake and river traffic. Our idea is that these vessels, which are of the regulation canal draught and size, shall bring down grain from the great lakes to this port for shipment to feed our own line, plying between Newcastle, Rotterdam and Montreal, and any other vessels in port ready to receive cargo."

At the rate of increase which is characterizing the output of Canadian products, it is very evident that a continuous demand will be made for improved shipping facilities, and to exporters the statement made above will be a welcome one.

To an extent, which perhaps at present is hardly fully appreciated, the increased amount of Canadian grain carried to ocean ports, in Canadian bottoms, is due to the improvements which have been made by the Government in the canal system of the country, and which make it possible for the standard size steamers to take aboard a cargo at the head of Lake Superior, and discharge it at Liverpool without change of shipment, and also to the latest evidence of the interest which the Government takes in all questions which are to the advantage of the Canadian, whether he be a producer or a consumer; that of abolishing the tolls on Canadian canals. This action has already resulted in a largely increased traffic through the St. Lawrence route, up to the 30th of May, 1,400,000 bushels having been shipped through these channels in excess of that carried during the same period last year.

This state of things is highly pleasing, when it is remembered that for years Canada has been forced to submit to having her products carried to the markets by American boats. This is now being rapidly changed, and the day is in sight when Canada shall have become one of the leaders in the carrying nations of the world.

WALTER L. MAIN'S GREATEST CIRCUS.

South Africa in its Natural State.

Visits Peterborough on July 16th—Two Performances Given.

The magnitude of the Walter L. Main Enormous Shows, combined with the grand military spectacle, Savage South Africa, is almost beyond conception, and is, at least, for a fact, beyond description. The Walter L. Main Enormous Show has for many years been regarded as the representative show of America, while Savage South Africa has been pronounced by the press and public of Europe to be the greatest spectacular production ever perfected. The consolidation of these two gigantic aggregations can only be imagined until seen. In this consolidation Mr. Main has carefully retained all the features of his grand triple-ring exhibition, menagerie, hippodrome, and museum, and introduced in this country for the first time Africa in all its barbarianism, its people, customs, mode of living, warriors, and tamed and untamed animals. South Africa is shown in such truthfulness that it can be likened to nothing short of a living moving panorama. The Transvaal, with its Boers, Burghers, and native soldiers in their quaint costumes and effective mode of warfare are pictures of life, not counterfeits. Over one hundred barbaric Matabeles, Zulus, and Bastus arrayed in full fighting regalia, which consists of little more than their death-dealing lances, bolos, and shields, participate in the final spectacular, and it is the first time in this country's history that African warriors have been seen in such a number and their war dances given and explained. In reproducing the Boer war in the grand military spectacle, the participants are all men who figured in the battles depicted, and when compared to similar military spectacles the realism of Savage South Africa causes them to pale into insignificance. The attack on the Guelo stage coach, the battle of Paardeberg, the last stand of Major Allen Wilson against the Matabeles are truly and conscientiously represented.

Notwithstanding that the spectacular Savage South Africa is an exhibition in itself sufficient to satisfy the demands of a critical European audience, the arenic display of the Main show has not been curtailed in the least. The very best lady and gentlemen riders, acrobats, tumblers, gymnasts, jugglers, contortionists, and in fact the cream of American and European artists have been secured, and will be seen with this grand consolidated show. Nearly a half hundred funny, side-splitting clowns, jesters, buffoons, pantomists, and comedians are with the company to drive away the blues. The animal department as usual with this show, is filled with the largest and rarest collection of wild and domesticated animals ever assembled. The exhibition of trained animals is a feature and an unequalled one. This is particularly true regarding "Canandiagna," the cute little pony, who rides two larger horses, giving an exhibition that has never before been attempted, let alone perfected. Two exhibitions will be given at Peterborough, on Tuesday, June 16th, the afternoon performance beginning at 2 o'clock, and the evening performance at 8 o'clock. Doors will be open one hour earlier to give visitors a chance to see the menagerie, museum, and enjoy the promenade concert.

The street parade will leave the grounds at 10 o'clock on the day of the exhibition and pass through the principal streets. This pageant, which is over a mile in length, should be seen by everyone, whether they attend the exhibition or not. Music is furnished by eight bands of music, caliopes, bagpipers, drum and fife corps, chimes and Icown band. Many new features are seen in the parade and the dens of wild animals are open. Hundreds of lady and gentlemen riders, the African stage coach, African wagons and ox carts, Zulus, Boers and Matabeles, as well as soldiers of every nation will be in line. Directly after the parade a free exhibition of daylight fireworks will be given on the grounds.

One ticket takes the holder through the entire exhibition. All the tents are sun and water proof. Uniformed ushers are in attendance to care for ladies and children.

VILLIERS.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The funeral of the late Alexander Wood, sr., which took place from the family residence on Monday, June 1, to the Westwood cemetery, was very largely attended, there being more than 100 vehicles in the procession. That with the great quantity of beatiful flowers that covered the casket, gave some indication of the high esteem in which the deceased gentleman was held by the community in which he lived. Mr. Wood, who was born in Berwickshire, Scotland, in 1814, came to Canada in the year 1835, and settled on lot 14, concession 3, of Otonabee. Four years later he removed to lot 17, concession 2, where he has since resided. In 1851 Mr. Wood became an elder of the Keene Presbyterian church, which office he held up to the time of his death. The deceased was an upright, honourable Christian man, always ready to help in any good work and loved by young and old. A family of six boys and three girls are left to mourn the loss of a kind, loving, and above all, a Christian father, who, although removed from their midst, is waiting for them in his heavenly home.

QUEBEC BUSH FIRES.

Responsible for the Wiping Out of Several Villages.

24 HOUSES BURNED IN HULL.

Amber Pall of Smoke Darkened Montreal on Wednesday and Ashes Fell in the Streets—A New Brunswick Village Destroyed — C. P. R. Employe While Fighting Fire Was Burned to Death.

Montreal, June 4.—The six weeks' drouth in the Province of Quebec has resulted in a series of almost unprecedented forest and bush fires. From many quarters come reports of serious damage, and several small villages are said to be wiped out. Wires are down in these districts, and as others are beyond the reach of telegraphic communication, nothing very definite can be learned.

The fires rage on the Lapelle branch of the C.P.R. so fiercely that orders have been sent to the various agents forbidding them to sell tickets to St. Agathe or Lebelle until further notice. Great excitement prevails in that district. And the people have turned out to fight the fires, fearing their advance upon the villages. Already numerous farm buildings have been destroyed. The grass and bush is sunburnt, and the flames travel with great rapidity.

An employe of the C.P.R., who was assisting in fire fighting yesterday afternoon between St. Agathe and St. Francois was overcome by smoke and before his companions could reach him the flames had overtaken them and formed a retreat. The man was burned to death on the spot. Several of the railway bridges are already burned so badly that traffic has been suspended.

Wood ash fell thick in the streets of Montreal yesterday, and the atmosphere was of a peculiar amber hue. Everywhere pedestrians were brushing the flakes from their clothes.

New Brunswick Village Wiped Out.

St. John, N.B., June 4.—A telephone message says that the village of Brigg's Corner, in Queen's county, was wiped out by fire yesterday afternoon. Included in the burned buildings were the large sawmill, general store, manager's residence, four barns and three warehouses of Sayre & Holdie of this city. About a dozen residences were destroyed.

24 Houses Burned in Hull.

Ottawa, June 4.—Fire did $5,000 damage to the city of Hull yesterday afternoon. For a time there was considerable anxiety in both Hull and Ottawa. The fire started in almost the same place as in the big conflagration of 1900, and, as a strong wind was blowing, serious results in small dwellings, of which 24 were wore feared. The damage was wholly burned.

Fire at Coteau.

Montreal, June 4.—Half a score of dwellings were destroyed by fire in Coteau Junction, 30 miles from Montreal, on the Grand Trunk Railway. The loss will be about $20-000. A defective chimney was the cause.

Fire at Lobo.

London, June 4.—The village of Lobo, about ten miles from this city, was visited by a heavy fire at an early hour yesterday morning, when the general store and postoffice, kept by George F. Dean, were totally destroyed. The loss is between $3,000 and $4,000.

THREE SCORE WERE DROWNED.

Str. Arequipa Foundered While Riding Gale at Valparaiso.

Valparaiso, Chile, June 4.—Seventeen persons were saved out of the eighty on board the steamer Arequipa, when she foundered during the gale which swept over this coast Tuesday. The Arequipa, during a lull in Tuesday's great storm, left this port in an endeavor to ride out the gale at sea. Capt Todd, his wife, most of the crew and many passengers were drowned.

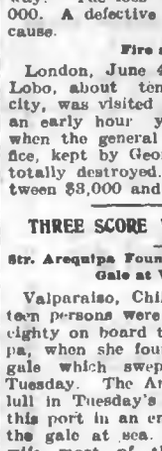
Captain Was Drowned.

Quebec, June 4.—Capt. Boudreau of the schooner Maria Blanche, fell from the mast opposite Little St. Francis, and was drowned.

C.P.R. Earnings.

Montreal, June 4.—The C. P. R. traffic for week ended May 31 was $1,218,000; same week last year, $988,000.

A WORD OF CAUTION.



Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are prepared from the prescription of Dr. Zina Pitcher (formerly Professor of Materia Medica and Genito-Urinary Diseases, Michigan College of Medicine, Detroit, Mich., U.S.A.), which he used with wonderful success for over twelve years in private practice in the Western Hospital, Detroit.

They contain specific ingredients not found in any other kidney remedy, and it is not surprising, therefore, that they make cures in very many cases where other remedies had proved altogether ineffectual.

We would caution you in purchasing the Tablets to see that the accompanying cut, printed in green ink, and Dr. Pitcher's portrait and signature, are printed on the package. Refuse substitutes and imitations, as these are sure to disappoint.

The price of the Tablets is 50c. a box, or three boxes for $1.25, at all druggists, or sent by mail by addressing the Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto, Ont.

Route of Grand Trunk Pacific in Parliament's Control.

AMENDMENTS ARE DEFEATED.

Hon. Mr. Blair Says the Government Has Not Yet Determined Upon the Subsidy Question Yet—Minister of Railways Argues For a Broad View of the Transportation Question by Members.

Ottawa, June 4.—There was a rather slim attendance yesterday when the Railway Committee met and took up the Grand Trunk Pacific Bill. The discussion on the question of route was resumed. At the last meeting Mr. Wade moved that work commence on the road near Quebec, and that it be proceeded with east and west simultaneously. To this Mr. Sproule moved an amendment that work commence on all sections simultaneously east of Winnipeg.

Mr. Blair's Announcement.

When a vote was called on the amendment to the amendment Mr. Blair said that he did not find himself agreeing with the representatives of his own province on this point. The committee in his opinion was making too much of the route. The company should not be hampered down with provisions in the route until such time as the question of aid came up.

He held the opinion that the company could not finance the undertaking without public assistance. They would require considerable assistance while the question remained unsettled, and the Government had not arrived at any decision, it seemed to him idle to talk whether the road was commenced east or west. It would be in the power of the Government when granting aid—no matter how small—to lay down the conditions as to where the line was to be laid. When the Government was going to grant aid they could not escape responsibility, and Parliament would have to deal with the matter. They should pass the bill apart from the question of aid. As to the line to Moncton, he did not look with favor upon paralelling the Intercolonial.

The question of reaching a seaport on Canadian soil with the least mileage was what they should all look to. Canada could not afford to deal with the great national problems in a sectional way. They would have to take a broad view of the question. If the road was to reach a maritime seaport it would have to take the shortest route to a seaport. In his opinion neither of the amendments should be adopted. The company put in Moncton rather than give up the charter, but they would not do so of their own accord.

Amendments Lost.

After some discussion, Mr. Wade said he was willing to withdraw his amendment.

Dr. Sproule's amendment to the amendment was lost by 26 for to 89 against, a majority of 63.

Mr. Casgrain and his friends insisted on another division on Mr. Wade's amendment. It was lost by 18 for to 87 against.

Mr. Fraser moved that before the construction of the prairie section be commenced the location of the line shall be approved by Governor-in-Council and that no part of the road be nearer than 30 miles of another railway unless special reasons are given.

This amendment was to be made satisfactary to the Minister of Railways and chairman and was so accepted. Mr. Wilmot moved that St. John be substituted as the terminus and another division was insisted upon.

The amendment was lost 27 for to 56 against.

Mr. Prefontaine gave notice of an amendment to give connection to Montreal with the road by the Montreal and Western or to build a branch if the company so desired.

THE RAILWAY COMMISSION.

120 Clauses of Mr. Blair's Measure Covered in the House.

Ottawa, June 4.—When the House adjourned last night it had covered 120 clauses of Mr. Blair's railway commission bill. The whole day was spent in examining the clauses of the measure. There are 310 clauses in the bill.

There were no important amendments to the bill. A wealth of discussion took place over detail, but in nearly every instance the clause was allowed to go unchanged.

Hon. James Sutherland introduced a bill to legalize an old practice of the Public Works Department, which enables it to spend $5,000 in excess of its appropriations.

Mr. Ingram asked how many writs or prosecutions for violation of the Alien Labor Act have been instituted since the coming into force of the act. He was informed that it is not the Government, but individuals that take action, and the Government was therefore not in possession of the desired information. Eight applications were made to the Government through misapprehension, of these the Government took no notice. Fifty-two persons have been deported since the act went into effect, nineteen are left during the course of investigation. The cost of the operation of the act was in 1901, $3,701 and in 1902 $277.

GORGEOUS WEDDING IN QUEEN CITY.

Of Special Interest to Peterborough People.

Dr. Victor McWilliams Marries Miss Josephine Sheppard Under Most Pleasing Circumstances.

The Toronto Star's account of the wedding of Dr. Victor Howard McWilliams, of Peterborough,, will be read with great interest by his many friends here.

All Saints church, Toronto, was prettily decorated with palms and white flowers on Wednesday for the marriage of Miss Josephine Gordon Sheppard, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O .B. Sheppard, to Dr .Victor Howard McWilliams, of Peterborough ,which took place at half past two o'clock. The Rev. Arthur Baldwin, rector of the church, performed the ceremony, assisted by the Rev. Jos. Sheppard, of Coldwater, cousin of the bride. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a lovely robe of white Duchesse satin, with a berthe of rose point lace, the gift of her mother. This lace has a unique interest in being the work of an old lady of 86 years of age, a friend of the family, who has been working on it for two years. The skirt of the gown was slashed up to show fan-shaped ruffles of chiffon, topped with medallions of rich lace. Long angel sleeves of chiffon reached to the hem of the skirt. The bridal veil of Brussels lace, 150 years old, and an heirloom in the family of Mrs. Sheppard, has been worn by five generations of brides. A bouquet of orchids and maidan hair ferns was carried. The attendants were Miss Stainer, maid of honour, and Miss Olive Sheppard, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. They wore white organdie, with white chiffon hats, decorated with pink roses, and carried bridesmaid's roses. Mr. Roland McWilliams, brother of the groom, was best man, and Mr. Norman Whylie, Dr. O'Brien, and Mr. Henry Beemer, were the ushers. The ushers and bridesmaids were the recipients of gold shepherd's crook pins, which they wore.

During the ceremony Miss Adelaide Sheppard, cousin of the bride, sang the nuptial music from Lobengrin, and Mr. Blakeley was at the organ. The church was filled with a very large number of guests ,many from out of town, and interested spectators; and, after the ceremony, the former drove to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Sheppard, 104 Pembroke street, where a reception was held. The house was beautifully decorated with flowers, and an orchestra played throughout the time. Later on, Dr. and Mrs. McWilliams left for Montreal and Quebec, where the honeymoon will be spent, the bride going away in a suit of navy blue cloth striped with white and trimmed with strappings of navy broad cloth, and a dark blue chiffon hat with white roses. Mrs. Sheppard, mother of the bride, wore black and white grenadine over white taffeta, and black and white hat.

Among thos present were: — Sir William and Lady Mulock, Hon. and Mrs. J. R. Stratton, Hon. and Mrs. Harty of Kingston, Hon. and Mrs. E. J. Davis, Miss Stevenson, Major McGee, the Misses McGee, Mr. and Mrs. McWilliams of Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. Hall of Peterborough, Mr. W. B. Grose of New York, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Whitney of Detroit, Mrs. Stoddart of Albany, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Murphy of Washington, Mr. Frod Montgomery of Barrie, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Sheppard of Orillia, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Sheppard of Coldwater, Dr. and Mrs. Harrison of Keene, Ont., Dr. and Mrs. Wagner, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Sheppard, Mr. and Mrs. Stanbury Finch, Mrs. Miller of Peterborough, Miss Campbell of Belleville, and many others.

JUDGES' REPORT.

HON. J. R. STRATTON FULLY EXONERATED

The Commission Utterly Discredits Gamey's Story.

CONSPIRACY CHARGE IS ALSO DISPROVED

Judges Brought in Report this Afternoon — Every Phase of Evidence Dealt with—No Question Left Open.

Special to the Examiner.

Toronto, June 5th.—The report of the Royal Commission which has been investigating the charges made on March 11th, by Mr. Gamey, the member for Manitoulin, was laid upon the table of the House this afternoon, and it is a most gratifying document to the Government and the Liberal party in Ontario, as it completely discredits the base and vindictive charges made on the floor of the House. The charges are held by the Commission to be absolutely disproved and discredited. It will be a source of great satisfaction, though not an unexpected event to Mr. Stratton's many friends in Peterborough, and the county that the report upon charges as specially directed against the Provincial Secretary, completely and wholly exonerates the member for West Peterborough. The charge of conspiracy laid against the Government utterly fails in all respects. The Judgment of the Commission is conclusive in favour of the Provincial Secretary and Government.

The document comprises over one hundred pages of typewritten matter. It deals with every phase of evidence, finding a clear-cut decision. There are no questions left open.

DEMONSTRATION ON DOMINION DAY.

Proposal to Hold a Fitting Celebration Made.

Prominent Citizens are Interesting Themselves in the Endeavour.

An effort which has for its object the holding of some suitable attractions on Dominion Day is being made by some of the citizens and in connection with it a meeting was held last evening in the Town Clerk's office, at which the following gentlemen were present:—Mr. Hughes-Charles, President Board of Trade; Mayor G. M. Roger, T. E. Bradburn, R. E. Layfield, A. Rountree, C. F. McGill, R. M. Hamilton, J. M. Brooks, W. H. Hill, R. Fair, Alex. Elliott, P. Campbell, R. H. Leary, Dickson Hall and Dickson Davidson.

The matter was thoroughly discussed and the unanimous opinion seemed to be that a town of the importance which Peterborough is possessing, should celebrate the forming of Confederation by a programme of attractiuons which would do the town credit. It was proposed to secure the services of a first-class city band, if possible, and to arrange a programme of sports on the Driving Park for the afternoon and a band concert in the skating rink at night. The Turf Club promised, if all goes well, to supplement the afternoon's events with horse races. However, nothing definite was decided on, excepting the naming of a committee to ascertain whether a good band can be obtained for the day at this late date.

DECORATE IS THE WORD.

It is Desired That all Citizens Use Every Effort to Beautify the Town.

The members of the Reception Committee, ably supported by the leading citizens, are busily engaged in preparing for the Vice-Regal visit. A large staff of workmen is at present decorating the court house and erecting the platform on which the ceremonies will be held.

It is earnestly desired that the efforts will be appreciated by the public, and that a general response will be made to the request of Mayor Roger that as far as possible the residences and business houses be gaily decorated in honour of this visit.

The streets are being made presentable by a general cleaning up, and the only thing remaining to be accomplished to make the town present a good appearance, is for the citizens to do their part in the way of decorating.

When the public is being presented to Their Excellencies on the platform at the court house, those who desire that honour will arrange themselves to the north side of the platform, as they will be asked to pass to the platform from that side, proceeding off at the south side. The carriages will also line up in the same manner.

Any who wish may be presented, after the invited guests meet Their Excellencies, and no doubt great numbers will avail themselves of the coveted opportunity of being presented to the representatives of Royalty.

PROMINENT SOCIETY MEMBERS MARRY.

An Interesting Ceremony Was Performed Last Evening.

Mr. G. H. Williamson, of Y.M.C.A., Marries Miss Patterson Under Pleasing Circumstances.

Few weddings in Peterborough have elicited more general interest on account of the esteem in which the contracting parties were held, than that celebrated last evening at the residence of Mr. J. Coyle Brown, 162 Smith street, when Miss Annie E. Patterson, daughter of the late Dr. Wm. K. Patterson, was united in marriage to Mr. G. H. Williamson, in the presence of 45 guests, by Rev. E. F. Torrance, D.D., assisted by Rev. J. P. Wilson. Miss I. May Best was bridesmaid, while Mr. Horace Ayers, supported the groom. The presents, which were both numerous and valuable attested to the popularity of the young couple among their many friends. The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A. presented a valuable Morris chair, while an oak rocker was sent by Mr. Williamson's late fellow-boarders. The Directors and friends from the Y.M.C.A. being represented by a handsome oak cabinet of silver table ware, and Mrs. Williamson's Y.W.C.A. Bible Class remembered her with a marmalade jar of beautiful design. These are but a few of a particularly attractive list.

A number of out of town guests were present among whom were:—Major A. and Mrs. Williamson, York, parents of the groom; Mr. D. T. Williamson, Brantford, brother; Mr. and Mrs. E. Duncan, Cobourg; Mr. and Mrs. W. Dobie, Toronto; Mrs. Clark, Frankfort, aunt of the bride; Mrs. T. H. Martin, Ottawa; Mrs. Wm. Craig, Kinmount; Mr. Harold Brown, Toronto, the bride's brother; Mrs. Harry Fitzgerald, Lakefield; Miss Margaret Campbell, Keene, who played the wedding march. Congratulatory telegrams were received from Brantford, sent by Mr. Williamson's sisters, and sister-in-law; from Mr. and Mrs. Ruddy, giving best wishes, also from Mr. J. Manning, London; Miss Belle Wilson, Oakville, and Mrs. D. T. Williamson, Brantford.

Mr. and Mrs. Williamson last evening went to their new home at 216 London street, where they will remain until Saturday, on which day they will leave for an extended trip including in its itinerancy, Toronto, York, Brantford, and Chautauqua, where Mr. Williamson will attend the Convention of Y.M.C.A. Secretarys of North America, returning home about June 20th. Mrs. Williamson will receive at her home, 216 London street, on Thursday afternoon and evening, June 25th, and Friday afternoon, June 26th.

Mr. and Mrs. Williamson, by reason of their association with the young people in town, the former as secretary of the Y.M.C.A. and the latter with the Y.W.C.A., have won a host of friends who join in extending heartiest congratulations and kind wishes for long lives of contented happiness.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

Mr. J. A. Aylmer is in town to-day.

Mr. D. W. Dumble is attending the conference at Oshawa.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilchrist, and Miss McLeod, of Gamebridge, Ont., are visiting friends in town.

Mr. Herb. Stenson, who has been residing at Boston, Mass., for the past two years, is home and will live here in future.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Kelly and family, of Welland, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Armstrong, Dublin street.

Mr. Charles Whiten, who has been staying at Bancroft for the past two weeks, returned home last night. He left immediately on receiving news concerning Mr. W. A. Sanderson.

Mrs. Hector Bradburn is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Winch, 296 Stewart street, arriving on the evening train last night. She will remain during the summer months.

An announcement of the wedding of Mr. Dan Coughlin to Miss Annie McCauley stated that they were residents of New York. This is incorrect, as they both lived in Peterborough where they will continue their residence.

Rev. Dr. Torrance of St. Paul's church, left this morning for Vancouver, B.C., for the meeting of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church. He will be absent about three weeks. Rev. J. A. Wilson will be in charge of the work during Dr. Torrance's absence. Mr. R. Harrison, one of St. Paul's elders, has also gone.

AUTOS 10 MILES AN HOUR.

Legislature Increases Committee's Minimum Speed—Seven Miles Was Too Slow—Assembly Proceedings.

Toronto, June 4.—The House went into committee yesterday on Mr. Preston's bill to regulate the speed and operation of motor vehicles, when the father of the bill moved that the limit of speed be fixed at 10 miles an hour. He made a good appeal for a change in the bill, and showed that seven miles an hour would be altogether too slow.

Dr. Willoughby said seven miles an hour was as fast as autos should be allowed to run, and Mr. Carscallen (Hamilton) advised that the speed at crossings be limited to seven miles.

The speed will be 10 miles.

The House divided in committee on the bill respecting the assessment of the property of James Playfair, in the Town of Midland. This bill was debated at great length a few days ago. It was reported by the House with an amendment, excluding the residence of Mr. Playfair from the provisions of an agreement, fixing the assessment of Mr. Playfair's mill property at $10,000 for ten years. The report of the committee was carried by 36 to 28.

Mr. McKay moved to amend the bill to allow the Town of Listowel to purchase and operate the plant of the Gas and Electric Light Company. The amendment proposed to restrict the town to the operation of the plant for public purposes only.

Mr. Carscallen argued that the town should be permitted to operate the incandescent plant.

The discussion was not concluded when the House adjourned.

The following bills were also considered in Committee of the House. To amend the Municipal Waterworks Act (Brown); to amend the act to permit municipalities to use voting machines (Pettypiece.)

The bill of Dr. Pyne, to amend the Public Health Act, was read a second time.

Third Readings.

Third readings were given to these bills: To amend the Public School Act (Harcourt); to confirm Bylaw 247 of the Village of Beamsville (Jessop); to confirm Bylaw 597 of the Town of Niagara Falls (Gross.)

Enquiries of the Ministry.

In reply to Mr. St. John, the Minister of Education furnished the House with some information concerning the Law Society of Upper Canada.

To Mr. Preston (Durham) the Minister of Crown Lands said Samuel Johnston was not employed by the Government in any capacity.

Dr. Jessop moved for a return of the regulations at present in force by Order-in-Council, respecting the exportation of natural gas to the United States. The order was granted.

Legal Committee's Meeting.

In the Legal Committee, Mr. Beck was given another chance to urge his Street Railway Fender Bill. This was thrown out on Tuesday last, but will be reconsidered to-day. Mr. McCart's bill, to allow street railway companies to have only one man on electric cars in towns, was thrown out.

Mr. Hoyle's bill, to provide that suits of debtors under lien note, hire, receipt or contract for conditional sale, etc., be held in the proper court having jurisdiction in the locality in which defendant resides, instead of in locality of the head office of the creditor, attracted criticism from a number of lawyers representing large corporations.

The Attorney-General suggested that some safeguard should be made for the unwary by compelling the companies which insert a clause in agreements as to venue of trials for breach of contract, to have said clauses printed in a conspicuous way in red ink. Mr. Carscallen (Hamilton), and Mr. Pattullo thought that such a provision would be going quite far enough, and supported a motion to that effect. This view of the question was finally adopted by the committee, and the bill reported in this shape.

ATTACKS EVERYBODY.

Dyspepsia no Respecter of Persons—Proof That There is one Sure Cure—Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Dyspepsia is no respecter of persons. It attacks rich and poor alike and gradually though painfully reduces them all to the same stage of misery and despondency.

You can avoid it sometimes by regulating your diet; but only sometimes, for those foods that relieve one stomach only bring additional trouble to others. But you can avoid it always by using Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. They digest all foods and bring comfort to all. Of course you want proof of this. Here it is. Adomard Coderre, of St. Jacques de L'Achigan, Quebec, writes:—

"I certify to having suffered two years with Dyspepsia caused by inflammation of the stomach. I took three medicines without any relief. I became discouraged until one day seeing an account of cures performed by Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets I bought two boxes of them.

"By the time I had finished taking them I was cured and I have had no Dyspepsia since."

Thousands of others tell the same story. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets cure it permanently.

The Gamey Judges' Finding.

Toronto, June 4.—The report of the Gamey Commissioners will, it is expected, be in the hands of Lieutenant-Governor Clark to-day, and will probably be submitted to the Legislature this afternoon. The Lieutenant-Governor stated last night that he expected the report on Friday, but he had received no intimation from the commissioners as to when it would be placed in his hands.

Let Others Experiment.

There is always something new in the way of medical treatment and you are constantly invited to try new-fangled, unproven remedies. Let others exepriment and so lose time and risk health. Danger Is Over Now.

Kansas City, June 4.—Flood conditions have materially improved, and the water is falling rapidly. An army of men are engaged in relief work. The C. B. & Q. passenger train due here Sunday, is now known to be safe, while 67 passengers from a St. Joseph and Grand Island train, which arrived at Milwaukee bridge Sunday night, were rescued by a steamer Tuesday night.

Killed in a Runaway.

Peterboro, June 4. — Michael O'Brien, a carter and an old resident of Peterboro, was fatally injured yesterday afternoon. His horse became frightened at a train and ran away, throwing O'Brien from his cart. Mr. O'Brien lived only a few minutes.

AMES & CO.'S STATEMENT.

Liabilities $10,140,000 June 1—$240,000 Savings Deposits — Doors at St. Thomas Closed.

Toronto, June 4.—A statement of the affairs of A. E. Ames & Co. has been prepared, and shows a very substantial estate. The assets consist largely of stocks, which, of course, have a fluctuating value, but it is understood that in case of careful handling the suspension will not result in any disastrous losses to creditors. The statement shows that the liabilities at the end of May were $10,140,000, and the book surplus at the same time was placed at $1,090,000. This surplus may be enlarged by the favorable balances of the separate members of the concern, which at the beginning of the year was stated to be a substantial sum. The firm had on deposit the sum of $240,000, distributed among three and four hundred separate accounts, according to Mr. Ames' personal statement. The statement says that clients with margined accounts will be able to release their holdings on payment of the amount for which securities are pledged, irrespective of any additional margins that may already stand to their credit. Such balances will for the time being remain to the debit of the firm. Tuesday's deposits will be returned.

Excitement over the suspension has subsided as quickly as it arose on the announcement yesterday that the doors were closed. A remarkable feature is the almost entire absence of complaints of prospective losses by customers of the firm.

Too Great a Risk.

In almost every neighbourhood someone has died from an attack of colic or cholera morbus, often before medicine could be procured or a physician summoned. A reliable remedy for these diseases should be kept at hand. The risk is too great for anyone to take. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has undoubtedly saved the lives of more people and relieved more pain and suffering than any other medicine in use. It can always be depended upon. For sale by all druggists.

Australia Backs Up Chamberlain.

London, June 4.—A telegram was received from Alfred Deakin, the Attorney-General of the Australian Commonwealth, saying the Australian Commonwealth Government and all Governments of the separate Australian States approve Colonial Secretary Chamberlain's preferential tariff proposals. Only an extreme section of free traders oppose them, and an immense majority is assured for the new policy, when it is submitted to the country.

Had Quick Consumption.

"Three doctors said that I had quick consumption. Angier's Petroleum Emulsion was prescribed. In six months I had gained fifty-nine pounds in weight, and had no more night sweats or hemorrhages. Am now in perfect health." B. H. Walton, Medford, Mass. 9a

Color Line in Hamilton.

Hamilton, June 4.—The Grand Lodge of the Orange Young Britons in session here did little else yesterday afternoon and evening but hold indignation meetings, and pass resolutions condemning Proprietor Grey, of the Osborne Hotel, who refused to let a colored delegate named Williams from Toronto stay in his hotel. Grand Chaplain Walsh and about 40 other delegates who were registered at the hotel picked up their belongings and took themselves off to other hotels.

The Broken Health of School Life.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

So many school girls and school boys, too, are pale, languid and run down in health, subject to weak spells and nervous headache, and victims of sleeplessness, that we no longer realise the folly of developing the mind at the expense of the body.

It is on the mothers and fathers that falls the responsibility of looking after the health of their children, and to them we suggest the wisdom of having the health of their children kept at the high water mark by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

This great food cure is so gentle and natural in action as to be admirably suited to the requirements of children. The benefits to be derived from its use are certain and lasting, as it goes to form new red corpuscles in the blood, and create new nerve force.

Mrs. R. Wareham, 267 Sherbrooke street Peterborough, Ont., states:—

"One of my children has suffered a great deal with nervous headaches, dizziness and sleeplessness, and, in fact, was all run down, pale and languid. These troubles were attributed to over-study and confinement at school. She began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and I can say that we have found this treatment exceedingly helpful. It has relieved her of headache, steadied her nerves, and built up her system wonderfully. We can see a great change in her, as the colour is returning to the face, and she is gaining in flesh and weight."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

Father, Mother and Son CURED BY Doan's Kidney Pills.

THE WELL-KNOWN SPECIFIC FOR

Backache, Sideache, Diabetes, Dropsy, Bright's Disease, and all Kidney or Bladder troubles.

Read of how a whole family got cured by using these wonderful Pills.

Mr. Henry Hedrick, South Woodslee, Ont., says that Doan's Kidney Pills are far ahead of doctor's medicine.

He writes: "I have tried Doan's Kidney Pills and can honestly say that I never used anything better. I was so bad with my kidneys I could hardly raise myself up without help but Doan's Kidney Pills cured me.

"My wife was always complaining of a lame back, and they completely cured her.

"Our son was also troubled with his kidneys and as your pills had done us so much good we got him to try them and they cured him as well. They are far ahead of doctor's medicine, and I advise a trial of Doan's Kidney Pills for all sufferers from kidney trouble."

GREAT TEXTILE STRIKE.

These Who Have Not Granted Operatives' Demands Can Do Nothing.

Philadelphia, June 3.—Of the 530 plants here which have not granted the demands of the textile operatives for a 55 hour week, there were not half a dozen in operation yesterday and these were working short handed. In the Kensington district where are located the majority of the mills, the number of idle hands, is said to be more than 60,000. The mills in the Southwark district are completely tied up, rendering idle about 2,500 hands More than 2,000 operatives are idle in Manayunk. The lace workers in the two Bromley mills have been granted the shorter week. These plants employ about 2,000 operatives on lace curtains. All other departments of the factories are idle. The strikers held meetings yesterday in all sections.

Another Coal Cloud.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., June 3.—Another dark strike cloud has loomed upon the horizon of the anthracite coal region. The executive boards of the United Mine Workers' in session here yesterday endorsed the selection of their three district presidents on the Board of Conciliation, authorized by the Strike Commission, and if these members are not recognized by the operators, which action may come, the executive board contemplate calling a convention of mine workers to declare a general suspension of work until their members are given recognition.

Glory Whalen's Murder.

Collingwood, June 3.—Though a week has passed since Glory Whalen was slain in the outskirts of this town search for the murderer continues in a very vigorous manner. There were many aspects of the crime that convince Collingwood people that the child was killed by no stranger. The coroner will reconvene the jury to-day for a renewal of the inquest. Provincial Detective Greer has some additional evidence to offer, but the precise character of it he refuses to state.

Neuralgia

is Rheumatism of the face. Uric Acid left in the blood by disordered kidneys lodges along the nerve which branches from the eye over the forehead, and across the cheek to the side of the nose. The cause is the same as in all Rheumatism— disordered Kidneys. The cure is likewise the same—

THE ONTARIO ASSEMBLY.

Report of the Gamey Commission Expected Any Day Now—Temiskaming Railway—Its Finances.

Toronto, June 3.—The Legislature put in the full time yesterday and at 6 o'clock the order paper was not half cleared off. The Premier made the announcement that he expected the report of the Gamey Commissioners early and the conclusion of the ordinary business of the House next week.

When the Temiskaming Railway bill was again taken up in committee, Mr. Whitney said he was in favor of Government operation of the road.

Mr. Davis' bill to amend the act providing for the appropriation of lands for volunteers who served in South Africa and the volunteer militia who served on the frontier in 1866 was read a third time, as were some private bills. A number of bills were considered in committee.

Hon. Mr. Davis introduced a bill entitled "The Municipal Amendment Act, 1903." Hon. Mr. Harcourt introduced a bill to amend the Separate Schools Act.

A good deal of time was taken up by the Attorney-General in explaining the various clauses of "The Statute Law Amendment Act, 1903." This is an annual affair designed to patch up the various statutes.

For over two hours the attention of the House was given to the bill to amend the Municipal Act. This bill is a summary of the work of the Municipal Committee, all the clauses reported by the committee being included in one general bill. There are 120 clauses in the bill.

The House sat till 11.30.

Legal Committee.

In the Legal Committee Mr. Whitney's bill making the agreements entered into by the Niagara Falls Park Commissioners subject to ratification of the Legislature was passed. Mr. McCart's bill, which enables municipal Councils to appoint two resident drainage viewers to accompany the engineer when laying out drainage works and making assessments to meet the cost of such was passed.

The Special Assessment Committee in its session yesterday morning decided to take a week during the fall, when the Legislature was not in session, and at its meetings then consider the Royal Commission's report on assessment together with Mr. Pettypiece's Railway Taxation bill. The committee will recommend this course to the House.

JOHN WILKES BOOTH.

Man Who Killed President Lincoln Suicides in Oklahoma.

St. Louis, June 3.—A Globe-Democrat despatch from Enid, Okla, says: Junius Brutus Booth, the actor and nephew of John Wilkes Booth, assassin of President Lincoln, has fully identified the remains of a man who committed suicide here Jan. 14 last, as those of John Wilkes Booth, assassin of President Lincoln. He then went east and has obtained positive identification of the remains from the dead man's relatives and from Joseph Jefferson, Miss Clara Morris and a score of others who knew him in his early days.

Engines Collide at Woodstock.

Woodstock, June 3.—A collision occurred yesterday morning at the G. T. R. depot between two detached engines. The Lehigh express, due here at 10.12, pulled into the station under a double-header. On their arrival the two engines detached and proceeded down the yard, one behind the other. The rear one became unmanageable, and, gaining speed on the down-grade, crashed into the other. One was disabled and was unable to proceed. As a result of the accident the mornigg trains were delayed a considerable length of time.

A Strong Swimmer Drowned.

Morrisey Junction, B. C., June 3. — A sergeant, name unknown, from Morrisey mines, attempted to swim the Elk River at Morrisey Junction Monday afternoon and lost his life. The river is in a flood and two bridges at this point have been completely washed away.

I Can Go Out Days Now

"I feel it my duty to tell you what your medicines did for me," writes Mrs. Blanche Marshall, of Whiting, Jackson Co., Kansas, Box 139. "I was severely afflicted with kidney trouble and female weakness. In less than three months the trouble became so bad I could hardly walk around the house. I suffered almost everything. Seeing your advertisement in our paper concluded to write Dr. Pierce. After receiving your kind advice I immediately began taking your medicine. After taking two bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' alternately with two of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and using one box of 'Lotion Tablets' I am entirely cured. I can do all my own work without any trouble. I take great pleasure in recommending Doctor Pierce's medicines to all suffering women."

Six Doctors Failed to Cure Him.

ERYSIPELAS AND SALT RHEUM WAS THE TROUBLE.

Burdock Blood Bitters

DID MORE THAN SIX DOCTORS COULD DO.

Mrs. Theo. Newell, Argyle Sound, N.S., expresses her opinion of this wonderful blood remedy in the following letter:

"It is with the greatest gratitude that I can testify to the wonderful curative powers of Burdock Blood Bitters. For years my husband suffered terribly with Erysipelas and Salt Rheum. He was so bad at times that he could no sleep on account of the itching and burning. He had been under the care of six different doctors, but they failed to do him any good. I had read different times of the wonderful cures being made by Burdock Blood Bitters, so advised him to give it a trial. He did so, and after taking five bottles was cured without a doubt. I would strongly advise any person troubled with blood disorders to give B.B.B. a fair trial for I am sure it will cure them."

Dr. Caven Holds His Own.

Toronto, June 4.—The latest report from Rev. Dr. Caven's physicians this morning was to the effect that the patient was in much the same condition as yesterday. He is taking nourishment fairly well and maintaining his strength.

The Collingwood Murder.

Collingwood, June 4.—All the energy of the authorities is now directed to the arrest of a white man and a negro, last seen near Ganonoque, who are apparently heading for the States, for the murder of Glory Whalen. They are the only two suspects now. The inquest has been adjourned till the 15th inst.

Mutinous Murderers Hanged.

Liverpool, June 3.—Gustave Rau, a German, and William Smith, an American, seamen of the British barque Veronica, from Ship Island, Miss., who were sentenced to death May 14, after having been convicted of murdering Captain Shaw and six other members of the Veronica's crew, were hanged here simultaneously yesterday morning. Rau protested his innocence on the scaffold.

Justice Armour Dying.

Toronto, June 3.—Private advices received here yesterday state that there is very little hope for the recovery of Mr. Justice Armour, who is lying ill in Sydney, England.

Enquiry last night failed to confirm the report, but the statement was made, from an authoritive source, that he would not live to sit on the Alaskan Commission.

Broke His Spine.

Underwood, June 3.—While driving home from Tiverton Monday night, John Smith, a farmer living on the second concession of Bruce, was fatally injured in a runaway accident. His horse took fright at some sheep on the roadside and leaped across a ditch, throwing Smith under his cart and fracturing his spine.

Gained Forty Pounds in Thirty Days.

For several months our younger brother had been troubled with indigestion. He tried several remedies but got no benefit from them. We purchased some of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and he commenced taking them. Inside of 30 days he has gained 40 pounds in flesh. He is now fully recovered. We have a good trade in the Tablets. Holly Bros., Merchants, Long Branch, Missouri.

Issuing 25,000 Maps.

London, June 3.—Hon. Clifford Sifton, Canadian Minister of the Interior, is through the Dominion Commissioner of Emigration, making an issue of 25,000 maps of Canada to schools and various public institutions throughout the Kingdom.

Great Dangers Past.

Kansas City, Mo., June 3.—Blue sky was visible above Kansas City yesterday afternoon. The rains have ended and the sun was visible for the first time in a week. For this and other reasons it is thought that the great dangers of flood are past.

Expect to Make an Arrest Soon.

Toronto, June 2.—Provincial Detective Greer returned to Collingwood yesterday to continue the investigation of the Whalen murder. The coroner's jury will hold another session to-morrow. The Deputy Attorney-General asserted yesterday that an arrest was expected in a day or two.

Australian Rabbits.

A few years ago the rabbit was a plague and dread of the whole pastoral class in Australia. Australians are learning now to turn the rabbit itself into a commercial asset. Twenty millions of Australian rabbit skins were sold in London last year, while nearly 3,000,000 rabbits, frozen in their furs, were sent to the London market from Victoria alone. The Australian rabbit is thus supplying the tables of the United Kingdom with food and the wardrobes of the civilized world with ornaments.

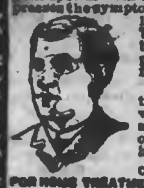
BLOOD DISEASED MEN

If you ever contracted any blood disease you are never safe unless the virus or poison has been eradicated from the system. Have you any of the following symptoms? Sore throat, ulcers on the tongue or in the mouth, hair falling out, aching pains, itchiness of the skin, sores or blotches on the body eyes red and smart, dyspeptic stomach, sexual weakness—indications of the secondary stage. Don't ruin your system with the old fogy treatment—mercury and potash—which only suppresses the symptoms for a time only to break out again when happy in domestic life. Don't let quacks experiment on you. Our New Method Treatment is guaranteed to cure you. Our guarantees are backed by bank bonds, that the disease will never return. Thousands of patients have been already cured by our New Method Treatment for over 20 years. No names used without written consent.



Mr. E. A. C. writes: "Your remedies have done me more good than Hot Springs and all the doctors and medicines I had previously tried. I have not felt any of those pains or seen any ulcers or blotches for over seven years and the outward symptoms of the loathesome disease have entirely disappeared. My hair has grown in fully again and I am married and happy."

Is the Best Mining Investment on the Market To-day.

It's mines are in three great mining camps in Idaho, Thunder Mountain and Trinity County, California. It has vast bodies of ore already above ground and extensive workings under ground, thus enough insight for its three plants for years. It has one-third of the stock in another company that has the biggest and richest reef of ore (all above ground) in the world. All it has to do is to wait for dividends on this stock. It has a capable honest and reliable Management. The price of stock is very low for the present, virtually ground floor.

The following market letter has been received by Messrs. McMillan & Maguire, stock brokers, Hunter street:

New York, June 4th.—The heavy selling of Penna., at the close yesterday is is unexplained this morning, and added to uneasiness. The heavy gold export added to firmer rate for money and had depressing influence. Its certain that prices cannot advance in face of these adverse influences and while there will be rallies on short covering, stocks should be sold on all bulges. London has been a moderate buyer of our stocks and seems to take a more favourable view of things than do many traders here. Until labour, crops and money outlook is clearer sell stocks on the bulges.

New York, June 4th, 9.45 a. m. — We still believe that pretty much all bad news that has been hovering over the market has come out and been discounted by present range of prices and that any changes in the labour situation and the crop situation and outlook as well as the question of gold exports from now on will be for the better. Prices for most stocks show declines ranging from 15 to 20 points from their recent high levels and general list has now got down to a point where they will net five per cent. investment. As there has been no radical change in fundamental conditions of the country beyond disturbance of labour in some sections and worse impressions are now manifested regarding crop outlook and they may be entirely changed with a few weeks favourable weather conditions. We believe that the present level of prices will attract a much better class of buying and a large volume of investment purchases.

M. & M.

New York, June 4th, 11.10 a. m. — We look for higher prices in wheat.

CANBY.

New York, June 4th, 12.20 p. m. — Don't be afraid to buy either corn or oats.

CANBY.

New York, June 4th, 12.35, p. m. — Break in copper and pressure on Penna, U.P. and selling of Gangers by West and absence of substantial buying undermining market again. There is no special news outside of the state crop reports. Sterling exchange easier. Demand 488.05.

M. & M.

FINANCIAL NEWS.

A New York despatch says: — It is estimated that the Canadian Pacific interest in this city has lost millions of dollars within the last week as a result of the decline in the stock. The Canadian Pacific pool proper, which consists of at least three members of companies strong in financial force, and two others of most important names in Canada, was an aggressive buyer of Canadian Pacific after the announcement of the Ames failure. The scarcity of the stock in the loan crowd materially helped the improvement.

A despatch from Oshawa says: The senior C.L.A. lacrosse match scheduled to be played here between the Ontarios of Port Hope, and the local twelve on Saturday, June 6th, is creating considerable excitement as well as comment among our citizens. It was generally conceded by all that Oshawa would have an easy victory in this game at least but after the Ontarios scalped the Indians in Port Hope last Saturday by a score of 5 to 3, the impression as to the result of next Saturday's game has somewhat changed and a hard struggle is now looked for. Some of the Oshawa players have intimated that they intend quitting the game and if such is the case the Ontarios will have a good chance of winning from their old rivals on their own grounds.

* * * *

The first game in No. 12 District Junior Series, C.L.A., was played in Hastings Wednesday between Belleville and Hastings. It was an easy victory for the visitors by a score of 8 to 1. The locals scored the first goal, and during the first half played an even game with their opponents. They lacked staying power, however. The game was fast and exciting, and free from roughness. Belleville lined up one short. The teams were as follows:—

Belleville—F. Kirby, goal; W. Hitchon, point; W. Cook, cover point; defence, A. Lief, E. Ford, R. Acton; McGuire, centre; D. Diabo, H. C. Kennedy, home; D. H. Whetty, outside home; J. A. Winchester, inside home.

Hastings—John Welsh, goal; W. Clapper, point; J. Coughlan, cover-point; G. Walsh, Clyde Stewart, Jim Welsh, defence; G. Carey, centre; C. Stewart, E. Scriver, home; F. Dodd, outside home; C. Prest, inside home.

BASEBALL.

To-night on the Paterson street grounds, the George street Guild Baseball team, will have a full practice. All members are requested to turn out, as a match with the Charlotte street Guild is a possibility of the near future.

* * *

Yesterday evening the Shamrocks played a practice game on the oval with the Auburns. This was a very good practice for both teams. The score stood 8 to 5. The Auburns had no snap in Quinlan, who fanned them out in succession for the first three innings with ease.

The Glow of Health.

When the blood is rich and pure there is a healthful glow to the complexion, which speaks of the vigour and vitality of the system. There is no more certain way for pale weak people to attain the glow of health than by the persistent use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great food cure, which forms new, rich, red blood and creates new nerve force.

SISTER M. HILLARD HAS PASSED AWAY.

Former Nurse at St. Joseph's Hospital Died at the "Soo" Yesterday Morning.

The very sad death of Sister M. Hillary occurred yesterday morning morning at seven o'clock, at St. Joseph's Convent, Sault Ste. Marie.

TThe deceased, who was for some years a nurse in St. Joseph's Hospital, Ashburnham, was aged 45 years, and died of pneumonia, with which she has been ailing for some months.

The late Sister Hillary left Peterborough after a year ago for Lindsay, which place she left for Sault Ste. Marie last September. The deceased's parents reside in Fort Wayne Indiana. Her remains will be buried in Peterborough, and are expected to arrive this evening by C.P.R. at 5.10. On the arrival of the train the remains will be conveyed to St. Peter's Cathedral, after which the cortege will proceed to the Roman Catholic cemetery, where the interment will take place.

WM. WIGG WAS ADJUDGED INSANE.

His Attack May Only be Temporary as it was on Other Occasions.

The County Police Magistrate went to Lakefield yesterday morning in answer to a telephone call. The cause of the journey was the condition of a boy aged 18 years, named Wm. Wigg, who has been acting very strangely, and who is adjudged insane.

The lad was examined by Dr. J. R. Fraser, who said that there was no doubt but that the youth was weak in the head. It transpired that the doctor had written to the boy's parents, who live in Burleigh, telling them of his condition. It was learned that Wigg has been in this condition before, and has been taken care of by his father, and always overcame his temporary insanity. As his father may again wish to take care of him no action has been taken by the Magistrate.

"BIG CHARLIE" WAS HARD TO KILL.

Horse Lived 31 Days in Mine at Frank, B. C.

A Frank correspondent writes that the miners made their first entrance to the Frank Coal mine on Friday last since the disaster of April 29th. They found that a powerful horse, "Big Charlie," as he was called, was actually alive in the mine after 31 days of imprisonment without food, and during part of the time without water. At the time of the slide five horses were at work in the mine. Three were probably drowned, the fourth succumbed to starvation, and the fifth actually lived until the men found him in a dying condition. The poor creature had eaten fully six inches off the edge of the coal car. All day Big Charlie was cared for as an infant, Manager Gebo himself taking charge of the patient, but he expired on Saturday.

ALL CHARGES AGAINST MR. STRATTON FAIL

The Royal Commission Declares That Gamey's Charges Have Been Disproved by a Great Body of Evidence.

JUDGES SAY NO MONEY CAME FROM THE PROVINCIAL SECRETARY OR ANY MINISTER.

Report of the Royal Commission on the Gamey Case Clears the Reputation of the Provincial Secretary —Gamey's Politics Were: "Manitoulin, With Gamey as Member."

"Mr. Gamey had no personal intercourse with any member of the Ministry except the Provincial Secretary. With two or three of the others he had some official correspondence, but with the rest not even that.

"With regard to the added charge of conspiracy, the Commissioners are of the opinion that, as a matter of law, there is no evidence whatever to sustain it as against the members of the Government and the other persons charged. And, according to the methods of an ordinary trial, they would be discharged from the said accusation by the presiding judicial officer.

"This being so, the matter of the original charge alone remains and as to the Provincial Secretary there is the testimony that has been commented upon.

"In our opinion the corrupt charges stand disproved by a great body of evidence which appears to be more accurate and credtiable than that adduced in support thereof."

THE ACCUSER DISCREDITED.

In these words Chancellor Boyd and Chief Justice Falconbridge yesterday delivered their finding in the great case of Gamey against the Provincial Secretary and the Government of Ontario. Not since the collapse of the case of The Times against Parnell by the confession of Pigott that the chief parts of the evidence were forgeries has a political trial had such a disastrous ending for the accuser. When he stepped from the witness box, after refusing to give testimony regarding the deposit slips on the ground that criminal action was being contemplated, Mr. Gamey ended his brief and meteoric career as a purifier of politics. There were "none so poor as do him reverence," not even the members of the Opposition, who had cheered so loudly when he launched his charges in the Legislature on March the eleventh.

A POLITICAL EPITAPH.

And now, following upon that desertion of his allies, comes the vindication of the Provincial Secretary's character by two jurists of national repute, trained in the sifting of evidence, who, in their summary of the outstanding facts of the case, feel constrained to say of Mr. Gamey:

His politics was Manitoulin.
With Gamey as member.
On the side of any Government in power.
To the end that he might serve his constituency.
And also secure shares in the various deals supposed possible by not over-scrupulous men.

This is the political epitaph of the man from Manitoulin, and with that summing up of his character and political ideals the commissioners leave Mr. Gamey to the final judgment that must be passed by the Legislature and people of Ontario. The commissioners' report in verbatim form follows:—

THE OFFICIAL REPORT.

(Certified by Nelson R. Butcher, Official Stenographer, to be a true copy of the report, as signed by the Royal Commissioners, June 4th, 1903.)

May it Please Your Honour:

We, the undersigned commissioners, appointed by commission under the Great Seal of Ontario, bearing date the 28th day of March, 1903, for the purpose of hearing and investigating certain charges preferred by Robert Roswell Gamey, a member of the Legislative Assembly of this Province, in a statement made on the floor of the House on the 11th March, 1903; and in a certain other statement made by the said Mr. Gamey in the Legislative Assembly on the 27th day of March, 1903, having inquired into and investigated the said charges, respectfully report thereon to your Honour in manner following:—

At the time of the issue of the said commission the written details of the charges made by Mr. Gamey in his place in the Legislative Assembly on the 11th day of March were in his possession, and the contents thereof were ascertained in the said commission by means of the full reports of the same which appeared in the issues of The Toronto Globe, Mail and Empire, and World newspapers respectively, of date the 12th March, 1903.

During the progress of the commission the original text of the said charges in the writing of the said Gamey was put in evidence, and was found to correspond almost literally with the said newspaper reports, but, for the sake of accuracy, the said original statement is now set forth at large as follows:—

(Then follows Mr. Gamey's speech in the House.)

GAMEY'S CHARGE PREPARED CAREFULLY.

The text of the charges read before the House is regarded by the commissioners as a document of supreme importance. Its statements and its omissions invite critical consideration. Its preparation was undertaken in a leisurely way, with care, with deliberation, during part of at least ten days, and with corrections, with a desire to make it accurate, and with opportunity to refer to books and memorandum of dates to assist, and subject to the final perusal of Mr. McGregor, Mr. Gamey's alleged confidant and counsellor throughout. It was thus prepared (comprehending everything that was deemed important) in order to make a solid base for the impeachment of the Provincial Secretary on the floor of the House.

Mr. Gamey was returned member for the electoral district of Manitoulin on the 29th day of May, 1902, classed as a Conservative. On the 17th day of June the election returns were completed, showing a Government majority of two, but in less than a week one of the Government supporters died, which left the majority one, and one seat vacant. Numerous protests were filed on both sides, and in this constituency (Manitoulin) the return was controverted by petition filed on the 10th and served on the 14th July. The results of investigation into wrong practices were communicated to Mr. R. A. Grant, solicitor for the Ontario Reform Association, on the 5th August, and more fully and finally on the 10th September.

These preliminary details supply what is needful to be known in order to supplement Mr. Gamey's introductory remarks.

THE CHARGES SUMMARIZED.

The leading particulars of the said charges of the 11th day of March (as elucidated by the evidence) may be thus summarized:—

That one Frank Sullivan, under the guise of friendship, but as an emissary of the Provincial Secretary, approached Mr. Gamey on the 7th day of August and told him his seat was in danger and that he would be disqualified by evidence that could be procured, and advised him to avoid a trial and make a good thing out of the situation by coming over to the Government side and getting money therefor to the extent of $5,000, and that Sullivan undertook to convince Mr. Gamey of this if he would wait in Toronto for a few days;

That, having so waited, Mr. Gamey was introduced by Sullivan to Mr. R. A. Grant, a lawyer "prominent in Liberal ranks," and the matter was discussed under the form of a stock proposition by which Mr. Gamey would make $3,000 in a short time, and $2,000 more after the session of the House;

That it was then agreed (after this came to nothing), between Sullivan and Mr. Gamey, that if anything was done, each should take half;

That afterwards one Captain Sullivan, father of Frank, on the 21st of August, came to Mr. Gamey's house at Gore Bay to get him to sign some paper promising support to the Government, which Mr. Gamey promised to see about in Toronto at a later day;

That on the 26th of August Frank Sullivan drew up documents by which Mr. Gamey agreed to support the Government, and Frank Sullivan agreed to pay Mr. Gamey $3,000 in cash and $2,000 after the session; and that these papers were afterwards destroyed;

PROCEEDINGS IN SEPTEMBER, 1902.

Then about Sept. 9th, Mr. Gamey went to the office of the Provincial Secretary with Frank Sullivan, and the arrangement was discussed in which the promise of patronage in the riding was assured to Mr. Gamey, and also reference made to other "consideration" of value;

That a draft letter promising to support the Government was then produced to Mr. Gamey; but the consideration to be paid that day was not ready, and the matter was not then closed;

That Frank Sullivan and Mr. Gamey were to go, and did go, to the office of Mr. Aylesworth, K.C., who was retained as counsel for the Liberal Association in whose hands had been placed the letter to be signed by Mr. Gamey, and that being signed in Mr. Aylesworth's office by Mr. Gamey, it was withheld and not delivered, because, as Frank Sullivan said to Mr. Aylesworth, some stock question was to be settled before it could be parted with;

That by appointment next day there two (Sullivan and Mr. Gamey) saw the Provincial Secretary, and the signed letter was given to him, and he therefore took from his pocket a bulky parcel which was carried down to the smoking room, and the contents of which, amounting to $3,000, were equally divided between Sullivan and Mr. Gamey;

SEEKING APPOINTMENTS.

That to get evidence of the patronage deal on the 29th of September Mr. Gamey wrote to the Provincial Secretary asking the appointment of one Flesher as Justice of the Peace in the electroral district he represented;

And that he also applied on the 8th of October to the Provincial Secretary to have the Sheriff (Jackson) appointed as returning officer to take the referendum vote;

That about the 23rd of October Mr. Gamey saw the Provincial Secretary about rumours as to his supporting the Government—rumours originating with Sullivan—and that the Premier's advice was obtained, that nothing should be done;

And that the Provincial Secretary then asked Mr. Gamey to send a letter, a duplicate of that of the 10th of September, but of later date, and the other would be returned. The duplicate letter was altered by Mr. Gamey, and mailed to the Premier, but the first one was not sent back to him;

THE GLOBE INTERVIEW.

That on the 13th of January, 1903, the Provincial Secretary questioned Mr. Gamey about his taking part for the Conservatives in the North Perth election, and asked why the letter had been altered and gave Mr. Gamey particulars of a coalition deal and discussed appointments, and that Mr. Gamey agreed to come down shortly;

That on he 29th of January Frank Sullivan and Mr. Gamey again went to the Provincial Secretary's office, and Mr. Gamey was then asked to sign a paper which the Provincial Secretary had prepared, purporting to be an interview with Mr. Gamey by a Globe reporter;

That Mr. Gamey wanted to make some changes and took it away, and, after leaving the office of the Provincial Secretary, Frank Sullivan said there would be another cash payment if it was signed;

That, having made some changes, the paper was signed and taken back to the Provincial Secretary on the same evening and handed to the Globe reporter then present, whereupon the Provincial Secretary told Mr. Gamey he had given Frank Sullivan $1,000 in bills, and these two going outside, that amount of money was divided equally between them.

MONEY THE GRAVAMEN OF THE CHARGE.

The above is the substance of the charges as stated in the House on the first occasion, and the gravamen of the whole is the payment of the two sums of money, particularly the first sum, to Mr. Gamey by or through the Provincial Secretary, for corrupt purposes.

Incidentally the promise of patronage is adverted to, but nothing is said as to the dismissal of the election petition, though these two matters were brought forward with some prominence in the testimony by and on behalf of Mr. Gamey as constituting corrupt elements in the aforesaid dealings.

In addition to the matters referred as set forth in the commission which bears date the 28th day of March, 1903, Mr. Gamey made a further statement on the floor of the House on the 27th day of March, 1903, which, by the declaration of the Legislative Assembly in the statute respecting evidence, assented to on the 31st day of March, was to be included in the charges covered by the terms of the said Commission.

That additional statement was in

COMPLETE COLLAPSE OF THE GAMEY CHARGES.

Hon. J. R. Stratton comes through the ordeal of investigation by the Royal Commission, unscathed — completely exonerated. The report of the Commission laid upon the table of the House on Thursday afternoon, entirely discredits the story of the member for Manitoulin, who on March 11th, with such a flourish of trumpets, made his notorious charges against Hon. J. R. Stratton, Provincial Secretary, and subsequently included all the members of the Government, in a charge of conspiracy. Mr. Gamey's charges which at the time of their being made, brought so great delight to the members of the Conservative Opposition, have collapsed like a house of cards. In that collapse, whatever of good name, whatever of political standing the member for Manitoulin may have had, lie buried, as lie buried the hopes of the Opposition, who in Mr. Gamey saw their deliverer from the bondage of Opposition. Mr. Gamey was hailed as a hero, whose plot was to overthrow the Government and bring the Conservative to the power they had sought so long, and so vainly. Their hopes, however, are rudely shattered, and not only shattered, but the Opposition which espoused Mr. Gamey's cause so warmly, are discredited along with the utter disgrace which has fallen upon him. For he is disgraced. The report of the Commissioners utterely and unrevocably discredits Mr. Gamey's monstrous publication, his dastardly, but happily abortive plot, to entrap not only a Minister of the Crown but a whole Cabinet. At the present moment it is unpracticable to analyse in detail the elaborate finding of the Commission. It is sufficient to state that R. R. Gamey, M.P.P. for Manitoulin, on March 11th, made a series of extraordinary charges on the floor of the House on his responsibility as a member. He alleged that, as a consideration for Mr. Gamey's support of the Government Hon. Mr. Stratton paid him a sum of $4,000—$3,000 at one time and $1,000 at another, and further he alleged that in consideration of giving his support to the Government he was corruptly given the patronage of the Provincial Secretary's and other departments, and further he charged that in consideration of his supporting the Government, the protest entered against him was corruptly withdraw. These were the damaging charges made. It will be remembered that Mr. Stratton emphatically denied the truth of the charges as affecting him, and as the Government was affected. He also demanded a Royal Commission of inquiry, which, after a most thorough, impartial and pertinent investigation and the presentation of all possible available evidence, has reported, categorically declaring that all three charges, as indicated above, are thoroughly disproved, that Mr. Stratton never paid Gamey any money directly as a consideration for his support, or for any purpose; that Mr. Gamey resived no patronage as an equivalent for his support of the Government, or otherwise, and that the protest was not corruptly withdrawn as the price of Mr. Gamey's friendship for the Government. The Royal Commission unanimously finds Hon. Mr. Stratton blameless as to the charges made by the member for Manitoulin, and the charge of conspiracy against the Government also completely fails. In fact, the result of the investigation, according to the report of the Commissioners, is to discredit the wild-cat story of Gamey all along the line. Mr. Stratton and the Government are pronounced clear of stain in respect of the charges of the member for Manitoulin. The report of the Commissioners represents the failure of another plot to discredit and drive out of power a Liberal Government, and replace it with a Conservative Government. The political enemies of Mr. Stratton, who rejoiced in wicked hope, and exulted with unholy glee over the Gamey charges, are covered with confusion, and his staunch Liberal friends in Peterborough, and elsewhere in the Province, who have stood by him with unshaken confidence and loyalty, through all the trying ordeal of the past three months, have good reason for the gratification they feel at the failure of the political plot to drive him out of political life, and the failure of the plot to cover his name with odium. For the plot has failed, and he stands to-day amply vindicated, and stronger in public confidence than ever, and the Government of which he is a member, is stronger than ever.

FRUIT GROWING IN THE PROVINCE.

Advice to Orchardists—How to Obtain High Grade of Fruit.

POWER SPRAYERS IN THE UNITED STATES.

Mr. W. A. McKinnon, chief of the Fruit Division, recently attended the large meeting held at South Onondaga, N.Y., in the Hitchings orchard, which has become quite famous on account of the unusual methods of management prevailing there. About 300 people were present at the meeting to witness the spraying demonstrations, to examine the orchard, and to study the system of cultivation which has made it such a success. The concensus of opinion among these spraying demonstrations, to examine the orchard and to study the system of cultivation which it has made it such a success. The concensus of opinion among these practical orchardists was that power spraying was the only method suitable for large orchards, and that while individual fruit growers with small orchards might find it profitable to purchase power outfits, yet by combining in the purchase and operation of the sprayer they could spray all their orchards much more economically than they could do it by hand.

In Delaware a few orchardists started to use gasoline as a power with the idea that one outfit would be sufficient for several farms, but they have such large orchards that they have found it profitable to purchase a power outfit for each. Fruit growers from that state seem to be delighted with the new method. When told that the Dominion Fruit Division was giving orchard demonstrations to show our farmers the value of power sprayers, they were lavish in their complimentary references to the practical educational methods of the Dominion Department. It was freely admitted that in such matters Canada is in advance of the United States. It is evident over there that the new system has come to stay, although with them it may be only the richer and more extensive orchardists who will take it up first. In Canada, however, it is quite practicable for a group of farmers owning 3,000 or 4,000 trees among them, to co-operate so as to have all their spraying done with a power outfit costing from $250 to $300.

GROCERS AND ILLEGALLY PACKED FRUIT.

In the Canadian grocer of May 29th, appears a letter from Mr. W. A. MacKinnon, chief of the fruit division, Ottawa, calling attention to the good work which might be done by associations of grocers or retailers generally, if they would undertake to protect their members against the fraudulent packing and marking of fruit. Commenting editorially on Mr. MacKinnon's suggestion the "Grocer says:—"In a few weeks the fresh fruit season will have opened up. Naturally, the retail grocer, remembering the uncertainties and vexations of past seasons, will hope that this year will ensure a steadier, more satisfactory business than many years that have gone.

It is but reasonable that the trade should expect at least more freedom from fraudulent packing and marking. The enforcement of the fruit marks Act of 1901 has been steadily increasing in rigor and effectiveness, yet there seems to be room for still further improvement in this regard. The question is, to whom must we now look for improvement? At the moment the work is left entirely to Government officials — the inspectors. They have done their part satisfactorily, but it seems clear that if the trade is ever to be secured against this kind of fraud the enforcement of the law must have the trade behind it. For this reason the letter from Mr. W. A. MacKinnon, chief of the fruit division, department of agriculture, Ottawa, is timely, and worthy of serious thought. The point raised by Mr. MacKinnon, that the grocers' associations in the various towns and cities should take steps to assist in protecting the trade, might well be taken into consideration. There is no doubt that if fruit packers knew that the trade was, through their organizations, determined to stamp out Fraudulent packing and marking, the moral effect would be great, and a few prosecutions by the representatives of the associations would soon effectively rid the trade of this, one of the most annoying and inexcusable evils of the day."

APSLEY.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Apsley, June 1st.

Miss Hattie Eastland has returned from Montreal, enriched by a six month's course in vocal and instrumental music.

Dr. Fraser, of Lakefield, is in the village.

Inspector Brown made his 60th trip to the north country last week; which means 30 years service as Inspector of Schools. We wish him 30 more.

Apsley citizens are putting down cement sidewalks.

Last Sunday evening the Rev. Cannon Hardy delivered a scholarly and forcible sermon, taking for his subject, "The Holy Catholic Apostolic Church." The discourse was listened to with rapt attention throughout. The reverend gentleman, who some years ago passed the "three score years and ten" mark, has a voice which is perfectly clear and remarkably strong for one his age.

The entire community sincerely sympathizes with Mr. William Masters in his bereavement, and we know that to him, his loss is very great.

The Court of Revision met on Saturday and many of our citizens are looking more pleasant now.

The Glow of Health.

When the blood is rich and pure there is a healthful glow to the complexion, which speaks of the vigour and vitality of the system. There is no more certain way for pale weak people to attain the glow of health than by the persistent use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great food cure, which forms new, rich, red blood and creates new nerve force.

BLAIRTON.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Blairton, June 2nd.

The funeral of the late Elizer Youmans, victim of the horrible skip disaster at Cordova Mine, Township of Belmont, on the 26th, and in which four miners were included, took place on the 28th inst. Mr. Curtis, of Havelock, with his richly embellished hearse, was in attendance. Leaving the home of the aged and sorrow stricken parents of the lamented and unfortunate deceased, the very large funeral cortage proceeded to the C. M. church, which, though commodious, was packed to the doors with mournful ones of all classes and creeds. In the absence of Rev. Mr. Howard, pastor of the church, Rev. Mr. Goodwill, resident Presbyterian minister, conducted the service. Having chosen for his text:. — "Lord, make me to know mine end, and the measure of my days, what it is; that I may know how frail I am." Psalms 39; 4, the reverend gentleman delivered such a sermon as will never be forgotten by scores of anxious listeners. His masterly efforts in unfolding the text was highly instructive and interesting, and that the argumental matter advanced in connection with the "brevity of life,"
